Lightning, Rain Break Heat Wave Across Province

At Least Two Deaths Occur Thousands of Dollars Damage

Situation Blamed On Restrictions, Higher Taxes

Toronto, Sept. 1. (AP)— At least two deaths and many thousands of dollars damage were left in the wake of a lightning-and-rain storm last night that put an end to one of Southern Ontario's worst hot spells so far this summer.

Cloudy and cooler weather was forecast for today, with cool air from the northwest due by Sunday.

The heavy rain was a factor in a level-crossing accident at Ailanford, 12 miles west of Owen Sound, in which Mr. and Mrs. William Koch, both 25, lost their lives while returning with their two young children from a holiday trip.

Lightning started a fire that destroyed four barns and two silos on the Don Cameron farm, five miles from Welland. Damage was estimated at upwards of $20,000.

Loss was placed at $8,000 in a fire started by lightning that razed Ethel Rutland's barn on the farm of Joseph Lennox, near Barrie. Paul Rutland, 16, was lifted off a chair in the kitchen and flung against a sofa but suffered little harm.

Ethel Rutland, 17, was also burned about the head when struck by lightning in the bedroom of her Windsor district home. The bolt lifted her from the bed.

Suffered Shock

Two girls carrying iron trays loaded with dishes were thrown to the floor when lightning struck near the Canada Spool and Bobbin factory in Waterloo.

Thunderstorms knocked out telephone and power lines in the Dundalk area. Mrs. Robert French suffered a shock while resting her head on a windmill as the storm raged overhead.

A lightning bolt smashed a hole in a wall of Hamilton's Westdale United Church, ripping out brick and a cement block.

A bus and a transport truck collided near Oshawa during a sudden downpour. Nine persons scrambled to safety from the bus, three of them slightly injured.

The Canadian National Exhibition's Jimmy Durante-Garfield Wood stand show was rained out. Also in Toronto, the Canadian Cup race, Canada's richest harness race, was stopped after the first heat by a stewards' ruling that the track was unsafe for racing, but it will be finished today.

TWO MEN DROWNED

Pagny Soupé, Sept. 1.—(CP)—Two men drowned and two were saved Friday when a small boat capsized in Long Lake, seven miles south of this Georgian Bay town.

Dead are Ray Smizlie of Dayton, Ohio, and Myron Brown of Ottawa. Tooney Hayes of nearby Mill Bay helped John Grant reach shore.

Meat Prices Chief Booster In 15-Point Cost-of-Living Climb

Ottawa, Sept. 1 — (CP) — For higher food prices provided the main impetus, but food prices in July, 1951, were only five per cent; in Canada they jumped by almost seven.

And prices in the U. S. jumped by only one per cent—in Canada they jumped almost four times as much by almost four.

All other prices involved in the indexes ran about neck and neck.

The government officials believe the basic cause in the big jump in the Canadian index is due to the government.

Based on the 1935-39 prices equalling 100, the Canadian index now at a record 187.6, jumped 15 points in the first half of 1951. Behind the figures of meat jumped, roughly, about 16 cents a pound.

So the eyes of many a Canadian housewife will be on the price of meat in the months ahead. Those in the studies first aid Friday night he stopped at 27 accidents. The drive took him five hours.

PERJURY CHARGE LAID AGAINST FORMER JOCKEY

Six Riders Now Ruled Off Ont. Tracks for Life

Toronto, Sept. 1 (CP) — Ex-jockey Gordon Cox of Hamilton, arrested yesterday in connection with the Ontario Racing Commission's enquiry into race fixing at Ontario tracks, is scheduled to appear in court here today on a charge of perjury.

Through his counsel Timothy McKenna, Cox sought and was granted a rehearinx for the charge which brought a ruling barring him from racetracks for life. He will be taken by bi-bearing provincial police were called in to arrest him on the perjury charge.

To date in the investigation, six riders have been ruled off for life. Cox is the fourth of these to face criminal charges. Two jockeys have received indefinite suspensions and three men, in addition to the jockeys face criminal charges.

One of the men, Harry (Swabby) Swartz of Toronto, was named Thursday by the racing commission as the "Mr. Fix-It" behind the "ringing in" of the Fort Erie race track in July.

Refused Bail

Swartz surrendered to police Thursday and yesterday was released on $5,000 bail. He will be tody on two charges of fraud and conspiracy to defraud.

The commission indicated today that there were other "masterminds" in the race riggings still at large. As usual a welter of rumors surrounded its activities. In racing circle gossip said a "well known Bay Street promoter", was deeply involved and the racing commission was on his trail.

The charge against Swartz involves former jockey John Perron, who fled to the U.S. and is sought on a warrant charging conspiracy.

Swartz's wife Ann, described as the "woman in black" who bet $1,500 in U.S. currency on North Parkes in the last race at Fort Erie track, may appear before the commission next week.

Lone Bandit Takes $10,000 From Marketeria

Montreal, Sept. 1 — (CP) — A lone bandit, brandishing two guns, made a clean getaway with more than $10,000 from the Montreal Atlantic and Pacific Supermarket on west-end Sherbrooke Street.

A police cruiser stopped near the store while the hold-up was in progress but did not see the masked bandit and went on its way.

Head cashier Larry Syms said the man herded all employees to the back of the store and then told him to "hand it over and make it fast."

Syms said the bandit filled a pail with every bill in the safe.

U.S., Australia and N.Z. Sign New Defence Pact Covering Vast Area of Pacific

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

San Francisco, Sept. 1 (AP)— The United States, Australia and New Zealand today sign a mutual defence treaty extending western security guarantees over the vast area of the world.

It provides another link in a future Pacific-wide military alliance against the communist threat and is a curtain-raiser for next week's Japanese peace conference.

Arriving by plane yesterday, State Secretary Dean Acheson, in an obvious reference to Russia said the days ahead would show which are the peaceful nations and which are those that "talk peace while taking action that may impair and prevent the strengthening of peace."

The tripartite pact will be signed at the historic presidio of San Francisco, headquarters of the U.S. Sixth Army.

It provides for consultation, if the three countries in event any one of them is threatened in the Pacific area. More importantly it specifies:

"Each party recognizes that an armed attack in the Pacific area on any of the parties would be dangerous to its own peace and safety and declares that it would act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes."

Opens Tuesday: Night

Just before signatures are penned on the three-way treaty, Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko is scheduled to lead Russia's 39-member delegation into town for the Japanese peace treaty conference. That conference will be opened by President Truman Tuesday night at the San Francisco Memorial Opera-house, birthplace of the United Nations.

A 20-member Japanese delegation by seven treaty conferences arrived in Honolulu Friday night and is due here Sunday. The delegation is led by Premier Shigeru Hoshida.

Today's treaty signing, like the conclusion in Washington Thursday of a similar U.S.-Philippines Defence Pact, stands with the Japanese Peace Treaty — set for signing Sept. 8—as part of a great sliding U.S. arc across the Pacific against any extension of communism in power.

The Tripartite and U.S.-Philippines treaties are beyond Russia's reach. But Gromyko is expected to use the conference to try to stall or delay the signing of the Japanese treaty, which the United States and Britain are pressing as the keystone of the whole security project.

Bell Asks for New Jump In Central Canada Phone Rates

Ottawa, Sept. 1—(CP)—The five-cent telephone call, like the five-cent street car fare, may soon be a thing of the past and your home telephone bill may soon climb between 25 and 75 cents a month.

Searching for another $15,800,000 in revenue, the Bell Telephone Company of Canada yesterday applied for permission to the board of transport commissioners to boost its rates for local service on 1,000,000 phones in Ontario and Quebec.

It asked the board to give its application a hearing as soon as possible with a view of putting higher rates into effect before the increase requested would for home phones, range between 10 and 75 cents a month, depending on the type of service and the size of the community.

Individual business rates would climb between $1 and $3 a month.

The standard nickel charge for a phone-booth call would go to 10 cents in the larger cities down to the size of St. Catharines, Ont. Long distance rates would not be affected.

If granted, this would be the third boost in telephone rates in the last 14 months. The application, however, is expected to be fought by some of the municipalities involved.

The current proposed boost would give the company an added 10 per-cent in its operating revenues, though the individual increases vary widely up and down the rate structure.

The extra money is needed, the board told commissioners, to continue its operations on a sound economic basis, largely to keep up its credit rating in order to get that new capital to meet demands for expanded service.

Besides the proposed boost, the five-cent call would jump to ten cents in Montreal, Toronto, Quebec, Hull, Ottawa, Hamilton, Kitchener-Waterloo, Ont., and St. Catharines, Niagara Falls, Ont. The 10-cent charge would apply on public and semi-public telephones.

The big effect would be felt the sharpest increases. Montreal and Toronto would get the heaviest benefits. In the two cities the charge for a common two-party residence phone would jump to $4.85 from $3.75 a month. One-party phones would go to $5.50 from $4.25.

In smaller exchanges the rates would climb to $2.75 from $2.25 and to $3.50 from $3.25 for one-party phones.

Proportionate rate rates for individual business phones would rise to $15 from $12 a month. In smaller cities the rates would go to $3 from $4.

Govt. Quickens Pace to Clean Up Outstanding Taxes

Ottawa, Sept. 1—(CP)— The federal government has quickened its pace to clean up outstanding debts by delinquent taxpayers.

Usually in the past, court action against delinquents was not taken for about a year after the tax became due.

This year a federal revenue official said Friday night, through a "more efficient system," notices will issue every month "and going out faster" and action to haul the delinquent into court if necessary is being speeded up.

As a result, some delinquents are having their wages garnisheed in just four months before the 1950 taxes became due last April 30, at the end of the tax year.

The official said, however, that though the work is being speeded up, it is not known if the government has instituted "any special drive."

Act the number of delinquents this year appears to be declining.

SAW 27 ACCIDENTS

Oshawa, Sept. 1 (CP)—Paul Zeschuyer of Hamilton was asked to give his hobby a real workout Friday night on a motor trip between Oshawa and Hamilton while en route to Montreal. In his travels those he studies first aid. Friday night he stopped at 27 accidents. The drive took him five hours.

Two Killed As Car Hit By Train

Owen Sound, Sept. 1—(CP)— Mr. and Mrs. William Koch, both 25, of Waterloo, Ont., were killed Friday when their car was struck by a train at a level crossing near Allanford, 12 miles west of here.

Their children, Larry, 4, and Linda, 3 months, also in the car, were uninjured.

The accident occurred in heavy rain at a crossing on the Ontario-Canada Northland line. View of the slanting crossing is somewhat obscured by bank.

The impact of the crash flipped the Koch car upside down in a ditch. Koch, fatally injured, was thrown clear of the car but Mrs. Koch was trapped beneath it and, others say, may have suffocated.

The family was returning to Waterloo from a vacation spend in this district.

WANTED FOR MURDER

Detroit, Sept. 1.—(AP)—Eldridge Bashlor, 16-year-old Detroit youth, sought in the slaying of a banker in Florida, was picked up last night by police acting on a tip from one of his girl friends. Bashlor, described by police as a "lone wolf, anti-social, psycho path," is wanted on a charge that he shot John Stephenson, a bank president, Sunday in his prowling about the banker's home.

FOURTEEN FEARED KILLED IN TWO ALASKAN CRASHES

String of Air Accidents Brings Death Toll to 85

Anchorage, Alaska, Sept. 1 (AP) — An Air Force C-47 with four aboard was reported missing in Alaska on the heels of the crash of a navy Privateer in the Aleutians yesterday carrying 10 men.

The two were the eighth and ninth planes reported crashed or missing in Alaska in a disastrous string of accidents during the last week of 47 and in the 30-year single chamber parliament, compared with 33 for Labor.

The government held 46 seats before parliament was dissolved last month and Labor held 33. Absented votes, mainly from the Maori electorates which will be counted Monday, are not expected to change greatly the over-all total of today's count.

About 1,200,000 New Zealanders — 90 per cent of the electorate — voted in New Zealand's second general election in two years.

Holland, leader of the National party since 1940, was re-elected with a reduced majority of 3,546 compared with 4,076 in the last general election.

Deputy Re-elected

Walter Nash, deputy prime minister, nine of the 11 years Labor has ruled before Holland took over in 1949, also was re-elected with a majority of 2,440 against his previous majority of 2,372.

Although the election campaign had been one of the quietest in years, the voting went along without incident.

A holiday atmosphere prevailed. Cars bedecked with ribbons blue for the National party and red for Labor — whisked through cities and suburbs to take voters to the polls.

Country folk came from their farms in remote sheep stations by trucks and cars or on horseback and by boats in the outlying settlements.

Stores and offices shut down, hotel bars closed at noon and race meetings were called off.

But soccer — the main sporting activities — drew crowds which voted before the matches began.

Moscow, Sept. 1 (AP)—Jack London, author of novels of the American frontier, still is the most popular United States writer in the Soviet Union according to the English-language magazine News. Two Sportsmen Rescued After Month In Wilderness With Disabled Plane

The Pas, Man., Sept. 1 (CP)— Two Manitoba sportsmen have survived the ordeal of hunger, insects, cold and despair were rescued Friday night from a lonely plateau far north where they had been marooned more than two weeks besides their disabled aircraft.

The men—Dr. John Tasche, 48, of Sherbrooke and Niles Eichenberger, 52, of Plymouth, Wis.—lost their way while flying into Sherbrooke Lake from The Pas on a day of good fishing. They landed once in the Barren Lands, then took back as far as Snowbird Lake 35 miles north of the Saskatchewan border, before running out of gasoline.

Then began a lonely vigil awaiting rescue planes. Food would never come, battling swarms of black flies and mosquitoes and, by freezing temperatures at night.

"I didn't have any hope to begin with," said Dr. Tasche. "Prayed every day."

"The black flies almost killed us," he said.

But rescue had not come by Sept. 1, the men intended to strike out on foot for civilization. They had lived on fish and berries conserving the supply of concentrated food carried in the plane.

When they heard the drone of a plane yesterday they frantically set fire to a wooded island in the lake. The plane was a U.S. Air Force flying fortress engaged in a renewed search for the men.

Barilko Search Swings to Quebec After Ont. Scoured

Timmins, Ont., Sept. 1 (CP)— RCAF searchers and anxious relatives turned their hopes toward northwestern Quebec today after the 4th day of intensive searching ended without a trace of hockey player Bill Barilko and Dr. Henry Hudson, famous dentist.

Barilko, defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, and Dr. Hudson, 51, Lt.-Col. Hudson's brother, took off Sunday from Rupert House on the shores of James Bay for a flight to South Porcupine, Ont.

Some 16 aircraft criss-crossed miles of Ontario bushland yesterday at 300 feet without success.

Maj. Lt.-Col. Hudson's brother, searchmaster, indicated more planes will be used today, using North Bay as a base.

"We have covered the greatest part of the search area in the mine strips," said, "but we still have to do the district east of Moosonee Bay and south of Rupert's Norands."

The search restricted into Quebec if the chance the men may have had their light plane blown off course by the heavy Friday — the day the missing flyers flew to Kapuskasing to be closer to the centre of the search. It was the first flight for the 52-year-old woman.

Major Offensive May Soon Be Launched by Reds

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 1 (AP)—Some new communist divisions were spotted on Korea's eastern central front today as bloody fighting continued on the slopes of jagged mountain peaks.

AP correspondent George McArthur said there were some indications the Reds might launch an all-out effort soon for a major offensive.

An allied officer told McArthur the reinforced red force in the east could throw "a whale of a blow" at the U.N. positions, but he added he did not believe the reds could appreciably dent the allied line.

There was at stepped-up action on land and sea and in the air. Allied officers said their divisions were engaged in the heaviest fighting since the now-suspended truce talks started in Kaesong July 10.

The ground fighting centered on the central and east-central fronts. Gains of up to two miles were hammered out in the east, and some gains were registered in the centre of the 155-mile battleline.

Reds Fight to Death

The U.N. allies were stalled in a savage all-day battle for "bloody ridge" on the east-central front. AP photographer Bob Otey reported the reds fought to the death from deep bunkers and machine-gun nests.

To the west communists counter-attacked and took a hill they lost Friday. But the U.N. forces slashed back and recaptured it.

When the fighting died down, more than 460 communist dead were counted on the hillside.

On the central front, the fiercest fighting was northwest of Yanggu. Two communist regiments were hurled at the United Nations line in a five-hour assault.

The reds were beaten off but they charged back two hours later. Again, they were thrown back without gaining the U.N. line.

How New Phone Rates Would Affect City

Increases of 25 cents per month for two-party residence telephone service in Belleville and of 50 cents for residence Individual lines are proposed in the Bell Telephone's application for revised rates according to G. W. Preston, the local manager here.

The proposed increase for individual line business service is $1.50 monthly and for two-party business service it is $1 monthly.

No change is proposed in long distance rates.

Under the proposed rate as asked by Bell Telephone an individual residential phone in Belleville would cost $4 per month, instead of the present $3.50 while a two-party phone would cost $3.10 as compared with the present $2.85. A rural telephone would cost $3 as compared with the present rate of $2.65. There would be no change in the cost of an extension phone in a residence—$1 per month.

An individual business phone in Belleville under the proposed rate would cost $7.75 instead of the present $6.25, an increase of $1.50 per month. A two-party business phone would cost $6.25 instead of $5.25. A rural business phone would be $4.50 instead of $3.75 and a two party trunk phone $11.75 instead of $9.25, or an increase of $2.50. An extension business telephone would remain at $1.25 per month.

Cool Wave Follows Heavy Rainfall

A plummeting mercury following in the wake of a heavy rainstorm last night dropped to 49 degrees, the lowest recorded in some time.

Deluging rain which fell steadily saturated the earth with 1.30 inches, the heaviest fall this year. The total rainfall for the month of August was 5.80 or nearly six inches. Average rainfall for the month was 2.65 inches.

The temperature started to drop early last evening and reached an all coolness descended on the city. By midnight the thermometer hovered around the 55 mark.

This morning it dropped to 49 degrees and early shoppers shivered in summer dress. Towards mid-morning light coats and sweaters were popular with downtown pedestrians and shoppers, although a brilliant sun tempered the coolness.

Three Injured as Panel Truck, New Motor Car Crash Into Tree Blown Across Highway

A panel truck and a new automobile were badly damaged and three persons suffered minor injuries when the vehicles crashed into a large elm tree blown across the Wellington - Mountain View road as result of Friday night's wind and rain storm.

The tree was blown across the road at nine-thirty p. m., but was not reported to road officials until Saturday morning — after two vehicles had crashed into it.

Rae Ferguson, Hillier township, was returning home with grist in his panel truck, when he failed to see the tree across the road at the foot of the hill and crashed his truck into the tree. His truck was smashed and he suffered minor head injuries.

At five-thirty Saturday morning a car en route to the Toronto Exhibition crashed into the downed tree causing extensive damage. Martin Cunningham, of the Bank of Nova Scotia at Wellington, and his sister, Miss Lily Cunningham, suffered minor injury, but two other persons in the car, Mr. and Mrs. George Cunningham of Burr's were not hurt.

Road crews cleared away the broken tree Saturday morning but commuters going to Belleville and farmers proceeding to market were held up until traffic was rerouted through the field. County Constable Earl Marvin of Wellington investigated the accident.

New Queen Elizabeth School Will be Opened as Scheduled

The new Queen Elizabeth public school in course of construction during recent months will be ready as scheduled for classes at the commencement of the autumn school term next week, it was announced today by E. A. Kells, business administrator for the Belleville Board of Education.

"However, the new 12-room school will not be completed or finished for the opening of the school term," Mr. Kells explained and there may be inconvenience to some classes until work is completed.

Principals at Queen Alexandra and Queen Victoria schools in the June promotion lists indicated the pupils who would be going to the new Queen Elizabeth school and there has been no change in plans. These pupils as well as all other public school pupils will report Tuesday morning to their respective schools.

It was intimated there may be some inconvenience at the Queen Elizabeth school until the building is completely finished and possibly grades 1, 2 and 3 may have a staggered program for a period of weeks. It will be announced by the principal. All other grades will be accommodated at the new school for the full day. Also, all kindergarten pupils will be enrolled the first day.

South Wing Completed

The south wing of the new school containing nine classrooms has been completed but workmen will still be active in the east wing and in the auditorium for the next few weeks.

The school grounds have not been completed, but trees are in and approaches from the street are completed.

Mr. Kells said it was too early to make any accurate estimate as to the number of pupils to be enrolled in public school at the commencement of the school term. New families have come into the city, but it is also possible that an equally number of families have left.

However, trustees of No. 5 Thurlow have again asked for permission to send grade 7 and 8 pupils to city schools for another term. This request has been granted, and the approximately 65 pupils will be accommodated in the emergency classrooms at Queen Mary School, which is the same building north of College Street and in the Hillcrest areas.

Flaming Grease, Smoke Threatened Life of Child

Trenton — (Special — Minor burns and shock were the only results of what might have been a tragedy last evening when flaming grease and smoke threatened the life of little Bignell, three-year-old daughter of Mrs. Jim Bignell, 91 West Street, Trenton.

Mrs. Bignell had placed a pan of grease on the kitchen stove sometime around 8.30 p.m. last evening and left the room momentarily. When she returned the kitchen was filled with smoke from the flaming grease. She snatched up the pan and threw the flaming contents into the back yard.

Her daughter, who was asleep in a bedroom adjoining the kitchen, was revived and suffered no ill effects from the smoke.

Mrs. Bignell was treated for minor burns on her right arm by Dr. Dow.

The fire department was called but by the time they arrived on the scene the fire was out and the danger had passed.

Letter to the Editor

COMMISSION THANKED

The Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville.
Sir,

As the school holidays draw to their close, I feel that the thanks of a very large number of parents throughout the city are due to the Recreational Commission for the very efficient way in which the Children's Playgrounds have been organized this year, and to Messrs. Davis and Musgrove, together with their enthusiastic army of supervisors, for the more detailed execution of the Commission's plans. During the past two months, their combined activities have kept a very large number of children safely off the streets and busied them with worthwhile occupations, allowing grateful mothers to go about their daily tasks with minds at ease and free from the continual distraction at which children are so instinctively expert.

The number of youngsters who have made use of the facilities provided, as well as the eagerness with which they have played off day by day for the playground, presents a striking tribute to the ability and friendliness of the young supervisors. Even in one of the smaller playgrounds, the average attendance was around thirty, while total attendance of children making use of it during the supervised periods came to close to 200. These figures for the whole city would be interesting and doubtless impressive.

Truck Overturns Driver Not Hurt

Campbellford — Twenty-five-year-old Francis E. Hewton of 148 Dundas Street East, Trenton, escaped uninjured on Tuesday when his truck, loaded with four yards of gravel, overturned on the old Hastings road, about six miles northwest of Campbellford.

Hewton is employed by the McFarland Construction Company, hauling gravel for the resurfacing section of highway at present under construction between Campbellford and Havelock.

Hewton said he was picking up speed in his car on the roadway, and had pulled out to go around a slower moving vehicle. The left wheels struck a large rock on the shoulder of the roadway, hurling the car into the air and flipping it upside down.

George Peake of Campbellford driver of the other car, saw the truck just as it was turned into the air. He pulled off to one side of the roadway, and by this time Hewton was on his feet, but apparently crushed and the driver released himself.

With the aid of another driver, Mr. Peake pulled the dazed man from the cab of the truck, fearing it might take fire at any moment. However, this was not likely however, and was soon standing on the roadway, directing traffic around the wrecked truck, which was partly blocking the busy roadway.

The road on which the accident took place is used by a great number of trucks, and on the construction job, as it leads to the gravel pit, where a stone crusher is constantly in operation. Hewton had gone to the pit for his load, and was returning to the scene of the constructed job a mile away.

Provincial Constable Donald W. Erskine of Campbellford investigated.

EXPECT BIG INCREASE

Merrition, Ont., Sept. 1 (CP) —Residents of this little town just south of St. Catharines expect their 4,000 population to increase to 20,000 for the annual Commercial Day parade Sept. 3. Sponsored by the Athletic Association, the parade will include the Canadian Legion band from both sides of the border.

USED SPECIAL NOZZLE

Niagara Falls, Ont., Sept. 1— (CP)—Firemen at the regional fire school took only 45 seconds Friday to quell a fire set by instructors in a pool of 550 gallons of gasoline. They used a special fog nozzle.

Miss Jennie Gray Honored by Choir Before Marriage

The home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lavender was the scene of a pleasant gathering on Wednesday evening as members of the St. Paul's choir, the church warden and parish treasurer assembled with their husbands and wives respectively to honor Miss Jenny Gray on her forthcoming marriage to Provincial Constable Hector Gould with a cup and saucer shower.

Mrs. L. R. Rundle, organist of the church and aunt of the bride elect was M. C. for the occasion. Following community singing, a flower contest was put on, with honors going to Mrs. Frank Leal and James Rice.

Those present then tried their skill at dropping clothes pegs into a milk bottle at which Mrs. George Kerr was most proficient. Two duets were next rendered by Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Rundle—"Love's Old Sweet Song," and "Me and My Gal" Mrs. J. Rice won a candle lighting contest and in an "apple" contest Mrs. R. W. Hickey was the winner. The final contest "marriage" was won by Mrs. F. Leal. Mrs. C. Nichol, senior member of the choir, at the close, read an address of good wishes, after which the honored guest opened the packages of gifts and tendered her thanks.

Refreshments were served and the party broke up with "Auld Lang Syne."

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

"Triumphant Zion Lift Thy Head"

Triumphant Zion, lift thy head
From dust and darkness and the dead;
Though humbled long, awake at length,
And gird thee with thy Savior's strength.

Put all thy beauteous garments
on,
And let thy excellence be known;
Decked in the robes of righteousness,
The world thy glories shall confess.
No more shall foes unclean invade
And all thy hallowed walls with dread;

No more shall hell's insulting
boast
Their victory and thy sorrows
boast,
God from on high hath heard
thy prayer,
His hand thy ruin shall repair;
Nor will thy watchful Monarch cease
To guard thee in eternal peace.

A good many songs have been written to glorify the Christian church but none of them is finer than this one.

Philip Doddridge who wrote the ever-popular hymn, "O Happy Day," and Lowell Mason who composed the music for "My Faith Looks Up To Thee," joined hands and talents to produce it.

Doddridge, the junior of the partnership, was the youngest of a family of thirteen children. He enlisted in the ministry when he was only 19 years old and two years later he began his first pastorate — at Kibworth, England, where he wrote a good many of the hymns for which he is remembered today.

Most of his songs were made, it is said, to be sung at the close of his Sunday morning sermons, and Doddridge wrote them from week to week at the same time he prepared his addresses. Each song was planned to climax his message of the sermon with which it was paired.

Mason, the musician, was born in Massachusetts and after spending some years in Savannah, Georgia, in early manhood he moved back to his native state and settled in Boston. He devoted his life to music, was a leader in several music groups, founded the Boston Academy of Music. He turned out most of his hymn tunes during the years that he lived in Georgia — music for such hymns as "Watchman, Tell Us Of the Night," "There Is a Fountain Filled With Blood," and Bishop Reginald Heber's famous missionary hymn, "From Greenland's Icy Mountains."

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

1. MOUNTAIN CLIMBING

(Article 28)

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — Before I left Canada, it was suggested to me that during my stay in Switzerland I should do two things: learn how to yodel and climb a mountain. I am able to report that I have fulfilled the second request and although I have been stiff for a few days as a result of it, that is the only after effect. For any reader who is also aspiring to climb a mountain some day, I shall relate my experience in the hope that he may obtain some helpful information from it.

First might I say that the Swiss are very proud of the mountains, and are very disappointed when foreigners take a great interest in their watches. The mountains had been there for a long time before the Swiss themselves took any real interest in them, but under the influence of the painter Hodler, who saw in them monuments which were the original home of a supernatural race, the Swiss began to take a certain pride in them and it was not long until they started climbing them.

The most difficult to climb is the Matterhorn, whose name is familiar to all students of geography. Strange as it may seem, the first successful attempt was made by five Englishmen, three of whom lost their lives on the way down when a rope broke.

Not High, But High Enough

Getting back to my experience, let me assure you that it was not the Matterhorn that I climbed. It cost $35.00 for a guide and that is too much. Mine was a peak about 6,000 feet from St. Gallen which is called the Saentis, and which is over 8,000 feet high, which is high enough for a start.

Two friends of mine had intended coming with me, and had been getting me into condition. However, examinations came along, and they were unable to get away. Rather than leave Switzerland without doing it, I decided to do it alone. Needless to say, I received plenty of advice as to what to do and what to take.

Following is a partial list of things I selected: plenty of rope, a pick, a novel, life insurance, a guide, a compass, an alpine stock and a tent. It was also suggested that I take a gun along, but the most dangerous animal I met was a cow which, when I stopped to feed her some grass, took a liking for the crest on my jacket, and it was all I could do to stop her from eating it.

I thanked everyone for the advice and ended up taking a rain coat, a map, my camera, and something to eat.

Three Approaches

There are three ways to get to the top of the Saentis. One can go up the back way, which is rather long, but has only a gradual slope. There is also the front way, which is rather steep, as I found out. The third way is by a cable car, which takes you up in ten minutes. This however is reserved for the lame, blind and deaf — and any others who haven't much energy; (statistics for this mountain prove that 95% of the people take the latter class).

In order to accustom myself gradually to climbing, I took the back way first. After two hours of climbing I reached a small hut built for climbers and stayed there for the night. It was just as well for a storm was brewing on my arrival, it started to pour rain, and continued most of the night.

The next morning it was clear again, and after three hours of climbing, I was able to reach the summit. It was not as difficult as one might expect for some considerate person had dabbed the rocks with red paint every so often and although the snow covered some of the paint, I did get lost. On the top there is a weather station, also the station for the cable car.

Magnificent View

The view is magnificent, for one can see on a relatively clear day Germany to the northeast, Austria to the east, all of Lake Constance, Italy to the south, and all the eastern part of Switzerland. I was fortunate for it was very clear, and did not start to cloud up until I was ready to come down.

This time I came down the front way: for two reasons. First, it is shorter, and second, my train ticket was not valid unless I did.

Steep Start

There was a sign which said "Descent — two hours". However this sign pointed out little to me, so I asked to make sure that it actually was the place to start. It was. There was only one objection. It went straight down. All there was for over two hundred yards were holes in the rock and a wire beside, held fast by metal hooks. I made sure of every step on that stretch, and was relieved when the slope levelled out a bit. My best advice is not to look down during such a descent. One might dream about it later. I did.

The rest of the trip down was actually an anticlimax. It was steep but nothing in comparison to the first part. The red marks were there to guide me. However they were pretty covered by the snow, and when I got down to 5,000 feet, I reached the cloud level, and it was difficult to see in either direction.

Airy Dairy

Another thing you may have heard that the Swiss have farms in the mountains. I can assure you that this is so. I saw goats, cows and sheep above the cloud level, all climbing around the steep slopes as if they were on level ground.

I started to catch my train with two minutes to spare due partly to the fact that I slid part of the way down. The rest of it was so much fun I wanted to do it over again, but didn't have the time. I must have looked rather tired when I got back, for my landlady took one look at me and sent me off to bed. It was an unforgettable experience, and although the Swiss have not asked me yet to join their Mountain Corps, who knows, perhaps some day I shall get around to climbing Mt. Everest.

As for learning how to yodel, the less said the better.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

by WINIFRED E. WILSON

MARKETING

Once autumn comes along many Canadian-born birds begin to find marketing a tiresome affair. Of course this is not true for seed-eaters, because great quantities of their favorite food, especially weed seeds, can be found throughout the country. But just because cowbirds and house sparrows live on seeds we should not forget that many species have quite different preferences.

As long as ocean going vessels are in our ports, they continue to attract gulls, which feed on refuse almost exclusively, when possible. Otherwise these birds shop around for fish, crustaceans and sometimes insects, young birds, or mice. On our east coast, gannets dive for fish, and especially like herrings. Once our lakes and rivers freeze over, kingfishers and great blue herons can no longer stay with us; they must keep somewhat ahead of the frost as they move southward to water where fishing lasts throughout winter.

Hawks Like Rodents

Although most hawks are fond of our ever present rodents, they too find marketing difficult as winter draws in. Therefore the majority start migration in late autumn, before there is danger of snow covering up their prey. But ospreys have to leave with kingfishers because their tastes are the same.

The tiny hummingbirds are now getting on their way. For them marketing in Canada ends when our nectar-producing flowers are over. Diminutive insects found at the heart of these blossoms are their only other food.

With the exception of woodpeckers, which are able to find wood-boring grubs on our tree trunks all all seasons, insectivorous birds are badly off as autumn advances and there are few insects left. A month or more ago swallows began to flock, ready for their southern trek. Nighthawks are off; soon most of the flycatchers will be on their way; in a few weeks the vireos too must go; and scarcely a warbler will be seen in Canada by the end of October.

Lucky Seed Eaters

Berry pickers, like robins and purple finches, will be able to gather sufficient nourishment for several months yet. Birds that enjoy dried fruits are next most fortunate to the seed eaters, because mountain ash berries, chokecherries, bittersweet, bayberries, the fruit of the sumach, and occasionally even apples are left to hang on trees until some pine grosbeak, crossbill, or waxwing comes along for a mid-winter feast.

ANCIENT CARS

Saskatoon. (CP) — The local transit system has sold four old street-cars to four farmers for a total of less than $500. They are St. Louis-type one-truck streetcars, vintage 1913.

GOING BACK TO SCHOOL

There is something timeless about the beginning of school. No other adventure is quite like it. There is a certain subtle change in the atmosphere on that special morning; a certain freshness in the day, and a current of excitement grips the student's soul that is unlike any emotion which he has ever felt or ever will again.

The lazy days of summer, which were so eagerly anticipated in June have flown by, and that same anticipation has been honed to a keener edge for the return to classes. And what makes the delightful mystery of all the more delicious is that each girl and boy can cunningly hide his eagerness with nonchalant deception that is never questioned by his fellow conspirators. Those in high school, by virtue of seniority and greater practice, are more adept at feigning unconcern and more devious in their approach to another year at school.

The boys saunter off to registration on that first day, studied pictures of casual indifference, wearing their new sports coats and pants with an ill-contested pride. They gather together with the fellows who were swimming with them yesterday and shake hands all round with the embarassed enthusiasm of acquaintances who meet in a strange town and who find, suddenly, that their hands are too large and that the only place for them is a hand-shake or an empty pocket. And all the time they are surreptitiously analyzing the girls in an inspection that is brutally thorough. And in turn they are being appraised by the girls in a manner that is even more obvious but no less exacting.

The elementary school subtlety is noticeable by its absence. The refreshing candor of an elementary school pupil is a rare and lovely thing and the unabashed enthusiasm at being back to school more than makes up for the restless energy which he expended last spring in trying to be free of it.

But the most priceless memory of the opening of school is the picture of the bewildered little lad who shyly shuffles his way into the schoolyard for the first time—the epitome of uncertainty solicitation and helpless childhood. In his hand he clutches a parental assurance to guard him. With his other hand empty, and comfortably cupped over his shoulder of his new suit coat, he stares back a trifle awed and uncertain of himself, beginning to wonder for the first time if maybe his mother has abandoned him. The fact that he will soon be taking school for granted is just one of the many feats that he will learn but about which he knows nothing as yet.

And so once again we have arrived at that milestone in life known as "going back to school." The excitement of it tugs, if just for a day, at the memories of students. The changeless nature of its beginning and the universal appeal of the sentiments which it calls forth makes it an event whose permanence is reassuring in the cosmic changes that seem to swirl us about in these troubled times.

There is a touch of sadness too for those who have graduated and will never again know that unique thrill of "starting back to school." The fresh beginning that we all vow to make and never quite do; the search for new fields of knowledge utters its siren song, more tempting when it is like the faintest echo, calls at the spirit that wants to go, but doesn't; and the unfettered spirit that once knew no bounds but is now somewhat disillusioned all return with their progeny of "going back to school." And though they soon subside the vision of them never departs, but only fades to be recalled each year until we all go back to that School from which all Wisdom and Truth and Life have come.

TOO GOOD TO BE TRUE

(Edmonton Journal)

To bachelors and mothers of large families of boys, that Oxford chemist's discovery of a non-wear-out-able yarn for socks could be classified as news that is almost too good to be true.

Dr. J. Ridge had a pair of socks woven of equal parts of wool and a synthetic fibre called Terelene. He has worn them for three years! They have not shrunk, although they have been washed at regular intervals. Says Dr. Ridge, they are as good as the day in 1948 when they were made.

By way of assurance that his socks are not perfect, are not utterly imperishable and everlasting, the scientist admits a small hole has developed, but it doesn't grow larger. As he insists, he has to use wool to mend it, and of course the unfortified wool wears out in time.

Yes, it's too good to be true — for what manufacturer would make stockings that would last forever? In a few years' time, every man in the country would be stocked up and uninterested in replacements. Anyway, this terelene probably costs more per pound today than a man would spend on socks in half a lifetime!

LABOR

Take labor from the field,
Let idle stand the plow,
And none a hammer wield,
And in a month from now
The soil with weeds will choke
And not a chimney smoke.

First in the dreamer's mind
The temple spire is planned.
But once it is designed,
The workers in a band
To whom the crafts are known
Must build it, stone by stone.

Some must the means provide
And some the strength and skill.
Then, laboring side by side,
With knowledge and the will,
From daring artistry
Structures of beauty rise.

Labor all things has made.
Since first the world began,
Hammer and plow and spade,
Have been the tools of man.
Without all industry,
Like beasts we'd live and be.

Better Prospects For Mentally-Ill Reviewed in U.S.

Washington. (AP)—A person entering a mental hospital in the United States today has better than a 50-50 chance of getting well.

The Council of State Governments in a comprehensive report just issued on the mental-health problems of the 48 States says for certain types of mental illness, the chances of improvement or complete recovery now are better than they ever were.

Research and treatment are helping to raise standards of treatment through the "clearing house" of the American Psychiatric Association.

Here is what the council found in its survey of 190 hospitals:

In general, psychotherapy, a system of verbal interviews between doctor and patient, is given on an individual basis but more than one-half the hospitals now are using some form of group psychotherapy. The latter sometimes takes the form of "psychodrama" in which the patients act out their problems.

All but 10 hospitals use electric shock treatment to some extent.

More than half use so "insulin shock" treatment to some extent.

The majority of the surveyed hospitals employ "surgery" on some of their patients, a specialized form of brain surgery which involves severing certain connections in the brain.

Another form of therapy called "narcosis", involving artificial, prolonged sleep, is used by only 18 State hospitals.

Fewer Restraints

The council said there are indications of "a more humane and restricted use of restraints than has been the case in the past."

"Restraints" of course are various devices including straitjackets. Only 13 of the hospitals reported they still use a device called the "block chair", a body-immobilizer and restraining straps; 96 employ belts or wristlets, 8, 67 "padded rooms" may be carnisole, something like a restraining cloth band.

The council reports evidence of an increasing number of "family-care" programs for patients on the road to recovery. Often a family other than the patient's own is selected on the theory that the patient's basic trouble may have stemmed from his home environment.

At the time of the council's report 74 hospitals in 16 States had about 3,000 patients under the "family care" New York State's program in this respect was rated as one of the most active.

Canada Returns Historic Medal to British Unit

Ottawa. (CP)—The only Victoria Cross ever won on Canadian soil has found a resting-place, after 85 years, in the unit whose private soldier won it in 1866.

The prized decoration was won by Pte. Timothy O'Hea at Danville, Quebec, during the time of the Fenian raids when invasion from the United States threatened.

O'Hea, then 20 years old, was one of four soldiers of the British Rifle Brigade placed in charge of a trainload of ammunition. Including 60 barrels of gunpowder, which was sent from Quebec City to the frontier at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont.

As the train pulled into Danville, O'Hea, an Irishman from Bantry, County Cork, saw that one of the ammunition trucks was on fire. While officials retired to a safe distance, he found a bucket, ladder, and water, and doused the blaze in 19 trips up the ladder, never once pausing for refreshment. His citation, instead of reading "For conspicuous bravery in the presence of the enemy", as is usual with a V.C., read "For conspicuous courage under circumstances of great danger".

Taken Around Globe

Shortly after the episode, O'Hea's unit left New Zealand-Later, he went to Australia, and after leaving his V.C. medal with a friend, died during an expedition inland. The medal remained until last year in the Australian National War Museum.

Thomas Dunbabin, former press attache to the Australian High Commissioner's office here, arranged last year to have the V.C. brought back to Canada, to rest in the Archives or the war museum here. External Affairs Minister Pearson was a supporter of this back-to-Canada move.

However, word of the medal got to Lord Willoughby, colonel commandant of the Rifle Brigade, who wrote Mr. Pearson suggesting it would be a gracious action on Canada's part to have the V.C. return to its old regiment.

Accordingly the medal and accompanying documents were turned over at the Rifle Brigade's regimental dinner in London. Tim O'Hea's V.C. now reposes in a glass case at the regimental museum at Winchester, England.

Nosy Mouse: Amphibious Fly Nature Students Ponder, Why?

Written For The Canadian Press
By PERCY GHENT

Canadian children who live at the fringe of the wilderness in the various provinces can study their natural history at first hand and close to home.

Nature's daytime life on the tidal flats of the Maritimes of flocks of wild ducks on Prairie ponds and marshes, there is always something exciting to study when crowds and traffic are far away.

But it is not these well-known birds as thrilling as a moose is obliging enough to call at a school to give children a chance to study him at up observation.

It happened in the little settlement of Pevensey on the Algonquin hills of Ontario's Parry Sound district. Morning lessons were in progress in the one-room school when the teacher announced that a great many moose were peering at the windows from only a few feet away.

Moose on Loose

There was a rush to see the animal that seemed interested in getting an education; books were knocked from desks, the whole world represented by the many windows from all the geography lessons was overturned, and some of the smaller children climbed to the top of book shelves for a better view.

It was an enormous animal and battle-scarred, for one horn had been decided, for he turned suddenly from the exciting minutes, studying the pupils with the same concentration that they gave him.

Then, without any consideration with those boisterous young animals behind the glass, it wasn't worth the while, the moose must have decided, for the turned suddenly and took to the woods again. The lesson was over.

Even the most charitable and enthusiastic of nature students would not hesitate to classify the black fly as an unmitigated pest. Nature, however, would not have exercised unusual ingenuity to perpetuate the species, pest or not, if the larvae of black flies there in rapidly running water, anchored there in a tangle of fine threads on submerged rocks. Nothing daunted by agitation the insects make minute nests, not unlike swallow nests in shape, but with a hole in the top instead of the side, of silk and vegetable weeds. Their open ends always point down-stream. But the nature of the water flow is such that must use them to escape from the water. Nature has solved this problem in a fashion worthy of a better use. During the final stage of development, the pupa case becomes inflated to the breaking point with air extracted from the water. This case has now become a bubble of air which rises to the surface carrying a black fly with it. When the bubble bursts, the mature fly is launched high and dry into the air to commence its nefarious career.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In my hotel in London, there are always many people there, and some of them are from distant points in the Commonwealth. You go through the range, which is a long tabletilled, flowering garden, and then through the front door back to the offices which are right at the back of the establishment, and never hear a word of English among all the crowds of settlers and sun-seekers, Africa, all parts of Europe and South America are represented, and the whole globe for that matter, is represented, naturally.

Among my fellow-guests is a tall young fellow, a bridegroom obviously with his bride. He is about twenty, and from his complexion and features, I guess he comes from the Midlands. He is dressed in the height of London fashion, in expensive tweeds. His shoes, also, have that quality of dramatic understatement which is essential to the well-dressed Englishman. He carries himself, his hat and his umbrella with grace and perfect London-ism. The boy is dying to be an Englishman. And the complete illusion to himself — for nobody else could possibly be deluded — is very nearly his. He has a brand new curved briar pipe.

Now, I don't like a hat not been, any tobacco in it. It is purely a prop. It is in his teeth when he goes striding out in London in the mornings; in his teeth as he strides through the reception lobby; there when he and his entranced little dark bride dash out to the waiting taxi. Then, reluctantly, he takes the empty pipe from his mouth and puts it on the table when they sit down for breakfast, lunch, dinner. When they have gone from the honeymoon, he will be a sahib, or whatever they call the Briton in Africa.

Hmmm! I think I will slip out for a walk and buy myself one of those English pork-pie hats.

More people are becoming bald through worry. Too much and eating the wrong food, he claims.

Wearing a hat, he is convinced, has nothing to do with it. "It is in your hair, not on it," he explains.

In his third-floor room he sits with his assistants amidst a clutter of human hair and wooden heads. The hair comes mainly from convents and women's jails of Europe. Each hair which goes into a wig is knotted individually into a fine silk netting which is stretched over a wooden block.

Mr. Wurm has 60 employees. Wurm has worn a wig for 30 years.

Says More People Wearing Wigs

Toronto. (CP)—Customers of Anton Wurm can let their hair down more than most people. He loses at three hairs particularly women. He makes wigs.

"Nature tells you you should have hair on your head. When you lose your teeth you get false ones, eh? Why not hair? It helps mortals and you do not catch cold,"—not dandruff, he says.

Mr. Wurm has been making wigs for 60 of his 76 years. He has made them for men, women and even children — and says that wig-wearing is more common today than ever before.

INTERCOSTAL NEURALGIA WITHOUT SHINGLES

The pain preceding the shingles eruption and the pain and tenderness that sometimes persists for weeks after the eruption has disappeared may be horrible indeed, in the enfeebled patient exhausting. Here the doctor who is skilled in "nerve surgery" (ambulant, office, injection treatment of varicose veins, hemorrhoids, hernia) can give the sufferer blessed relief for several days by infiltrating the roots of the affected nerves adjacent to the spine.

Whether intercostal neuralgia, radiculitis or just ordinary herpes zoster (fire, shingles) there is no reason for any anxiety about the trouble going all around the trunk, it never does, and even if it did the effect would be only greater annoyance.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

AS A MINER WOULD

When a miner digs, whether for gold, diamonds, silver, or any other metal, he keeps his mind upon that one objective. It is upon that goal that he concentrates his digs.

In a manner we are miners throughout life, digging, concocting and dreaming of the things that we hope to make our own, or at least to make the years and the days a thing of joy and happy thrills. The deeper we dig into things the greater are our rewards.

The miner pays no attention to anything but the object of his toil. By keeping a steady course ahead, allowing no distractions to interfere with our goal, we are sure to meet some measure of a satisfying success.

The training period may often be a long one. We will be called upon to do much mental task, but the discipline will be sure to keep the eye that sharpen the mind to the previous elements in life that make it worth the living. Long time for many to adjust themselves to tight equipment, so that their efforts may be put to the greatest results. The miner's tools are the symbols of good judgment, and effectively.

We can learn much from the miner. The miner, the farmer, the fisherman, the waiter is a symbol, and all are students and teachers as well, and from them, if we keep our eyes alert-minded we can learn to hear accurately, we can easily add to our knowledge that is so important to us all.

No honest work is too humble or too exalted for us. We are all workers, and should be members of the Union of Good Will affecting all mankind!

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SUFFRESS THAT LAUGH

One of the outstanding leaders of American thought has recently pointed out that we as a people have got into the habit of being amused by crime and by evil in general.

We know, of course, how many people are willing to laugh at any evil which is not in that convivial individual gets behind a steering wheel and drives his car even for one or three reputable citizens or perhaps for others, then, the drunk man isn't quite so funny as he first appeared. Once in a while a criminal is held up as a good-natured Robin Hood who steals from the rich to give that money to the poor. There are women appearing on radio, stage and television who, by stood in trade is the fact that they live scandalous lives, and all this after being promoted for advertising purposes, is glorified because the question happens to be a good looking person who is "after" some needy person her last name.

Evil is not funny, and it is not funny for the simple reason that evil is evil, and it will happens to be constructed in any way. Behind evil are varieties of misery and result which is always disastrous. Stop laughing at evil. There are enough tragedies in life without having to create more. Stop chuckling over the gruesome, gruffawing over things that are lewd, intemperate, coarse, violent, and evil.

Prison Camp Jo\ Gave Him Career

Calgary — (CP) Eric Humphries got his journalistic experience the hard way.

Humphries, now a public relations official with the Canadian National Railways in London, England, started the writing business in a Japanese prison camp in Java during the Second World War.

He told the story while in Calgary during a nine-week tour of C.N.R. offices across Canada.

He was a prisoner-of-war in a Japanese camp at Batavia early in the war when the Japanese provided them a bulletin of a sort for the prisoners. But they were written in such bad English that they were practically unintelligible. Humphries got the idea of editing and publishing the news himself from official releases.

He convinced the Japanese authorities this was a good idea, and with the help of a fellow prisoner and a typewriter borrowed from the Japanese he put out a single-sheet weekly paper for nearly three years.

"We found out later that the news we got from the Japs was highly-colored propaganda," he said. "But at least it gave the boys an idea of where the fighting was going on."

'Hangover' Lodges Urged for Drinkers

Hope, B.C. (CP)—Cocktail bars should provide some way of getting the elbow-bender back on his feet, says W. A. Scharffenberg, executive secretary of the International Temperance Association.

In an interview here he said the bars should provide the means of social recovery since they provide the facilities for getting a man drunk in the first place.

He says establishment of "Hangover Lodges" would be one way of reducing the dangers arising from drinking. Persons who had taken one too many drinks could be left in the lodges until sober.

Before serving a drink, the bartender would ask the customer if he was driving a car.

"If the answer is 'yes,' says Mr. Scharffenberg, "the bartender should ask for the keys and keep a record of drinks. If a man has imbibed 10 ounces or liquor, he should be placed in the Hangover Lodge for five hours."

Two 'Big Money' Men May Be Involved in 'Fix'

Toronto, Sept. 1 — (CP)—The Telegram says today in a news story that two members of Ontario Racing Commission net is "drawing closer around one, possibly two, men who are the subject of suits of crime." The story says one man occupies "a luxurious property room at a Bay address, has masterpieces of design and craftsmanship, richly gilded and ornamented, made for kings and noblemen and knights."

This particular collection or armor is unique. Its servants' separate exhibits have never been brought together before. Their common characteristic is that all were made in the Royal Armory at Greenwich, 1515, was founded by Henry VIII, and flourished for more than 100 years until the invention of guns in war and the decadence of the knightly tournament brought about its end.

Some of the finest pieces on show are those worn by Henry VIII himself. He was the last of the outstanding men of his day in Europe at all manly exercises which in those days really meant manly. He could draw a strong bow than anyone else in Europe, and could tire out stags or nine horses in a day in the hunting field. In the pageants, dressed in magnificent armor, made to fit his mighty form and weighing more than 100 pounds, bedecked with many famous chasings, and saddled came off second best.

On the Field of the Cloth of Gold—the knightly tournament Henry organized for Francis I of France—the English king floored with one lance-thrust French knights, the Marechal des Pierrargues, and broke his shoulder-piece with a mighty blow.

Afterwards, in a typical kingly gesture, he gave the challenges with a splendid suit of armor, which stands beside the foot-fighting armor of Henry himself.

Another piece, the Prince's, mighty in bulk to fit his figure in his more mature years, is seen worn by a very modest of the King, mounted on a horse which is also heavily armored.

Among many other notable suits is the armor of Elizabeth's favorite, Leicester, most elegantly decorated in keeping with his grandiose taste. There is also a splendid armor for a boy, made for the Prince of Wales, age of Prince I. There was of very pacific tastes, but the boy prince loved the joust and was brilliant at it.

There is great technical interest, too, in the form of helmets —including the enormous and beautifully made headpieces, almost twice the size of a normal head, designed for the tournament by the provision of breathing holes and eye slits which push form so as not to allow a complete to penetrate, and in the provision of spare pieces—additional plates, specially armored gauntlets for the buckle-hand and lacking protection to the sword in the hand so firmly that it could not be struck away.

Henry Eighth A Mighty Man In His Armor

BY COLIN WILSON
(In London Chronicle)

"In one of the armories of the Tower of London I found myself staring at the headpiece of Henry VIII," the past. "I went to see an exhibition of suits of armor—on the next one was occupying a large, dimly-lighted room at a West-end hall, but masterpieces of design and craftsmanship, richly gilded and ornamented, made for kings and noblemen and knights.

Editor Urges Papers to Divorce Editorial Opinion From News

Toronto — (CP) — A veteran newspaper man Friday urged Canadian newspapers to fulfill their responsibilities to the nation during that editorial opinion is divorced from the news columns.

Bill Boss, Canadian press war correspondent who returned Wednesday after nine months covering Canadian troops in Korea.

He termed Boss "a reporter who has upheld the high traditions of his craft" and who had done an authoritative, responsible job under difficulties. He added:

"There's a good deal about the inside story of early days of the Canadians in Korea when Boss was accused by rivals on interesting stories which did not prove true and which he, too, could have written, had he not insisted on checking.

"We have had a spot of censorship trouble in Korea which I hope will not occur again. It is the facts of the sorry incidents of not able to know that for months last March were held up by censors and not only now coming out as Canadians are appearing on trial.

(Mr. Farquharson was referring to the trials of three Canadian soldiers charged with attempting to rape Korean women and accused of throwing a hand grenade into their home, killing three Korean men.)

"I am certain that when all the facts are revealed it will be shown that Boss did his best to keep Canada informed of a correspondent and keep the Canadian public informed."

Mr. Farquharson paid tribute to Boss's "courage and resourcefulness" in getting his stories out of Korea.

European Reds Will be Marked Men at Front

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 1—(AP)—If European communists show up in the big battle line of United Nations' brigade, an Allied combat officer said today, "they'll be marked men."

"There have been persistent but unconfirmed reports that the reds have recruited several thousand Europeans for such a brigade.

"Those troops are reported to have moved into the front recently. The latest rumors say they are somewhere between the western battle line and Pyongyang, the red capital.

"If there is such a force, and they are combat troops an Allied front — line officer said, "I feel kind of sorry for them.

"The Chinese and North Koreans are tough fighters. But a lot of our boys figure they're not stooges for the Russians.

"But these other guys are coming out here with their eyes open. They'll be marked men, believe it. "If we see any European machines out where the shooting is going on, you can bet your bottom dollar our boys will make an extra effort."

Some U. N. officers say the communists would like to have an international brigade in the front line for propaganda value.

Reports of the recruiting campaign emanated largely from Chinese nationalist capital at Taipei.

Freak Train-Car Accident Sends Two to Hospital

Kingston, Sept. 1—(CP)— A freak train-automobile accident Monday night sent two persons to hospital here.

Roy Eves, 24, and his sister Norma, 19, both of Kingston, drove into the rear of another car stopped at a railway crossing in nearby Cataraqui.

The impact knocked the halted car, driven by Lawrence Heyman, Kingston, onto the westbound tracks, while Eves' car lodged on the eastbound tracks.

An eastbound train collided with Eves' car, impalling it on the locomotive draw bar and carrying it a thing of a mile down the tracks.

Eves was released from hospital after treatment. He is to be married today.

His sister received lacerations to the forehead and one ankle. Heyman was uninjured.

Cattleman Halts Colorful Career To Retire at 81

Nicola, B. C. — (CP) — Maj. C. Sydney Cunliffe, owner of the famed Nicola stock farms, has retired from ranching at the age of 81 and plans to spend the winter in his native South Africa.

Starting as an office boy in Africa he has had a successful career as an industrialist, writer, legislator and British diplomatic ranch.

Before leaving Africa he was chairman or director of a large number of mining and commercial corporations. He was a war correspondent in the Boer War and later wrote a book titled "With French's Cavalry." He also wrote technical books on mining and industry in South Africa before going to England, where for 18 years he was a Conservative M. P. for Epsyra and Falmouth.

During the First World War Maj. Goldman served as an artillery officer and later as intelligence officer. He was attached for a time to the Verdun headquarters of the late Marshal Petain.

Lured to Canada

While in the trenches on the Somme in 1916, Maj. Goldman chatted with Col. Harold Matthews. The latter described his place in the Nicola Valley, 250 miles northeast of Vancouver, in such glowing terms that the major decided to get some for himself.

Soon after arriving at his new home he had purchased holdings to 60,000 acres, all fenced. Now he has 4,000 Herefords, 1,500 sheep and 20 dairy cattle. He is a prize Ayrshires and Holsteins.

Maj. Goldman's son John, who has been in the coal industry in the British Isles for 17 years, has come to Canada to take charge of the ranch operations. Next spring he will be joined by another brother.

FEWER CRIMES

Ottawa (CP)—Norway had fewer crimes in 1950 than in the years just before the Second World War, reports the Federal Bureau of Statistics. There were 4,181 cases of felony last year, a drop of nearly 800 from 1949 and nearly 800 less than the annual average for the pre-war period.

Festival Attracts Exchange Teachers

Toronto, (CP)—When September comes 54 Canadians will switch jobs with a corresponding number of British teachers, continuing the "exchange" project begun more than 25 years ago.

From coast to coast, the Canadians, mostly women, are packing their bags for a one-year venture of teaching in schools in England, Scotland or Northern Ireland. This year, most of them are going ahead of time.

"They want to be there to see the festival of Britain," said F. K. Stewart, executive secretary of the Canadian Education Association which arranges most of the exchanges in this country.

In Britain the 50-year-old British Commonwealth League is both founder and promoter of the plan, which has seen some 2,500 persons from many parts of the Commonwealth instructing for a year in British schools. In turn, just about as many British teachers have had a year's experience in schools in Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. Few Men

As in previous years the great majority of exchange teachers are women. Mr. Stewart says few men participate because most of those qualifying would be married teachers and unable to leave their families.

Apart from the British Exchange, Canadian teachers may go to other provinces or to the United States. This year 20 will make an inter-provincial switch but not many go to the U.S. "Most of them are choosey," says Stewart. They want to go to such places as Florida or Arizona". And that's not always possible to arrange. So far however there's a list of 11 slated for exchange jobs in the U.S.

FINED UNDER ACT

Brantford, Sept. 1 — (CP) — Norman Tolhurst was fined $50 including costs here Thursday when he pleaded guilty to the charge of driving a car while his ability was impaired by alcohol. Tolhurst was arrested Aug. 31 outside the city. When the cruiser taking him in stopped at a traffic light, Tolhurst jumped out, ran through backyards and jumped over fences before he was recaptured.

Famous Porcelain Shown by Royalty

London. (CP)— Specimens of historic Chelsea china were loaned by royalty for the exhibition of English porcelain held this month at the Royal Hospital, Chelsea, home since the 17th century of military pensioners.

The exhibition was arranged by the Chelsea Society in co-operation with the British Council as part of the celebrations of the Festival of Britain. It exhibits were sent by King George, Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary.

The famous Chelsea china factory which produced many of the exhibits was founded in 1745 by Nicholas Sprimont, silversmith from Liege, Belgium, took charge of the factory 30 years later.

From the royal collection came a pair of silver-gilt crawfish salts designed by Sprimont.

Queen Elizabeth's exhibits reflected the influence of the Chelsea Garden of which the famous physician Sir Hans Sloane was the first owner. Sprimont's "Hans Sloane Flowers" that were reproduced on many pieces of china. Some of these were loaned by Queen Elizabeth, who also contributed examples of botanical subjects in the shape of a cauliflower, asparagus and melons.

Queen Mary's collection of 53 porcelain seals originally designed by the Chelsea factory. Each seal is surmounted by a small china figure, a cat, a swan, a bust of Shakespeare and the like.

Another of Queen Mary's exhibits is a magnificent bowl with a claret ground, on which is painted a landscape of the London district of Chiswick.

PARROT TULIPS

Good Clothing Worn by Northern Women as Early at 500 BC

By H. C. BROHOLM, KEEPER (Copenhagen National Museum, in Danish Foreign Office Journal.)

The study of ancient textiles was, until the completion of Margrethe Hald's work on textiles in the Bronze Age, in the Boy's, a terra incognita of field. The excellent results of her researches on Bronze Age textiles have now been continued and extended to the large and important book just published. "Ancient Danish Textiles" is a detailed study of the available material from the Danish Iron Age, both as regards the history of textiles and the historical problems connected with costume.

It is a remarkable fact that the two countries which have yielded the oldest complete textiles are Egypt and Denmark; in the former the dry atmosphere, and in the latter the humidity of burial mounds and bogs, preserved the fragile materials which are invariably destroyed under ground. A profound difference exists, however, in that the Egyptian materials are of fine linen, while the Danish on the whole are coarsely made from brown sheep's wool. Only in the late Bronze Age do we meet with Danish linen textiles made from nettle yarn; and only in Iron Age finds does flaxen linen occur. All the Bronze Age weaving is two-shaft; in the Iron Age finds nearly all the materials are woven in one form or other of four-shaft weaving. But alongside the women materials we find textiles made with special techniques, such as tablet-weaving, braided work, and beedle-netting.

In West Germany, Holland, England, Ireland, Southern Scandinavia, and Denmark it is not unusual in peat bogs to find bodies buried in the peat. Often both the clothing and the body are exceptionally well preserved, and sometimes the entire costume with footwear remains.

These discoveries, which cover a considerable period, from 500 B.C. until well into the Middle Ages, are of great importance to the study of the history of costume. They form the chief material for Margrethe Hald's study of Iron Age costumes. Thanks to these finds it has been established that the Scandinavian women, even in 500 B.C. used a peplos (outer robe) closely related in form to that worn by the ancient Greeks.

This certainly opens up a vision of Scandinavian influence in the early Iron Age. The Cimbri and Teutons who started out from Jutland, and ended their victorious march through Europe in their defeat by the legions of Marius, were no savage rabble clad in deerskins, but people who even then were in close touch with Classical culture, though it had reached them by devious routes.

Their costumes were made from various kinds of twill, and the cut reveals the connection with contemporary Hellinistic notions. Textiles from the early Iron Age show, like weapons and ornaments, the influence of the La Tene culture, and prove that the ancestors of the Danes in that age loved beauty and were ready to receive the culture which Rome had to offer and which after the conquest of Gaul was carried to Scandinavia in full measure by Roman merchants.

Woman, 84, Enjoys First Visit to City

Halifax, (CP)—Mrs. Minnie Durling, 74-year-old native of Cambridge Station in Kings County, has just made her first trip to Halifax and she said "I liked it fine."

The silver-haired lady who visited a cousin here said she could have visited Halifax many times in the past "but somehow never got around to doing it."

Mrs. Durling lived at Cambridge, Mass., for a number of years but returned to the Nova Scotia Cambridge after her husband died some years ago.

She was impressed by the shopping districts and the Halifax public gardens.

"You know," she said, "I would live here except for one thing. If you ask me, this would be a good place to steer clear of during a war."

The little old lady set a busy pace during her visit. "Some nights I haven't been to bed before 2 or 3 a.m.," she said. "Back home I always turn in about 10 o'clock. I'm having a great time."

Mrs. Durling has two sons and two daughters, all living in Nova Scotia except a son, Layton, in Toronto.

Blind Widow Among Craft Competitors

Toronto, (CP)—Mrs. Eva Bamber, of Hamilton, won't be able to see her knitted socks and cushion with crochet lace on display at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The 67-year-old widow, blind, deaf and partially crippled, is one of the 75 blind persons who are exhibiting handicrafts in the Women's Building at the big fair.

Altogether 220 articles are entered by members of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind. Alma McIntosh of Kitchener, Ont., took first prize last year with a hand-crocheted and dressed doll. This year she is showing stuffed animals and baby clothes.

SISTERS ALL

DOUGH TROUBLE

If you are looking around for some practical shower gift, don't ever fall for one of those glass rolling pins. They are worse than useless. It must surely have been a male who introduced a glass rolling pin into the household, because the only thing it is really good for is a cocktail shaker.

According to the instructions, chipped ice is to be inserted into the pin to chill the glass making it "the perfect temperature for rolling out dough." What actually happens when you do follow instructions is that the water in the air quickly condenses on the outside of the chilled rolling pin wetting the dough and causing it to stick like flour paste.

Even if you leave the ice out of the pin, the glass sticks to the dough. Besides, the glass pin, like a bottle, does not roll on a pivot making it difficult to handle at all. Usually a new product is an improvement on the older type. But as far as rolling pins are concerned, it pays to stick with the old fashioned one grandma used.

A good way to save mealtime time is to wash dishes as you work with flour and washing up the kitchen counter after baking, is to place your pie crust dough out on a sheet of heavy wax paper. Lay another sheet of wax paper over the dough, and roll out with the pin. Old bread wrappers are handy and economical for this. It does away too, with the need for a pastry board.

Behind Ma Satan!

They said television would not likely be permitted in Canada for obvious safety reasons. Now the manufacturers have come around that one by suggesting that the television screen be installed in such a way that only those riding in the rear seat could watch it. This could almost eliminate all that back-seat driving.

They Show Up

If you are in the market for a new pair of spectacles, you'll find yourself with a choice of styles ranging from about 30 odd varieties or what we used to call horn-rimmed eyeglasses. Even the teenagers and glamour girls, the rims come in every conceivable color. They have even tartan rims for Scotch lassies.

For grownups, the most stylish lenses come in light or dark tortoise shell plastic with the nose piece and lower half of the lenses lightened by a thin gold band. For glamour and parties, through the neck these days.

Women's Activities

RIVER VALLEY W.M.S.

Mrs. J. H. Beatty, Trent River, was hostess for the August meeting of River Valley Woman's Missionary Society on Tuesday.

There were fourteen members and several visitors in attendance. This was a special meeting for the children and opened with "When He Cometh". The 16th Psalm was read responsively and roll call was answered with "What It Takes to Make a Happy Home".

Several secretaries gave reports on their work and during the month two cards were sent, seven home calls and one hospital call was made by members.

The next meeting will be held on September 25th at the home of Mrs. George Heasman. The older girls will be invited and Miss Flossie Rosebush will prepare the program.

Mrs. Roy Bush arranged the program and presided and she based her thoughts on the theme "Working Together". A few hymns were sung.

Miss Adeline Bush gave the devotional and Mrs. Jack Bush read the scripture lesson. All the smaller children sang "Jesus Loves Me". Misses Joanne and Grace Heasman sang "This Is My Father's World".

Mrs. W. Ashley and Mrs. G. Fralick prepared a paper which the latter read on the topic "Why the Young People do not Love God and His Church" and a discussion of interest followed.

Miss Flossie Rosebush repeated "A Grace for Young Children". Mrs. W. Ashley read "It is Never Too Late". Mrs. Jack Bush and Mrs. Ernest Carr conducted an exercise for young children and each child was given a picture and a story. When they have committed this to memory they will be privileged to give it at a meeting.

Miss Marilyn Conley sang "God Bless the Little Picture Fair".

Mrs. Percy Utman read "Five Rules for a Happy Life".

Mrs. Roy Bush prayed a selection "Finishing the Job".

Mrs. Harold Martin read a poem "What Is the Church?" and Mrs. Roy Bush closed her program with a benediction taken from "The Missionary Monthly".

Refreshments were served, and the visitors signed the beautiful view, flowers and gardens at "Hillsholme" and the hostess and her assistants were tendered a vote of thanks for hospitality.

SUFFRAGE LEADERS

Finland, in May of 1905, was the first country in the world to give women the right to vote.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Corn, clams and milk were all factors in early Americana.

Some historians think the first barter that took place in America was the milk which Viking explorers exchanged for furs. The Indian corn and the quahog clams were welcome food when New Englanders were almost starving.

All three foods can be combined for a hearty summer chowder. This is the kind of soup which all of the principal ingredients are added just before serving.

Both the clams and the corn are cooked separately since overcooking causes both of them to become tough. The hot milk and cream are added at the last moment to prevent curdling.

The flavor of the stock is very important in this kind of soup. Canned broth or bouillon powder may be used to intensify the flavor of weak stock. Bouillon cubes or powder may be used alone if they are full bodied and not of synthetic taste.

Clam and Corn Chowder
Serves 6.

1 doz. chowder clams
2 cups cooked fresh corn cut off cob
1-4 cup diced onions
1-2 cup diced green peppers
1-2 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1-4 teaspoon chopped thyme
3 cups soup stock
2 cups milk
1 cup light cream
Salt—pepper—paprika
Tabasco sauce

Scrub clams well. Put in a pot with 1 cup of cold water. Cover pot and bring water to a boil. Steam until clam shells open. Drain and strain liquor, and add to soup stock. Chop clams coarsely and set aside.

Boil enough yellow sweet corn to make 2 cups when cut off cob. Do not overcook the corn.

In a soup pot put the onions, green peppers, celery and butter. Saute slowly until onions turn yellow. Stir in the flour and thyme. Add the stock.

Bring to a boil. Reduce flame and simmer 20 to 30 minutes.

Add the clams, corn, milk and cream. Bring up to the boiling point but do not boil. Add salt and peppe to taste. Add a dash of tabasco sauce.

Ladle the soup into serving plates. Sprinkle with paprika before serving.

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

When it came Lance's turn to speak he recalled that as he saw life in the army, in the trenches during the late war, it had not been an easy life, a soft occupation, but more of a game of get and give. Not one of the boys with whom he had served thought to do had ever failed to share and share alike what he had with his buddies. It had been his good fortune to receive money, he didn't say how much, but he did say that he was but an instrument through which that money must pass to the benefit of others. Naturally when he had learned the game from experience that as an investment he had made before there was a war in sight, that turned out well for him, his first thought had been for those who had been through the war with him. He had felt that they would form an association and that he would be asked to be the treasurer of that association would need money to help it get established. So he gave it to them. Social occasions have a place to meet, a place where they could again associate as soldiers, in other words the buddies of the training camps of the trenches, of that great army of victory.

"Thus you can see," he said in conclusion, "why we have our own meeting place your own hall." He assured them that The Daily Intelligencer Radio Station CHML would always be at their service, and he hoped they would use them.

The members made him a life member of the club amid cheers and applause.

Then they offered him the presidency of the branch at the end of the year. He said he would take that matter under advisement, but he thought he would.

So he grew in stature in the community. He was showered with invitations to banquets, attend social gatherings and to make speeches. With few exceptions he turned down all such invitations. He never had any desire to be a social lion; speech-making was not for him; he never thought he knew he could stand up and say what he had to say without fear or trembling, and it's necessary in forceful language. But to have needed to make speeches would have taken up too much of his time, depriving him of the relaxation, the hobbies that he must have to keep up his pace he had set for himself.

But there was one pressing invitation that he accepted one evening, and that was to dine with Mrs. Hastings and her son Jimmy, in their splendid home.

As they dined amid sumptuous surroundings, and as the hostess perceived that the possession of great wealth did not prevent her from being kind and friendly—a most interesting person to converse with—their conversation drifted from one subject to the other. Mrs. Hastings remarked that her guest spoke like a well-read young man. "A young man who must have spent much time with books. Lance admitted that he was an omnivorous reader. He explained that in his many offsky hours on board ship between ports, he had discovered that the reading of good books not only stood to pass away the time, but was educative, a form of relaxation that he had much enjoyed.

"Then among your authors, Mr. Bradley, you must have your favorites," she said.

"Yes," he said. "I have. Dickens and Conrad and Kipling, but best of all, Victor Hugo and Jack London." He was not in any way London and Hugo appealed to him so much. He tried to explain that it was not for their writings alone that he put them at the top of his list, but because he himself, they were the shorn lambs for whom a kind Providence had tempered the wind, as Shakespeare of the May Queen had decided not to him.

"I can very well understand your liking for Hugo, Mr. Bradley," Mrs. Hastings said. "But London—as I understand it, he was a radical, a man of ideals. You're not a socialist, Mr. Bradley, are you?"

"Well, hardly," he laughed, "but could one be a socialist and capitalist at one and the same time? Yes, I suppose one could be—but dead now, you know, died in '16 during the war. But that was Jack London, the dreamer, the extremist. Yet where will you ever find such stories as "The Call of the Wild" and "The Sea Wolf"? However, I believe that no one gets the best out of a book unless he knows the background of the person who wrote it. I believe a writer must live a good story before he can turn out a good book. Of course Hugo was a class by himself. Who will ever forget Jean Valjean, or Javert, or Cosette?"

"Not interesting, Mr. Bradley, Mrs. Hastings beamed. "It's quite obvious you know your books. I must admit that I'm not overly familiar with the London book. I shall get James to get it haven't find some of them, that I may do a bit of reading on my own.

The conversation was beginning to lag when Mrs. Hastings said: "I envy your paper that you are about to start a campaign to raise funds for an additional wing to our hospital."

"Yes," he agreed, "we understand that the present hospital is over-crowded."

"Better hospital facilities and more accommodation interests me very much, Mr. Bradley," Mrs. Hastings declared. "It may interest you to know that your paper's editorial in respect to this matter has brought me to a definite decision, Mr. Bradley. I'm going to help you to the extent of twenty thousand dollars. Here's my offer: If through your paper you are able to raise sufficient money to completely renovate the present building, I'll be only too happy to donate the full cost of building a children's detention or wing, a wing to be known as the "James Hastings Wing."

"But, mater," Jimmy started to protest, but she stopped him.

"Please James—don't interrupt your mother when she's speaking."

"Are you aware, Mrs. Hastings," Lance asked, "that a new wing, properly equipped, may cost you a hundred thousand dollars?"

"Yes, dear boy, I know it will take much money," she smiled. "But what do I owe. If I don't put my money to work for the benefit of my fellow men, the government will be taking it in taxes. As far as James is concerned—" she gave her son an amusing glance—"James is a wealthy man in his own right, and in his own right he must spend his money. I don't want to use or he may be sorry for it."

"But I shall, mater," Jimmy protested. "I shall build small homes for the poor, that will not cost more than a minimum of rent."

"You know, Mr. Bradley," Mrs. Hastings went on, "so many stories of your great benevolence have been reaching me, and when I take into account what you have done to waken James up, it has set me into doing a lot of serious thinking on my own. As I have already intimated, my son is a wealthy man, there's nothing he needs, he's a good boy, unless—" she smiled archly "it be a wife." And judging by the way he idolizes you, perhaps he expects you to get that for him soon."

"I can make a try, Mrs. Hastings," Lance laughed. "As a matter of fact I've been clearing the path for him to the heart and hand of Miss Doris Parker for some time now."

"Doris is a lovely girl, Mr. Bradley," Mrs. Hastings said. "She appears to have found her niche in life as editor of your woman's page."

"Yes, she's good, isn't she?" Lance beamed.

"To have Doris for a daughter-in-law would be one of life's greatest pleasures," Mrs. Hastings said.

"Did you hear that, Jimmy?" Lance said a blushing Jimmy answered. "That's jolly ripping of her, old boy, don't you think?"

"As I was about to say," Mrs. Hastings rambled on, "since you are doing so much good with your money, and no doubt getting much pleasure in doing so, why should not I? It strikes me that if people of wealth were to put their wealth to work, to alleviate the sufferings of the unfortunates, to help the poor, the out-of-work, that much of this so-called socialism that we hear about would soon die. Am I not right?"

"Possibly," Lance said. "After all, goodness is the only investment that never fails." And then "By the way, Mrs. Hastings, you put it slightly to mind the information you've given me about donating a new wing to the hospital, in my paper?"

"Indeed, Mr. Bradley," Mrs. Hastings said. "Not only that, but if you will have one of your reporters call, I shall be only too glad to give details. And further, if at any time you know of a family in distress, any place where a little money can do good, don't be afraid to let me know."

With an altogether different opinion of Mrs. Hastings in his mind now, Lance and Jimmy left early on the latter pretext he in the studio in time to give his eleven o'clock broadcast and sign off CHML for the day.

Two days later there was a two column account of Mrs. Hastings on the front of The Ensign, a well-written interview, with Doris Parker by-line, telling the story of Mrs. Hastings's decision to meet the full cost of adding a "Hastings Wing" to the Emerton hospital, a wing to be known as "The James Hastings Wing". And in the days that followed it was Mrs. Hastings's fine gesture that sparked the campaign to renovate the hospital to a fitting conclusion, and in a few days the renovation and the building, the construction of the wing was under way.

Mayor Lance Bradley and Dad Roberts were more than ever convinced that there were many fine citizens in Emerton, citizens who, if they were properly led, would do wonders for the town. And while they were talking one afternoon about that time, a copy boy arrived from the back office and handed Lance Bradley a telegraphic envelope.

Lance, well aware that the contents were for his eyes only, his own personal benefit, placed the envelope in an inside pocket. Some other day when he was alone, he would know what the reporters had found out about the man who sat in high places in the Town of Emerton.

In asking his reporters to get confidential reports on the men in charge of Emerton's municipal affairs, Lance Bradley had not committed an un-ethical act. The banks and credit associations, the police and even the clergymen were often asked for secret information on persons who were well known to them. And since all information secured in this way was strictly confidential and never destroyed or filed away from prying eyes, no harm was done. Indeed in business circles, this was considered good business.

So with this in mind, and quite aware that he too must merge this information when he had used it, Lance Bradley sat at his desk scanning the sixty odd typewritten information before him. Dad Roberts was probably in the back office, acting ads in the composing room, or maybe feeding a page in the job room.

Before going into the details, the actual facts, he must know about the men at town hall, the manner of men they were. Lance's reporters had provided him with information that he hadn't known.

For instance, the Emerton town council was composed of a mayor and two aldermen, or councillors, from each of the four wards. Council meetings were held monthly or oftener, as required. The police force consisted of a police chief, two day and two night constables, who were under the control and direction of the Fire and Police Committee of the town council. The fire brigade was a volunteer organization consisting of a chief and fourteen men who were paid fifty cents an hour while fighting fires.

But from what Lance could see, the council in itself was not representative of a thriving town of six thousand people. The present council did not include a business man or one from the professions. While most of its members possessed records that were unsavory, to say the least.

Beginning with Mayor Joe Crooks, Lance learned that some years back he had been the secretary-treasurer of a milling business, and despite the low wages paid him, and without outside assistance, he had managed to build a block of houses and a section of land across the railway tracks. Under the impression that above accepting a bribe, or collecting a rebate, where no one existed. To pin him down would be a problem.

Lance Bradley smiled when he read that. Perhaps Slender would not be so hard to pin down, if the right kind of pins were used. But that remained to be seen.

Of the other officials, Fire Chief Trumpus was an industrious man, a first class fire fighter; Clerk-Treasurer Henry Jenners, Tax Collector Ben Joyce and Magistrate George Henry were reported as capable, efficient.

CHAPTER XXIII

While outside his office, Lance Bradley was being hailed as the man of the hour, within its four walls he was simply "the man in the front office". He was the man who must sign the weekly pay cheques for some fifty men and women, girls and boys, as they were preceded by Treasurer Sparling. He was the man to meet and direct to their proper channels all the salesmen who dropped in to take orders for paper and ink and other printing material. Over his desk must pass all news-matter that was considered tricky or contentious or too dangerous for the men in the news-room to handle. He was the confidante, the friend of every person who came to him in distress or to have him settle their axes for them, or to keep their names out of the police court news or any other mischief that they had let themselves in for. To him came mothers who were confident that their daughters were Madame Albanis in the making or whose sons were John McCormacks if given a chance, possibly born radio announcers. And to all he lent a kindly ear, and sent them on their way upstairs to have Ted Wilson give them a fair hearing.

It can be seen that Lance Bradley's hours were not spent in daydreaming, that he welcomed the hour of quitting with a sigh of relief. However, no matter what disturbed him during the day, he never repeated it in the home of the Roberts, that sanctuary of peace and tranquility.

Simple overcall is merely an expression that means a declaration without a jump. It's a bid that shows the weakest type of hand a player can announce when he is the first to bid for his side.

A simple overcall promises a suit that contains five tricks of which only two may be high cards of which only one may be sure trick. The suit it mentions should be biddable with at least six cards.

Next in strength among overcalls is a double. This shows at least five tricks. But among them are four highs of which two are sure, in addition the other suits have only four cards.

Next in strength is a jump overcall, showing eight tricks and a reliable suit. The strongest of all overcall is opening suit, showing nine tricks and two honors in that suit.

To decide which type of bid your hand deserves when you are a defender, consider the order of preference. If not the strongest, look for the next. If not that, next.

Suppose your opponent is the dealer. You look at your hand and you have the west hand shown here:

♠A 8 7 4 3 2
♣A K 4 2

What overcall do you choose, if any? Start with what it takes for the strongest and go down the line. Simply select the overcall of greatest type that fits your hand in full.

You have six tricks; three highs and three shorts. So you have not enough for overcall in opponent suit or jump overcall. Lacking 4 high cards you have not enough for a double.

So, you have either a simple overcall or 4 spades. Giving a simple overcall you do not pass. Your defensive bid is a simple overcall of one spade. Further is thus warned of your limits.

You might argue that it is nearly good enough for a double. But bid correctly and save a lot of heartache.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 1 (AP)—Saddest note of this week's news in Hollywood was the sudden death of Robert Walker at the age of 32.

Death is doubly sad when a person is struck down in the middle of what promises to be a notable career. It has happened before in Hollywood with the deaths of such figures as Rudolph Valentino, Jean Harlow, Ross Alexander, Hugo Haas.

Walker was considered by many as one of the best young actors in Hollywood. He had just finished what may well be his best role, "My Son John." Walker might possibly receive posthumous academy recognition because of it.

It was ironic that one of his most memorable roles was that of the easy-going, ineffectual private Hargrove. Bob was anything but that. He was an intense fellow who took a serious view of life through his horn-rimmed glasses.

Marital Trouble

Walker's story refutes the notion that Hollywood success spells happiness. He seemed happy enough when he and his wife, Jennifer Jones were breaking in to pictures. But after they broke up, and Miss Jones married producer David O. Selznick, Walker began hitting the headlines with his drunken conduct. He had a tragically brief marriage to John Ford's daughter Barbara and then sought psychiatric aid at a clinic in Kansas.

But he finally "found himself" was finally at peace with himself and no longer felt that he "didn't deserve happiness." But the end of his disturbed life came Tuesday night due, said the doctors to "an emotional disturbance."

Cosmo Caper

Still brewing in Hollywood is the stew between Danny Kaye and Sid Skelton.

The thing started when Kaye was playing his last performance at London's Palladium. By custom, he was supposed to introduce Skelton, who was playing there next. Skelton was in the audience, but Kaye neglected to introduce him.

"I completely forgot," Kaye explained to friends. But Skelton was hurt. Kaye has told me he has "no comment" to make and says it's a tempest in a teapot. . .

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NAPANEE DROPS OUT!

Without flourish of trumpets, and with a welcome surcease from sustained headaches, the Napanee Athletic dropped out of the Central Ontario Baseball League picture yesterday, Manager Joe Killoran informed this department.

Killoran informed his players, or the remnants of the team, some three or four including Herbie Hayes, Stan McTaggart and Joe Jocke they were free agents from now on, and the 1951 edition of the Athletics would pass into memory.

Killoran cannot be blamed. Seven of the squad declared their intentions of playing with the smart Intermediate "C" team which already has advanced to the OBA second round playdowns and rather than spoil its chances of "going places" he decided to break up the senior squad which was hopelessly in the ruck. It is presumed the remaining games of the Athletics in the COBL will be set down as wins for opposing teams, Batawa and the Redmen will benefit to a one game extent as far as we know.

Some perhaps will condemn Killoran for his actions in withdrawing the Athletics, but those who know the facts will probably agree with him. It was enough to see efforts and his spare time Napanee entered the COBL this year. In 1950 Killoran took a financial beating to the extent of $500 and his loss this year is not far off that amount.

At the beginning of the season, it was doubtful if the Napanee entry would be included in the schedule. Killoran decided to make another attempt and gathered as many local players as he could and took the dive. He has struggled against tough breaks all season, and the team besides, was a consistent loser due mainly to the fact that it was a difficult problem to field its full strength at any time.

Injuries crept into the picture and at one time Killoran had a sixteen-year-old youngster comprising his pitching staff. The week's two free games did no good in the least, and only ran up the shame him. A bitter loss was that of the Green Brothers who went to the Batawa Shoemen just before the schedule started.

But Joe carried on despite this setback. He fielded a team that went through practically the whole season winning but pitifully few games. Yet it stayed in there. Killoran is more to be commended than condemned.

The official withdrawal will be presented to the COBL master - minds at a special meeting being held in Kingston tomorrow afternoon where, it is likely the question of remaining games will be settled.

BATAWA HERE TONIGHT!

Tonight the Redmen clash with the Batawa Shoemen in what should be an important tussle to both squads. Unless the Shoemen have lost their touch Tuesday night, the Reds enjoy a one game lead for the fourth slot, so much depends on the outcome of tonight's tussle.

It was reported that Sammy Mulholland suffered a sprained ankle in Saturday's game in the Falls game which Dick Green aggravated an old leg injury and had to be pulled out of the game. If these two players are unable to play tonight, it will cause a serious loss to the Redmen. Vern Goyer has not been able to play on previous Saturday nights and if such is the case tonight it looks as though the Reds are up against a tough proposition.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS AT AUTO RACES!

Further thrill-producing attractions for the auto races at Speedway Parkland on Monday have been secured, Promoter Dick Burrowes said today. In addition to George Bowes, Ontario champion and Billy Wilson, both of Toronto, the runner-up who will drive a modern car and record breaking races against time, there will be a team race.

A team race consists of teams of four cars and captain with the cars driving two abreast in the centre of the track immediately behind. The captain who scoots through the opposition and lines up behind his own cars first is declared the winner. Exciting and thrilling, to say the least.

The two accomplished field of local and district drivers who will race on Monday include Messrs. Jerry Ball, Johnny Jones, Frank Hunt, Clarence Johnson, Mac Huddlestone, Ray Uens, Buck "Up" Hill, Frank Andre, Warren Day, Ted Broad, Gene Vanlerven, Bob Yesberry, Jack Kirkpatrick, Bill Cook, Garnet Brown, Carl Gingren, "Boobs" Green, Delbert Breadman and Earl Thompson.

MINORS SEE ACTION!

On the minor baseball front for Monday the Rob Royals Bantams meet the Kingston kids at the Fair Grounds at three o'clock in the second game of their OBA playdowns. The Robs lost a close 3-1 decision the other day against their heavier opponents and hope to come out with a win and even the series.

The Walker Hardware peewees go to Port Hope for an exhibition game with the moppets of that town while the juvenilles trek to Oshawa for an exhibition tilt. All games start at 3 p. m.

SOFTBALL MENU!

Monday afternoon the Cleaner Combines of the AA League visit Kingston Penitentiary where they meet the "Saints" in an exhibition softball game. The Cleaners will arrive early enough to see a boxing card staged by the inmates.

Tonight Brown and Macrae meet Glen Keys in a city league round robin game at 6:30. The game is being played early to allow fans to see the Batawa - Redmen baseball game at 8.30.

On Tuesday night the second games of the section playoffs are being played at Alemite Field with Bakelite meeting Belleville Motor Car and Avon Jewellers taking on Stewart Warner. A win for Stewart Warner and Motor Car will eliminate the opposition. First game seven o'clock.

Now Full Game Behind Yanks 'Ole Satch' Stops Tribe in 9th, Chisox Egg Tigers; Rest Idle

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

Generally, St. Louis Browns are used as stepping stones to pennant contending teams in the American League but that's not the case when Cleveland Indians are the opposition.

The Browns, hibernating in last place and 40 games off the pace, helped knock the Indians out of the 1950 race and last night dealt the Tribe a staggering blow in the current flag chase.

St. Louis, denied the Indians 6-3 to dump them one game behind the idle New York Yankees. The victory was the Browns' fifth in 16 meetings with Cleveland.

Jim McDonald, with help from Satchel Paige, stopped the Indians before 23,068 fans in Cleveland. Paige, a former Indian, rushed to the rescue in the ninth after the first two men reached base.

Paige Stops Former Mates

Paige walked pinch-hitter Early Wynn to load the sacks but fanned Al Rosen. Then Mitchell on a foul, got Bob Avila to force George Stirnweiss at second and struck out Larry Doby to end the game.

The Browns pounded Bob Lemon, ousting him in the eighth straight and 17th victory, and Lou Brissie in the fifth. Vern Arft was the Brownies' big gun, driving in four runs on a homer and two singles.

The Yanks, off the last two days, resume action today with the Boston Red Sox at Boston. Ed Lopat (16-7) is scheduled to face Washington's Sid Hudson (4-8).

In the only other game in the majors yesterday Chicago White Sox blanked Detroit, 7-0, as Saul Rogovin, a former Tiger, limited the Bengals to seven hits. Tiger pitching Dizzy Trout dressed a batter late, Stuart banged out a triple and 3 singles and allowed only six hits. The White Sox scored both of their runs in the sixth.

Nelson Fox singled, stole second and went to third on an error by Red Wilson. Fox scored when shortstop Johnny Lipon made a two-base error on Minnie Minoso's grounder. Ed Robinson singled Minoso home with the final run.

Tennis Notes

Quinte Club won the Canada Cement trophy last week when they edged out Trenton for the Bay of Quinte league championship. They finished the schedule with 36 points, two points better than Trenton who had 34. Belleville by Point Anne with 30 and Batawa with 20 points.

The Corby Cup playoffs got underway this week with Trenton losing a 3-2 decision to Batawa in the first leg of the semi-final round. They play their second round next week as do Point Anne and Quinte in the other semi-final.

Turning to the Intermediate loop, Holloway Street consolidated their first place hold on Monday evening when they edged out Quinte by a close 3-2 score. Quinte picked up two points from Batawa Thursday evening and St. Andrews gained two points on the same evening when Trenton failed to appear. The league standing is as follows:

Team	Played	Points
Holloway St.	9	14
Quinte	9	12
Trenton	9	12
Pointe Anne	8	8
St. Andrews	9	8
Batawa	9	4

On Tuesday evening Quinte visits Point Anne whilst on Thursday Trenton are at home to Batawa.

All three local entrants in the Canadian Junior Championships were drawn against seeded players in the first round and although giving a good account of themselves, found the opposition a bit too strong. Mary Jane McNally of Quinte and Ann Kingsley were thrown against the New Brunswick champion, extending her in the second set before losing 7-5.

Kid Matthews K.O's Whitlock

Boise, Idaho, Sept. 1 (AP) — Heavy punching Harry (Kid) Matthews scored his ninth straight knockout and his 61st consecutive victory when he battered out Dave Whitlock in six rounds last night.

The Seattle puncher caught the San Francisco Negro with a solid right cross and he was counted out at 2:35 of the sixth.

Both fighters weighed 176 1-4. The victory was another step in Matthews' long pursuit of a crack at the lightheavyweight crown held by Joey Maxim. Promoters estimated the crowd at 4,000 and the gate at $30,000. The payoff punch was the first knockdown of the fight. It came as Whitlock was reeling in with a flurry to Matthew's face.

Sport in Brief

British boxing writers, who saw the controversial Kid Gavilan-Billy Graham fight in New York Wednesday night, are told by home folks they are worried over what may happen to Randy Turpin's next fight with Graham. Turpin, almost to a man, the British writers thought challenged Graham was entitled to the decision in his 15-round title bout with Gavilan in Madison Square Garden.

The next time George Spencer, New York University track star, enters a game he will establish a modern record for the number of times batted by a pitcher. Spencer, former Ohio state university football player, has been on the Washington Senators' roster since the 1951 baseball season, wiping out the old national league mark set by Grover Cleveland Alexander of the 1911 Philadelphia Club.

The Eastern Canada Senior Ladies' Softball Championship was awarded Friday night to Ace Queens of Toronto after Greenberg Club of Verdun, Que., withdrew from the competition. Ace Queens' record: The Toronto team will meet the western winner here in best-of-three series starting Sept. 8.

Dapper Charlie Ward won the Louis Tabb gold tournament golf championship, England, Friday on the 6,870-yard Stoneham course. Ward's aggregate score of 69-68-66-68—270. Ward has been selected for the British Ryder Cup team with the United States at Pinehurst, N.C., November 2 and 3. South African Bobby Locke is defending.

The Duke of Devonshire Trophy, emblematic of the United States and Canadian Senior Golf Association championship, Friday was won Friday, at Toronto by the United States 23½ points to 14½. The United States won the first and the match in 1913 with the exception of the last year inception in 1934.

Dudley Hanover turned in the only mile run or less than two minutes in the grand circuit harness racing program at the Hotel Quoin, Ill., State Fair in winning the $10,000 mid-American pace Friday. Dudley Hanover-old Dudley nut horse, owned by the Hoot Mons Fair Acres Stable won the $10,000 mid-American pace, beating Prince Jay, owned by the S. A. Camp Farms Co., of Shafter, Calif., by a length.

Rainy Weather Bass

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Selmar Tables.)

Each year, since the summer of 1918, I have fished the pleasant waters of the West Branch of the Delaware River near the town of Deposit, New York State. This fine stream is a "must" on our annual schedule, a matter of tradition which should not be violated.

When my son, Dick, was 12 years old, Pete Wright, with a full-size fly rod, he took his place among the ranks of the Delaware's bass fishermen, and since then he has missed this yearly journey only during the present season he spent in the South Pacific, fighting Japs.

The West Branch of the Delaware is a friendly stream, easily waded, and safe for a youngster to fish in. Its trout are not large but there are plenty of them, it makes an ideal place for a boy to learn to fish.

Not only that, but it is an excellent proving ground for new fishing tackle. For instance, the Mystery Bass Bug is named after Mystery Pond, Vermont, we used this design in the Delaware two seasons prior to its christening.

Last's Bass Minnow, and we once more in Deposit, fishing those familiar waters. The week was cloudy with now and then a shower, and the river was a trifle somewhat discolored.

Bass Deep

We tried fishing surface lures, nearly always productive in those waters, but the unsettled weather had driven the bass well down in the deeper water and they refused to be lured from their accustomed haunts. A cleverly under spinner rig played too close to the surface to arouse much interest. Nothing has ever been proven bass water where we knew there were plenty of fish, but we were hooking all too few of them. What, then, to do about it?

Obviously the fish were down in deep water and the thing to do was fish them. Unsettled and rainy weather made them wary and reluctant to rise to surface or to the deep pools.

About the only way to take them would be to use bait (not much fun and an awful nuisance when casting) or to use lures artificials that could be fished near the bottom.

Unfortunately not many lures that are designed for fly-rod use will sink deep enough under the surface. Bass bugs and hair lures float. The drag of the current, even with a weighted underspinner rig close to the surface. Deckstalk's do not sink readily. What then?

Problem of Lures

We had with us some of the fly-rod metal lures. These sink readily but any motion brings them up quickly. We sat down beside the car to hold a council of war.

Before leaving home Dick, for reasons he could not explain at the time, had placed in the tackle kit a box of miscellaneous flies. These are, gaudy affairs in sizes ranging from No. 6 to No. 1/0.

We had never used them for bass, as streamers, bucktails and bass bugs had always taken care of the trout. Now Dick picked up this box and inspected its contents.

After some speculation he came up with a Colonel Fuller and a Professor, both in size No. 1. The hooks were rugged affairs, heavy enough to sink the flies. To be sure, terminal tackle had to be fished near the bottom by weighting the leader with lead, but if there is anything more unpleasant to cast than a weighted leader, I have yet to see it.

To complicate matters still further, our reels were equipped with nylon, fly lines which, as you know, have low specific gravities and will float awash without line dressing. Dick solved that problem by tying a fifteen-foot tapered leader. The flies were not heavy enough to sink the line but they would sink the long leader quite easily.

Tackle Rigged

At last he had his tackle rigged, so he walked to the head of the pool and started to fish the way slowly down through it. I sat on the bank and watched. I used to think he expected to hook anything substantial; he simply was trying out his new rig, probably with smaller bass in mind.

Dick had thrown his third or fourth cast upstream and across, using an extra-long line. Then he waited until the flies had drifted past him, by this time well down near the bottom. Instead of making his usual slow, short stripping he started the retrieve by stripping in line through the guides.

Evidently the bass had sampled one of the flies and had become interested in the many inches of the rod grip was almost torn from Dick's hand. There was audible "ping" as the leader point parted and that was that.

That did it! For the next two days we were confirmed wet-fly fishermen. Between showers we caught bass, plenty of bass.

Method Perfected

Moreover, we perfected the method, by trial and error, until we had it the way it seemed to get the best results as usual in those watery, most of the fish were small but we did manage to turn up a few of two pounds or better. This is the way we worked it out.

Using long leaders and casting long lines, so that the big wet flies would have a chance to sink, we would cast across and slightly upstream from our position and then the entire rig was allowed to drift dead until the current tightened the line.

When that happened, we used slightly different retrieves that is generally employed with streamer fly or bucktail. Instead of keeping the rod down, parallel to the surface, the tip was elevated slightly and then vibrated up and down. The line then was stripped in through the guides.

Sometimes the bass would take the flies while they were drifting dead, without motion impart to them by the line. Again, the strike would come as soon as the flies came alive from the end of the rod tip.

Unconventional But Good

How well this method compares with the more accepted ones — bass bug or streamer or spinner — I can't say; I have used it only once under conditions that were not suited to conventional methods. In bright weather, when the fish are moving about freely it may or may not prove successful.

Just the same, it is a game wrinkle to have in your kit when rain and unsteady weather has driven the bass down to the bottom of the pool.

Sharps Win When Mask, Atkins Run Wild, Toss Victory Away

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Take two men in white with band conductor complexes, a couple of Berserkian bulls of the wrestling pampas, the Sharpsburg warlock, their wives badly dulled, one sunlight garnish with a dash of Irish Geohagen and you have the "risalin" salad as served to the faithful in Memorial Arena last night.

The Golden Sharps from Hamilton were never closer to the defeat in their lives than last night in the third embroglio. The Atkins-Mask duo had the tall fella pounded almost to pancakes when their exuberance and eagerness for the kill proved their undoing.

The foursome had split the first two falls to the accompaniment of the rhumbas, sambas and Charlestons of two officials, Sam Gotter and Cliff Fox, not to mention some neat finger-waving and arm-swinging exercises accompanied by a dull monotone of counting and grimacing.

They Knew Him

The Mask, whose facial disguise was anti-climactic since it was reported he was the principal figure in a public unveiling in Toronto Thursday night and his partner Fred Atkins is no stranger to the fans in the third heat. They teamed the Sharp ladies belly-to-belly almost knocked out of the ring, not to mention ganging tactics in the corner that had the faithful in a savage frenzy. It looked as though it was in the bag when Atkins tagged Mask. He got himself counted out through an overdose of victory scent and Referee Gotter awarded the fall and match to the fallen heroes.

The crowd surged ringside, expecting an unmasking. Mike ripped, and tore at the Mask's facial covering while Atkins was doing a neat job on brother Ben. The man-in-white stepped in and it looked like another Donegal when the Mask-Atkins duo went near-berserk. They slaughtered and banged the handsome Sharpies prettier when dashing Timmy Geohagen vaulted into the ring.

Timothy, as exponent of the famous "sleeper," promptly applied it to Atkins and he wept some bye-bye. The crowd roared for the unveiling of the Mask, and the hero parted the last veil that was that.

Sam fact that two referees were in it, a double fall for Atkins-Mask combination about to finish in the 1934 fracas to end. There could have been a dozen as far as they were concerned. They pulled the same old stuff under the noses of the refs who promptly went into a rapid-count act, and that was that.

Their "puss-in-the-corner" act of hurling one Sharpe into their corner where both could bounce fists off the opposition worked again last night. They had Gotter and Fox running around in circles trying to count two men out at once. At times it got monotonous.

Two Heads Better Than One

The Sharps took the second fall by a wide margin when they "swivelled" the necks of the "villains" until their tonsils rattled around their eardrums. The crew roared its approval when Mike Sharp contrived to get the heads of Atkins and the Mask together and work a combination referee's special.

Again in one of the more boisterous moments, the Sharps went into a huddle, set each other and buffeted the foemen until a ring post looked like a portal.

Popular Timothy Geohagen, in his first appearance, drew a grand ovation from the crowd, which doubled when he eventually put Mayor McLean to sleep with his Irish Sleeper hold. It was an exciting bout with Timothy having his fair be best of it and winning a well-deserved victory.

He demonstrated his "Sleeper" to a half dozen curious spectators all of whom "passed out" and were revived by Timmy. The well-built smiling Irishman put in a fourth and finishing fall in short order.

Pat Flanagan got the nod over Dangerous Dan O'Connor in a lively preliminary.

17 to Start For $63,000 Purse

Chicago Sept. 1 (AP) —Seventeen two-year-olds are expected to go after the $74,835 Washington Park Futurity today. First place will be worth $63,000.

Calumet Farm's Hill Gail, winner of the Belmont Futurity, is the overnight favorite but is expected to be pushed by J. H. Dunn's Oh Lee.

Many of the youngsters in the field have exchanged victories in important events.

Savitt, Patty Larsen, Sedgman In Quarter Finals

By GAYLE TALBOT

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 1—(AP) —Dick Savitt, still limping from a painful leg infection, faced perhaps the most severe test of his tennis career today in a quarter-final match against Budge Patty of Los Angeles in the United States singles championship.

The tall star from Orange, N.J., was able to whip Straight Clark of Los Angeles on sheer power in their postponed match yesterday, but against a player of Patty's class one needs to run fast and a whole lot, and here was doubt in the minds of many observers that Dick would be up to it today.

However, Savitt was grimly determined to give it all he had.

With the dream of every tennis player—victory in the Australian, Wimbledon and American championships — within sight, the ball pounder from Cornell couldn't afford to let a mere leg stop him at this point.

Tournament officials, anxious to give the stricken star every possible chance to recover, permitted him to wait until the last possible moment before playing Clark. In fact, if the match had been rained off in a hurry—6-3, 6-1, 6-3—it probably wouldn't have been finished. But it wasn't rained off, and it's go with Patty was to be the test today in Forest Hills.

In the other quarter-final, Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills was pitted against Vic Seixas of Philadelphia, who upset Ken McGregor of Australia in the previous round.

It was still possible that there will be a repetition of last year's final between Flam and Art Larsen, though not many thought it possible.

Larsen yesterday eliminated 37-year-old Gardnar Mulloy of Miami and the defending champion's biggest test will come tomorrow when he tackles Frank Sedgman of Australia in the semi-finals. The Aussie is playing the finest tennis he ever has displayed here.

Sedgman disposed of dynamite Tony Trabert of Cincinnati in five sets yesterday.

He spotted Tony the opening set, then settled down to play magnificently and finally collar the 21-year-old Cincinnati boy in the fifth set.

Ready to Work Says Johnny Sain

Washington, Sept. 1 (AP) —When the New York Yankees, currently leading the American League, arrived here for today's game with the Washington Senators, Johnny Sain, the latest pitching acquisition, was waiting to greet them. The former Boston Braves' righthander told Yankee Manager Casey Stengel, "My arm is sound and I'm ready to work hard and often."

Asked about his poor 5-13 record with the Braves, Sain replied:

"I was shut out five times, got only one run three times and eight other games they gave me only three runs to work with. I was knocked out too, but I pitched better ball than the record shows."

"Well," said Stengel, who managed Sain with the Braves in 1942, "if you can pitch for me like you did in '42 we'll all be happy. I remember you coming in one day with the bases loaded and nobody out and you retired the side without a score. I remember well because you had to retire them that way to get there."

Stengel was pointing to Johnny Mize, Yankee first baseman and one-time National League terror with the Giants and Cardinals.

'Masked Marvel' Is Lou Newman

The Masked Marvel who wrestled with Fred Atkins in a team match against Sharp brothers here last night, was unmasked in Toronto on Thursday evening when he was defeated by another "hooded horror", the Zebra.

The "Mask" was identified as one Lou Newman, of Montana, who appeared in Belleville wrestling rings three or four years ago.

Defending Champions to Set The Pace in O.R.F.U. Title Race

U. S. STAR TO SHINE ON BEACHES' SCRIMMAGE LINE

With Howie French kicking and Ralph Fuller holding his own on the scrimmage line, Coach Art West is confident that the Toronto Balmy Beaches will retain their O.R.F.U. title. Not even the fact that Beaches are without the services of a good quarterback, who will probably be an Argo captain, can dampen coach's spirit, which was given an additional lift when Pullen, formerly with Detroit Lions, drifted into town. This Negro speedster has been the big man in their scrimmages and looks like a top star. French, who has been kicking the ball better than ever, has won the punting assignment. —Central Press Canadian Photos

Heavy Weekend Faces Grid Squads, Teams See Action on All Fronts

(By The Canadian Press)

Football players across Canada donned shoulder-pads and pulled on helmets today as they went into the first real football weekend of the season.

In the east, Toronto Argonauts and Balmy Beach were set for a heavy weekend. The Argos lopen against coach Glen Crowe's Ottawa Rough Riders this afternoon in Ottawa and face the powerful Hamilton Tiger Cats in Hamilton Monday.

The Argos' game—club, the Balmy Beachers, face a refurbished Windsor Royals team in Toronto this afternoon and Monday they move to Sarnia for a tussle with Sarnia Imperials.

In the west, Calgary Stampeders and Edmonton Eskimos are set for two skirmishes tonight at Calgary and Monday night in Edmonton, Winnipeg Blue Bombers will line up against Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina Monday afternoon.

Argos Face Toughies

The dominion champion Toronto Argos faced two tough teams in a tough league. The Ridays are spearheaded by quarterback Tom O'Malley, former star passer with the Cleveland Browns and Bob Cain all-American tackle and former Purdue University star.

In the Hamilton game, the Argos will have to contend with a team that threw the favored Montreal Alouettes for a 27-9 loss in Wednesday's big four opener. The Cats play a strong offensive game, sparked by speedster Hal Waggoner, a fast halfback from Tulane University.

Windsor Royals, discouraged after six fruitless years of Ontario Rugby Football Union competition, have tome up with a new coach this year.

He is 37-year-old Jack Alexander, who broke into coaching five years ago with Windsor Assumption College. He says he's not going to try for a title this year but with a 195-pound wingline in fine condition and a speedy T-formation backfield he says "We'll win a couple of games."

Malcolm Hanover Takes First Heat By Quinte 4-1

Toronto, Sept. 1.—(CP)— The Canadian cup pace — Canada's richest harness race — was abandoned in mid-stretch Friday after Malcolm Hanover had scored a thrilling victory in the first heat.

A heavy rain hit Thorncliffe Raceway just before the first heat went to the post and 90 minutes later, when the cup horses were sent out for their second trip, the stewards ruled that the track was unsafe for racing.

The second heat will be raced at 2 p.m. today before the opening of the regular program.

Only five horses went to the post in the Canadian harness racing classic but it was one of the finest races ever witnessed by Toronto harness racing fans. They were gladdened to see Malcolm Hanover, a consistent winner on the Ontario circuit, whip his highly touted rivals from the United States.

Danny Direct, coupled with the Diplomat as an entry for Alex Parsons of Brantford, was a late scratch when he pulled up slightly sore after a pre-race workout.

Malcolm Hanover, owned by Ken Mackinnon of Owen Sound, went away in last place as Hodgen took the lead in the one-mile heat. After one-half—mile, Royal Man paced past Hodgen with Dr. Stanton, the sudden choice dropping back into third place.

Lindy Fraser sent up Dr. Stanton on the outside as they headed down the back stretch the second time, and at the quarter-pole, it was a race between Fraser and Hodgen.

Then Malcolm Hanover roared around the outside of the pack on the final bend an just got up to finish Dr. Stanton with Hodgen in third place. The Diplomat was fourth and Royal Man faded to fifth.

Quinte defeated Batawa 4-1 in an Intermediate Tennis League match on Thursday evening to spoil themselves within two points of the league leading Holloway Street crew.

Ron Mills and George Smidt scored Batawa's only wins of the evening when they took Larry Black and Harry Wells by a score of 6-2 in the last men's doubles.

Dave White and Bruce Bray of Quinte had little trouble in accounting for the 2nd men's doubles against Rudy Wagner and John Kunicek by a 6-1 score.

Eve Robbins and Lee Digby put Quinte ahead when they defeated Barbara Mitts and Tom Krulik by 6-1 in the last mixed while Bob Brearly and Marion Matheson just edged John Loucks and Betty Norris in the 2nd mixed by a 6-4 score.

Mary Jane McNally, the local ladies' singles champion, paired up with Patsy Brearly in the ladies doubles to defeat Nada Mirsk and Jean Ashworth, six to three.

The time of 2.06 1-5 was a new lifetime record for Malcolm Hanover, experiencing only his second year of competition.

Malcolm Hanover's time was one-fifth, or a second faster than the time in which Dr. Stanton won the same heat a year ago.

Seven Starters Go to Post For Rich Stakes

Saratoga Springs, Sept. 1 (AP) —The Greentree Stable's Tom Fool and Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's cousin, two leading contenders for the 1951 two-year-old championship, tangle again today in the 47th running of the rich Hopeful Stakes.

In all seven colts are entered for the 6½-furlong event, which closes the month-long Spa meeting. However, most people hereabouts look for a two-horse duel between Tom Fool and Cousin in their second meeting. If all start, the race will gross $63,400, with $52,300 tao the winner.

Last Saturday Tom Fool took command in the stretch during the Grand Union Hotel Stakes and beat Cousin a length at the wire. The Greentree colt had only 122 ounds, however, compared with 126 for Cousin, for the three-fourth of a mile event. Both pack 122 today.

Cousin was closing fast in the Grand Union, and many observers think the one half furlong extra in the Hopeful will be all the Vanderbilt colt needs.

Tom Fool will have a running mate, Greentree's The Minor, while Cousin also goes as an entry with another Vanderbilt juvenile — Color Guard. The Minor ran impressively in winning here earlier in the week.

Bernard Sharp's Hannibal, which won the Wakefield and Albany Stakes but finished out of the money in the Grand Union, will try again. The field is completed with two outsiders, Ogden Phipps' Thymus and Peter B. Isaacs' Paramount Pete both seeking their first win. The latter got in with 117 pounds, the others, 122.

Majors, Red Sox Resume Tonight

(By The Canadian Press)

Rain at London Friday night washed out the scheduled third game in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League finals between Brantford Red Sox and London Majors. The Red Sox have a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven series.

The Sox took the first two games but dropped one Friday night, their first loss on home ground in 28 straight games, by a 7-5 count. The two teams are set to play last night's postponed game in London tonight.

In Timmins Friday night the Porcupine Combines smashed out 19 hits to down McIntyre Macmen 11-4 and win their best-of-three semi-final series in the Timiskaming Baseball League playoffs 2-1.

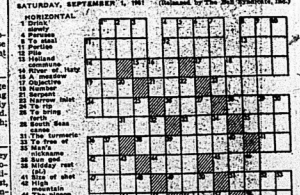
December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Your Saturn's aspect now advises against drastic changes in matters running smoothly, doing unnecessary laborious work. Urgent interests should not be neglected. Enjoy some fun.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Advice to Capricorn helpful. Trying new stunts for sake of adventure or mere daring not advocated. Do tasks quickly, faithfully; attend church; enjoy mass recreation.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Very mild for most matters but you can supply needed zest when, where essential. First spiritual devotions. Then your favorite pastime, fun with family, friends. Eat sensibly.



YOU BORN TODAY: Engaging personality; sincere, honorable, intelligent. If, of course, you are living as God intended you should. Usually orderly, neat, artistic. Be careful that your naturally inquiring mind does not delve too far into others' affairs, though your intention is to aid. Fine analytical and intuitive powers, could be clever at a profession or mechanical trade, as physician, scientist, teacher, actor.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, September 3rd

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Heart and head working as one can produce fine effort, build a highly satisfying period. Solve problems amicably; also be modern methods, forget antiquated ones for true progress.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Productive, gratifying period to try out well planned and executed projects, business deals, promotions. Use that fine brain in right way, you can hardly miss. Romance in turn favored.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Generous, benefic outlook with encouraging vibrations all day. Fruitful returns will be yours for alert, intelligent handling of problems, duties. Try to have a relaxing, healthful p.m.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Grasp good openings and gather courage as you proceed, yours will be fine gains. We all have so much for which to thank God, let's do so by charity, restraint of rude word, action.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—You can "Try the works," "green light ahead," as they say. Of course, if it's know your target, have proper aim. Indulge honest doings, bring yourself to some sacrifices, forget peeves.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—You who like to explore study, solve the whys and wherefores can have a grand day at it. Stars favor some honest aggression, good for you above-board natives. Extra unction, too.

September 24 to October 23—(Pisces)—Fine opportunities for well balanced efforts, studied prepartment, sound matters. Try some new, modern ideas, inventions, business means, they could prove very right now!

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Stimulating day, but don't make decisions too quickly, especially in a.m. Business, propositions, personal affairs under generous chart. Even oldsters may give you a boost.

November 23 to December 23—(Sagittarius)—No sure or "all set" way to move. Each task will call for separate head action, with patience to boot. Be yourself and you will be equal to whatever turns up. Chin up!

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Would be a shame were you to slip up on this really progressive day. Aspects favor sincere worth while effort. Your imagination and colorful mind should turn in top results.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Can't offer all the prospects for Capricorn today, but you should get results from integrity, hard and well planned action. Make your talents promote you, hustle.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—By late p.m. you should be in a satisfying position. Keep mind at ease, body in healthy trim to achieve favored goals. Be wary of disputes, contrary moods.

YOU BORN TODAY: are a true, loyal friend or life-mate. Rarely rush into trouble since you generally reason before acting. Fine inborn character, purposeful, charitable, capable — so build, never tear down these grand gifts. You may not follow any set pattern though usually do a task efficiently. You wont to know why and what for in anything. Seldom "hoodwinked" by schemes; reliable intuition. People naturally turn to you in trouble, for advice, which you generously give. You know your faults—correct them now.

Birthdate of: Sarah Orne Jewett, noted novelist; John Drew, Sr., actor.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was thinking to herself mad, saying to pop, William, I gave Blanch Hipple a plateful of my special nutty nuggets yesterday. Practically everybody says my nutty nuggets are the most delicious cookies they ever tasted.

Didn't Blanch Jobb in the general chorus of praise? and ma said, Oh yes, she called me up today and said in the glowing terms that they were absolutely perfect beyond discription and that her whole family kept reaching for them with cries of WE WE'S in the last line. I suppose Blanch Hipple a sample of anything is delicious, including cookies and everything elts, ma said.

For Peet sake, I couldn't of been said more by close attention but I understood you to say that she was loud in her praise and lavish with her compliments, pop said, and ma said, Oh yes, she was. She assured me that she could make cookies as marvellissi as mine, she would make them for everybody she met and bizness and become rich and famous.

Oh, I see, she was just being grabby and hinting for another plateful, pop said, and ma said, Not at all, she simply hipnotized me, thinks that her own nuggets are far superior.

I'm afraid there's a link in the chain, pop said, quite likely, pop said, and ma said, William, if you know more as well as I do, you'd realizee that if she had been sincere she would of asked me for the recipe, and she never once mentioned the recipee.

Well, by golly—now I know more about cookies, but I still have lots to learn. That's what makes life interesting, they are one of my favorite studies, pop said.

FLEW OVER SHANGHAI CLAIM

Hong Kong, Sept. 1 (AP) — The Chinese communists claim an "enemy plane" flew over Shanghai, Aug. 25 but was driven off by anti-aircraft fire. The report by the Shanghai official communist newspaper, Liberation, did not name any nation as the plane's nationality. But it coincided with recent Peiping charges of United States "air violations" of China's territory.

Controversial Stymie Question Still Hot in Golfing Circles

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 1—(CP)—By gad, sir, it looks like pistols for two and coffee for one over this issue of the stymie.

Ever since the governing authorities of golf in Britain, the United states, Canada and Australia reached a tentative agreement about framing a uniform code of playing rules, the storm has been raging.

Seldom have the divot-diggers in the United Kingdom been divided so sharply as they have over the question of golf's controversial "snooker" shot.

Such celebrities as Henry Cotton three times British Open champion, Cyril Tolley, former amateur title-holder, Lord Morton of Henryton, the Aga Khan and Sir Alexander Hood, governor of Bermuda, are some of the big guns that have opened up on print.

Glorious Stymie

The correspondent columns have been choked with kalleidahs of the small-fry abolitionists and the groans of those who protest the rule isn't worth living without the glorious stymie.

The stymie is the predicament in which a golfer finds himself in match play, when he has to putt for the hole with his opponent's ball directly in the line of play.

Those who want to scrap the penalty argue that in self-respecting person would deliberately stymie an opponent and to inflict the ordeal by accident is just so much beastly business.

The counter-arguments are varied but trenchant. The main one says in effect, that if the accident should happen to you, play the game properly—they would be able to make their ball jump over, curve around or tunnel under their opponent's.

Called "Tiger-Walter"

Says the multi-millionaire sportsman, the Aga Khan: The game is being spoilt more and more by turning new-laid courses into tiger-walks and meddling with the rules. To do away with the stymie would mean abolishing one of the most interesting, difficult shots in the game."

"Is this the start of a campaign to eliminate all the so-called fair things?" asks Sir Alexander Hood. The very word "stymie," he observes, has become part of the English language and while its origin remains obscure, it might well have been coined by some Greek scholar and golfer of long ago. On those grounds alone, he contends, it deserves to be retained.

Another broadside, favoring retention came from Henry Cotton. "I see no reason for abolishing the stymie," he said. "Golf is not like the rules of boxing or the rules of the government which need amending regularly. I have objected to alterations like this for a long time, but it seems that golf is like a lot of other things today. You are nationalized. You are not consulted about these changes—so what are you going to do about it?"

Tolley summed up the case for the pro-abolitionists.

Fifty years ago, he said, a golfer was content with seven or eight clubs and a small bag, which cost him a moderate sum. Today, to purchase a full set of 14 clubs, a pack large enough to handle the outfit, a shooting stick, waterproof clothing, and a carrie cart, a player had to meet an outlay in excess of $200. The game, in fact, bore little resemblance to the original royal and ancient pastime and to be consistent the stymie had to be relegated to the past.

And so on far into the night.

Farley, McElroy Battle Today For Golf Crown

By ERWIN FRICKE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Sept. 1 — (CP) — The 1951 Canadian amateur golf champion will be either a Vancouver jeweler or the Toronto branch manager of a textile firm.

The east-west battle will be decided today in the week-long tournament's final match, 36 holes on the lush, rolling fairways of the Royal Ottawa.

Neither the jeweler, Walter McElroy, nor the textile man, Phil Farley, has won this country's top-ranking simon-pure golf title before. The easterner, however, has been knocking at the door for about 20 years.

It will be a contest of style versus experience. The young Vancouverite — a swinger rather than a hitter — has one of the sweetest swings among Canadian golfers and Farley is acknowledged to have lots of know-how.

Has Record

McElroy's top golf achievement so far has been to win low amateur honors at the 1948 Canadian open tourney. He was Canadian amateur semi-finalist at Hamilton in 1948 and runner-up to Gerry Kesterton of Kitchener, Ont., in the 1946 Canadian junior.

But he is only 24 and he took off two big years — 1949 and last year — from competitive golf because of a series of foot operations.

Farley has been one of Canada's best amateur golfers for more than half of his 39 years. In 1931 he won the, first of his six Ontario amateur championships and he's competed in the Canadian amateur 15 times. He was runner-up in the Canadian amateur in 1937 to the great Sandy Somerville and in 1949 to Dick Chapman, United States amateur champion.

Yesterday Farley disposed of 18-year-old Laurie Roland of Vancouver, Canadian junior champion, 4 and 2 and McElroy won 4 and 3 over a former United States Walker Cup player, Fred Kammer, Jr., of Detroit.

Says Fan Caught Home-Run Ball From Front of Fielder's Glove

Cleveland, Sept. 1 (AP)—"You people in Cleveland have some damned good ball players" St. Louis Browns Manager Zack Taylor insisted today.

Zack, of course, was not talking about the Indians. He meant one of the fans in the rightfield stands. He is positive one of them caught Bob Lemon's home run ball in the seventh inning last night.

Cliff Mapes was standing in right field when Lemon smashed one. According to Mapes and Taylor, Mapes stood against the wall, and without jumping, put the glove in the line of flight.

"When he squeezed, they said, nothing was there, but at that moment a "human hand reached out.

Claims It Bounced

Umpire Bill Summers ruled that the ball bounced off Mapes' glove into the stands. One lady, seated six or seven rows back, held up the sphere as proof and the other fans in that section argued that Summers was right.

But Taylor was so sure Mapes had the correct version that he argued until he was thrown out of the park.

"I still think a fan—I don't know whether it was a man or woman—caught that ball," he said, "and I think he or she should come up with it."

"Mapes was so amazed when the ball wasn't in his glove, he started looking for it on the ground and couldn't find it. It was the darnedest thing you ever saw."

Mapes reported: "Reached right in and grabbed it. I should have pulled him out of the stands."

Buffalo Tames Syracuse Chiefs, Birds Shade Cubs

By The Associated Press

It's better late than never, as far as young Rudy Minarcin of Buffalo Bisons is concerned.

Two weeks ago the rangy righthander won his 15th game of the International League season and he seemed within striking distance of reaching the charmed circle of 20 victories.

In quest of his 16th triumph the 21-year-old hurler made two starts and pitched twice in relief roles, only to find himself charged with the defeat in all four games. This brought his record to 15-11 and he was beginning to wonder if he would ever obtain that 16th victory.

Last night Minarcin seemingly regained his composure and finally achieved the elusive triumph. The hard-working Bison tamed Syracuse Chiefs 7-1 on seven hits. Minarcin, in his 32nd mound appearance, so he completed his 16th game. He has tolled 232 innings.

Four Syracuse errors aided Minarcin as Buffalo scored six unearned runs.

Baltimore Orioles shaded Springfield Cubs 4-3 in 12 innings. Don Phillips' double scored Bill Glynn from first with the winning run.

A doubleheader between Rochester and Ottawa was cancelled by rain and a single game between Toronto and Montreal was postponed because of weather.

Call on Cities To Band Together Against Crime

Washington, Sept. 1—AP)—The Senate Crime Investigating Committee called on cities across the United States today to band together in a war on organized crime.

In a final report to the Senate and grafting public officials, on its 15-month inquiry, the committee told of "captive communities held in bondage by the twin evils.

The committee went out of existence at midnight Friday. But it strongly urged that Congress carry on the crusade and that with federal help only at the start, a privately-financed national crime coordinating council be created to keep, "the searchlight of public vigilance turned upon crime and corruption."

The committee aimed stinging thrusts at Florida's Governor Fuller Warren and, by indirection, at William O'Dwyer, Ambassador to Mexico and former mayor of New York.

The report also pictured Washington, the United States capital, as a possible "pivotal point for gambling operation of considerable size." There is evidence, too, the committee said, "of widespread traffic in narcotic drugs" in the District of Columbia.

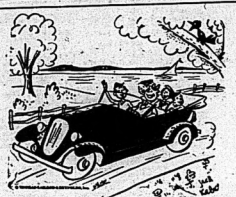
The group recommended "a startling increase" in drug addiction among U.S. teen-age youth. It placed the blame on the same gangland.

The report rapped Governor Warren of Florida for "persistent refusal" to testify under oath in the committee's inquiry into the Florida underworld.

Unlike an earlier report, which aimed directly at O'Dwyer in biting language, this one referred to him impersonally in reciting testimony that mentioned names of gangsters as among the friends of the former mayor.

Local Charged With Trying To Split District

Truro, N.S., Sept. 1 (CP) — Caledonia local of Glace Bay, N.S., was charged yesterday with trying to split the Maritime district of the United Mine Workers (CCL) which has some 10,000 men on strike, tying up Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's pits in Cape Breton.



President Freeman Jenkins of District 26, addressing closing sessions of the UMW convention here, charged the local with bringing anarchy to the district.

Malcie O'Handley of No. 1-5 local, Glace Bay, said a meeting of Cape Breton miners called for Sunday by Caledonia, was an attempt to divide the union.

Mr. Jenkins added "the integrity of the UMW is at stake" in the strike. His plea last night for the miners to return went unheeded.

Canada Should go Slow on Any Union Of Army With U.S. Forces Says Boss

Ottawa, Sept. 4 — (CP) — Bill Rose, Canadian Press war correspondent said today Canada should go slowly in any integration of her army with that of the United States partly because the Americans "still have much to learn about the art of war."

Back in his home town on leave from Korea, he told the Canadian Club, too, that Canadian soldiers have shared in a general western contempt for the Korean people which stems from a superiority complex and suggests that "right here in Canada we are losing the (ideological) battle" with communism.

He said the army could have helped by indoctrinating the Canadian troops before they went to Korea in how to behave towards a people "with a long, cruel civilization of their own. Instead the 25th Brigade was sent there dead cold" on that important point.

Some things the Canadians had done had been learned from the British brigade with only part of a large army under control of another power, the Canadians had a chain of separate thousands of Korean children from their parents. Canadian medical officers because they were carrying out orders from a higher command.

This also he said, suggested that "integration into the armies of larger powers can be carried to dangerous extremes — to the extent that troops of one country may be called on to do jobs conceivably neither they nor their home people would approve."

"For purposes of co-ordinated weapons, war establishments and so forth, integration is a fine thing but if any future Canadian force is to be fielded in operations it should be on a scale large enough to ensure that local policy in Canada rules.

"I say this on purely ethical grounds. I submit there are equally cogent reasons for ensuring that operationally our forces enjoy the autonomy that was guaranteed by creation of the First Canadian Army in the last war. I submit that our friends south of the border still have much to learn about the art of war, which is more than a thumb in our own and the British army.

"I suggest, too, that an examination on the spot—by Ottawa—especially from the point of view of supply, the same power has things to learn. It is a strange theatre in which it is easier to obtain a whole new jeep than something as simple as a carburetor to keep an otherwise good one on the road."

CRACK SAFE, GET $650

London, Ont., Sept. 4 — (CP) — Two safecrackers blasted open the safe at Canada Dry bottling Company here and escaped early with approximately $650 early today.

Police later found what is believed to be the getaway car, burned to a smouldering ruin outside the city. The 1938 model car, owned by Philip Zinner of London, Ont., was stolen during the night.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 4—(CP)—Synopsis: Clear night skies allowed temperatures to drop to the upper 40s in southern Ontario and below 50 in regions north of Lake Superior. With sunshine today and Wednesday, the mid-afternoon reading of the mercury should be a comfortable 75 in the south and 60 to 65 in the north. Frost is predicting again tonight for northern Ontario with a risk of frost in the Muskoka areas.

ONT. MAY TAKE HAND IN CUTTING MILK PRICES

Premier Says Dairies Must Improve Methods

Fenelon Falls, Ont.—Sept. 4—(Cp)—Premier Frost has thrown out a hint that the Ontario government may take a hand in cutting retail milk prices if the dairies themselves do not soon reduce distribution costs through more efficient practices than those now used.

Referring particularly to the situation in Toronto area, where the retail price is 21 cents a quart for delivered milk and 20 cents for milk in stores, he said yesterday that unless the dairies improve merchandising methods to benefit the consumer, "somebody else" will do so.

In his address to the young Progressive Conservative Association's summer school, Mr. Frost did not explain who "somebody else" might be.

However, the remarks were taken to mean that the Ontario Milk Control Board might order the dairies to put into effect a more economical system of deliveries. Another possibility was that the board might allow stores to buy, bottle and sell milk in competition with dairies.

Red Bullets Open New Chapter In Ming Sung Story

Ottawa, Sept. 4 (CP)—Chinese communist bullets have opened a new chapter in the Ming Sung story.

Government officials still were pondering today a news lacking official confirmation, report from Hong Kong that one of the seven Ming Sung Corporation ships flying the Canadian flag has come under red fire off Hong Kong.

It is the Yu Men which news reports said, was machine-gunned Sunday but suffered no casualties. She was returning to Hong Kong from Macao.

An external affairs department spokesman said today it is too early yet to tell what the government will do about it.

But it was recalled that during the heated Commons debates of last session Prime Minister St. Laurent said the possibility of communist action against the Canadian flag was one of the factors the government had had to weigh in considering whether to grant the Chinese firm the right to a Canadian charter for the seven ships.

Opposition members called for cancellation of the charter, but the government declined on the grounds that the Chinese firm had done nothing illegal.

The government is backing a Canadian bank on a $12,000,000 mortgage held on the seven ships.

FIVE PERSONS DROWNED

Criccieth, Wales, Sept. 4 (Reuters)—Five persons were drowned yesterday when a sailboat full of boys, girls and summer camp counsellors was capsized in heavy seas. Four others were rescued after being taken to the upturned craft for two hours.

Gorging on Vitamin 'A' or 'D' Can Poison You Says Medical Report

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, Sept. 2 — (AP) — Like too much of anything good, gorging on vitamin A or vitamin D can poison you.

Medical experts told of this poisoning from "terrific amounts" of either vitamin. It shows in aches and pains, joint pains, dry itchy skin, bone changes in children, and even mental disorders.

Vitamins are good for you, and you need them. Most people get enough of them from well-balanced diets. Others need or benefit from supplementary doses of vitamin pills. Sometimes doctors give extra big doses to combat certain diseases.

A woman poisoned by too much vitamin A is described in the annual report of the American Medical Association.

She had heard that vitamin A might help prevent catching cold. She began taking 600,000 units of vitamin A a day, and kept it up for 18 months.

The average person needs only 5,000 units a day, so she was swallowing 120 times her daily requirement. Not to mention the food.

On days when she felt the might coming on, she took what would take 1,600,000 or 2,600,000 units of vitamin A.

She finally came to the doctors because her hair was falling out, and her eyebrows and eyelashes were almost gone. She had aches in bones and joints, soreness and cracks at the corners of her mouth, a dry, rough and itchy skin, and some discolored patches on sight sweats and other complaints.

Before treatment was to stop taking all the vitamin A. Within 10 days, the blood count began to come back up, and so did the itching. Her hair soon began to grow again and her other troubles disappeared.

This case, the physicians said, is apparently the first one to be published of vitamin A poisoning in an adult.

In children, too much vitamin A is blamed for causing loss of appetite and weight, irritability, low-grade fever, skin rash, loss of hair, enlargement of the liver, blood changes and tenderness

U.S. Officials Confident Russia Cannot Wreck Treaty, Truman to Open Conference

San Francisco, Sept. 4—(AP)—Intensive behind-the-scenes negotiations today convinced United States leaders that they can defeat any Russian drive to disrupt the Japanese peace conference opening tonight.

But none could say just how long it will take to get a peace treaty signed.

President Truman flew in from Washington yesterday with a new warning of possible communist offensives in Korea, Asia and Europe. He will open the conference tonight with a major address at 7:30 p. m. (10:30 p. m. EDT).

The first working session will be held tomorrow morning. Russia's reaction is expected to be quickly disclosed at that time.

The president's latest warning to the country to be on guard and continue massing its defences followed a grim report on the eve of the gathering of 51 delegations at San Francisco's opera house to the anniversary of the Second World War in the Pacific.

"Whether the negotiations in Korea are successful or not," he said, "we must continue to move ahead to build defensive strength for our country and the free world."

However, the remarks were taken to mean that the Ontario Milk Control Board might order the dairies to put into effect a more economical system of deliveries. Another possibility was that the board might allow stores to buy, bottle and sell milk in competition with dairies.

Four Hanged For Complicity In Assassination

Amman, Jordan, Sept. 4 (Reuters) — Four men convicted for complicity in the assassination of King Abdullah of Jordan July 20 were hanged early today at Amman's central prison.

Millionaire's Gala Party In Venice Costs $200,000

Venice, Italy, Sept. 4 (AP) This historic city of the lovers and assassins last night saw its biggest blow-out in half a century. A Mexican mystery millionaire set the scene with a $200,000 party at which guests wore everything from lionskins to shrouds.

Dukes and counts trooped in by regiments, rubbing shoulders with the wealthy of three continents. But many notables failed to appear, among them Don Carlos de Bestegui did not bother to come.

Those who did danced and feasted the night away. But after it was all over, few of them knew much about de Bestegui, except that he is a millions and seems to know how to spend them.

De Bestegui, who gave the lavish "house-warming" to open the palace he has restored on the fabled Grand Canal, is almost unknown in his native Mexico. His father, Miguel de Bestegui, was ambassador to Spain before the Mexican revolution of 1910.

Don Carlos was born in Mexico City, but has spent most of his life in Europe.

He had planned to spend $50,000 for flowers, fireworks, vagans, but wound up laying out closer to $200,000. He bought the palace in 1947 and paid $50,000 and was reported to have spent $250,000 remodeling it and decorating it with a fortune in paintings and tapestries.

He invited 3,000 of Europe's royal and rich. He also posted signs inviting the "lower classes" to drop around and peer in at the festivities.

They dropped around—one of the biggest crowds seen for years. Some drifted off, but more hissed.

Inside, only 800 showed up. One Venice policeman said it was just as well.

"I figure," he said, "if all 3,000 of those invited had showed up, there would be only an each of them to get out of their gondolas—it would take 30 hours just to get them into the party."

Around the rest of the building for close to 1,000 carabinieri and riot-squad police carried machine guns and tear gas and greeted the masses of onlookers.

Carabinieri were lined shoulder to shoulder in rows five deep on the two sides of the palace.

There was no disorder.

De Bestegui, after a look at the crowd, discarded his plan of handing out wine and cakes to the poor.

The only food and drink offered outside were two bottles of wine, some salami and two kinds of dried cod fish. They were placed as prizes atop a

Treasury Chief Blandly Warns Union Workers

Blackpool, England, Sept. 4— (Reuters) — Britain's treasury chief, Hugh Gaitskell, said today there are signs of a fall in world prices and he bluntly warned representatives of wage hungry workers that if they insist on pushing up pay scales there will be further price rises here in 1952.

The chancellor of the exchequer minced no words in addressing the leaders of the 8,000,000 strong British union congress, now in annual convention. The congress is clamoring for higher wages.

"There is a special need for moderation during the next few months," said Gaitskell.

"There are some signs of world inflation falling off. Raw material prices recently fallen quite a bit.

"It's possible—one can't be more definite than that—that externally things will settle down. Yet that hope could easily be set off a new inflationary process.

"The cost of living will go on rising here in 1952, even with stabilization, but we can't go on pushing up our own costs through further substantial rises in wages and salaries."

Gaitskell also warned that British workers expect lean times. Indirect taxation as a means of government financing has just about reached its limit, he said.

This meant there could be no further increases in subsidies to keep down the price of food and other goods, and it meant that home consumption had to be cut.

"The prices of our imports are now about 45 per cent higher than last year . . . The prices of our exports have risen, too, but not nearly as much," he said.

"I do not think this year we shall be able to carry all the extra load. We shall probably have a foreign-trade deficit considerably greater than the amount of stockpiling we do."

Parents Keep Children Home in Protest

Boards of both areas will meet tomorrow to seek a solution.

HURRICANE VEERS FROM JAMAICA, LOSES STRENGTH

Heavy Squalls Forecast For Colonial Capital

Miami, Fla., Sept. 4 (AP) — Jamaica was spared a second heavy blow today as the Caribbean hurricane veered westward and lost strength.

The storm, never fully formed, dropped in force from 100 miles an hour to a wind velocity of 60 miles an hour in heavy squalls.

Jamaica was in the midst of urgent preparations for the blow when word came of a change in course and velocity. Residents of waterfront areas were being evacuated, and the airport damaged in the Aug. 31 storm was closed to traffic.

The death toll in the August storm totalled 150 in Jamaica, most in the vicinity of the capital, Kingston. Jamaica is 100 miles south of Cuba.

Has Plenty of Kick

Grady Norton, chief storm forecaster in the Miami Weather Bureau, warned that the storm still had plenty of kick and might regenerate. It was passing north of Haiti and Cuba in a mild-day, and even at that distance heavy squalls were forecast for the Haitian colonial capital.

A navy hurricane hunter plane from Miami found the storm losing force when it plodded it today. The central eye became elongated and more than 70 miles long, and the heavy winds blew in the northern semi-circle only.

The Caribbean hurricane is the fourth of the season. Besides it is No. 4, it has been labelled "D", or in naval parlance, "Dog".

As hurricane "dog" travelled its menacing course at 20 miles an hour, the storm spread up to far out in the Atlantic, 1,100 miles east of the island of Antigua in the British West Indies.

Hurricane "Dog" has winds a mile high. Their velocity around the centre and winds of hurricane force reaching out 150 miles to the north of the storm's eye and 75 miles to the south. The south report said it was growing in size and intensity.

1,600-Pound Cheese at Fair

London, Ont., Sept. 4 (CP)— One of the largest of Canada's cheese exhibits at a Canadian fair since 1900 will be on display this year at the Western Fair. The enormous cheese weighs 1,500 pounds. It will be mounted on a revolving platform and will be the centre of the large dairy products display.

The cheese was made by the Millbank cheese factory in the North co-operative last June and was purchased by the Oxford Farmers' Co-operative for distribution to stock and has been lent to Western Fair.

Mating of Mexican Fish May Provide Clue to Development of Human Cancer

Northampton, Mass, Sept. 4—(AP)—A harem wedding of some 50 platyfish, seven families had been separated for 300,000 years may provide a clue to how human cancer develops, a New York scientist said Monday.

Dr. Myron Gordon said the fish are of the same species—a kind of "platyfish"—but the grown male brides came from Mexican rivers separated by hundreds of miles. The brides were from the same river.

Some 300,000 years ago, he said, the platyfish were presumably swimming around together—one big happy family.

But by some geological accident, they became distributed among various widely-separated rivers. And, over the centuries, while their species remained the same, the different tribes acquired certain genetic, or hereditary, differences.

Gordon, a geneticist of the New York Zoological Society, told this story to the closing session of the annual meeting of the society for the study and development of growth.

He and some fellow scientists have been studying platyfish from a half-dozen rivers in Mexico and Guatemala.

In them did they find any evidence of a cancer called a "melanoma" which can occur in both fish and man.

But—

When they took a male fish from one Mexican fish and mated him with two females from a river hundreds of miles away, some of the offspring developed abnormal formations which Gordon says are potentially cancerous.

The indications are, he said, that such cancerous formations were normal, they passed on to some of their offspring that inherited two genes—due to the fact that the parents themselves were not cancerous.

"Genes" are tiny cellular particles which carry hereditary traits.

Thus, said the scientist, it is possible that at least some types of human cancer may be brought about in this way.

A child might, by chance, inherit "incompatible" genes from its two normal but genetically different parents. And, if the child has certain sensitive cells in his body the incompatible genes in such cells bring about abnormal growth.

Reds Have 400,000 Men, 1,000 Planes Ready for Drive

17-Day 'Battle of Hills' Won by 3 U.S. Divisions

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 4 (AP)—Guns roared their loudest in months today amid official allied reports that the communists have 400,000 men in the front lines, backed by armor and 1,000 planes, ready for a new offensive.

The allies were attacking.

Three American divisions from the main United Nations assault force—the 25, 2nd and 7th infantry divisions and the 1st marine division—were identified today as the power which has carried allied troops five miles forward in a 17-day "battle of hills" in east central Korea.

In a special announcement, Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, U.N. ground commander, said the "magnificent effort" of the three American divisions and about an equal number of south Korean "seriously" weakened the communist potential to wage an offensive operation in the near future within this sector."

Van Fleet called the ilnited offensive—a limited fighting war.

He said the Allied force, fought approximately 83,000 Chinese and North Koreans.

Van Fleet said the communists had suffered "a medium loss of 10,500 men and 930 prisoners" since armistice talks started July 10.

Prime Minister Calls on Electors To Vote 'Yes'

Melbourne, Sept. 4 (Reuters),— Prime Minister Robert Menzies told Australians today that a referendum on outlawing the communist party is their "one chance to deal with Australia's most dangerous internal foe."

He broadcast a speech opening the campaign for a "yes" vote in the referendum, to be held Sept. 22.

If a majority agrees, the government will change the constitution to provide for dissolution of the communist party and declares declared communists from public service and executive positions in key industries.

The agency said the callers pretend they are working for Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, whose scientific book on sexual habits has been a best seller.

Missionary Says Barilko Plane Heavily Loaded

Kapuskasing, Ont., Sept. 4— (CP)—Six long-range R. C. A. F. searchers from the east coast will range far and wide over the barren shores of James Bay today in the continuing search for Bill Barilko, Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman, and Dr. Henry Hudson, Timmins dentist.

Their crews will keep a sharp lookout for traces of wreckage of the little yellow seaplane in which the men vanished Aug. 26 with on a fat-ranch fishing trip.

One theory is that their plane plunged into James Bay, possibly shortly after taking off from Rupert's House, 240 miles northwest of Timmins or perhaps after being buffeted back over the waters of the bay by 60-mile-an-hour headwinds.

This theory gained credence last night after Rev. A. C. Williams, Anglican missionary at Rupert's House, his wife, and about 35 Indians told of hearing the plane heavily loaded with 60 pounds of fish in each pontoon, struggle to make a difficult takeoff from Rupert's House. They said the plane, with equipment and supplies left behind at the mission to lighten its load, barely managed to get airborne and head southwest across James Bay toward Timmins.

Other Indians reported during the weekend that they recalled hearing a plane come in low over the stunted treetops along the shore and disappear. Some of the Indians from Rupert's House paddled their canoes out for a small-scale search of that district yesterday.

During the early days of the search for Barilko and Dr. Hudson survived a crash or forced landing and were rescued without injury. Only when the weather remained good. Searchers have seen many bears, moose and caribou in the area in which the two disappeared and small game should be plentiful.

New Car Prices Due To go Up Before Oct. 1

Detroit, Sept. 4—(AP)— New car prices are due to go up before Oct. 1, Automotive News says today.

The trade paper notes that all car makers have applied for increases from the office of price stabilization and added: "Most of the big firms are expected to put them in force at once."

The increases sought average about 5 per cent, with some a little more, some application, however, that the full amount of the authorized increase will not be put into effect immediately by the car companies.

It also has been said in some quarters that companies with large field stocks or new cars may wait until the new models have been levelled off before hiking prices.

BELLEVILLE PAIR SECOND IN TOURNEY

After winning the Cobourg men's doubles trophy for two years in succession, Fred Harper and Gordon Watkin of the local bowling club had to be content with second place in the tournament held in Cobourg on Monday. The pair were only beaten one shot for three game high by J. Brownlee and his partner from Lindsay. It is an accomplishment of high order to finish once more in the succession but to be beaten only one shot from winning it in a three game tie is one indeed a rare feat. Fred and Gord were given electric kettles for their efforts.

Dampest August In 18 Years Say Records

The dampest August in the past 18 years passed into history with no regrets, Records for the past 18 years, kept at the Belleville Water Purification Plant on the Trent Road gave this year's month the all-time record for August when 5.95 inches of rain fell on Belleville and district.

Average rainfall for August in that time is 2.65 inches. Compared with this year's deluge, 1935 had a drought when only .46 inches of rain fell. Closest competition in the dampness derby comes from August 1941 and 1943 when slightly more than five inches fell. Last year was above average with 3.40 inches being recorded.

Contrary to what you may have surmised the temperature did not vary greatly this August from the averages set during the past 18 years. The high, low, and mean temperatures were 84, 45, and 66 degrees. The mean temperature is just one degree below the mean for the month last year and two degrees below the 18-year average.

Handicap Proves Too Much For Dog Swim Champ

A 45-second handicap proved a little too much for Denny Rossetti's canine champion "Rook of Arden" at the Canadian National Exhibition dog derby yesterday.

"Rook" who won the title last year, defended his laurels in his class since winning by a scant length over the second placer.

He was handicapped by virtue of his victory in the grand championship class and was barely nosed out in a thrilling finish.

"Rook" strained at his leash awaiting the signal to go in the feature event. He flashed into the water 45 seconds behind the field and rapidly overtook dog after dog.

But the course distance which had been shortened to 300 yards was "too short" for the Belleville champion. He was overtaking the ultimate winners at a rapid rate of speed when it crossed the finish line.

Rossetti received a handsome silver jug and a cheque for $50.

Cherry Valley Resident Killed In Car Accident

Everett Goodmurphy, 46, of R. R. 1 Cherry Valley, 15 miles southwest of Picton, was killed late Monday night when the car in which he was riding went out of control on a curve near his home, rolled down a 15-foot embankment and crashed into a tree.

Two other occupants of the car, Mrs. Cecil Insley, R. R. 1 Cherry Valley, suffered a broken collar bone, and Irvine Trick, 300 Verdun Ave., Oshawa, driver of the car, suffered chest injuries.

The accident occurred about ten-thirty last night on the Cherry Valley road a quarter-mile east of the Salmon Point church. The car went out of control and down the embankment, its top being crushed against the tree.

Provincial Constable Thompson of Picton investigated.

Only One Fatal Accident Mars Holiday in District

Despite exceptionally heavy traffic which streamed both east and west on No. 2 highway over the holiday weekend, there was only one fatal accident in the city of Quinte district, it was reported today by provincial police.

The one fatality occurred at Cherry Valley Monday night when a car ran off the road and struck a tree killing Everett Goodmurphy of Cherry Valley.

Several minor accidents were reported, one at Trenton Saturday night when a man suffered a broken arm in a sideswipe collision. Two others occurred Monday evening with slippery pavement being partly responsible for the crashes.

On the Foxboro highway Macalaren Barragar, R. R. 4 Belleville, attempted to pass a car driven by Everett Stratton, of Shannonville. His bumper caught the other car and the vehicles went into opposite ditches. There were no injuries and only minor damage resulted to the cars.

Near Demorestville an American tourist attempted to pass two cars going in the same direction. As he did so the front car also turned out with result that fenders bumped and Lester MacKinnon of Toronto went into the ditch. He suffered shock and a bumped forehead and was given medical attention.

The American tourist, David E. Lavecloire of Dearborn, Michigan, was unhurt. Provincial Constable Reg Rackham investigated.

News of Trenton

Midgets Trounce Legionnaires Of Kingston 6-5

Trenton—(Special) — Trenton Midgets defeated Kingston Legionnaires 6 to 5 at Bayview last night to edge closer to the Ontario Baseball Association title for Juvenile "A" competition.

It was Bridgeman's boys batting splurge in the second inning that sent starter Ted Reynolds to the showers and provided the necessary runs to clinch the clash. Howie Reid took over on the hill from Reynolds and held the Trenton bombers off the scoresheet for the next seven frames.

In the hitting department the visiting Legionnaires looked stronger but the steady offerings of pitcher Bill Mitts stopped the Kingston sluggers from amassing too many hits in any one inning. In the feature play of the game the strong true arm of left fielder Whyte caught Kingston's Caldwell at the plate after he had stolen third and created the spot for an overthrow. Whyte picked up the loose ball and heaved a one-hop effort straight to catcher Jordon who lurged him across the tying run. The Legionnaires morale seemed broken after this spectacular play in the sixth.

The majority of Trenton players drew hits but only Leroy Wannamaker counted a double for an extra base hit. On the other hand, left fielder L. Caldwell, Kingston, in three trips to the platter pounded out a double and two singles. His team mate first baseman, Bill Vallier hoisted a Mitts' offering out of the park for the only four bagger of the game. Kingston's right fielder Bob Senior in four tries reached Mitts for two singles.

Mitts in throwing the win already out 14, allowed nine hits and hit two batters. Reynolds and Reid combined struck out eight Trenton batters and gave up as many hits.

The second game of the series is scheduled for 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon at Kingston.

The Teams:

Kingston—rf, Senior; 2b, Burnside; c, Arnell; cf, Martin; 3b, Billings; p, Reynolds; p, Reid; lf, Caldwell; 1b, Vallier; ss, Salsbury; sub, Bridgen.

Trenton— ss, Terry; c, Jordan; p, Mitts; 2b, T. Alexander; cf, Wannamaker; 1b, Amodeo; lf, Whyte; rf, Holsey; 3b, D. Alexander.

Council Provides $1,000 to Decorate Streets of Route

Trenton—(Special)— The proposed Royal visit to Trenton and R.C.A.F. Station Trenton on October 5 was the main topic of discussion at a regular meeting of council on Friday night.

The sum of $1,000 was appropriated to provide decorations for the route the Royal couple will travel from the C.N.R. junction at north Trenton to the Air Station and back. Lamp posts will be wrapped in traditional colors while banners will be stretched across the streets at intervals all along the procession pass.

And if the allotment fails to do the job as planned more money will be voted to cover the spending on decorations it was decided.

A report with recommendations submitted by the new town engineer H. L. Riga was tabled and set aside for special attention at a meeting tonight.

Tiny Countess Scarcely Noticed Hubbub Created

Stockholm, Sept. 4 —(AP) — Sweden's tiny Cinderella Countess arrived today, and scarcely anyone but the bridegroom noticed.

Three-year-old Monika Heisler —now she is Countess Monika Bjelke-Petersen—was more interested in trying to grab the cap from a nurse's head than in the reporters, photographers and officials at the railroad station.

The child, born of poor Austrian parents, left her Salzburg home yesterday to become the foster daughter of Count Kurt Johann Oswaldotin, son of Sweden's king.

The count and countess saw her when she attended the Salzburg Music Festival last month, were captivated by her and decided to adopt her.

The girl is one of a group of 19 orphans, deserted children sons and daughters of displaced persons being adopted by Swedish families.

TEACHER REVEALS SECRET

"Blue makes wifie"

"Helping my young Johnny with his homework proved interesting" the other night. He said his teacher had told the class that seven colours combine to make white—and blue is one of them. I've always used Reckitt's Blue in my washing and now I know why. Out of the blue comes the whitest wash, and Reckitt's Blue costs just a few cents a month."

THE MISSING DELEGATES

The Japanese "peace treaty" negotiations beginning today in the San Francisco Opera House are doomed to failure. Never in the history of international relations has such a meeting been called with such certain augurs of disaster as the meeting commencing today, for the fate of this parley lies not with the men who have gathered in San Francisco, but with the men who have stayed away. The whole continent of Asia is absent, with the exception of Russia, who can hardly be expected to contribute much of lasting benefit to a cause which it has denounced and whose purpose it has deliberately set out to thwart. But even the ominous arrival of Andrei Gromyko is less significant than the failure of representatives from India and particularly China to make an appearance.

While it may be argued that since the United States fought the Pacific War almost single-handed and therefore should have the right to negotiate a peace treaty with Japan, it is also important to note that no treaty so arranged is of much practical value when it is not recognized by half the peoples of the world. China, with a population of 500 million and therefore the ranking nation in Asia on size and manpower alone, is not represented by the Nationalist government that fought the Japanese since 1931. China, whose voice should command the first place in any talk of peace with Japan by virtue of her great sacrifices and the duration of her struggle, stands mutely aside while those opposed to Japan on the mainland of the Japanese in Asia. What happens, if at some future date, China, whose just claims against Japan will not have been settled, asks for reparations or demands the right to occupy Japan in the same way as the Allies have occupied Germany? Will China become the position of the nations signing the present treaty with Japan! In the eyes of half of Asia by signing this treaty they are becoming Japan's friend and therefore an enemy of China.

And while Nationalist China's 10 year struggle is discarded, Russia, with a declaration of war on Japan just eight days before the cessation of fighting, musters a powerful delegation to plead her case and advance her own ends in discussion that affects the future of the Far East, and the world.

Russia's aim is not the presentation of a workable design for peace in Asia, but the creation of a powerful weapon of propaganda by which she can appeal to nationalist elements in China to join with the Chinese reds for protection against a rearmed Japan. China will not soon forget her 20 year struggle against Japan and her fear of Japan's return to power cannot be allayed when Nationalist leaders are denied a seat at the "peace" conference. Growing Nationalist resentment on the mainland is making it extremely difficult for the communist administration. What more effective way of subduing resistance and welding a united red China than by appealing to this nationalism to defend China against her traditional enemy? And how better to convince the peoples of Asia that Russia is working for them against the "imperialistic designs of the United States" than by interpreting every honest gesture of friendship and desire for a lasting peace, as a plot to reduce Japan to a position of weakness in the Far East? The very lenience of the treaty terms gives this insidious plot more weight. In the long run blood has always proven thicker than ink. Instead of insuring peace this treaty seems destined to set the stage for further conflict.

The harmony that a distracted world has every right to expect from a "peace treaty" cannot be produced when half the orchestra is missing. The wind instruments currently tuning up in the San Francisco Opera House, while pleasing only to the nationalists are in fact not able to drown out the distant booming of the drums of Asian discontent, that at any moment may sound the call to arms.

OF MICE AND COYOTES
(Vancouver Province)

Last year the farmers of Red Deer declared war on the coyotes. The coyotes were a nuisance and a menace to stock. If the coyotes were wiped out a problem would be solved.

This year the farmers have a greater problem. They killed off so many coyotes that field mice — the coyote's natural prey — are increasing by millions.

Said one farmer: "They should pen up our hens and small stock and let the coyotes run loose. They are by far the lesser of two evils."

By interfering with a simple natural balance between field mice and coyotes the farmers of Red Deer have created a worse problem than the one they tried to cure.

DOCTORS DIE, TOO
(Time Magazine)

Like other men, most doctors need a nurse. When three doctors checked up on their 200 middle-aged (over 40) colleagues at Manhattan's Mount Sinai Hospital, they found that more than half had never had an electrocardiagram, had not had their blood pressure taken for years, and had had their chests examined only in the army or for an insurance company. Of the 200 tested, 94 doctors had heart trouble; 34 were threatened with it. The great majority were overweight; many smoked too much. During the survey, one physician, waiting for his physical exam, died suddenly from a coronary attack.

FAITH AND THE HARVEST

Great faith have they in sun and rain
Who yearly plant their fields with grain,
They prove with their devoted toil
A firm belief in seed and soil.

Men build and shape. With gentle hand
Their skill and genius they reveal,

But still how grain and fruit are grown
Are mysteries known to God alone.

Now comes the harvest! Every sheaf
Is God's reward for men's belief,
And vindicates their trust again
In seed and soil and run and rain.

LABOR DAY

Those of us who are past fifty years of age can remember the time when men often worked ten to twelve hours a day and were lucky if they had only a 6-day week. Much that the left-wing radicals say today about industrial conditions at the turn of the century is true. The working man fifty years ago had a tough time of it. Anyone with a heart in his breast rejoices over the fact that a man can no longer be driven by arbitrary power as he was in those days.

But when the pendulum starts to swing, it swings for a mighty arc. Strikes, lock-outs, "quickie" riots were dreadful realities a few decades ago. On the whole, today's labor conditions are as much better that we should rejoice over the change. But slowly and surely, picked lines, infiltrated of communists, and the stirring up of racial hatred in the interest of subversive groups—these are present-day realities which make the picture none too hopeful.

And always it is a few powerfully fanged-creatures who push the employer and the employee groups which cause trouble. The overwhelming majority of American employers are fair and honest. The same is true of the overwhelming majority of laboring men. The white-working minority in both groups needs to be firmly handed by sober and determined public opinion.

OUR TOWN

BIRD'S-EYE VIEW
MONTREAL

Some notes scribbled on a cigarette box while flying from Vancouver to Montreal:

This is the one way to feel the true sweep and size of Canada. To have it unreeling beneath you, framed in the square of a port-curtained window, a silver wing-tip in the upper right-hand corner.

I have been thinking of the days a year ago when we came across the country by caravan, always so intimate with the landscape, because of the problems it posed around every bend. And wondering if we came so close in those long months to a real discovery of Canada as one may in this single day of flight.

Here, in this box seat, you feel a humility about the beauty and the sheer size of your country.

You fly out, climbing above the Pacific, corrugated, moving lazy as a sleeping dragon. Then you head eastward at great height with the mountains ahead and evergreen forest as thick as it seems poured like a dark lava over the hills. Then over the Rockies, the jagged spine of the continent, seen through fleece cloud-below. And abruptly the vast, tilled plains stretching to the horizon, with the high-domed night of stars with an orange moon reflecting in the lakes as Columbia bush. He has an alligator bag containing something mysterious and important.

At the short delay in Toronto he will complain of poor service.

Another thousand feet. A house fly in the stewardess' neat pantry and, watching him buzz about, I remember the Chinese fable that took him where no fly had ever been before.

Seeing Canada from ground level you are constantly aware of the individual differences resulting from the air you find in communities, activity—and everywhere the impression that these men make on the earth in sharing it and working it.

As far as you can see there are the squared dissected fields in rigid formation, stitched with plows and furrows, everything in its east-straight lines, preserved, pacified with a passion for neatness, the broad road running from west to east, the thousand country roads running north and south.

And at night you come upon and know behind them small towns, lonely splashes of glare in the blackness, themselves monuments to a sense of order and planning.

Once Past Your Middle 20's You Start into Slow Decline Both Mentally and Physically

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

London, Sept. 4 — (AP) — If your's past your middle 20s, you've probably started to go into a slow decline, both physically and mentally.

So at least, says psychologist A. T. Welford. But, he adds, even so, your work may be better than when you were younger, and you may be more important than speed.

Welford and a team of eight other scientists are tackling the job of saving Britain's oldsters from industrial scrap-heap. They started their research in 1948, and every year it grows more clear that industrial workers above age of this country has been steadily mounting.

The Nuffield Foundation, a charitable organization devoted to the care and comfort of old people, financed Welford's research project to determine with scientific precision just how growing old affects a worker's skill.

Welford and his assistants developed a battery of apparatus to test the muscular and mental prowess of hundreds of Britons of all age groups in laboratories attached to Cambridge University.

Most of the preliminary results, published by Welford as a treatise called "skill and age", consist of facts and figures showing how age modifies efficiency at tasks ranging from judging the position of a moving pointer to the ability to react at a target.

Some of the data they disclose only concerns a factory owner with a special kind of job he wants filled. Some is important when factors have already established, says Welford, that the human body, regarded merely as a machine or mechanism, undergoes a "process of gradual deterioration" from young adulthood onwards.

But the graphs indicate that the central mechanism of the brain does not deteriorate with age. Its job early in life—before the 30s in most cases.

The scientist, Welford says, is that the central mechanism of the brain finds it harder and harder to get grows older to sort out incoming "messages" from the senses, to coordinate and "organize" them so that action can be taken. It is only noval "messages"—those dealing with some fresh situation—that the aging brain balks at, he says, and there is no falling off in efficiency when dealing with familiar problems.

TODAY'S TALK

GETTING USED TO PEOPLE

We miss a great deal out of the experience of life by not opening up ourselves to people whom we may not exactly like, or because of some traits that they may have that we dislike, and therefore never reach deep enough into their personality to commend them to us as friends. There are some people in this world of ours, we are prone to say to! And when we do, how deeply we realize how much we have missed in royal companionship.

As human beings we have universal traits and characteristics, but we all have our weaknesses, and personal characteristics that do not appeal to others. But if we try to pick out the good traits of people, and get used to overlooking those that do not attract us, we can get along happily with most anyone! It's getting used to people that counts.

The late Walt Mason, prose rhymer, once wrote a poem about a man "with a misfit face" that he described in the most laughable manner. He was so unattractive that when people looked upon him, they stopped and yelled! But when they learned of his gentle kindnesses, his wholesome nature, and his habit of always speaking well of people, and from his lips came no mean or bitter sayings, they with one accord, said of him, "He is a handsome man!"

The reason for so many hopeless and marriages, that at first did not promise to turn out so well, is that people failed to really get used to each other, mentally and spiritually, and to work out a useful and satisfactory life. It all takes a good measure of patience, seasoned with love and consideration, plus a great deal of overlooking!

We can get used to living with ourselves, if we try not to scatter our influence, leaving fragments of ourselves in our friends and associates. What a vacuum to create in others! Get used to living with yourself, and you will be getting used to people that count.

THE PACKSACK
By GREGORY CLARK

One of the greatest charms of the Old Country is its children. In the country I have ever been in are the small children so genuinely attractive that you hardly ever see one you are not tempted to grab up and sort on your knee. You can't be a psychological reason that accounts for their beauty, because you will everywhere see the weirdest looking parents with perfectly lovely youngsters two to four or five years old. The parents don't seem built be as ugly as to be the most misshapen, with beaks for noses, or bulbs; or with that look of the Old Country: but their children are possessed of a bewitching beauty.

Could it be the climate? One thing is certain: the Old Country people appreciate the beauty and charm of their children; for in no country in the world are such preparations made for the comfort, security and happiness of children. London's great parks are full of country legend of social planning. How a great and wealthy city could cope while resisting every temptation to use these priceless central spaces for other purposes should be a lesson to the whole world. And this was all planned many long years ago. Wherever you go in London there are small parks and squares with playgrounds where the children are at play.

It is not only in London but in practically every Old Country community from the smallest village to the parks abound. Besides the parks, no country has more infant amusements, travelling caravans of circuses and shows, tent shows, herrow of riding ponies, donkey rides. The British make a cult of childhood. And for my money, it is little wonder

THINGS I CAN'T UNDERSTAND

Haven't had a mandolin in my hands since Tony was a pup nor chinned a fiddle since the old governor, but just the same I'm confident I could render Pan-American — either with the characteristic syncopation achieved by Herbert's own orchestra at the Pan-American Exposition and by no musical organization that has had a go at the piece since.

But thrumm' g a mandolin or scraping away on the violin is a simple sort of art compared with the feat of playing piano by ear or note and simultaneously carrying on an intelligible conversation or giving one's attention to anything at all aside from the music. This I'll never be able to understand. Indeed it bewilders me to see any one play not only the tune or melody but simultaneously the accompaniment with the other hand, whether on the piano, accordion or organ. In fact the more I think of it the more I am dropped on the head when I was a child—the brain broke and let me fall when I was stealing birds' eggs—and have been dead ever since. Call it a curse or a penalty, perhaps, for the sin of hurting or killing for sport or amusement, but that's the way I see it today. My parents were better than the average, but I cannot recall that they ever scrupled with us about the wickedness of killing birds for fun.

Another incident has similar import. A Chief Scout boy summoned all the kids to his back yard one summer evening. He had a shanty there and a newly dug post hole. Well, I'm not sure that I ever got into the animal out of the hole with a pitchfork, pointed kerosene tin enough of the fiendish fluid that we were punished, as I recall, not for being so fiendishly cruel but for bringing the distasteful scent home.

I went hunting, or rather a friend did and took me along for the outing. He had a ferret. He would put the ferret in a hole, stand a few yards off with a shotgun ready, and when the rabbit came out of the hole, Bang! That was sport. It sickened me and I never went hunting again. To my squeamish mind the very thought of so called sportsmen or, worse, sportswomen, using automatic weapons and by no musical organization that has had a go at the piece since.

COLLAPSED IN HEAT

Elkhart, Ind., Sept. 1 — (AP)— Frank Eagen, Jr., 51, collapsed here yesterday in 85-degree heat. And small wonder. He had been working in the cooler at The Hygrade packing plant here where the temperature was 38. The 47-degree difference in temperature caught up with him when he took his dog to a veterinarian's office.

Fifty Fatalities Across Canada Over Holiday

(By The Canadian Press)

With thousands of resort-bound motorists clogging highways out of cities and town for the Labor Day weekend, 28 persons out of 30 who died violently in Canada during the weekend died in street and highway mishaps.

A Canadian Press compilation early this morning showed that 18 persons died in Ontario in traffic mishaps from Friday midnight to Monday midnight, as compared with 21 last year.

Although cool weather kept most swimmers out of the water, four drownings were reported from Ontario, two from Quebec and two from British Columbia.

Tractor accidents took the lives of four persons; two died in fires. One man died of bullet wounds in the stomach and police arrested his brother in connection with the slaying. Seven persons died in a variety of mishaps.

Ontario reported 26 fatalities, Quebec 11, British Columbia seven and Saskatchewan three. One each was reported from New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Manitoba.

In 1950, the Labor Day weekend death toll was 68 and in 1949, 48.

Canadian Soldier Given 18 Months

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 4 (CP) — A Canadian court-martial Monday sentenced Pte. Alan Roy Montgomery of Vancouver to 18 months imprisonment on charges of attempted rape and being in an affray. Davis pleaded innocent to the charges.

Davis was accused of being one of a group of Canadian and British soldiers who visited a Korean farmhouse in the village of Chung Woon March 17. Three South Koreans were killed when a hand grenade exploded in the farmhouse.

The prosecution had charged that two Korean women were victims of rape attempts in the farmhouse.

Davis, 34, was the third man of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Regiment to go on trial before a Canadian court martial.

Pte. Glen Roland Blank, 27, of Winnipeg, was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to life in prison.

Pte. Donald Michael Gibson, 21, of Ottawa, was convicted of attempted rape and being in an affray. He was sentenced to two years less one day in prison.

TRAILER ON FIRE

Orillia, Sept. 4 — (CP) — Two American girls yesterday waved back to pedestrians and motorists who waved and shouted to them as they drove along No. 11 highway. They thought it was just friendliness until Police Constable Ken McCutcheon waved them to the side of the road then they discovered their trailer was on fire.

Driver Injured In Sideswipe Near Camnifton

Raymond Lessard, of Flinton and Wellington, suffered a lacerated and broken arm Saturday evening when the car which he was driving on Camnifton Road near Camnifton was in sideswipe collision with another vehicle. He was taken to Belleville General Hospital in Bush's Ambulance where he was attended by Dr. Victor E. Thompson.

The accident occurred on a curve at the south end of Camnifton when the northbound Lessard auto was in collision with a southbound auto driven by William H. Lucas of Hillcrest. After the collision the Lessard auto went 150 feet and broke off a hydro pole, ripped out some fence posts and knocked over a mailbox. Both cars were badly damaged. Provincial Constable Arthur Watson investigated.

Morley Durnford, Police Chief Gananoque, Dies

Gananoque, Ont., Sept. 4 (CP) —Morley Durnford, 48, police chief in this St. Lawrence River town for just over a year, died at his home here Sunday.

Mr. Durnford was a veteran of 24 years service with the Ontario Provincial Police, having served with various detachments throughout Ontario. His last assignment was with the Essex County detachment in Windsor, Ont., from which he retired as sergeant.

He is survived by his widow, the former Cathleen Langton of Gananoque and a daughter Charlotte, 8.

Chief Durnford was stationed at Picton for some time as member of the OPP.

FIVE NARROWLY ESCAPE

Kingston, Sept. 4 (CP)—Five Toronto persons narrowly escaped severe injury when the car in which they were riding left the road, struck a low bank, flipped end over end landed upright 41 feet away. The accident occurred Sunday night on highway 15 eight miles north of here.

Admitted to hospital with a separated shoulder was the driver, Marie Crane. Four passengers were treated for minor injuries but were not admitted: Mr. and Mrs. William Templeman and daughter, Norma, and Geanette Jefferson.

CAMPBELLFORD

Car Damaged As Auto and Bull Meet First Time

Campbellford—A rather new auto and a rather old bull met for the first time on a roadway north of the village of Marmora recently, and the car came off second best.

Wesley Sweet, Campbellford auto dealer, drove a 1950 model car to Marmora to show the vehicle to a prospective buyer. The people liked the car and Mr. Sweet took them on a demonstration drive. While driving along the road north of Marmora Mr. Sweet stopped the car. He heard a dog barking in a farmyard nearby, drowned out occasionally by the snorting of a large bull. Suddenly the bull came charging through a field, through a fence, across the ditch, onto the highway and careened headfirst into the shiny new car. The bull seemingly not content with the job of partial destruction he has accomplished, stepped back, surveyed the damage and charged headlong again. This time he appeared quite satisfied and after giving a few snorts, ambled away in search of—whatever bulls amble away in search of.

Mr. Sweet and his customers could hardly speak after the sudden onslaught by the bull, but after regaining their composure they surveyed the damage.

Extensive Damage

The car suffered extensive damage to the fenders, lights, bumper grill and hood, estimated at $250. The bull received only a few scrathes. Needless to say, the prospective buyers did not want the car in that condition, so Mr. Sweet lost the sale. The car couldn't be moved under its own power and had to be hoisted up and towed back to Campbellford. The farmer who owned the bull says he will pay for the damage to the car.

TWO INJURED

Bowmanville, Ont., Sept. 4 (CP) — Two Cornwall residents were severely injured Sunday when their car went out of control and rolled over four or five times two miles east of Newcastle. Driver of the car, John Yencik, suffered head injuries and shock. A passenger, Mrs. Aurore Burrell, received body lacerations and a broken collarbone. The car was a total wreck.

Boy Falls Into Mechanism Of Combine

Campbellford — Twelve-year-old Howard McCann suffered painful injuries to his right leg shortly after noon on Friday, when he fell into the mechanism of a combine on his father's farm near Codrington.

Howard was standing on a door on the upper part of the combine, filling bags with clover seed as the grain left the combine. Suddenly, he dropped downward into the working parts of the machine. He managed to save himself from falling all the way into the hole, and with the aid of his father, pulled his right leg out of the mechanism. He was rushed to Campbellford hospital, where Dr. W. W. Baker examined the boy, but luckily found no broken bones, although the leg was badly lacerated and bruised. After treatment, he was allowed to go home.

If he had fallen into the hole with both legs, the lad might easily have lost both feet, according to his father who operates the combine.

$300 Cash Taken From Locker Box

Madoc (Special) — Smashing a window to gain entrance to the building, thieves Saturday night stole approximately $300 in cash from the Madoc Frigid Lockers on the north side of the village.

In making his rounds early Sunday morning Chief of Police Rankin saw two men in the vicinity of the lockers but his suspicions were not aroused until some time later he checked the premises and found the building had been broken into.

Storage operator Joseph Miles did not keep cash in a safe but in a cash box. The thieves are believed to have learned where the cash box was hidden and broke in to steal it.

NO LONGER FIT

Vancouver, Sept. 4 (CP) — Fifteen Canadian soldiers arrived in Vancouver Monday from Korea, aboard a Canadian Pacific Airlines plane.

Army officials said some members of the group were no longer medically fit for duty in the war zone and that others had returned to Canada for officer training. None was returning home on the rotation leave scheme.

WEDDINGS

WORKMAN—SEMPLE

In Hart House Chapel, Toronto, Rev. Dr. J. Semple solemnized the marriage of his daughter, Margaret Eleanor, to Mr. William Byron Workman, of Kitchener, formerly of North Bay. The bride is the daughter of Rev. Dr. Semple and Mrs. Semple, formerly of this city, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Workman, North Bay, and the late Mr. Workman.

Mr. W. W. Semple gave his sister in marriage. She wore a gown of pastel blue lily-of-the-valley net, fashioned with a low square neckline outlined by a collar of lace, lace bodice, and full skirt of lace to the peplum, with net ruched below and falling in a large circular train. A halo of net held her fingertip veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of gardenias with white gladioli beads and stephanotis.

Mrs. O. W. F. Parsons, of Toronto, who was her sister's only attendant, wore a gown of summer yellow nylon marquisette over taffeta, designed with strapless basque bodice topped by shrug sleeves, and full gathered skirt. Her headdress was of matching net in Mary Queen of Scots fashion and she carried a Colonial nosegay of cornflowers and yellow and white daisies.

Mr. Clare Workman, of Kitchener, was groomsman for his brother.

The reception was at 44 Russell Hill Road. Mr. and Mrs. Workman will live in Kitchener.

TRACY—MADDEN

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday, September 1, at three p.m., in Delaware United Church, when Evelyn Audrey Madden, formerly of the Albert College office staff, Belleville, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. F. W. Madden, of Delaware, Ont., became the bride of John Douglas Tracy, of Little Current, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Tracy. The bride's father officiated.

The wedding music was provided by Dr. R. D. Atkinson, cousin of the bride, and the soloist, the Rev. Ernest Madden, brother of the bride.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. N. F. Wightman, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white Chantilly lace and net, in tone of nylon net, fashioned with Peter Pan collar and long sleeves ending in points over the wrists. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a beaded tiara headdress, and she carried a shower bouquet of white gardenias and English ivy.

Miss Betty Tracy, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Miss Joan Walker, cousin of the bride, and Miss Mary Tracy, sister of the bridegroom, were bridesmaids. The maid of honor was gowned in pale blue brocaded satin with matching gloves and headdress and the bridesmaids in mauve gowns of similar design. All carried round bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums tied with rainbow hued streamers.

Mr. Elgin Bock, cousin of the bridegroom, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. Cliff Madden, brother of the bride, and Mr. Kenneth Lane.

The reception was held at the church parlors, where the bride's mother, wearing fuchsia crepe with corsage of white pompom chrysanthemums, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in navy with corsage of red roses.

For the wedding trip to the New England States and Eastern Ontario, the bride chose a grey tailored suit with burgundy accessories and corsage of deep red roses. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Tracy will reside in Little Current, Ontario.

Children's Toys Feature Crafts at Toronto 'Ex'

Toronto. (CP)—Many of the most pleasing prize-winning articles in the Canadian National Exhibition's needlework and handicraft competitions this year are aimed at children.

Toys, nursery furnishings and articles of clothing for the youngsters are prize-winners. One circus quilt has elephants, camel, giraffe, hareback riding girl and a monkey-driven lion's cage drawn by a red horse, all worked into the design.

Another child's quilt is worked in appliqued and embroidered Chinchilla. It is done in squares with a story in each—a penquin fishing through the ice, two pink bears eating honey, a chicken in a flowered bonnet and others.

Among the dolls are some colorful figures. One is a little darky girl dressed in white dotted swiss, her woollen pigtails tied with red ribbons. There's a picturesque knitted Mexican troubador complete with banjo and sombrero astride a shaggy burro.

A long-legged rag dandy and his flaxen-haired sweetheart are another colorful pair. A prize-winner from the Prince Albert, Sask., sanatorium is a papoose doll dressed in a miniature Indian costume of fringed and beaded leather, complete with hat, jackes, skirt and tiny beaded moccasins.

Fine Rugs

In the rug class, from Ottawa comes a French-Canadian scene inspired by the Gatineau Hills. It shows a winter farmyard with bare branches of trees outlined against distant blue hills and the family emerging from their front door with a waiting sleigh.

One attractive hooked rug shows a pattern of clusters of iris in shades of blue, mauve and coppery brown, on a background of cream and green.

Among junior winners special honors were awarded 16-year-old Tricia Stewart of Toronto, whose 10 entries of needlework and knitted garments all carried off prizes.

Canned meat is no longer a crime.

Housekeepers no longer regard it as a sign of incompetence or laziness to keep on the pantry shelves such standbys as canned ham, jars of chicken or corned beef hash.

Such items have their greatest usefulness in recipes that call for cooked or leftover meats. It would be ridiculous, for instance, to simmer corned beef 4 or 5 hours when merely 1 cup of cooked ground corned beef is needed in a recipe.

And dumping the canned meat onto the serving plate is not enough. A little creative skill is required to use these products in croquettes, hashes, casseroles and similar dishes.

In today's recipe canned corned beef is used to make stuffed cabbages. For rolling the cabbage around the meat mixture try the Chinese cabbage. The long leaves are more pliable and more easily handled than the usual round cabbage. Rice is mixed with the meat for lightness.

Soy sauce is one of the flavoring ingredients. Since the soy sauce and corned beef both contains salt, care should be taken not to overseason the meat mixture.

Stuffed Chinese Cabbage
Serves 6.

1 head Chinese cabbage, medium size
2 tablespoons finely chopped green pepper
1-4 cup finely chopped onion
1 cup chopped canned corned beef
1-3 cup cooked rice
1-4 cup bread crumbs
No. 2 1-2 cans tomatoes
1-4 cup chili sauce
1-2 teaspoon soy sauce
Salt—pepper.

Remove 12 leaves of the Chinese cabbage. Put the leaves in boiling water; 1 to 2 minutes or until the leaves bend easily. Balance of Chinese cabbage may be used for salad.

In a large mixing bowl combine the green pepper, onion, corned beef, rice, bread crumbs, 1-2 cup juice drained from the canned tomatoes and the soy sauce. Add salt and pepper to taste. Divide the mixture into four parts.

Put each part on the Chinese cabbage, allowing 2 leaves to each roll. Roll up the cabbage leaves covering the meat mixture on all sides. Fasten each roll with toothpicks. Put the rolls in a shallow baking pan.

Chop the tomatoes fine. Mix the tomatoes together with the balance of their juice and the chili sauce. Pour the tomato mixture over the cabbage rolls. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake in a moderate oven 350 degrees 1 hour. Spoon the tomato mixture over the cabbage rolls on the serving plates.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Picking a wife by the color of her hair

Here's a young man who comes right out and says he's hunting a wife. Wait a minute there, girls, before you start writing in this his address. Maybe haven't got the color hair that will appeal to him.

At the moment, he's eyeing both a redhead and a brunette with equal interest—but he thinks he might be persuaded to look over some other type. Not gray, though, I imagine; he's only 25.

The brunette, he says, "seems to be very nice, but she doesn't show much interest in me. Or maybe she's just playing hard to get. Anyhow, she doesn't let me take her out very often. I see a lot of the redhead, but she's inclined to be a little domineering and kind of gets on my nerves sometimes.

"What do you think I ought to do? Take the redhead, who is easy picking, or pursue the brunette? I'm kind of bashful about asking her for another date because the last time I took her out, I didn't seem to make much progress with her."

Now in the course of a long married life, most men spend a relatively small part of each day just staring at their wife's hair. Most of their time goes into talking with her, eating her cooking, helping her bring up the children, earning her bread and butter, and having fun going places with her and making plans for the future with her. Or else a man finds nothing at all to talk with his wife about, and her cooking gives him ulcers, and she screams at him and the children, and he finally gets good and sick of his redhead or brunette and goes out and hunts up a blonde.

Maybe we ought to tell this young man that any girl who domineers over a man when he's no more than a casual acquaintance would henpeck a husband within an inch of his miserable life whether her hair were red, black or bleached. And that if she's the right girl for him right now she's very likely to carry that trait right over into marriage and no doubt be equally receptive to any other mate who happens to strike her flaming fancies.

Seems a bit odd, too, doesn't it, that a chap with 25-year-old wits about him doesn't seem to accept that sort of girl and pass up the one who "seems very nice" but who obviously has ideas and standards of her own? And by the way, what does he mean by which he "did not make much progress." What kind of progress did he expect to make, anyhow?

I get the impression that his real objection in the brunette is that cultivating her might involve a little more genuine effort on his part than he feels life's worthwhile to spend on a girl. He'd rather shoot at the easy mark; pick the apple that's overripe and ready to fall into his lap anyway than exert himself to climb high enough to reach a sounder one.

Or is it that the bashfulness of which he speaks makes him feel competent to deal with a girl who'll go considerably more than halfway to meet him, but puts him at a disadvantage with one who demands a little more initiative from him? If that's the case, he'd better begin doing a little work on himself to build up his ability to handle himself. Because of course, there isn't anyone who doesn't overforce his natural shyness sufficiently to go about his business with poise and self-confidence if he cares enough to do the necessary spadework.

So make up your mind, brother. Do you want the thing—or the girl—that's "easy picking"—and that probably isn't worth the picking, no matter how easy? Or do you want something out of life—a wife—included—that's going to make you happy and give you solid satisfaction for the rest of the live, even though you've got to go to a heap of trouble to get it—or bar?

The August meeting of the Canniffon and Corbyville Women's Institute was held in Canniffon town hall with 28 members and three visitors present. The president, Mrs. C. Matthews, presided.

A short business session followed during which thanks were extended to Mrs. Eves and Mrs. Bleeckman for the great help they had given in making the picnic a success. Also to Mrs. D. Windsor for taking over the secretarial duties so efficiently during the absence of Mrs. R. Putting, who is now home. A letter of thanks was read from Mrs. J. Pound.

Reports of standing committees were as follows: Ann Soble, current events; Ruby Post, home economics and health, reading a recipe for relish.

The program was in charge of Mrs. D. Latchford. The motto, "A thing done right today, means less to do tomorrow".

Mrs. C. Ellsworth read a paper entitled "Do It Now". Mrs. R. Bleeckman and Mrs. D. Latchford gave interesting readings telling of what the district was like in the year 1876.

Miss Meribeth Holgate gave a piano solo. Miss Holgate demonstrated the making of paper daffodils which was interesting.

Two contests followed, one being "name the country" contest. Mrs. Ann Soble was the winner.

Sees Big Field For Puppet Show With Television

Regina, (CP)—Shirley Fraser is an attractive young Regina girl who thinks puppets will be a big thing in Canada some day.

Dolls on strings may sound like child's play to some people, but Miss Fraser is hopeful that the United States and may be in Canada if television becomes established here.

Miss Fraser made her first puppet when she was in Grade 10. Two years ago she joined a marionette group in Regina to take up puppetry in earnest.

Since then she has learned that puppetry can be important medically as well as provide entertainment.

At workshop meetings in Regina she learned how to put puppets together, from moulding the head to the final stringing process.

When she created her first doll —"Gimlit the Jester"— she found it so fascinating that she kept on making puppets and now has 13 doll personalities.

Besides making dolls, Miss Fraser wrote a play for them which she hopes to produce this fall, designed costumes for them and with her father's help built a complete miniature stage.

"So, you see," she says, "you can experiment with all phases of theatre, including scenery and lighting as well as acting, in a capsule form."

Popular in U.S.

Miss Fraser and her sister recently took a short course in puppetry at the University of Minnesota.

"It was a wonderful experience," she says. "Puppetry is more exploited in the U.S. than it is here, especially on television."

A new innovation in puppetry is the "Night Club Puppet", much larger than usual size, with the operator as part of the act. One act had a puppet five star coupled with the operator to form a dance team.

Miss Fraser said puppets are widely used in elementary schools and with the mentally ill.

"Sometimes a member of that person will expose the core of his trouble by unconsciously acting with the puppet," she said.

"In all cases it seems to relieve the emotional tension."

Although Canadians aren't as marionette-conscious as Americans, Miss Fraser said she believes interest is spreading rapidly.

Miss Fraser said she feels that once television in Canada is established, the field for puppetry will be unlimited.

More Than 600 Killed in U.S. Over Labor Day

Chicago, Sept. 4— (CP)— A staggering death toll of more than 600 from violent accidents marks the United States observance of the Labor Day weekend.

Fatalities on the highways, in the air and in the water hit an all time high for the holiday.

Deaths in traffic accidents soared to a record high for Labor Day.

A survey from 6 p.m. Friday to midnight Monday showed:

637 accidental deaths, compared with the 550 over the 1950 Labor Day weekend, the previous high.

447 traffic fatalities compared with the old record high of 410 in 1949.

97 persons drowned, including 37 on a capsized fishing boat Pelican off the eastern tip of Long Island.

93 persons lost their lives in accidents of a miscellaneous nature, including plane crashes, fires, falls, etc.

The country's highways were jammed with millions of cars in the last long holiday of the summer season. Fatal mishaps were reported in nearly every state.

The National Safety Council had estimated the traffic death toll would reach 390. But the council, noting the heavy toll during the first two days, revised its estimate yesterday to "more than 500" deaths.

The council's figures show an average of 295 persons have been killed in traffic accidents every 78 hours in 1951. However, the council said, the figures include those who died weeks and months after being injured and were not strictly comparable with the immediate holiday toll.

ALL FOUR SURRENDER

New Castle, Del., Sept. 4 (AP) —Four convicts, all serving long terms for major crimes, yesterday made their second unsuccessful attempt within three months to break out of the New Castle county workhouse. All four surrendered to prison officials after being subdued by tear gas. Warden Elwood Wilson said they had hacksawed their way out of the isolation section of the workhouse. The men were put in the section after they tried to escape in July.

Iran Makes Bid For New Talks With Britain

Tehran, Sept. 4 (Reuters) — Hussein Fatemi, prime minister Mohammad Mossadeq's assistant today made a bid for new talks with Britain over the fate of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Meanwhile, an Iranian official said the Iranian government has approved in principle the sale of oil to Russian-bloc countries.

Fatemi said Iran will try to reopen talks with Britain "by reinterpreting the Iranian proposals" already made in connection with nationalization of the British-owned company.

The original proposals were rejected by Britain.

Fatemi told correspondents Mossadegh will discuss the "reinterpretation" proposals with the Senate Saturday and present them to an operation of the Majlis (Parliament) Sunday.

A note recapitulating the points would be submitted to Britain and "if the British have goodwill we are sure they will not reject this last minute effort and conversations will be reopened."

Britain, during fruitless talks aimed at retaining some measure of British control in the nationalized company, already had rejected Iranian proposals.

Under them Iran offered to sell Britain all the oil it needed, and to discuss the question of compensation for assets of the company and arrangements under which the British staff would continue to work in Iran.

The Iranians turned down British proposals for operating the company under some form of British management.

Editors Propose Banning Of News Agency

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 4 (AP) — Alexander F. Jones, president of the American Society of Newspaper editors, proposed yesterday that Congress ban representatives of Tass, the Russian news agency, from the Press galleries. He also urged that they be sent back to Russia.

Jones, executive editor of the Syracuse, N. Y., Herald Journal, wants Congress to take this action in retaliation for the jailing of Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis in communist Czechoslovakia.

Rabbits on some western farms are leading frustrated lives these days. The succulent bark of their favorite fruit trees has been wrapped in aluminum foil, so now they can't get at it.

This was a new one on us. We had heard of dozens of uses for the foil we roll at Kingston, Ont., but never for frustrating rabbits. However, it just goes to illustrate why more people are using more aluminum and why we, as the most efficient producer of this modern metal, must go on expanding. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. REDS HAVE

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters in Tokyo said the reds were in position to launch a new offensive.

But Van Fleet said he doubted the reds would attack, unless goaded by political reasons.

The most savage fighting since April raged over the eastern ridges today.

Allied troops were locked in a continuing battle with 83,000 Chinese and north Koreans for control of ridges and mountains.

The U. S. eighth army was punching hard in east Korea's wild, mountain country, edging nearly five miles northward in a main line which already extended up to 35 miles north of the 38th parallel.

Reds Thrown Back

Red fighter-bombers Monday dealt six hit-run bombing and strafing attacks on allied ground forces. Aground the reds hurled 15 successive counter-attacks against one ridge in efforts to stall the U.N. push. They were thrown back.

Indicative of the bitterness of the fighting—heaviest since the abortive red offensives of April and May—was one action north of Yanggu. That allied-held town is eight miles north of parallel 38 and about 20 miles inland from the coast.

At 2.30 a.m. Monday the reds stormed up a slope won two days before by the allies. The reds were stopped after a seven-hour engagement.

At 11 a.m., the reds hurled a new attack. This also failed. But it lasted all Monday afternoon.

A red regiment, about 3,000 men, resumed the assault at sundown. That fight lasted until 8.15 p.m., then it slackened. But at 10.30 p.m. the Reds struck again and finally forced the allies off the ridge.

The allies regrouped and surged back: By midnight, they were back within 350 yards of the top.

"The distributors can do the job themselves, by setting out to give real leadership. Otherwise, they have no one to blame but themselves."

Two Things Plain

"Two things are plain. The people want a cash-and-carry system and modern and up-to-date methods of merchandising. These they are not getting."

The Toronto area's milk price troubles started last Spring. The Ontario Milk Control Board, given power over consumer prices in March, tried unsuccessfully to avert a milk drivers' strike by raising the delivered milk price to 20½ from 20 cents, but leaving the price in stores at 20 cents.

After studying financial statements of Toronto area dairies, the board announced July 11 that the delivered price would become 21 cents immediately and the cash-and-carry price 19 cents Sept. 1. The price paid the producer would be increased to $4.55 a hundredweight from $4.30 also Sept. 1.

Probably Restricted Delivery

A restricted delivery plan was suggested as the way to bring about economies that would make the 19-cent store price possible. There or four deliveries a week were proposed in place of the present six.

Then the board postponed indefinitely its order for 19-cent store milk when it saw the restricted delivery plan could not come about immediately.

The next development was an announcement by the Toronto Milk Distributors' Association that it will challenge in the courts the board's increase of the $4.55 price to the producers. Dairy spokesmen claim that if dairies pay the price set by the board, the retail price will be forced to 22 cents a quart.

Body of Author Louis Adamic Found in Home

Flemington, N.J., Sept. 4—(AP)—Police said the body of author Louis Adamic was found this morning in his burned farm house at Milford, N.J., with a shotgun in his lap.

Five officials said a barn and the house at Adamic's farm had been set on fire with kerosene-soaked rags. Milford is 10 miles west of here.

Officials said the body was lying in an upstairs bedroom that wasn't touched by the fire.

Adamic, a native of Yugoslavia, wrote several books about the problems of the foreign born in the United States.

Another well-known book was "Dinner at the White House," which described an evening with Franklin D. Roosevelt. Among the guests at the White House was Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime Prime Minister who later sued Adamic for libel.

Labor Minister Says Price Rise Can be Stopped

Toronto Sept. 4. (CP)—Labor Minister Gregg says Canadians can help keep prices from rising further by cutting down non-essential buying, and by exercising restraint, rather than by looking to the federal government to impose price controls.

He said yesterday that merchants can help, too, by using restraint in pricing their goods. And workers could do their part by increasing production of goods.

In an address to a Labor Day luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition, he said he knew some sections of labor demanded price and material controls. He said: It clear the government is reluctant to clamp on controls, but he suggested there might be no alternative to them.

Mr. Gregg, in a speech that constituted his customary Labor Day message to Canadian workers, said:

"As producers, too many of us are not working at peak efficiency. Shorter working hours with more time for leisure are a wonderful and progressive trend. But shorter hours should mean automatically greater efficiency and more production per hour worked. Too often this has not been the case. We, management and workers, are equally responsible for greater production."

Unite Against Communism

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in an address at the luncheon and a later address at a rally, urged capital and labor to unite in opposition to communism.

"It is the duty of all of us, no matter what our position in this society, to join in the defence of our system," he said. "If we fail, all will be lost. The forces of destruction are impartial and never partisan.

"Our survival depends on our subordination of our partisan aims. And if we can't face that crisis now, when will we ever be able later to do so?"

"The force of American labor, that of Canada and the United States, is alone the force that can win against communism. The force of trade unionism is the only stabilizing factor in this world today."

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a Saturday walk with pop, and a man in front of us with 2 packages slid on something slippery and lost his balents and couldn't of come any closer to sitting down backwards without actually doing it, and both his packages went up in the air and he caught one again but missed the other one.

Being a fat man making it even funnier, and I laffed like anything, and pop said, Only the natives of the jungles and the inhabitants of the funny papers laff at the finical mishaps of their fellow creatures. Is there anything funny about a man coming within a hare's breath of seriously injuring himself? he said.

No sir, but there's something funny about a man looking as if he's giving an imitation of a balley dancer and a juggler on the same time, especially a fat man, I said, and pop said, I admit the incident had its amusing aspects when viewed in that lite, but still the man mite of hert himself.

Sure, pop, but he didn't, and meanwhile I had a good laff, and nothing is more fun than laffing, I said, and pop said, I'd be the last to deny that, but wouldn't it of been possible to wait and see if he had hert himself before you broke out in sutch a harty guffaw?

Is that what you do, pop? I said, and pop said, Well naturelly.

Well then why didn't you laff when you found out he was all rite? I said. You admitted it was funny, I said, and pop said, There's probably a logical anser to that, and as soon as I can think of it I'll be glad to pass it on to you.

Proving I had won the argewment.

Flag Fever Hits Cleveland Fans As Indians Sizzle Down Stretch

By JOE REICHLER

Cleveland, Sept. 4 (AP) —Not so long ago the citizens of Cleveland were feeling the everyday life of normal people. They had little time to worry about the troubles that had befallen the town's ball club, the Indians.

There were still some diehards who groaned every time the Indians lost—which was often. To all intents and purposes, the Indians were going nowhere in the American League race.

Then, suddenly, it happened. The Indians began to win and captured 22 of 27 games. An epidemic of pennant fever overwhelmed the Ohio populace.

None Like This

Only twice in the last generation had Cleveland won the league championship. Its pennant fevers had been many, but never before had they come with the suddenness of this current onslaught.

Cleveland newspapers feature the exploits of their favorite sons on page one. Manager Al Lopez, general manager Hank Greenberg and owner Ellis Ryan are overnight the most popular persons in Cleveland.

The hotels are loaded. People, who had stayed away all year, flock to the ball park. It is almost impossible to buy a good seat for games with New York or Boston Red Sox.

The front office became flooded with requests for World Series tickets. It is estimated that more than $150,000 has already been returned to optimistic fans.

What happened to change the club from an also-ran in June to a red-hot pennant contender in August and September?

The tremendous hurling of Bob Feller, Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia; the brilliant defensive work of the "Pony" infield sparked by shortstop Ray Boone and second-baseman Bob Avila; the great clutch pitching of Lou Brissie, the workhorse; and the quiet competent job of managing turned in by Lopez.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

Two Canadian favorites, Malcolm Hanover and Dr. Stanton, split first money in the Dominion's richest harness race—the Canadian Cup race at Toronto. Old Dr. Stanton came back on Saturday afternoon to win the postponed second heat with Malcolm Hanover taking off in second place by a head.

Malcolm Hanover won the first heat at Thorncliffe Raceway Friday but it rained so hard that the second heat had to be hoisted until Saturday.

In the second heat, at one mile and one-sixteenth, Dr. Stanton which went away from number three position, sped to the front at once and stayed there. Malcolm Hanover made his usual courageous charge in the final quarter-mile but just missed.

Dr. Stanton's time of 2.13 3/5 was a track record for Thorncliffe.

Lionel Nesbitt, 20, of Listowel, Ont., in his first Canadian National Exhibition track meet Saturday, won the 10-mile run in 55 minutes, 15 and two-fifths seconds.

Nesbit outpaced veteran-winner Walter Fedorick of Dundas, Ont., to take the opening event.

Yogi Berra, New York Yankee catcher, was fined $100 Saturday by President Will Harridge of the American League for pushing Umpire Ed Hurley in protest of decision in St. Louis last Tuesday.

Miss Pepsi, a Detroit boat driven by Chuck Thompson, won the Henry Ford trophy race Saturday—featured race in the Detroit 250th anniversary regatta. The boat averaged 82.4 miles an hour for the four laps—far the best in the unlimited class.

Tony Ponce, star righthander of Phoenix Senators in the southwest International League, last night set what is believed to be a pitching record in organized baseball of 38 consecutive innings without being relieved. The official mark is 37 made by William Dineen of Boston Red Sox in the American League in 1904.

The District Attorney's office plans to have the grand jury investigate the death of boxer George Flores. It was learned Monday.

Flores, a 20-year-old welterweight and father of a three-weeks old boy, died early Monday as a result of a brain injury suffered in a knockout loss to Roger Donoghue in Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

At District Attorney Frank Hogan's office it was learned that Hogan plans to subpoena witnesses to testify before the grand jury in mid-September.

John (Peanuts) O'Flaherty of Toronto has been appointed coach of Saint John Beavers in the expanded major hockey league, a club spokesman said last night. For Toronto St. Michael's, Alexander Cup finalists.

The former National and American Hockey League player will bring 14 men as the nucleus of the Beaver team in the coming season, the spokesman said.

Walker Peewees Defeat Petes By 8-3 Score

Peterborough — Belleville Pee Wees defeated Peterborough Anthonys 8-3 in the first of a best-of-three baseball series for the right to advance further in the Ontario Peewee playdowns and will be played in the Quinte town Saturday, with a third if necessary on neutral grounds.

Joe Ryan twirled most of the way for Wally Bentz's smart crew of youngsters but yielded to Jack Elliott in the eighth, when Peterborough scored a run on Haig's triple, an error and Cavanagh's infield hit. Elliott fanned Pete Collins and forced Al Reid to ground to short to squelch any further rally.

Petes outhit Walkers, but failure to hit with shen aboard proved fatal to Anthonys' offensive cause. Defensively Belleville had a good margin over Anthonys who committed seven errors afield; Walkers had but two misues.

Belleville scored three runs in the first inning, added two in the fifth and ninth with a single in the eighth inning. Three wild pitches in the first by pitcher Haig along with three walks, enabled the visitors to get off to a flying start; and though Anthonys threatened at times they were unable to overcome their rivals. Each team left eight men stranded on base.

Robinson-Turpin Fight Revenue Expected to Total Over $750,000

By MURRAY ROSE

New York, Sept. 4 (AP) —The Randy Turpin-Ray Robinson return bout Sept. 12 at the Polo Grounds undoubtedly will smash all sorts of financial records for a non-heavyweight fight.

The second scrap had to be a success from the moment the 23-year-old British Negro's hand was raised in triumph in London July 10. In capturing the middleweight crown from the great Robinson, Turpin scored the most sensational boxing upset in years.

Before the date was even set for the return, the International Boxing Club was swamped with a deluge of blank cheques.

There hasn't been anything like that here since the second Joe Louis-Jersey Joe Walcott bout in 1948. And no international match has caused such a furore since the Brown Bomber flattened Germany's Max Schmeling in one round in the Yankee Stadium June 22, 1938.

The revenue for the coming collision may total more than $750,000. This would include a possible gross gate of $500,000, another $200,000 for the World movie rights, and possibly another $50,000 for the closed telecast to movie houses in at least 12 American cities.

If the gate reaches more than $452,648, it will shatter a 28-year-old money mark for non-heavyweights. Lightweight champion Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler lured 58,519 fans and $452,648 into the Yankee Stadium July 23, 1923.

The richest middleweight bout of the past was the second Rocky Graziano-Tony Zale scrap in Chicago Stadium which drew 18,547 fans and grossed $422,918 July 16, 1947.

Both of Louis' returns with Schmeling and Walcott were held in the Yankee Stadium. The Louis-Schmeling affair was seen by 70,043 fans who paid $1,020,419 on June 22, 1938. Louis' revenge over Walcott was witnessed by 42,267 customers who paid $841,739 June 25, 1948.

World Interest

The top gate of all time, of course was set by Jack Dempsey and Gentleman Gene Tunney in Chicago's Soldier Field Sept. 22, 1927. A crowd of 104,943 paid $2,658,660 to see Tunney turn in that sensational upset.

Orders for Polo Grounds tickets are coming from many parts of the world, according to Harry Markson, managing director of the I.B.C.

"One woman from Saskatchewan in Canada sent us a $30 cheque for a ringside seat," he said, "and she pointed out that she is going to use it herself."

Tribe Sweeps Pair From Sox; Bosox Trail by Only 4½ Games, Feller Wins 21st; Sain Clicks

By JOE REICHLER

Philadelphia's carefree Athletics are going nowhere in the American-League race. But they are having a lot to say in which team will win the flag.

Continuing their role as "spoilers," Jimmy Dykes' seventh placers yesterday held New York to a split in their Labor-Day doubleheader to dump the Yankees out of first place.

Taking advantage of the A's second-game, 3-2 win after the Yankees had copped the opener 3-1, Cleveland Indians regained first place by sweeping a pair from Chicago's White Sox, 5-3 and 6-1.

The tribe now has a half-game lead on the Yankees, but must watch Boston's Red Sox, who whipped Washington twice, 3-2 and 8-4, to climb within 4½ games of the top.

The Red Sox are only two games behind Cleveland in the important "lost" column. They have played five fewer games than the Indians.

Dodgers Increase Lead

Brooklyn Dodgers increased their first-place margin in the National League to six games over New York, defeating Boston Braves twice by 7-2 scores. The Giants divided a pair with Philadelphia Phillies, winning the nightcap 3-1, after Philadelphia had taken the opener 6-3.

St. Louis Cardinals stretched their winning streak to seven straight with 4-1 and 7-1 triumphs over Cincinnati. Chicago and Pittsburgh split, the Pirates earning a seven-inning 4-3 win after the Cubs had captured the first game, 11-10, in 12 innings.

Detroit Tigers and St. Louis' Browns paired a twin-bill. The Tigers won 6-5 in 13 innings only to drop the second game 3-2.

Bobby Shantz and Bob Cooper combined to pitch Philadelphia's triumph over the Yankees. Shantz did not permit a score until he weakened in the seventh. Hooper retired the last eight Yankees.

Johnny Sain, recently purchased from the Braves, made a brilliant Yankee debut by setting down the A's with five hits in the opener. A two-run homer by Hank Bauer proved the difference.

Bob Feller registered his 21st victory and Steve Gromek spun a brilliant three-hitter as the Indians battered five Chicago hurlers for 21 hits. Four runs in the first two innings iced the opener and five tallies in the first inning put away the nightcap.

Clutch hitting by Walt Dropo, Dom DiMaggio and Bobby Doerr plus relief pitching by Ellis Kinder helped the Red Sox win two. Dropo's homer with one on climaxed a three-run first inning in the opener. DiMaggio and Doerr batted in two runs apiece in the nightcap. Kinder successfully relieved winners Mel Parnell and Chuck Stobbs in each game.

Jerry Priddy's double in the 13th off Ned Garver scored Johnny Groth with the run that won the first game for Detroit. Fred Marsh's two-run single in the sixth gave the Browns their split.

Roy Campanella, playing despite two floating cartilages in his left elbow, cracked out six consecutive hits to lead the Dodgers to their holiday sweep. He hit two homers, a double and single in the opener and batted in five runs.

Campy and Andy Pafko led the second-game attack as Clem Labine pitched his second victory in as many big-league starts.

Lorne Main Wins Singles Crown

Toronto, Sept. 4 (CP) —Grant Golden of Chicago and Conway Catton of San Francisco upset two members of Canada's Davis Cup team Monday to win the doubles event of the Ontario seniors tennis championship.

They beat out Lorne Main of Vancouver and Brendan Macken of Montreal 6-4, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

Earlier, Main slammed his way to the singles championship with a clean sweep of three sets against Catton. He won 8-6, 6-4, 6-4, to become the first Canadian to win the title in seven years.

Thrill-a-Minute Driving Features Speedway Races

Sensational driving featured the all-district meet at the Speedway Parkland near Marysville yesterday afternoon when 17 drivers thrilled a large holiday crowd in perfect weather.

Billy Wilson, Toronto won the feature race after trailing Belleville's Ted Broad for four laps, but declined to accept first-place money and Broad was adjudged the winner, Broad won the first heat and with Jerry Ball of Belleville turned in some exceptional throttle-handling. Ball thrilled the crowd in a match race with Wilson when he led for three laps and was nosed out by three feet in a spine-tingling finish.

Delmer Breadman, Shannonville, also gave a fine performance winning the second heat and the Consolation race. He was forced out in the feature. In a novelty team race which saw two teams of three cars each and a captain compete Frank Andre, Kingston, drove his car to victory over the team captained by Jerry Ball.

One Upset

Only one spill occurred and that came in the first lap of the first heat when Elwyn Wartman of Harrowsmith rolled over on the eastern turn. He was not injured.

The races were closely contested and well-driven with places changing practically every lap or so. The district drivers, by their performance yesterday showed vast improvement for first-year competitors and if this continues will bid fair to attain the status of champion drivers.

Brantford Sox Lead Majors 3-1 Oshawa Nips Petes

(By The Canadian Press)

With Brantford Red Sox leading London Majors 3-1 in their best-of-seven Senior Intercounty Baseball League finals the two teams clash in their fifth game tonight at Brantford.

The Red Sox won the first two games in the series then dropped one last Thursday but they came back Saturday to notch their third victory.

In the Ontario Baseball Association playoffs Oshawa Merchants registered their fifth straight win yesterday over Peterborough and cleaned up the best-of-nine series to enter the final playdowns.

Oshawa Wins

Oshawa blasted the Pete's defence in the ninth inning to score four runs and make the final tally 5-4 in a heart-breaking loss for Peterborough. They had held the Merchants scoreless in the first eight innings.

The Petes took a four run lead in the opening inning following a single by Joe Lowry, four errors and a double by Andy Milne.

Staffords scored a 14 hit comeback win last night to defeat Kingsway Lumber 13-7 in the Viaduct Major Baseball League elimination series at Millen Stadium. This win and a victory over Croftons will tie them with Kingsway in the special series to find a Toronto Baseball Association League representative.

Ralph Hoskins and Johnny Stoneberg led the Staffords' attack with three safeties each. Jack Rossen tossed two-hit ball until the final frames.

McElroy Wins Amateur Title From Farley

Ottawa, Sept. 4 (CP) —Walter McElroy of Vancouver, a slim 130-pounder with an easy smile but a deadly shooter with a six iron, Saturday won the 1951 Canadian amateur golf championship.

The 24-year-old Vancouver jeweler defeated veteran Phil Farley of Toronto 2 and 1 in the 36-hole final which wound up the week-long tourney at the capital's Royal Ottawa Club.

Farley, playing in his third final in 16 cracks at the Canadian title, put up a gallant battle which had many of the gallery of 300 cheering him on. But the 39-year-old branch manager of a textile firm, although he made a terrific comeback in the latter part of the match, went too far behind in the first 18-holes to overtake the smooth Vancouver golfer. Still, Farley had enough to give the final match one of its most tense and dramatic finishes in years.

It was the first Canadian amateur victory for McElroy, who stayed away from competitive golf in 1949-50. In 1948 he was low amateur in the Canadian Open.

He succeeds Bill Mawhinney, also of Vancouver, who was eliminated by Farley in a quarter-final round.

TELLS OF LONG LIFE

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Australia's tennis forces climaxed a thrilling comeback by defeating the United States Davis Cuppers in both final singles matches 12 years ago today. After the match the Australians were ordered home since Britain had declared war on Germany the previous day. Australia and the United States contested the finals every year since resumption in 1946, the U.S. winning each year until the Aussies won in 1950.

Redmen Split Weekend Games, Drop 5-2 Verdict to Shoemen; Edge Smiths Falls Royals 2-1

Belleville Redmen split a brace of Central Ontario Baseball League games over the weekend, dropping a 5-2 decision to the Batawa Shoemen on Saturday night and edging the Smiths Falls Royals 2-1 at the Falls last evening.

The divided verdicts give the Reds a half-game lead over the Batawa Shoemen in their race for fourth spot since defaulted Napanee games giving each squad a win, placed them on even terms prior to the Royals game.

Batawa 5 Redmen 2

An error-sponsored four-run uprising in the fourth inning broke up a fine hurling duel and paved the way to a Batawa 5-2 win over the Redmen here Saturday night.

Art Wright and Billy Strahan went the route for their respective squads with Wright yielding but six hits, striking out 10 and walking none, whereas Strahan nine and walked two.

Strahan started the Shoemen rally in the fourth when he threw wild to Dean on first with one out. Emmanuel Caudwell, scoring Bunion and Vern Green fanned.

Rankin singled and Cosgrove walked, both scoring on Bridgman's single. Hughes grounded out to end the rally.

The Redmen came up with two first-inning runs when Dean got on after Cosgrove's bad throw and Mulholland had been retired. Vern Green put out a centre-field single, Gilmour whiffed and Carson's double-play ball retired Dean. Reeves was hit and Goyer was trapped between home and third but was safe when Cosgrove threw struck him in the back. Soules struck out to retire the side.

From then on it was all Wright. He scattered four hits over the nine innings to hold the Reds scoreless. Strahan duck-egged the Shoemen in the opening frame only to fan in the last five.

Costly Errors

The Redmen had only two errors but they were costly, both coming in the disastrous fourth of Strahan and Soules, who replaced Dean behind the plate. Cosgrove's bobble of Egan's grounder in the first was the only Shoemen miscue.

Cosgrove and Semark had a double and single each for the Shoemen with Bridgman getting a pair and Watson and Rankin singles.

Sammy Mulholland paced the Reds with two singles. Goyer, Fordham, Carson and Reeves contributing one-basers.

The Shoemen made a twin-killing in the eighth to nip a threatened Redmen rally.

Bombay, Sept. 1 —(Reuters)— Customs officials said yesterday they had smashed a ring for smuggling currency out of India with the seizure of $147,000 worth of bills at Bombay's Santa Cruz airport. They said the money—rupees, dollars and sterling—was cunningly concealed in parcels consigned to various foreign countries.

Royals Clinch League Flag, Leafs Take Three

(By The Associated Press)

The International-Loop victory trail has been smooth sailing for Toronto's Johnny Hetki, who's helping his bats with a respectable ball.

The veteran Leaf hurler rang up his fifth triumph yesterday against nine reversals, when he blanked Ottawa Giants 9-0 in the first game of a doubleheader. This is the most games he has won in a season since he began his career in 1941.

In registering his fourth shutout, a neat six-hitter, the former Cincinnati Reds' moundsman completed his 18th game. He now has four straight wins.

The strapping righthander supported by homers from Charlie White, Vince Plumbo and Grover Bowers.

Toronto continued to get fine pitching in the nightcap as Leon Day edged Ottawa 2-1 for his first victory. Day broke up the duel with young Pete Burnside in the opening home the decisive run in the seventh inning.

Montreal Royals, who have already clinched the pennant, bowed twice to Buffalo Bisons, 6-6 and 8-4. Buffalo moved into a third-place tie with Syracuse. Wally Post's 20th homer helped Bob Bennett win the opener as Archie Wilson poled his 28th round-tripper in the seventh to tie with the second game for Ernie Silverman.

Rochester Red Wings and Syracuse Chiefs divided a twin bill. The Wings grabbed the first, 3-0 on Johnny Schmitz's one-hit relief stint after the second inning. The Chiefs took the nightcap 7-2 behind Bill Miller's 15th victory.

Baltimore Orioles and Springfield Cubs broke even, with Orioles taking the opener 3-1 and dropping the nightcap, 4-0.

Read Drubs Latta To Even Series

Read defelled the Latta team by a 22-10 score in the fourth game of the South Hastings Baseball League finals at Exhibition Park last night. The victory tied the series at two games each.

The fifth game while scheduled for the Fair Grounds will be played sometime this week, the date hinging on the outcome of Central Ontario Baseball League and Ontario Baseball Association playdowns.

Aviemore, Scotland, Sept. 1— (Reuters)—Part of a Scottish forest here may soon become an experimental breeding ground for reindeer the first of its kind in Britain. Argos Split Holiday Games Bow to Undefeated Tiger-Cats

(By The Canadian Press)

It was one game up and one game down for each of Toronto's football teams as Argos and Balmy Beach stalwarts ended their first football weekend of the season.

In Ottawa Saturday Argos steamrollered their way to a 36-17 victory over Ottawa Rough Riders as Al Dekdebrun quarterbacked his mates to six touchdowns. But in Hamilton yesterday the boys in blue got the flat side of the steamroller themselves when Hamilton's mighty Tiger-Cats moved into first place in the still-young Big Four football race 37-6.

Balmy Beaches, the Argos farm club, fared just like their big four brothers. They blanked Windsor Royals 16-0 in Windsor Saturday but when they moved to Sarnia Monday for a tilt with the Imperials they lost control of the game and ended 10 points in the red. Score was 15-3.

Eskies Sweep Stamps

In the west, Edmonton Eskimos made a clean sweep over the Calgary Stampeders during the weekend. They edged them 15-17 in a game Saturday at Calgary and blanked them 5-0 in a night game Monday at Edmonton.

Monday in Regina Winnipeg Blue Bombers took Saskatchewan Roughriders 24-22 when they got on a third-quarter power drive and made three converted touchdowns. The Bombers trailed 22-8 at the end of the three-quarter mark.

Eskimos almost lost the Saturday game with Stampeders when they dropped a big 18-0 first half-lead down to the narrow one-point margin by which they finally took the game. They outlasted a last-minute Stampeders' rally which fell short on the point-after convert in the last minutes of the game.

Argos' Al Dekdebrun and Hamilton's Bernie Custis showed themselves most colorful players in the east this weekend.

In the Argo-RoughRider game, one-sixteenth in 2.14 4-5, Dekdebrun showed the same elusive pair of heels and the same speedy passing he showed a year ago when Argos captured the Grey Cup. He sent six players across for Argos' six touchdowns. His mates repeatedly marched up the field on Dekdebrun's passes.

Cats Swing 'Em

Dekdebrun tried again Monday against the Tiger-Cats but the match seemed to have gone out of the Blues. He tried 34 passes and completed only eight as against 14 tried and six completed for Custis, the Cats' speedy Negro quarterback.

Only Argo break came from a Custis fumble on the Tiger-Cats three-yard line. The Argos recovered and, three plays later, sent Ulysses Curtis over for a marker. Joe Krol converted.

In the Balmy Beaches' game, quarterback Bobby Lee played standout football. In the third quarter of the Beaches-Royals game he tossed a 40-yard sleeper to Jeff Gilmour who crossed standing up for the Beaches second marker.

Bowling in Sarnia a Bobby Lee pass to Ed Fisher brought in the Beaches' unconverted touch and saved the Torontonians from a blanking by the powerful Imperials.

The Diplomat won the mile event in 2:08 4-5 and the mile and one-sixteenth in 2.14 4-5,

Sedgman Favored For National Singles Title

By GAYLE TALBOT

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 4 — (AP) — For the first time since the National tennis championships were first played in 1881, an Australian will likely win the big silver cup today.

Few who watched the tournament for the last 10 days could envision anything but a victory for Frank Sedgman, the Aussie ace, over Vic Seixas of Philadelphia in today's final.

The feeling was that the Davis Cup star had too much speed, power and all-around class to be foiled now by a player who is only seventh on the American list.

Seixas' victory over first-seeded Dick Savitt of Orange, N. J., in yesterday's semi-finals was somewhat tarnished by the fact that the Wimbledon champion had sat'isfected leg.

Sedgman, for his part, simply ate Art Larsen alive, much to the surprise of a crowd of 15,000 which had expected better of the slim left-hander who had won the title a year ago. The lad one lasted only 46 minutes and the scores were 6-1, 6-2, 6-0.

Seixas used up an hour and 17 minutes in administering his mercy shot to Savitt by 6-0, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Sedgman made a poor showing last year, bowing to Earl Cochell long before the finals. But Australian lad had won the Davis Cup and were too elated to care much about the championships. This time Sedgman has been playing with a deadly earnestness, and appears to have reached his goal.

Promising to be of almost equal interest with the men's final on today's program was the play-off of one of the women's semi-finals between Doris Hart of Miami, the favorite, and Maureen Connolly of San Diego, the 16-year-old former National junior titlist.

Maureen spotted Doris the first four games and then smashed through six straight to win the opening set at 8-6. Rain forced abandonment of play.

Pedder Trains for Channel Race, Swims Twenty Miles 11.35 Hours

Tommy Pedder, Belleville's former Canadian weight-lifting champion, and long distance swimmer, climaxed his pre-international training Sunday with a 20-mile jaunt in the Moira River.

Tommy swam 20 laps over a course of one mile each, starting at 5.30 a.m. and climbing out at 5.15 p.m.

He absorbed 1 1-2 quarts of honey during the long grind.

The stocky, well-built athlete is training for the cross-channel swim which he hopes to do next August.

The London Daily Mail sponsors of the annual cross-Channel race, has notified Pedder that he is eligible to compete.

Interviewed yesterday, Tommy said he was quite confident he could negotiate the treacherous currents of the channel. He expects to resume training early next spring and will limself in tip-top condition for the race.

There is just one thing that is worrying him, Finances.

"If I could get a backer or sponsor," he smiled "I would feel a lot better. I am hoping that some assistance will be forthcoming next year. In any event, I am training hard, and will continue to do so until race time. Maybe something will turn up."

Preacher Sets Pole Vault Mark

Toronto, Sept. 4 — (CP)—Rev. Bob Richards, United States pole vault champion of LaVerne, Calif. Monday set a Canadian open vault record of 14 feet, 10 1-2 inches at the Canadian National Exhibition's Labor Day track meet.

Before a crowd of 36,000 people, Richards broke the record he set Saturday of 14 feet, seven and seven-eighth inches.

The Ledroit Falcons of Washington, D. C., piled up 34 points at the track meet to take first place team standing.

Second place team was the Olympic Athletic Club of Montreal with 13 points. The Mercury A team finished last with the East York Track Club for third with six points each.

Lacrosse

Mimico, Ont., Sept. 4 — (CP)— Mimico Mountaineers loosed a barrage of shots in a 19-3 overtime victory over Hamilton Tigers last night in their best-of-five Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association semi-final series.

The win gives them a 2-1 lead in the series, Fourth game will be played in Hamilton tonight.

In the overtime, Mimico scored five goals while holding Hamilton scoreless.

Aerodynamically speaking—

safe flight is assured by RCAF airframe technicians

It's not the engine—it's the wings that lift a plane.

At 600 miles an hour, air flows over wing and control surfaces with tremendous force. A broken surface would cause a whirlpool—break the airflow—destroy the 'lift'—make flight impossible.

That's why all RCAF planes are daily inspected, rigged and trimmed by skilled Airframe Technicians . . . wings . . . flaps . . . slots . . . ailerons . . . elevators . . . rudder . . . dive brakes . . . landing gear . . .

Whether it's an F-86 Sabre fighter or a big North Star, every RCAF plane must have an official okay from the Airframe Technician before it may take off—officially okayed for safe flight, from nose to tail.

To be eligible, you must...be between 17 and 40...be physically fit...have Grade 8 education or better

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Beginners are fraidycats when it comes to defensive bids. They are even timid about bidding a suit defensively. But when they learn takeout doubles the life of defensive bidding is brighter.

In Horse Sense, a double for a takeout is a signal to show as good as an opening one bid. It signals a hand that is better than the defensive bid in a suit. Such a takeout double forces partner to bid something if there is no intervening bid. Is it safe? If your hand contains only the heads for an opening one, can you stand partner's forced bid?

Look at it this way. If you have that kind of a hand you intend to make a bid with. If so, no harm is done in letting partner first tell you what he has.

— If you not like what he has been forced to reply you can always go into your own song and dance. Meantime you may discover partner with four cards in the suit that you support.

Your own bid of this suit might not draw any response from your partner. So, you would not know he had such support. Therefore, even if you had a desire to go on you would not know how safe it was.

Suppose an opponent in south opens with a bid of one spade when you have this west hand:

♠A ♥A 8 4 2
♣9 7 4

You could get right in there with a bid of two diamonds. But if partner had four or five hearts, he might not even tell you about them. So you might never learn a time that you are better off in hearts.

If you double, however, he is forced to tell you whether he has four or more hearts. If he does not have four hearts he must bid two diamonds or two clubs. Is that bad?

If he bids two clubs you can still go to two diamonds. If he bids two diamonds you can let it rest in peace. All for free.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 4 (AP)—Tibbs is a lean, dark-spoken man of 22 years with a peaches-and-cream complexion and dark, wavy hair. And he is one of the United States' sex riders of bronco and bulls.

Tibbs and a dozen of his colleagues have been brought to Hollywood to lend authenticity to "Broncho Buster", a rodeo movie. Between scenes he gave me some pointers on his perilous profession.

"A good rider can make between $20,000 and $30,000 a year" Tibbs said. "But it's a gamble all the way. A rodeo rider doesn't get a salary; the only money he makes is from prizes. And if his luck is bad, he can lose money because he must pay an entrance fee for every event anywhere from $50 to $150."

Despite the uncertainty of reward, Tibbs has no complaint. Two years ago, he became the youngest man to win the rodeo cowboy championship, meaning he won more events in one year than any other rodeo performer.

Casey is on the move from the beginning of January until mid-November which is the extent of the rodeo season.

Most rodeo performers are veterans at 30 but Casey figures he's getting on his this age. "If I can find some other line of work I'll be sooner. I've always told myself I'd quit if I thought I was slipping. I'd rather get out and keep my health."

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, Sept. 5

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Grand promise today for new, healthy undertakings and also equally advantageous for advancement in your usual routine work and in outside matters for which you have talent. Blessings!

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Encouraging, heartening for your personal interests, business, work generally. Artistry, home, family affairs can benefit. Try new methods, tools, etc.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You should be keen mentally, on the go now. Your Mercury and several planets in benefic aspects. Be truly helpful to government, military projects. Thank God for our freedom.

July 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Your Moon's position now stresses need for a cheerful, unworried outlook that you may do your best and even add to previous gains in work and other interests. Be unselfish, pleasant.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—It can be a happy day for your cheerful ones. Serious work, travel, essential building, manufacturing items for our armed forces especially favored. Avoid foolish spending, personalities.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Same obtains for you now as for Gemini. Have high hopes for achievement in any sound line of endeavor. Friendly rays promote mental alertness, ingenious ideas, study, teaching, etc.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Day's influences augur well for all serviceable and progressive matters, professions, home affairs. Religious interests (so necessary now) under fine aspects. You can persuade others.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)— Your Mars holds a warning not to be too aggressive or forceful putting across your ideas. You can have a happy, interesting day. Much is up to you and your attitude.

November 23 to December 23—(Sagittarius)—And your Jupiter's aspect advises sensible, conservative spending, watching budget generally. Day on whole very favorable for good work in all worthy activities. Eat sensibly, too.

December 22 to January 21—(Capricorn)—First very encouraging planetary day this month but there are other good ones to follow. Do your best in whatever schedule for you should be able to advance considerably.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—This promises to be an advantageous month for you and today gives extra incentive, plentiful helpful rays for all purposeful enterprises, also daily hum-drum routine matters.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Not all generous for purely personal gains but is a terrific period for promoting honest trades, professions, manufacturing, building, mining, refining. Show incentive.

YOU BORN TODAY: Likeable chaffacteristics; sincerity, sympathy, honesty. Are orderly, clean in habits, disposition. Fine memory, capability for profession, trade, domesticity. All of course, if you are living true to your best qualities and heeding God's laws as all of us should. Likely unusual talent for writing, painting, decorating; scientific study, nursing; also skill for mechanics. Correct any tendency to be too exacting of others; show your true genial nature in daily living. Don't worry needlessly.

WHY WE SAY

A PIG IN A POKE

. . . A farmer's trick when you "buy a pig in a poke"—when two unwitting animals are started with an old New York state farmer who displayed pigs at his stand, but when the "sitty stickers" came by, he replaced the pigs with cats in the bag (or poke) and sold them.

MARMORA

Fine Weather, Large Crowd Make Marmora Fair Success

Marmora—The annual Marmora Fair, sponsored by the Marmora Agricultural Society was favored with fair weather on Monday, Labor Day, and a record of approximately two thousand attended, and it was one of the best fairs in the history of the annual event.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare and acting Minister of Agriculture, who officially opened the fair, was escorted in the grounds in the car in which other occupants were Elmer Sandercock M.P.P., Reeve V. M. Lynch, Marmora Village, Reeve Irwin McCoy, Marmora and Lake township and John McAvoy, president of Marmora Agricultural Society, by Havelock Killie Band and Marmora Legionaires under command of Zone Commander Percy Gray.

Introduced by Member

While Reeves Lynch and McCoy spoke briefly, extending good wishes for the day, it fell to Elmer Sandercock M.P.P. to introduce the Minister of Welfare. The latter declared he had brought no prepared speech but had come to fraternize with the people of the neighboring constituency. He reminded his hearers of the labor entailed in preparations for the fair.

He said it was 132 years since the first agricultural society was formed in this province. He was informed that it was in 1896 that Marmora held its first fair. He congratulated the district on the prospective progress with the opening of the iron mine.

Regarding entries, the following was noticeable. Horses were average. Cattle were down. There was no opposition for Harry Neal of Marmora township with his Holsteins. Garnet Kerr of Campbellford with his Jerseys and Elmer Wood of Crookston with his Ayrshires. Poultry classes were the redeeming feature. The entires were heavy and the quality excelled that of former years.

Vegetables Down

Vegetables were down as in past years. Fruits fresh and canned and splary and other products were enlivening features. The holding of the fair on a Monday proved a disadvantage in cooking exhibits. Ladies' work was limited as was also the floral display. Children's classes compared favorably with former years. The cheese exhibit dropped from its high mark of 1950. Entrants were Gerald Finke, Marmora, Murray Heath, Hastings, and Harold Pair, Harold.

The horse racing resulted as follows:

Class A

Peter Aubrey, Ingles, Brighton	1 1 1
Lee Morgan, Ingles, Brighton	2 2 2
Guy Von, McKnight, Millbrook	3 3 3

Winner's time 2.15.

Class B

Luella Guy, Ingles, Brighton	2 1 1
Banner Boy, Ingles, Brighton	3 2 2
Rose Baldwin, M. Post, Peterborough	1 3 3

Running Race

1 Bertie Bell, K. McCoy; 2 Buddie, S. Henry.

Best Team e: Grounds

1 Sawyer Stoll (William Woods, driver, Tweed), 2 Verney Heath, Rawdon; 3 Arthur Fleming, Marmora Township.

Drawing Contest

1 Malcolm McMullen, Springbrook; 2 Ralph Heath, Campbellford R.R. 2.

Bernard Hughes was master of ceremonies for the grandstand program.

Jim Byrne and his Radio Buckeroos assisted by Bob Harding, magician, all of Peterborough, proved very entertaining to the large section of the crowd gathered around.

There were twelve entries for the boys' pie-eating contest in which Wilfrid Terrion, of Marmora township, carried off the honors. The five entrants in the step dancing contest finished in the following order:—1. John Whitney, Cordova; 2. Mac Anderson, Stanwood; 3. Clifford Briggs, Cordova; 4. Joseph Jackson, Rawdon township; 5. Ray Edwards, Cordova.

Old-time fiddling had four entrants who were judged as follows —1. John Izzard, Delora; Victor Crippen, Cordova; 3. William Nylott, Havelock; 4. John Whitney, Cordova.

Nine Teams in Draw

Nine teams participated in the log-sawing contests, the prize winners all of Marmora township being—1. John McGregor, and Harold Carman; 2. Douglas Villneff and Glen Derry; 3. Donald Shannon Jr., and Paul Maloney.

The ladies' nail-driving contest produced good rivalry, the prize winners being—1. Mrs. Robert Gawley, Marmora; 2. Mrs. F. Stenger, Stirling; 3. Mrs. John Edwards, Cordova.

The prize for the most recently married couple on the grounds went to Mr. and Mrs. Milton King of Toronto, newlyweds of a week. The oldest man located on the grounds was Elwin (Jack) Arnold, resident of Bellefville for the past seven years following residency in Marmora for 36 years. He is 83 years of age, having been born in St. Ola, Limerick township on July 25th., 1858. The endeavor to have the oldest lady on the grounds mount to the grandstand failed.

Model Plane Flying

Other entertainment attracting much attention was a new feature. Don Prentice, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Prentice, of Marmora, who is stationed with the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, with a number of other flyers from that station, put on a model plane flying demonstration.

Havelock Killie Band played selections at intervals also.

The midway was one of the largest seen at a local fair and the time honored merry-go-round and a Western side show received good patronage.

Exhibits receiving their share of notice were those of farm implements and one of the Field Crop competition.

Two refreshment booths, the one run as for years past by the Marmora Women's Institute, and the other by Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E., sold out early in the afternoon.

Officers and Directors

Due to illness of the secretary-treasurer, J. F. Baker, his duties were discharged by Thomas J. Bateman, past-president of the Society. The officers and directors of the Society for the year are—president, John McAvoy; 1st vice president, Carl Heath; 2nd vice president, Gordon Jones; secretary-treasurer, J. F. Baker; directors, F. S. Johnston, Joseph Hulsmans, J. F. Baker, Harry Neal, Carl Heath, T. J. Bateman, H. W. Sabine, John McAvoy, Charles Lajoie, William Kelly, William McComb, Vincent Lynch, Irwin McCoy, Gordon Jones, Louis Hulsmans, George Fox, John Wilkes.

The fair concluded with a dance in the fair building in the evening with Jim Byrne and his Buckaroos providing the music.

MINERS CHEERED END OF 52-DAY STRIKE

Streets of Timmins, Ont., resembled V.E. Day celebrations as 7,000 happy miners and their families "let off steam" after receiving news that 52-day strike at Hollinger gold mines was terminated. Agreement came after four days of session between company and union officials, aided by Louis Fine, Ontario's chief conciliation officer. Speculation on settlemgnt terms, not as yet publicized, was rampant in Timmins. If Hollinger accepts the check-off, major stumbling block in negotiations, union officials believe it will pave the way for similar concessions at other big mines, especially Mcintyre-Porcupine at Timmins. — Central Press Canadian.

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

Through the summer and early fall months Lance made unselfish use of his car. If neither Dad nor Mother Roberts, were free to ride with him, there was always a neighbour, an acquaintance on the street or a small boy who was quick to seize the opportunity of accompanying him.

But when the frosts came to tell him that winter was not far away, that soon he must put his car away, he turned his hand to something else, to free Dad Roberts of the work of preparing Mother's garden for the winter. For Dad's health of late had been worrying him.

Lance won his point but it was not before a struggle. This fall garden work was something that Dad had been doing for Mother so long now that he felt that no one could do it as well, that it was a job that was his, and his alone. Lance contended that a man at Dad's age should know better than to strain himself at such strenuous work, that instead he should be relaxing, resting up. And Dad looked at him with a smile in his eyes and said, resignedly, "You're telling who!"

In Dad's overalls, which were much too long for him, Lance Bradley was an incongruous figure. And while at the outset he knew little or nothing of the work required of him, he found in Mother Roberts a patient, kind teacher, and soon he was enjoying his work, wishing only it would last longer. He lifted the last daffodil bulbs and planted them in new places. The gladioli bulbs had to be dug up, washed and sun dried, for winter storage. Their stalks had to be destroyed against the danger of thrip in the coming year. Then the cannas, dahlias had to be lifted, dried and placed in the cellar; the rose bushes, pruned and wrapped to protect them from the heavy frosts. And to complete the job the whole garden had to be raked, the rubbish piled in a heap and burned.

This garden work was not only interesting in itself, but it gave Lance time to think, without interruption of telephone or caller. And much of his thinking involved Dad Roberts.

From the very beginning of his business venture, Dad Roberts had been the staff that he had been leaning on. But a hint dropped by Dr. Brown, the family physician, a few days before, indicated that as a staff, Dad Roberts might leave him all too soon. A man well over seventy was living on borrowed time and since it had been established by the doctor that Dad had a heart condition, he might indeed go out like a light. And if Dad were to be taken away so suddenly, perhaps so unexpectedly, Mother would not survive him by very long. She would simply pine away. And with both of them gone, he would be left homeless, since he could never live amid surroundings that would ever remind him of the finest couple he had ever known. And then he decided that it would be a good idea to turn the large room over his office converted into a home when he moved in. It would not be necessary to tell Dad what he was planning there. Sufficient for him to explain that it might be used for an office in connection with the radio station on the floor above.

But with Dad and Mother Roberts removed by death from the scene of their long, happy married life, what would become of their property, their estate? Mother had told him one day that there was neither kith nor kin to leave entries for the tournament had closed, that there were no less than eight boys in the 130 lb. novice class, Goldie Webster included.

Lance took the sheet and read the names. He was not acquainted with any of these boys since they were from the city. The secretary explained how the tournament would be conducted. There would be four bouts of three rounds, two minutes to a round. The winners would meet for the next round and so on. Just then Stub Rose breezed in and he told Lance that The Ensign staff was backing Goldie to a man, with plenty of money, at two-to-one, that Goldie would win.

"Do you know, Stub, I wouldn't be too sure about that", Lance said. "All these boys are from the city and they've apt to be well trained, and pretty hard to take."

"Wanna make a little bet, chief?" Stub asked.

"Well, Stub," Lance stammered, "I wouldn't mind, but how could I bet money without having to bet against Goldie?"

"Money? bah!" Stub snorted, "not that dirty stuff—not money Chief."

"But what else is there to bet?"

Stub came closer, lowered his voice.

"I couldn't bet against Goldie either," he confessed. "But I'll tell you what to do—Goldie meets a boy named Brown in the first bout. You take Brown and go the limit; I'll take Goldie to stop him in the first. What say?"

"And—if I lose?"

"You'll—you'll take our woman's editor to the picture show."

"I—will—what?" Lance gasped, turning away, head down.

"Of course you will, Chief," Stub slapped him on the back, "I knew you would." And he stepped back to chuckle.

"Darn you, Stub," Lance said. "I might have known that you were up to something. However, I'll take her—just to spite you, providing of course, the young lady is willing."

"She better be, Chief", Stub warned, and then, "And say, Chief when you sit down there and the lights are turned off, maybe you better sit on your hands—"

"Sit on my hands—what do you mean?"

"Well, if you sit on them, you'll know where they are, won't you?" Stub chuckled again.

Goldie Webster won the novice class in the boxing tournament in Emerton town hall that October Friday evening, and the following evening Lance Bradley would have to pay his bet—to take Doris Parker to a movie.

The staff of The Daily Ensign from copy boy to managing editor helped to swell the crowd to standing room only. Ted Wilson was there with microphone to broadcast bouts over Radio Station CEDE. Dad Roberts occupied a seat well up in front; while Lance Bradley joined him later.

The most important part of the boxing card was the Golden Gloves tournament for boys under eighteen, weighing not more than 130 lbs.; boys who had never taken part in a Golden Gloves tournament before. Other bouts would follow, but as a means to develop the youngsters, this novice class was the feature attraction, particularly to the employees of The Ensign and the townspeople since Goldie Webster, a native son, must carry a heavy load on his young inexperienced shoulders.

At the Y.M.C.A. Secretary's request, the officials were from the city. There was a referee, two timers and three judges, and these men were chosen for what they knew about the sport. Shortly before eight o'clock, the secretary, who was to act as announcer, called the officials together, there was a brief parley, and the announcement that the Golden Gloves tournament was now ready to start, and that Goldie Webster had been drawn to meet one Harold Brown.

No A-World War In This Century Scientist Predicts

Dr. Conant Says Turning Point Came Last Year

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

New York, Sept. 5 — (AP) — No atomic world war, nor any other kind of world war, was the prediction made to the American Chemical Society today by Dr. James B. Conant, President of Harvard.

We shall come close to a world war," there will be smaller wars. But the turning point has been passed already. It came in 1950 when the free nations decided to rearm.

Dr. Conant's subject was "A skeptical chemist looks into the crystal ball." He was one of the wartime top scientists in making A-bombs.

"If we in this crystal ball," he said, "neither an atomic holocaust nor the golden abundance of an atomic age. On the contrary, I see worried humanity endeavoring by one political device after another to find a way out of the atomic age . . .

Threats Met

"Of course the turning point was in 1950, the first year when collective security became a reality. For when the free world had once made up its mind to meet each type of military threat by the Soviet Union with a defence against that threat, and no longer relied on the magic of atomic bombs, from that moment on hopes for an eventual disarmament revived.

"By the middle 1950s I see balanced forces against the disposal of the Atlantic Treaty nations. It is then clear to Moscow that there can be no easy march to the channel ports . . .

"I find the 1960s the time when constructive steps away from war are first being taken. Fifteen or 20 years after the first atomic bomb was fired, a sober appraisal of the destructive credits of the exploitation of atomic fission had led people to decide the game was not worth the candle.

Gradual Disarmament

"The mood of 15 or 20 years from now as I glimpse it — just enough agreement in sight to stabilize in United Nations to proceed with gradual disarmament.

"The date of the great settlement is not clear in my reading of the future, but sometime between 1960 and 1980, the climate of opinion alters. The movement of the free world has done its work. Armies, navies, planes are still on hand but the trend is toward less rather than more military power."

Dr. Conant made some non-military predictions. He said power would come in another big century from the sun's rays rather than atomic fission. Fresh water will be produced from the seas.

Birth control will be attained by diet. Coal will be converted to gas underground. Alcoholic drinks all will be synthetic. Most ocean water or grain. Micro - organisms will make the flavors of drinks.

Tobacco Firm, Workers Open Strike Talks

Montreal, Sept. 5 (CP) — Preliminary statements of company and union positions occupied opening sessions today of renewed direct negotiations between the Imperial Tobacco Company Limited and the Tobacco Workers' International Union.

The union has about 2,600 members on strike here, 700 at Granby, Que., and 400 at Hamilton, Ont. The walk-out came Aug. 24 after the union turned down a suggested 33 cent an hour wage increase over a two-year period.

A disturbance occurred at the Montreal St. Antoine Street plant last week when the company started to move out five freight cars loaded with cigarette manufactured before the strike started. Subsequently, company and union agreed that no further action with respect to the cars would be taken pending the resumption of direct negotiations today. Meanwhile, peaceful picketing continues.

Happy Ending To Love Story

Axminster, Devon, England, Sept. 5 — (Reuters) — A 59-year-old love story had a happy ending yesterday with the wedding of William Arnold, 80, and Elizabeth Drew, 86.

William was a soldier of 21 when he first asked Elizabeth to marry him.

"I'm too old for you at 27, Go away and try to forget," Elizabeth told him.

William married, travelled the world and became the father of nine children. Then his wife died.

Last year they met again. This time she said yes.

Cowling Elected To Imes Post

Toronto, Sept. 5. (CP)—An extended civic controversy reached a climax today when Toronto City Council elected Alderman Alfred H. Cowling to fill the Board of Control seat made vacant by the mid-July death of Controller John Innes.

The selection put an end to a labor campaign to have Ford Brand, runner-up in last year's Board of Control elections, appointed to the seat.

Another potential candidate for the seat had been Alderman Nathan Phillips, member of the city council for 20 years. However, Mr. Phillips apparently lost his chances when he announced he would be a candidate for mayor in 1942 and accompanied the announcement with a sharp attack on the present Board of Control, headed by. Mayor Hiram McCallum.

FORMER TRUST OFFICIAL DIES

Montreal, Sept. 5 (CP)—Arthur James Dowling, 71, former assistant secretary of the Crown Trust Company, died here last night in Montreal after a short illness.

He also had served as secretary treasurer of the Trust Valley Woollen Mills, at Campbellford, Ontario, for 25 years.

Funeral service will be held here tomorrow.

WILL BE GRANTED INCREASE

Washington, Sept. 5—(AP)—Price Director Michael V. Disalle said today that automobile manufacturers in the U. S. probably will be granted an increase of from six to eight per cent in the price of new cars.

Old Superstitions and Misbeliefs Are Dying Out Says Psychologist

Chicago, Sept. 5—(AP)—A lot of old superstitions and misbeliefs are dying out, a psychologist said here, but new ones keep cropping up.

Many superstitions or misconceptions current in 1925 apparently are becoming extinct, Dr. Edward Lee Thorndike of Columbia University today told the American Psychological Association.

Such as: children are born with instinctive knowledge of good and evil; lines in a person's hand foretell his future; women are inferior to men in intelligence, but they're purer by nature; a square jaw is a sign of will power, and a high forehead means you're bright and the person who doesn't look you in the eye is probably dishonest.

Dr. Levitt gave a list of these and other superstitions and misbeliefs he found prevailing today. He compared their answers with the same questionnaire given to students in 1925.

Far smaller percentages still thought the statements were true, he said.

But, he said, a different list was held on other subjects. This showed that many false beliefs still are pretty current today.

Such as: all criminals are feeble-minded; the American Indian sees better than the white man; the complexity of life is causing more insanity; the color red excites a bull (it's waving anything of any color, he explained); open judgs by reason and women by feelings and intuition.

NO DIRECT PRICE CONTROLS NOW SAYS ST. LAURENT

Cost-of-Living Index Continues its Upsurge

Ottawa, Sept. 5 (CP) — The government is going to rely for the present on indirect price controls to combat inflation in Canada, Prime Minister St. Laurent said last night.

He outlined the unchanged stand against direct price controls now in an address prepared for delivery in the CBC's frenchtime political broadcast series.

Mr. St. Laurent offered these suggestions for ways in which Canadians could help to hold down the cost of living:

"The first is to do what we can individually and in co-operation with others to produce more and to keep down production costs; the second is to save everything we can—both money and materials; and the third is to postpone the buying of things we can get along without."

A few hours before the Prime Minister's address the Bureau of Statistics reported the cost-of-living index continued its upsurge in July, advancing 1.3 points to a new high of 188.9 from 187.6.

Prices moved up for goods, clothing, home furnishings, fuel and a group of miscellaneous items including street-car fares, health charges, theatre admissions and newspaper rates.

Wholesale Price Drops

But on the wholesale side, the bureau reported price drops for a group of essential materials from July to June — pushing its weekly index for 30 industrial materials down to 283.3 on Aug. 31 for a point decline from 296.1 for July 27.

The drop in wholesale prices could mean a decline in some living costs in the months ahead.

Mr. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, issued a statement after hearing the bureau's latest cost-of-living figures. He said in part:

"Another sharp increase in the cost of living makes immediate government action imperative. . . . subsidies to compensate farmers for rising costs of production and for lower food prices are essential.

"Significantly, sharp rent increases demanded to take effect on Oct. 1 play no part yet in the oppressively-high cost of living. Failing government which fails to act now should forfeit the confidence of the people. Parliament should be recalled to opinion without delay in October."

Mr. St. Laurent devoted his entire 5,200-word radio address to the cost of living.

British Negotiators Given Fifteen Days to Reopen Oil Talks or Have Workers Ousted

Tehran, Sept. 5 (CP) Premier Mohammed Mossadegh today gave British negotiators a 15-day deadline to reopen Anglo-Iranian oil talks or have British technicians ousted from Iran.

The "get-tough" policy won an immediate vote of confidence from the Iranian Senate. It goes to the Majlis (lower House) tomorrow.

Mossadegh appealed for a vote after saying he would cancel repossession permits of 300 technicians remaining at the refinery city of Abadan unless the British government agreed to resume negotiations.

Following the breakdown of negotiations, Britain made clear that she would retain full control of the giant British-built Abadan refinery until a settlement was reached. Earlier Britain said she would take "necessary measures" to protect British interests in Iran.

Mossadegh said today talks should be reopened on the proposals Iran submitted Aug. 22, when the talks broke down.

Britain halted the talks on ways to produce and sell Iranian oil jointly under Iran's new nationalization law after Mossadegh rejected British proposals that the oil production be under British management.

In turn the British mission chief, Richard Stokes, turned down a three-point proposal presented by Mossadegh. It was:

1. Former customers would be given priority to buy oil in the same amounts they had as customers of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

2. Foreign oil experts would be hired under individual contracts with Iran at the same pay and privileges the AIOC offered.

3. Iran was prepared to consider possible claims of the AIOC for compensation for nationalized property.

The prime minister said he would not agree to any British counter proposals which:

1. Have exclusive rights of sale of Iran oil to Britain.

2. Give Britain a finding management at Abadan.

3. Agreed to any discount on Iranian oil sales which were based on a 50-50 sharing agreement.

He said he would agree on a managerial board and a board of directors on which experts "from neutral countries" sat.

Mossadegh charged that the British are trying to bring an economic crisis to Iran by remaining in Abadan but refusing to ship oil from the refinery storage tanks.

"The Iranian government cannot tolerate the present situation any longer," he said.

He added that as long as the stalemate continued it would be impossible to hire other foreign experts to ship oil to new customers.

At a subsequent prices conference Mossadegh's assistant, Hussein Fatemi, said the premier's decision to present an ultimatum had defeated a British plan "to sit on the fence" and await the fall of the government.

Fatemi said that if the Britons broke the oil industry the government will employ technicians from Switzerland, Sweden, Holland and across the Soviet bloc.

He said Iran is not anxious to employ American technicians since these "would almost inevitably adopt the British line and attempt to bring Iran under the influence of the big oil trusts."

TRAIN AND TRUCK COLLIDE, OTTAWA MAN IS KILLED

Accident Occurs North of Kingston

Kingston, Sept. 5—(CP)—The third level crossing accident in the Kingston district within the past week Tuesday night claimed its first fatality when an Ottawa truck driver was killed in the head-on collision of a C.N.R. freight train and a heavy transport truck.

Dead is Arthur George Waugh, 35, driver of a Taggart Service Company transport which collided with a slow-moving freight train at the level crossing about ½ mile north of the village of Elgin on Highway No. 15. Elgin is about 25 miles north of Kingston. Police said Waugh was badly mangled by the train.

The impact was so great that the cab of the truck was severed from the rest of the vehicle and tossed sideways across the road. It was wedged against one of the box cars so tightly that provincial police, firemen and civilian volunteers worked for more than an hour before they managed to disengage the wreckage.

Parts of the truck were strewn through the hall and people grabbed for earphones.

He called attention to the fact that representatives of the Chinese Peoples Republic (Red China) were not represented.

He said for many years these people had fought against Japanese affiliation and were victims of their aggression.

The Chinese people have an indisputable right to take part in the settlement of peace with Japan," Gromyko said.

Gromyko insisted it was inadmissible and unlawful to bar the Chinese People's Republic from participating in the conference.

He declared the Soviet government proposed that an invitation be sent to the Central Peoples Government of China to participate from the very beginning.

"That is why I have asked the conference to take action on the matter right away."

Gromyko talked for six minutes.

Proposal Out of Order

Acheson said the matter of business before the conference was adoption of the rules and held that the Soviet proposal was out of order.

Acheson said the rules of order were now under discussion.

There were handicaps through the assembly.

The representative of Czechoslovakia, Dr. Gertruda Sekaninova, Deputy Foreign Minister, speaking in English, rose and said: "I rise first on the point of the U.S.S.R., be considered.

Acheson denied the request.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—(AP)—Russia blocked immediate adoption of British — American rules for control of the Japanese Peace Conference today and protested red China's absence from the meeting.

The conference was called to order at 10.10 a. m., (1.10 p. m. EDT), today by State Secretary Acheson.

The Russian delegation, all in place, sat stolidly, leaning back in their chairs listening to the translation.

Moves Adoption

Acheson recognized Sir Carl Berendsen, New Zealand ambassador, who said the rules of procedure were adequate and formally moved for their adoption.

Oscar Gans, Minister of State of Cuba, seconded.

Andrei Gromyko, head of the Soviet delegation, walked to the stage and there was" no stir through the hall as people grabbed for earphones.

He called attention to the fact that representatives of the Chinese Peoples Republic (Red China) were not represented.

He said for many years these people had fought against Japanese affiliation and were victims of their aggression.

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—(AP)—The United States and Britain today faced an immediate shutdown with Russia over control of the Japanese treaty conference when President Truman challenged the Soviets to make good their talk of peace by signing the treaty.

The Kremlin's chief delegate, Andrei Gromyko, heard the president's challenge at the conference opening last night.

"The treaty now before us offers more than a bit of peace," Mr. Truman said. "It offers action for peace. This conference will show, therefore, who seeks to make peace and who seeks to prevent it; who wishes to put an end to war, and who wishes to continue it."

Later at an American reception for the delegates, the Soviet foreign minister shook hands with Truman and spoke briefly with some of the diplomats.

To one of these, Kenneth Younger of Britain, he expressed the belief that the conference will last a month.

U.S. Have Not Forgotten

Truman's speech pictured the treaty as affording Japan an opportunity "to win the friendship and trust of other peoples over the years to come." He reminded the Japanese, however, "the U.S. has not forgotten Pearl Harbor or Hatsan," and made it plain that the actions of the Americans will depend on Japan's future conduct.

For the remaking of Japan under the six-year U.S. occupation he paid tribute to the "outstanding leadership" of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, whom he

Could Wipe Out Civilization
U.S. Possesses 'Fantastic' Weapons Truman Warns

San Francisco, Sept. 5.—(CP) —President Truman' disclosed Tuesday existence of new weapons that "would wipe out civilization" in event of an "all-out war".

Truman, talking at a luncheon of Democratic party workers, said:

"It is terrible to think of what would happen if we should have another world war. No one can imagine the destruction, the loss of life.

He suggested there were weapons more fearful, even than the atomic bomb and the projected hydrogen bomb.

"New weapons mean that an all-out war would wipe out civilization," he declared.

It is the job of every American. . . to do all he can to prevent all-out war" but there are a lot of people who don't seem to understand this, and who are unwilling to pay the taxes for arm this country and its allies.

These people are flirting with national suicide," he added.

He said that there are "fantastic" weapons that might be used in the future. Some of these include not only the weapon people "fear the most" — atomic bombs — but weapons of germ and hydrogen bombs—but some "fantastic in their operations."

"I hope we'll not have to use them," he said, "the U.S. could not afford that gamble."

Aerial Guard Keeps Eagle-Eye Watch on Flyers in Dominion

Winnipeg, Sept. 5 (CP)—An aerial guard stretching from coast to coast keeps an eagle-eye watch on the safety of flyers in Canada's far-flung frontiers.

The R.C.A.F. is the watch-dog of protecting persons in distress, particularly plane passengers. Five air bases are co-ordination centres scattered through the area are on the alert 24 hours a day.

They are ready and equipped for late action immediately, whether it's a call for an 800-mile mercy flight in the Arctic regions or a search for a missing plane that may be down in country where is an area of several million square miles.

Because centres last year flew 218 missions of which 53 were air rescues and 112 mercy flights. A total of 2,548 hours were flown, many of them over Canadian coastal waters.

A typical rescue centre is No. 10 communications and rescue flight stationed at Stevenson Field at Winnipeg. It has just completed an "Operational Tasche," an international air search that brought three Wisconsin fishermen from the Barren Lands of the northwest territories back after they had been lost for 29 days.

Another centre directed the biggest air search in Canadian history in January, 1950, when a United States C-54 with 44 persons aboard disappeared over the Yukon on a flight from Anchorage to Great Falls, Mont. Some 60 Canadian and American planes searched three weeks but the missing plane was never found.

Kiwanians Discuss Proposed Changes In the By-Laws

Discussion on proposed changes in the by-laws of the local Kiwanis Club featured the dinner meeting Tuesday at Kiwanis Centre. Voting on the contemplated changes will take place next week.

In the entertainment field a snappy sextet of George Currie, Taylor Franklin, Everett Fairman, L. A. Kells, Jim Musgrove and Ardell Wilson, accompanied by Phil Huddlestone at the piano welcomed the fall season with a rendition of "School Days." The rest of the club, like good truants, tried to scuttle this vocal offering with a noisy verse of "Roll Out the Barrel," but as always the school masters prevailed, finishing their second chorus unchallenged, amidst a hearty round of applause.

Stan Joss won the attendance award donated by Norm Edwards.

Dick Kuntze reminded the members about the forthcoming address to the inter-service club meeting of CBC commentator John Fisher.

President Everett Fairman presided over the meeting.

30-Pound 'Lunge Hooked in Moira Near Plainfield

It was the first muskie which the two fishermen had ever caught but the 30-pound 'lunge which Roy Shetler, 60-A Bridge Street, West, and George Madden 369 Bleecker Ave., landed last evening in the Moira River near O'Brien's Bridge, was a dandy.

The big fellow was caught with a pfleuger spinner, while the two men were trolling a short distance south of O'Brien's Bridge, eight miles north of the city. It took 35 minutes to land the muskie which put up a good fight before he was taken into the boat.

The fish was 51 inches in length and had a girth of 19 inches.

The two young fishermen who had their dreams of catching a big muskie realized, are employees of Northern Electric and came to Belleville from Montreal.

Robt. J.S. Dewar, Former County Official, Dies

Well-known resident of this city and former county official, Robert J. S. Dewar passed away early today at his 245 John St. home following a lengthy illness. He was in his 76th year.

Born in Harriston, Ont., son of the late Halton County Crown Attorney, John Dewar and Mrs. Dewar, he joined the staff of the Standard Bank of Canada serving it for 24 years before becoming associated with the Dominion Match Company of Deseronto. He acted as manager of that company for the next eight years.

In 1925 the late Mr. Dewar was appointed registrar of the county of Hastings a position he held until ill-health forced him to retire a few years ago.

Of a modest unassuming disposition, Mr. Dewar was highly esteemed in service club, church and the many other circles in which he moved. He was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church of which he was an elder; the Rotary Club, the 22nd Club, the Belleville Club and was a Past Master of Craig Lodge AF and AM, Deseronto. An enthusiastic bowler and curler, Mr. Dewar followed these recreational activities consistently in his younger days. He gave much of his time and effort to the National Institute for the Blind.

Surviving are his widow the former Miss Doris Bull, one son, John of Bancroft; two brothers Frank Dewar and Arthur and two sisters, Miss Beatrice Dewar and Mrs. Jean Cooke, all of West Vancouver, B.C.

The funeral arrangements appear elsewhere in this edition.

Furnace Oil Seeps Over Floor And Catches Fire

Trenton (Special) —A leaky oil furnace caused Mayor Kenneth J. Couch more than the usual amount of concern around noon on Sunday.

The oil had seeped out over the basement floor underneath the furnace motor and caught fire soon after the Mayor turned the furnace on.

After switching the heater on Mr. Couch went outside to watch a car accident in front of his home on Dundas Street. On returning he smelled smoke and on entering the basement found the place filled with smoke and flames leaping up in front of the furnace.

The Mayor quickly summoned the fire department who removed the danger with an application of CO_2.

There was no damage to the furnace or any of the household effects.

FISHERMAN'S ARGUMENT

A 28-pound muskie with a four pound carp lodged in its throat provided grounds for argument among U.S. fishermen in a Carrying Place camp over the holidays.

Recently Harry Albright with McKaig and Hatch Co., of Buffalo hauled in the big fish and weighed it before envious onlookers. He had established a season record and took his place in exalted circles.

But Harry's balloon burst on arrival back home where he found his prize carried four pounds of excess baggage. The hungry muskie had apparently picked up a fish delicacy before pouncing on Albright's bait.

Now the argument is should the 28-pound muskie catch be considered a 24-pound one or not.

R. J. Messervey Has Best Hen In Show at CNE

R. J. Messervey, 87 Gordon St., poultry breeder and judge, has received the highest award to be given at the C. N. E., when on Monday a White Orpington hen, owned by Mr. Messervey, won the grand champion of the show. Every breed and class was entered in this competition and four outstanding poultry judges stated after the contest had been completed that the hen judged the best in the show, as being the best hen of its kind in the world.

A large number of birds were exhibited by Mr. Messervey and he succeeded in winning all the major awards in the White Orpington class. The cockerel that won first place in the show of 1950 repeated as the best cock in the class of this year and another cock bird won second place. He swept the board in the hen class, winning all three prizes and also he has some good pullets coming on, for his pullets won first and third in their class.

Prize Cock

Youth Found Hanged

Cleveland, Sept. 5—(AP)—Another youth has been found dead here with a noose around his neck.

The latest death was that of Ronald Colby, 13, who was found in the bedroom of his Cleveland Heights home last night, hanging from a hook on a closet door.

On Aug. 13, Richard Tanno, also 13, was found hanging in a deserted filling station here. The coroner ruled the boy apparently had slipped after placing the rope around his neck as an experiment.

Police theorized the Colby boy might have read of young Tanno's death in the newspapers and tried a similar experiment.

PICTON

Record Number Of Accidents Keep Police Busy

Picton—A record number of accidents over the holiday weekend kept police busy. One life was claimed and a number of others suffered painful injuries.

Everett Goodmurphy, 46 of Athol township, was instantly killed Monday night when the car in which he was riding, crashed into a ditch and then into a tree on the Cherry Valley-Salmon Point road.

While this accident was being investigated, a call came from near Bloomfield, on highway 14, that there had been a serious accident. A stock car, which had taken part in races here, was being towed to Trenton by a light truck. The brakes locked and the car turned over. Joe DeFosse of Trenton, a passenger was thrown out and suffered cuts on the legs and an injured lip. Boyd Ferguson of Glen Miller, steering the car was unhurt. Harold Wickens, Trenton, was driving the truck which was completely turned around on the highway.

The same night, County Constable Earl Marvin investigated an accident a mile from the scene of the latter crash. A car driven by Arthur Bongard, Belleville, failed to make a turn and smashed into several guard rails at the Christie corner. He was unhurt.

Earlier, cars driven by Mrs. Ruth Stewart of Binghampton, N.Y., and Harold Rogers, Hamilton, collided head-on at the top of a hill at Consecon. Mrs. Stewart suffered cuts on the leg and was treated at Trenton hospital. Mrs. Rogers was cut about the head and legs. Her daughters, Phyllis and Susan suffered cuts. Mr. Rogers was not hurt. The Rogers were en route to Picton to visit her sister, Mrs. Corbett, wife of Major Corbett of the Salvation Army.

Opening of school yesterday saw an accident in the village of Bloomfield. Bobby, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Jenkins of that village, was riding his bicycle when it was struck by a car. He was admitted to Prince Edward County hospital here and treated for an injured scalp. County Constable James Lovelace investigated.

White, Colored Cheese all Sold At 36 Cents

A flat price of 36 cents per lb for both white and colored cheese all cheese boarded on the Belleville Cheese Exchange Tuesday night, Swift Canadian Company made a selection of 372 colored and 602 white and the Marketing Board took the balance at the price bid.

A total of 1,953 colored cheese, 4,019 white and 1,291 specials were boarded on the exchange.

Shortage of cheese boxes is holding up shipments of cheese in some instances, it was noted by salesmen and buyers. Some factories were unable to ship all their cheese last week because of lack of boxes.

In the future factories must report the number of cheese they have to the Exchange secretary or their cheese will not be boarded. In past years when a factory did not report it has been the custom to estimate the number such factories would have and board them.

Utilities showed the broadest list of gains, Agriculturex, foods, refining oils and miscellaneous industrials climbed moderately while constructions, liquors and textiles held firm. Papers, steels and retail stores turned mixed. Banks and manufacturing companies weakened.

Consolidated Smelters, Estella, Cassiar, Golden Manitou, International Nickel, Quebec Manitou, Steep Rock and United Keno Hill recorded the best advances. Barvue, East Sullivan, Minda-Scotia, Quebec copper and silver standard eased.

Minister of Welfare Tendered Complimentary Banquet At Close of Marmora Fair

Marmora — Marmora Village Council, Marmora and Lake Township Council, Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, Marmora Agricultural Society and Marmora Conservative Association combined on Monday evening in tendering Hon. William A. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, a complimentary dinner in the Royal Hotel, Marmora.

Duties of chairman were discharged by Irwin McCoy, reeve of Marmora and Lake Township, who spoke of the honor to the district in having the Minister of Welfare with them that day. At present the Hon. William Goodfellow was acting Minister of Agriculture and here again from the standpoint of agriculture, we had a year to be thankful for.

Reeve Welcomes Visitor

Reeve Vincent Lynch of Marmora Village was the next speaker. He felt all had enjoyed themselves at the well attended fair of that day. He extended congratulations to the executive members of the Agricultural Society on the success of the fair. Marmora, he remarked, was entering the threshold of a new life. As mid-West, the C.C.F. and M.P.P.'s had been bothered in their past, they would be bothered more in future. The district will require action, and he said smilingly, "We know they are going to get action for us."

John McAvoy, the hard working president of the Agricultural Society, thanked all for their patronage of the fair. He said the gate receipts were almost double that of the previous year. He reminded that the fair was not held on what were agricultural grounds but what is now Marmora's Community Centre. Everything had been done to make the fair a success and he was decidedly pleased with the assistance given.

Greetings From County

Warden Harry Coulter was pleased to bring greetings of Hastings county council to the village and the Agricultural Society. It was an uphill climb, as he knew from experience for all Fair Boards. He congratulated the local executive on the way the fair was put over. He expressed his personal pleasure that the village was on the doorsteo of a flourishing period.

R. G. Walsh general manager of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited thanked the executive for the pleasant and interesting day which they had provided. He referred to the change which Deloro is undergoing at the present time—its face lifting operation. A large part of the old plant has been torn down and reinstallation is proceeding in a modern fashion. The price of cobalt is the same The price of cobalt is the same of course supplies have gone up and so production must be carried on at less cost to make the business profitable. With the new equipment, he expected that in six months, they would be producing three times the amount of cobalt that they are now producing. Mr. Walsh paid a fitting tribute to the technical knowledge of the staff members. In concluding, he said, "We hope we can foresee the plant operating for many years."

Exhibitor For 35 Years

Verney Heath, reeve of Rawdon township, said he had been an exhibitor at Mirmoras fair for the past 35 years and he judged the 1951 fair to be the most successful ever held. He considered it good of the Minister of Welfare to spare time out of his busy life to visit the fair.

George White, MP, told of his associations with Hon. William Goodfellow. Federal members had mentioned to him about the good points of the minister's administration of his office. With the proposed pension changes, he felt the guest of honor would be as efficient in their handling as in the past. Having recently returned from a trip to British Columbia, he was able to throw some light upon the appeal of that province to initiate free hospitalization and medical service for all those on a small income. He referred to handicaps in the way of its success. Speaking at the close of his address to those who serve in public offices, he reminded his hearers that they have great responsibilities and nothing they did should be too much hurried along.

Society Congratulated

Alex Fraser, president of the local Chamber of Commerce, extended congratulations to the Agricultural Society. The Chamber of Commerce is always working for the welfare of the community. It has been the main blood in Marmora and district. There was now a new opportunity to go further and he joined the reeve of the village in the hope that the government would help in this respect.

Elmer Sandercock MPP, introduced the guest of honor. He congratulated the president and officers of the agricultural Society on the success of the fair. He had been present when the Minister of Mines had visited Marmora. Marmora expected to be a real boom town and would be under a beautifying program. He referred with pride to the Hon. the Speaker's line up in the progress of erection, towards the cost of which the Department of Welfare is paying 50 percent.

Hon. W. Goodfellow said that being close to home, he would be humble. It was important that MPP's and MPP's should meet constituents at gatherings such as fairs. "The government," he declared, "is a big business and you people are the government for you elect us. People in Ontario feel there should be some free hospitalization scheme, It is the ordinary people who need such assistance. The government in Ottawa and that in Queen's Park should co-operate to the full for the benefit of the people of Ontario. It was also good for rural people to meet with urban people in discussing matters of mutual welfare.

We must keep up production in this country because it is production that counts. He closed by saying that he was out to help those who could not help themselves. There will be no handouts to those who can help themselves.

Canon J. M. Brownlie in tendering a vote of thanks, said that all had listened to a speech in which they felt down to earth, honest to goodness human touch.

Red Police Seize Five Berlin Buses

Berlin, Sept. 5 (AP) —Communist police seized five Berlin buses en route to West Germany over the international highway today despite the fact their drivers paid the new Russian zone road tax, western police reported.

About 120 German passengers were released.

Reason for the seizure was not known. This was the first incident of its kind since the communists slapped on their road toll last Friday midnight.

Heretofore, if the driver of a bus or other motor vehicle paid his toll he was permitted to pass.

King George To Visit Medical Advisers

London, Sept. 5—(Reuters)—The King, now on vacation in Scotland, will pay a private visit to London Saturday to give his medical advisers an opportunity of making a thorough examination, it was announced from Buckingham Palace today.

It was understood the King's vacation is proceeding normally and he is expected to attend the annual highland games at Braemar tomorrow. He will leave Scotland by train Friday evening and return Sunday.

It was reported last Thursday that the King, after a day on the moors, had complained of a cold. Dr. Geoffrey Marshall, chest specialist, and Dr. George Coodman, the radiologist, flew to Balmoral Saturday to see him and returned the same night.

Their attendance was described as purely routine.

It was their first visit since the King arrived in Scotland a month ago. They are understood to have attended him several times since his illness in June, when he was attacked by catarrhal inflammation of the lung.

The King and Queen are due to leave Southampton Jan. 22 for a tour of Australia.

Today's announcement from Buckingham Palace said: "The King will pay a private visit to London on Saturday to give his medical advisers an opportunity of making a thorough examination. His Majesty will return to Balmoral on Saturday evening."

DE-RUSTING INVENTION SAVES MILLIONS

Britain is "making" a thousand tons of steel a week by a secret-process "laundry" which de-rusts junk steel and makes it ready for use as good as new.

The rust-coated scrap metal is brought from junk yards all over the country to ten strategically located "laundries" which process the metal. The rust-covered metal is bathed in 3,000-gallon vats containing a solution of electrolytic alkali. One chemical removes grease, a second washes off rust, and a third polishes. Though the bath penetrates the structure of the metal, not a fraction of an inch of good metal is lost, claim the "laundry" engineers. Tanks, locomotives, nuts and bolts come out almost like new.

Engineers estimate that in Britain, industry loses about $150,000,000 a year from rust.

The firm which owns the secret formula claims that machine tools worth $560 a ton can be recovered for from $56 to $84 a ton; that nuts and bolts worth $2 a ton can be recovered for about $56 a ton. There is also claimed to be a big saving in labor, since no item takes longer than two hours to put through the "laundry."

The British armed forces are taking full advantage of the new idea. The weekly military "wash" includes some 4,000 shells, 40 light anti-aircraft guns, 5,000 mess kits, and large numbers of gun barrels, all salvaged from huge dumps of war material.

Lancashire cotton mill put out of commission by water during a fire had a million rusty rollers re-habilitated in two weeks. It would have had to wait one and a half years for new ones.

The future of this metal "laundry" would appear to be bright. Millions of dollars could be saved in Canada, the United States and many other countries by salvage of junk steel if the owners of the secret process were encouraged to expand their operations.

EATING THE PEST

(Globe and Mail)

The spirit of enterprise is essentially the art of seeing an opportunity and taking advantage of it. A first-class example of this talent is related by an Ontario Lands and Forests bulletin, which tells of a Toronto processor of smoked fish products who is making a good business out of preparing lamprey eels for the market. Lamprey eels are ocean fish which have found their way into the Great Lakes. They possess a disc-like mouth, which fastens on other fish and sucks away their blood. They have become such a menace to Great Lakes fish that they are largely blamed for considerable degree for the extreme fall in the fish yield in recent years. The governments of both Ontario and the United States have been seeking methods of controlling the pest.

The Toronto fish processor knew that certain immigrant groups were accustomed to eating smoked lampreys in their home countries. It was a logical market to start with, and in two years he has built his business to the point where he has used half the catch made by Lands and Forests weirs placed at the mouths of spawning streams used by the lamprey eels. If more eels were available, it is believed that the United States market could be entered with assured profit. The success of this piece of enterprise suggests that commercial fishermen might develop methods of catching the lamprey eels to supply the demand, and thus incidentally help to control the menace to other types of fish.

This new business is in the best tradition of free enterprise, a man with an imagination to see a need used what all his fellow-businessmen had overlooked in order to create some new wealth. No doubt they will all be running after the business now that he has shown the way. But being in the business first is often an asset as is improved on the original idea. Some one a few years ago got a similar idea concerning smelts, once regarded as a prime nuisance by fishermen, now a widely accepted delicacy in home and restaurant. The list of familiar products is studded with episodes like these, and many an honored name in the commercial world started with the exploitation of something everybody else had thought useless. There is something very pleasant about such stories. It is to be hoped with confidence that they are to be told only in countries where private initiative remains free.

WHY DON'T THEY MOVE?

(Newsweek)

One important reason the U.S. is reluctant to move its defence line in Korea back to the 38th Parallel is the presence of a major tungsten mine in the disputed area.

Korea was at one point a major supplier of this vital super-hard metal, essential in making machine tools, electronics equipment, and jet engines. A critical shortage of tungsten is currently slowing the U.S. defence program.

AUTUMN FRAGRANCE

It must be canning time again!
Once more to greet home-coming men
There is a most delicious smell.
So fragrant is the atmosphere,
Although a passer-by I am,
I can detect while drawing near
Which mother has been making jam.

Crab apple jelly I can tell
From peach preserve upon the spot
I learned to know them from their smell
When I was just a little tot.

And since the senses must be trained,
My mother taught such things to me.
She very carefully explained
Both caraway and savory.

We long retain what love has taught.
As past a little home I went
The other night, I'll swear I caught
The long lost mustard pickle scent.

'Twas chili sauce a step ahead;
Red currant jelly followed then.
"Oh, happy memory!" I said
"It must be canning time again."

TRUE LOYALTY

The story of Ruth and her mother-in-law Naomi and her sister-in-law Orpah is one of the great love stories of all literature, as well as one of the most engaging narratives found in the Bible.

Naomi, after her husband's death, decided to leave the land of Moab and return to her native Israel. Her sons—now dead also—had married Moabite women, Ruth and Orpah. Naomi was set to go back to Israel, but her advice to her daughters-in-law was that they remain in their own country of Moab. It was a time of great heartsearching for the two girls. At last Orpah kissed her mother-in-law and turned back to Moab, with its idols and history.

But Ruth showed a great love for her mother-in-law's pleading and decided she would stick with this dear woman, whom she loved, as long as she lived. We read that Orpah kissed her mother-in-law but Ruth clave unto her.

In these two girls we see the difference between sentimentality and love, between a superficial loyalty and an abiding one. Orpah's sentiment was good as far as it went, but she was not the type to stand fast in a day of trouble. Ruth, on the other hand, decided that no matter how much it would cost her she would do the thing she believed to be right. She made a great decision in a spirit of true greatheartedness, and she ranks today among the great in literature and sacred history.

OUR TOWN

MEN AT PLAY

MONTREAL

I seem fated, in my occasional visits to Montreal, to pick a hotel which is being taken over as a temporary snake pit by a convention and this visit is no exception.

This haggard, drawn look comes from two long and sleepless nights, and for that I have to thank some gentlemen known as the Knights of Columbus or something like that.

The knights, part of a poor man's Shriners, are sliding about Montreal in a most inhibited manner, wearing their fancy hats and with the inevitable electric gadgets to shock Montreal's pretty girls.

This is none of my business and by taking to the side streets I am able to keep myself removed from their boyish pranks. But in my hotel room they have me trapped, surrounded and at their mercy.

I do not know what it is that makes a moderately successful and slightly aging businessman act like a juvenile delinquent when he is away from mama, but whatever it is this is the most horrible example I've seen.

Most of one whole floor of the hotel was given over to the great unwashed and I was one of them.

When I rode up in the elevator to my room last night was under the with the knights, pummelling each other like amiable bears, bellowing their confidences of the previous night's escapades.

When one man produced a large, shiny pumpkin from under his coat I knew I was in for a night on the rack.

Sailors

The real chaos did not begin until after midnight when the knights began to return from their assault on Montreal's night life, bruised and triumphant.

I was awakened first by a heavy pounding on my door.

An immense red man under a little fez stood there weaving like a pine in a high wind. I noted from his badge that he was a refugee from Syracuse, N.Y.

"I wanna see Al" he announced. He was the first of several visitors under the impression that this was Al's room.

One party of four, including a man who carried a large street sign saying "No Parking", insisted on searching my room for Al, one of them carefully opening the window and looking down six storeys to make sure that Al wasn't out there.

In the meantime the parties had got under way and I lay in my bed trying to decide from the sounds what was going on.

In the room to the right, if I was to believe my ears, they were throwing an iron ball against the wall.

In the room to my left there was a sound like roller-skating on a tin floor.

A mutilated babble of shouts and occasionally a female's scream came across the hall.

It was very gray dawn when the trumpet player staggered home, rendering "My Old Kentucky Home" and two men came to my door to ask for Al. They were in bare feet, their trouser legs rolled up, and appeared to have been in wading.

When I had closed the door I realized that I was now ready to accept anything. If Al himself had walked through the window I couldn't have surprised me.

Morning After

In the corridor that morning, riding down to the lobby, I found myself again with the merry men of the previous night. I did find myself wan from the weary night but alongside my companions I was a veritable rose.

The knights stood, grey-faced, staring ahead out of sightless, sunken eyes enough to frighten the spangled fezzes looking curiously out of place over such grave features.

In the lobby they were milling about like lost lambs, who had played the trumpet sat in a corner, carefully looking at an invisible object two inches in front of his eyes. There was an atmosphere of patient waiting.

I had no sympathy in my heart for their suffering. Indeed it seemed to me fitting that they should pay up on my sleep in the night ahead.

I went about my business and left them to their contemplation of the sin of Adam.

As I entered the lobby I knew that I could kiss my hopes goodbye.

At the elevators stood four members of the order. They had clearly been up all night restoring their spirits.

One leered and, sighting me, cried, "Well, say! Here's that friend of Al's!"

And then they were coming at me with arms outstretched.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We would all like to think that nobody will be able to look back upon this generation with horror. But, of course, the horror of modern man than the wars we staged. But in the ordinary domestic scene, we are pretty comfortable in our belief that we are about as humane a generation as we have ever been.

Peter Quennell has just published an edition of a book, "Mayhew's London," which is a well-illustrated in 1851, the year of the Great Exhibition. Apparently the Exhibition could be said to have launched the Victorian Age on its full cycle. These books Characters describe in minute and passionless detail the chimney sweeps, the child laborers, the poor, their wages, homes, beds, kitchens, meals, etc. There is no reforming zeal in the book, no passion, no politics. Mayhew just wrote about things as they were and of people in London one hundred years ago who appealed him as "characters." The book builds up to a feeling of horror that amounts almost to shock. But the horror lies not in the disgust in your mind after you have read it is the nasty suspicion that we generation are like itself. We can be perfectly sure that the generation which staged the Crystal Exhibition of 1851 was greatly pleased with itself. Deep around the fringe of the Exhibition were hosts of "characters," underprivileged, poor, oppressed and thirsty for a better deal: but it never apparently occurred to them or to the Victorian reformers to proposed upon them that life could be any different. We always have the "characters" with us.

The enormous social strides since 1851 are decidedly by Mayhew rather than the historians. Our pride in t is doubtless equalled only by our pride of the generation who staged the Great Exhibition in the enormous bombing they had done over 1951. What do you suppose there will be about us that will horrify our great-grandchildren in 2051?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

INDESTRUCTIBLE NATURE

The more you look out upon nature the more you are amazed at its everlasting qualities. The great tree falls after a hundred years or so of life and its useful parts are used it. Then it decays, and spreads its substance into the earth. Its strength is largely to give to the stronger a prolonged life. But there is little group, among all the trees, do. The robins, or crows, or sparrows or pigeons do not get it into their heads that they should dominate all the earth and so therefore group together to emphasize their mastering power over all others. They were put into this world for a purpose to live and let live so as to furnish a happy balance.

And what happiness you view every day in nature. There is little or no discrimination among the birds. Roving about in the woods this summer I kept track of dozens of varieties of birds, flowers and trees, not to mention many contented smaller animals of the wild. There is harmony, beauty, and selflessness about all nature that suggests peace, and a blending of all elements.

Listen—the whip wind. Listen—the song of the sparrow or wood thrush, Listen—the patter of the rain upon the earth, proof-loving, and gentle drops of shining water from the leaves of the trees. And Listen—to the call of birds and squirrels, in their free world. How inspiring all this is and what instruction can we gain from it if we will have but an open ear and an open receptive heart! Nature is forever renewing and re-building.

None of us is but a fraction as happy as we should be, with all of history and nature from which to draw hope and inspiration. You see, God is in it all, and wants us to hunt Him out and be at one with Him! There are no limits placed upon spiritual wealth, and it is all free!

HOW ABOUT THIS EATING FOR TWO?

Even the neighborhood fish-wives who delight in torturing the ignorant young expectant mother with morbid stories have no serious objection to the idea that expectant mothers should "eat for two."

A century ago or earlier this idea was sound enough. Today the idea is still sound but practical application of the idea is no longer a simple matter of eating a little more food than ordinarily.

The everyday diet of our people has changed in certain vital essentials since the middle of the nineteenth century. Refined white flour, and refined white sugar has replaced brown sugar and molasses. Up to 1850 freshly ground wheat flour from the local gristmill and brown sugar and/or real molasses yielded most of the calories in the everyday diet of most Americans plus adequate vitamins and minerals to maintain good health and prevent nutritional deficiency diseases. Today most of the calories in the everyday diet of most Americans are derived from refined white flour and refined white sugar or syrup and so-called "enriched" bread, otherwise looking, bleached, longkeeping, cheap, tasteless, and yield practically no vitamins and/or minerals and consequently most of us suffer from nutritional troubles which are manifestations of nutritional deficiency.

If the expectant mother has enough to buy and consume her daily ration of such excellent foods as milk, cheese, eggs, skim wheat, fresh fruit, greens and vegetables in season, that's just fine for her and for the baby a stranger too.

From studies made in England, Canada and the United States the Harvard School of Public Health reports:

"In all the cases considered, all stillborn infants, all infants who died within a week after birth—except one—, most infants who had marked congenital defects" (that is, deformities or faults of development) "all premature and all functionally immature infants were born to mothers whose diets were very inadequate."

Just what constitutes an adequate diet for an expectant mother is described in full in some of the essentials of the expectant mother's diet. You will find considerable practical information in the booklet Preparing for Motherhood, for which send 5c and stamped self addressed envelope.

In the pamphlet Wheat is Fat, available on written request if you provide stamped self addressed envelope, you will find numerous suggestions how to use wheat in your everyday family diet, and names of manufacturers of hand and power mills for grinding wheat fresh every day—as a great hotel does, to the delight of guests.

How can we find a good family doctor? We recently moved to this city. (Mrs. W. B. K.)

Answer—Call the County Medical Society number and ask them to name a general practitioner in your vicinity.

Twenty Pounds in Nine Months

A few years ago I read your suggestion that one could gain twenty pounds in a year by eating one slice of bread and butter, with sugar and honey, and drinking a pint (two glasses) of milk every night at bedtime. I tried it and although I had never before been able to put on weight, I gained the twenty in nine months. Also a husband (Mrs. E. W.)

Answer—Thank you. Several other means of gaining weight are described in the pamphlet How to Gain Weight. For a copy send 25c and stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Elmer the Elephant Leads Kinsmen Club Safety Drive

Halifax. (CP)—He says "hello" by waving his nose. His eyes are bright, his smile friendly. His name is Elmer the Elephant.

Canadian Kinsmen Clubs, at their national convention here recently, chose him as a national symbol for a safety campaign for school children.

Soon his picture will hang in hundreds of schools across Canada. Already Elmer pennants fly from many school flag poles.

The Junior-for-Safety idea, originated by a Toronto newspaper, The Telegram, has helped make Toronto the safest city for children and the fourth city in the world in preventing traffic deaths both adult and children.

When Kinsmen delegates return to their home towns they will outline the convention-endorsed plan in their communities and cooperate with police departments, school teachers and parents in furthering the campaign.

Wilfred Schofield, director of Kinsmen Information, Montreal, presented the proposed safety campaign to the delegates—who unanimously endorsed it—and the Elmer pennant to the incoming National Kinsmen President, Syd W. Wade, Vancouver.

The Safety program begins, says Mr. Schofield, with each hundreds of schools across Canada. Already Elmer pennants fly from many school flag poles.

The Junior-for-Safety idea, originated by a Toronto newspaper, The Telegram, has helped make Toronto the safest city for children and the fourth city in the world in preventing traffic deaths both adult and children.

SPRY OCTOGENARIAN

Oslo. (CP)—A halibut weighing 223 pounds was recently caught by 84-year-old Ola Hallbakken of Aalvundfjord, Western Norway. The veteran angler dragged two boys before the giant fish gave up the fight.

U.N. AIR MIGHT BLASTS KOREAN SPAN

U.N. navy fliers raided this bridge in east Korea, which has been object of their attack in previous sorties, and succeeded in knocking out more of the original span, and sections of the repaired bridge. Red supply train operations have been reduced to a trickle of short haul traffic since last January, as a result of U.N. bombing of the east Korean coast railway system. — Central Press Canadian.

Iowa City, Ia., Sept. 5—(AP)—Fourteen Iowa City property owners have petitioned for a street light in an alley across from a girls' dormitory at the University of Iowa. Their reasons: "to deter romantically-inclined youth from unnecessarily obstructing the alley and depriving use of access to garages along the alley."

WEDDINGS

LAPP—HOGLE

Ferns and multi-colored gladioli formed a lovely background in Grace United Church, Trenton, on Saturday, September 1st., at 3 p.m., for the marriage of Doris Marie Hogle, of Trenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Austin Hogle, to Harold Arthur Lapp, of Markham, Ontario, son of Mrs. Arthur Lapp, of Markham, and the late Mr. Arthur Lapp. The Reverend Dr. W. Mustard, of Toronto, assisted by the Reverend G. Puttenham, of Grace United Church, officiated.

Miss Joyce Campbell, church organist, provided the wedding music. The soloist was Miss Evelyn Lapp.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in a bridal gown of white Chantilly lace over Connaught satin, fashioned with fitted bodice with scalloped waistline from which the bouffant skirt fell in graceful folds. The long, tight-fitting sleeves ended in points over the wrists, while a puff of nylon marquisette net held in place by clusters of seed pearls accented the panel of similar material at the bodice. Her fingertip veil of French tulle net was embroidered at the edges, and held by a tiara of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, each rose centred in a gladioli floweret.

Mrs. Frederic Morgan, of Trenton, was matron of honor, and Miss Joyce Westfall, also of Trenton, was bridesmaid. Both wore gowns of similar design, in pastel green nylon over nylon taffeta, featuring multiple tucks on the bodice which were carried on by three wider tucks on the skirt; a shoulder cape with Peter Pan collar, bandeaux of pastel green flowers and cascade bouquets of pale pink roses completed their ensembles.

Mr. Murray Sewell, of Markham, Ontario, was groomsman; Mr. Lorne Rowe, also of Markham, and Mr. Bruce Westfall, of Trenton, were ushers.

The reception was held at the bride's home, where the bride's mother, gowned in navy blue sheer with matching accessories and corsage of red roses, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who also wore navy sheer with grey accessories, and corsage of red roses.

Following the reception, the young couple left for points east via the Thousand Islands and the St. Lawrence river, the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored ensemble. Upon their return, they will reside in Cedar Grove, Ontario.

Guests were present from Rochester, New York; Toronto, Coderich; Markham, Carleton Place, Niagara Falls, London and Berwick, Pa.

Dinner Party Honors Daughter's Birthday

Golden Acres Inn, Kingston Road, was the scene of a happy get-together on Friday last, when 29 guests were entertained to a dinner party by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hopkins, 178 Station Street, in honor of the 50th birthday of their daughter, Mrs. Archie Bales, (Florence), and her husband, Mr. Bales, of Hollywood, California, both of whom were natives of Belleville.

Mrs. Harry Grills, who was mistress of ceremonies, spoke of the great pleasure accorded to herself and her husband in being present on this occasion and of the great distance travelled by Mrs. Bales and her husband in order to be with her parents, sister and brother, and other relatives and friends on this her natal day, adding the thoughts and wishes of all in the well-known rhyme, "We wish her health; We wish her wealth; We wish her happiness; We wish her heaven after death; What could we wish her more"; save many more years of life and a return to Belleville via the Thousand Islands and the St. Lawrence river, the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored ensemble. Upon their return, they will reside in Cedar Grove, Ontario.

Guests were present from Rochester, New York; Toronto, Coderich; Markham, Carleton Place, Niagara Falls, London and Berwick, Pa.

by crystal candelabra and tall, white candles, and vases of lovely pink gladioli. Following the cutting of the cake, "Happy Birthday to You" was sung. The toast to the guest of honor was proposed by her father to which Florence most fittingly responded.

Brief addresses were also given by Noble Brown, William Hopkins, Mrs. Norman Pollett, Bud Doxtator, Harry Grills, Douglas Hopkins, Mr. Patterson, Mr. Brewer and Bob Pollett.

Miss Glenda Doxtator and Richard Atkinson entertained with solos which were greatly appreciated. Community singing rounded out a most happy time.

The guest of honor, who was the recipient of many lovely gifts was also presented with a bouquet of gorgeous gladioli by little Richard.

Among the guests present were, her sister, Mrs. Norman Pollett and family, Mr. and Mrs. R. Pollett, Mr. and Mrs. Patterson, of Kingston; her brother, Mr. William Hopkins and Mrs. Hopkins and family, Thomas, Carman, Ronald and Harold, of Foxboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hopkins, of Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. F. Couple Presented With Many Gifts

An enjoyable evening was spent on Friday, when a large number of River Valley residents gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Richardson, to honor their daughter, Betty, and her husband, Albert Hubble.

Mr. John Donahue was chairman for the occasion and the entertainment for the evening consisted of community singing, a song by the Misses Heasman, a reading by Harry Heasman and also by Mrs. Ernest Carr. Two songs were sung by River Valley school children. Several men, including Mr. Harry Morrow, Mr. Clifford Hubble and Mr. Morley Richardson were called upon for speeches.

An address was read to the bride and groom, Betty and Albert, who were then presented with a large array of beautiful gifts, expressed their appreciation for the kindness shown.

Refreshments were served and a social half-hour enjoyed by everyone.

A cup and saucer shower was held in honor of Betty Richardson, preceding her marriage to Albert Hubble. The shower was given in the home of Mrs. Gerald Richardson and was attended by about 20 close friends of the bride-to-be.

The evening was spent playing cards and the prize for the most lone hands was won by the bride.

Mrs. Ernest Carr read an address wishing Betty every happiness in her married life and asking her to accept the gifts of beautiful cups and saucers. The bride responded to the address and opened her daintily wrapped gifts.

The hostess served delicious refreshments.

Britain's Unions Reject Attempt To Blame U.S.

Blackpool, England, Sept. 5 (Reuters)—Britain's powerful trades union congress today rejected an attempt to blame the United States for "interference" with British trade.

By 5,513,000 votes to 1,795,000, delegates representing 186 unions at the congress' annual meeting turned down a resolution urging more trade with communist countries.

Arthur Deakin, leader of the powerful Transport Workers' Union, opposed the resolution. He claimed the measure, which demanded "a policy of world economic co-operation and an end to American interference with this country's trading policy," had communist sponsorship.

"We want trade with the world on a basis of complete equality," he said. Russia would only co-operate on the basis of other countries accepting the policies and dictates of international communism.

Deakin referred to help under the Marshall plan "so generously given by the American people supported by the organized labor in the U. S."

He rejected the suggestion that British trade suffers from American interference, saying "the British government maintains a ruthless independence in its foreign relationship."

Tom Gardner, general secretary of the Foundry Workers' Union and mover of the resolution, said American dollars had strengthened European cartels and had helped restore German and Japanese industry to compete with Britain.

The congress passed unanimously a resolution protesting the ambassador representing Franco Spain.

The resolution said diplomatic relations with Spain were not only an insult to the British people but a betrayal of the pledges made by the labor government. It asked the government to "review the position."

GIVEN SIX MONTHS

Toronto, Sept. 5 (CP)—Clifford Lock, 24, who left for the showers during a baseball game at suburban Mimico reformatory and kept on going, Tuesday was sentenced to six months for escaping. Lock had been serving a 60-day term for conspiracy. The day previous to his escape, his wife had told him that the Children's Aid Society might take custody of their two children. He was arrested in Toronto one day after he escaped.

GASPE COD FOR ITALY

Quebec, Sept. 5 (CP)—The Quebec Department of Fisheries announced today the Norwegian freighter Kvilhyra recently completed the first of five shipments of salted Gaspe cod to Italy. It ally resumed its cod-purchases at Gaspe this year after a 12-year interruption.

Gaitskell Likely To Discuss Import Situation

London, Sept. 5 (CP)—Plans for a reduction in Britain's dollar imports are expected to be discussed during the North American visit of Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

They would be the first big cuts imposed since 1949, when sterling-area members of the Commonwealth agreed to reduce their dollar purchases by 25 per cent.

Since then Britain's trading position has fluctuated. Soon after devaluation in September, 1949, the country began to pay its way in external trade. Then rearmament, coupled with an unprecedented peacetime rise in import prices, tightened the screws on an already-strained economy.

Whitehall now is known to be concerned over the balance-of-payments position. Gaitskell, who left London airport last night for talks in Washington and Ottawa, coupled with an earlier to the Trades Union Congress at Blackpool that the government might be "driven" to slash imports.

Discusses New Program

It is understood that the cabinet, at a meeting yesterday, discussed a new import program based on calculations for the coming months ahead.

Some British commentators suggest that Gaitskell has taken with him to Washington two rough drafts of the new plan—one outlining what austerities Britain may have to face if she can't get the other what might be done if some aid were forthcoming from the United States.

There has been no hint here what specific imports may be cut.

One hopeful trend is that the terms of trade appear at least to be turning in Britain's favor. In July, British imports were cheaper for the first time in two years. Substantial price declines for rubber and wool products were chiefly responsible for the fall.

Exports to Canada reached a record figure during July, despite a sharp drop in automobile exports. Exports as a whole were valued at £155,000,000 — about £1,000,000 higher than the previous high-water mark last November, and 15 per cent higher than the average for the second quarter this year.

EIGHT COMMUNIST HELD

RISKY BUSINESS

Canberra, Australia. (Reuters) Prospect of a motorcyclist being killed in Australia is nearly 30 to one greater than that of a car driver. Last year 424 motorcyclists, compared with 269 car drivers were killed—although motor cycles are outnumbered 10 to 1 by other vehicles.

ousted as occupation and far eastern commander last April over Korean issues, and to MacArthur's successor, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

He also paid tribute to John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to th State Department and architect of Japanese peacemaking.

But the sections of his speech on which the President placed his heaviest emphasis were those dealing with present - world dangers and American steps to meet them, including new defence treaties in the Pacific.

Faced With New Threats

He told the conference "unfortunately, today, the world is faced with new threats of aggression.

"Many of the countries represented here are now engaged in a hard fight to uphold the United Nations' against international lawbreaking."

At that point he departed from his prepared text and said: "There are thugs among nations just as there are thugs among individuals."

In this situation, Mr. Truman said; it is necessary for unarmed Japan to protect itself against aggression, and it has accepted "to enter into a bilateral treaty (with the U.S.) for its own immediate security." That pact would provide for American forces in Japan after the peace treaty ends the occupation.

"At the present time," Truman said, "the Pacific area is gravely affected by outright aggression and by the threat of further armed attack."

AERIAL GUARD

A rescue centre on the west coast helped look for a mixed-up Korean airlift plane when it disappeared in July carrying 38 passengers and crew members. The plane has not been found.

An Ontario centre now is conducting a search for Toronto Maple Leaf hockey player Bill Barilko and Timinko pilot Dr. Henry Hudson, lost in their light plane somewhere in the barren wilderness around Lake St. Tiny disappeared Aug. 26.

Four search aircraft today were sent into the Wholadala Lake district in the Northwest Territories in a continued search for bush pilot Johnny Bourassa, about 30. Bourassa, of Peace River, Alta., flying a Yellowknife Airways aircraft, disappeared May 18 on a 300-mile flight from Bathurst Inlet to Salmita Mines. His plane was discovered Friday by a U. S. A. F. Flying Fortress searching for the missing Wisconsin fisherman.

small private planes to large four-engined Lancasters. A special government appropriation is set aside each year to finance rescue operations. When Americans are involved, costs are shared by Canada and the United States.

Air searches in Canada by the RCAF grew from an international conference on civil aviation procedure called by the late President Roosevelt at Chicago in 1944, a body known as the International Civil Aviation Organization was the result. It now is part of the United Nations with Canadian headquarters at Montreal.

Canada, as a member of the organization, agreed to provide protection for all civil aircraft carrier entering the Dominion as well as those flying over east and west coastal waters. The RCAF took over the job of protecting the civil air carriers in 1947 when it was also allotted the task of undertaking search and rescue missions.

When should a family borrow

A family should borrow only when a loan is the best means to a money end. For example, to buy a child clothes, medical equipment, furniture, food, education, car or home repairs. Loans for these necessary aids are inflationary, for the money is not used to buy goods to meet supply or increase the demand.

SOLVING MONEY PROBLEMS

At HFC—Household Finance—we believe a family should borrow only when, by careful planning, the money problem can be resolved, and the loan repaid in an orderly manner. When a family borrows under these circumstances, it is simply "renting" money on terms it can afford. At HFC you may borrow $50, $250, $500 or more on your signature, without bankable security.

MARMORA

Legion Branch Holds Decoration Service

Marmora—Although weather conditions greatly upset plans for the holding of the annual "Decoration Day" service, under the auspices of Marmora Branch No. 237, Canadian Legion, at Marmora, on Sunday afternoon, under depleting the usual attendance of the general public, the parade and decoration was carried out most creditably by those in charge.

The service was to have been held at 2 p.m. on the Public School grounds. Due to the heavy rain having fallen, the place of service was changed at the last moment to Marmora Town Hall, under zone commander Captain Percy Grey and headed by the Havelock Kilties Band and the Color Rally.

Fallen Honored

About 50 Legionnaires (including some from Frankford and Tweed) and auxiliary members paraded from the Legion Hall to the Town Hall, pausing en route at the Memorial Hall to lay wreaths beneath the Rolls of Honor there.

At the Town Hall, Chaplain W. J. Cottrell, of Marmora Branch, was in charge of the service and welcomed the attendance. In his address which came later, he referred to the Divine Presence which had been with comrades in both wars under shell-fire and in calmer zones, affording them spiritual refreshment in their hour of need.

"It is that same Presence that is now ministering to the souls of the departed. Let us not forget that that same Presence that we who survive, need, as the grand old hymn we have sung so often, mentions, "every passing hour".

Rev. G. D. Young, B.A., B.D., read the scripture portions and took the invocation.

Following the address, Lieut. George Heron, of the Salvation Army Corps, and assistant chaplain of the Tweed branch, offered prayer.

Mrs. L. R. Rundle was accompanist for the hymns "Fight the Good Fight", and "God of Our Fathers".

Visits Cemetery

Following the service the parade wended its way to the "Sacred Heart Cemetery" where Rev. Father J. A. O'Neill gave a short, appropriate address in which he referred to the men who served as the pride and joy of their country. He read the list of comrades buried there and elsewhere who had been members of that congregation and offered prayer on their behalf.

The Lament and Reveille were played by Pipe Major Harry Anderson with the two minutes silence being observed between.

On arrival at the Protestant Cemetery, and adjacent Veterans' Plot, prayer was offered and the list of departed comrades laid to rest there and overseas was read by the Legion chaplain. At both cemeteries flowers were laid at the base of a white wooden cross.

Returning to the Legion Hall, a short halt was made outside the home of Comrade Wilbert Bedore,

FIRST PEACETIME TRANSPORT HEAD

One of the country's foremost grain authorities, Roy Wilfred Milner, above, has been appointed first peace-time transport controller in Canada's history. His appointment, announced by federal Transport Minister Chevrier, indicated that Canadian government has decided to use direct action to force diversion of more Great Lake shipping from iron ore and coal to grain. The 59-year-old shipping czar from Brampton, Ont., will have power to break contracts and re-direct bulk-carrying traffic on waterways and rail lines of Canada. Mr. Milner was formerly president of Winnipeg grain exchange. — Central Press Canadian.

(father of President Clayton Bedore), who has been ill for some time. The band played a selection and the indisposed comrade received a gift of flowers.

Upon dismissal, the president of the branch thanked the members and visitors for turning out and in particular those who had any part in the afternoon's proceedings.

Legionnaires were present from Frankford and Tweed.

BIG MINE

Conquer High Mountain Peaks In Rockies

Coleman, Alta., (CP)—All but one of the "Seven Sisters", in the foothills of the Canadian Rockies, now have been climbed.

The Sisters, bare and jagged rock spires averaging 750 feet, were tackled by two Swiss-born mountaineers, Bruno Engler and Fritz Frey.

Before their attack, only "The Placid One" had been climbed. It took them three weekends to defeat five more.

Their most difficult climb was the main spire, "The Old Sister".

Engler, an Alberta government photographer, said they had to inch their way up the last 120 feet using hand holds only.

"I almost didn't make it—but I had to hang on and continue," he said.

The descent was made with the help of rappels, rope-offs, and the climbers swung through the air in 60-foot leaps.

During their leaps, the ropes were attached to pitons driven into crevices in the rock.

Near the bottom of the spire, the climbers had to make a blind rope-off to reach the ground.

"We took a 'pot-luck' chance and it paid off," Engler said. "At the end of the last rope-off, there I was, dangling just two feet from the ground."

They said they plan to come back to climb the only spire that they couldn't manage this time It's No. 3—"The Witch"— with barren perpendicular sides and a bleak overhang.

PAID TOP PRICE

Oakville, Sept. 5 (CP) — Top price of $1,525 paid for a six-year-old cow by George R. McLaughlin of Oshawa, marked the dispersal sale of J. C. Trepanier's Holstein herd at the sales arena Tuesday. He sold 48 cattle for a total of $34,190 or an average of $504 each.

The herd sire, Glenafton Author, 1950 reserve junior champion at the 1950 Brant black and white day, went for $1,250 to E. L. Strobridge of Brantford.

FINALE TO STEER'S FREEDOM FLIGHT

When this steer went A.W.O.L. from a Philadelphia slaughterhouse and spent an hour running through the city in pursuit of happiness, its path of glory ended at the butcher shop. Rounded up by a bevy of cops and held with ropes, the steer was soon dispatched by an axe-wielding slaughterhouse worker. — Central Press Canadian.

Kenya Ranchers Look to Canada

Calgary—(CP)—Socialism and animal ticks may bring British ranchers to Canada.

G. A. Tallby of Kenya Colony in Africa said during a visit here that British's Socialist government is partly responsible for a flood of colonization to east Africa by farmers who want to escape the "restrictive atmosphere" in the United Kingdom.

But the influx of settlers has brought soaring land prices, which in turn have caused many ranchers to look to Canada as a possible home.

Added to zooming land prices are the difficulties of ranching in Africa, said Mr. Tallby.

Marauding leopards and other animals carry off cattle. Ticks carried by wild game carry diseases which infect cattle.

Mr. Tallby said that before herds can be safely started, the land must be cleared of ticks. This is done by putting hardy native bovan cattle on new range.

The ticks flock from wild game to the cattle. Once a month the herds are dipped to kill the ticks. After a year the land is cleared of the parasites.

Cougar Tries To Kidnap 2-Year-Old Child

Wallace, Idaho, Sept. 5—(AP)—Men and dogs went out hunting this week for a cougar that tried to kidnap a two-year-old child.

Sam Patterson of Wallace said his small daughter, Jane, was carried 300 yards by a large cougar that picked her up by the back of her sweater. The animal dropped the child when Mrs. Peterson and her two sons ran after it, screaming, he said.

Peterson said the incident occurred Friday at the Hansey Copper and Gold Mining Company property.

The child suffered only scratches about the face.

R.C.A.F. Pushes Barilko Hunt Far North on Chance Plane Was Blown Off its Course

Kapuskasing, Ont., Sept. 5 — (CP)—R. C. A. F. searchers are ranging to the sub-Arctic in the hunt for hockey player Bill Barilko and his dentist companion, Dr. Henry Hudson of Timmins.

Working on the theory that the lost plane might have been carried far to the north by 60-mile an-hour winds, search officials have ordered crews of long-range Lancaster planes to follow the west side of James Bay to the point where it widens into Hudson Bay as far as the Albany River.

Since Barilko and Dr. Hudson disappeared Aug. 26 while flying back to Timmins in Dr. Hudson's small yellow seaplane, a thorough search has been made of the area the men planned to have in their 240-mile flight from Rupert's House to Timmins. A helicopter, low-level aerial hunt also has extended to northwestern Quebec, southeast of the reported flight path.

A missionary's report that the plane "zigzagged" under a load of 60 pounds of fish in each pontoon when it took off from Rupert's House on James Bay, 240 miles northeast of Timmins and 140 miles south of the Hudson Bay post at Seal River, touched off a fruitless search of land and water near Rupert's House.

Intensive Search

The search has been so intensive that the crews of the big planes are reported virtually combined their every move with the men or some sign of the lost aircraft if it had crashed in the area covered so far.

Search headquarters at this time 30 miles northwest of Timmins learned from bush pilot Jim Hobbs, South Porcupine, who was in James Bay at the time Dr. Hudson is said to have taken off, that the missing plane would have been bucking headwinds of between 35 and 60 miles an hour.

Pilots of search planes would have headed back towards Rupert's House upon finding the plane was running out of gas. In an hour or so, such winds could push a plane along so far that it would be easy for the craft to overshoot Rupert's House on the eastern coast of James Bay and spot and stray to the western coast of the bay. Visibility at the time was poor.

20 Million Watched Video Broadcast

New York, Sept. 5 (AP) —The first coast-to-coast telecast in history was heard here with quality equal to that of local broadcasts.

Spokesmen for all four network companies — American Broadcasting Company, Columbia Broadcasting System, Du Mont and the National Broadcasting Company — were enthusiastic about the reception.

NBC estimated that 20,000,000 watched the 3,000-mile video broadcast, beamed to 54 cities.

Manufacturers Shying Away From Deals

New York, Sept. 5 (AP) Manufacturers who have been grabbing for steel offered in the gray market at two or three times regular mill prices are shying away from such deals, the Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, said today.

The publication attributed this to several factors:

"High-price inventories are becoming a burden...unbalanced inventories, now the rule instead of the exception, have altered purchasing plans of some manufacturers. There is a tendency to great procurement of other items to those which are hardest to get.

"Production restrictions have also neutralized the incentive of some manufacturers to go after high-priced material to keep their operations high;

"Demand in some consumer durable lines (particularly appliances) is disappointing."

The controlled materials plan also is putting a damper on the gray market, reported the Iron Age. It pointed out that "some potential customers have received C.M.P. allotments. Others are still hopeful. They would rather see it cut through than combat themselves to costs much higher than those of their competition."

Despite this gray-market nose dive, the trade weekly added "the underlying strength of steel demand is as strong or stronger than ever."

Wants to End Trade With Czechs Until Oatis Free

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP) — Representative Usher Burdick (Rep.-N.D.) said today he will offer legislation to lay the groundwork for ending trade with Czechoslovakia until that communist country releases William N. Oatis from a prison cell.

"What I am driving at is to get this fellow out of jail," Burdick told a reporter. "Word's won't do it, but action will. Congress must act and act quickly."

Congress already has approved a resolution favoring suspension of trade with Czechoslovakia until Oatis is freed, but the resolution does not have the force of law.

Oatis, an Associated Press correspondent, is serving five to 10 years on espionage charges. The U.S. government has denounced his trial in Prague as a farce.

Stratford's Rail Shops Secure Says Gordon

Stratford, Sept. 5 — (CP)—Position of the railway's motive power shops in Stratford as a strategic spot in the system's operations will remain secure in the foreseeable future, Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, said here yesterday.

Mr. Gordon made a two-hour inspection of the Stratford shops.

Questioned as to the future of the local shops should disemployment come into full effect, Mr. Gordon said, "Dieselization is very much over emphasized . . . complete dieselization is something that won't happen overnight.

"We will still have need of shops," he said, adding that expenditures will go on. Turbine engines also "showed very definite possibilities."

Mr. Gordon said the C. N. R. is on the verge of a "great new era" which would, he said, be realized when there is no war scare. Then, he said, motive power would be far ahead of with tremendous strides as materials and wartime developments, applied to peace, became fully available.

Senator Thinks Norman Would Want to Reply

Washington, Sept. 5—(AP)—Senator Alfred V. Watkins (Rep. Utah) said today the senate investigations committee should invite Herbert E. Norman, Canadian career diplomat, to reply to testimony about him.

Norman, now Canada's acting permanent delegate to the United Nations, was named recently by Dr. Kazi August Wittgopf as having been a member of a communist student group in the United States in 1939. Wittgopf is a member of the senate internal security staff.

Watkins, a member of the sub-committee, told a reporter:

"I should think Mr. Norman would want the opportunity to testify. If an injustice has been done him by any witness, I for one would like to see it cleared up."

The Canadian government said recently it feels completely competent to investigate its own officials but has left the door wide enough loyal and able.

Watkins said that so far as he knows, Wittfogel's testimony about Norman "was a complete surprise to Mr. Norman, and that since Mr. Norman was named at a public hearing, it would be a matter of common courtesy to give him a chance to come in and testify."

The sub-committee is in recess. Watkins indicated the matter might be taken up when it resumes hearings after the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco.

The State Department is reported to have protested to Pat McCarran (Dem.-Nev.) sub-committee chairman urging him to keep the "hands off" officials of friendly foreign countries out of the public hearings. The Canadian government has protested the mention of Norman. McCarran's sub-committee is investigating whether the institute of Pacific Relations, private research group, has influenced U. S. foreign policy in the far east.

FIVE KILLED IN CRASH

Anchorage, Alaska, Sept. 5 — (AP)—A twin-engined airplane piled up in a flaming heap Tuesday in suburban Rogers Park, killing its five occupants.

The plane barrowed inland two houses and crashed in the backyard of a third.

The pilot, Norm Maither, and the four passengers in his Christiansen air service plane were killed.

CHARGED WITH WOUNDING

Melbourne, Australia, Sept. 5 (Reuters)—A six-day hunt for an armed, purple-haired woman who took shot shots at suburban residents ended today with the arrest of Norene Gwendoline Piper, 27. She was found with a .38-calibre rifle strapped to her waist and a number of bullets in her pocket.

She was charged with wounding a Roman Catholic priest last Friday and with shooting at a doctor's wife Tuesday, then was remanded for medical attention.

RCAF Reopens Northern Search For Bush Pilot After Learning He Survived Crash-Landing May 18

Edmonto, Sept. 5 (CP)—A note left in the crash-landed light plane in the North West Territories last May 23 has revived the R. C. A. F. search for him which was called off more than 2½ months ago.

The Peace River, Alta., pilot, about 30, said in the note that he was leaving his downed machine, on the rock-strewn shore of Wholadaia Lake, to trek through the northern wilderness in hopes of finding civilization.

The U. S. A. F. aircraft—the one that found two Wisconsin flying fishermen who had been lost for 29 days only 40 miles from Bourassa's plane—sighted the Bellanca Friday. It was identified yesterday by an R. C. A. F. pilot.

The note was found inside the plane by an Associated Airways pilot sent to the scene by Bourassa's former employer, Tommy Fox of Edmonton.

Bourassa said in the note that he intended to walk in a northwesterly direction which he believed would take him to Great Slave Lake, somewhere near Fort Reliance. The distance is about 300 miles by air.

Unhurt in Landing

He was unhurt in his plane's skid-landing on the lakeshore May 18, which ended on a big rock, damaging the propeller and undercarriage of the craft. Bourassa took with him rations which he said could stretch out for three weeks.

He had been on a 200-mile flight from Bathhurst Inlet, one of the most northerly tips of the N. W. T. mainland, south to Salmita Mines. But the clock on his instrument panel failed and his mis-identified landmark lakes. His gas supply was too low when he discovered the error and he crash-landed some 325 miles southeast of his destination.

Bourassa knew the north well, having been rescued from a crash in the same region in 1949 and winning the Empire Medal for a mail-carrying exploit with horse and dog team, carried a rifle, smoke flares, fishing tackle, maps and a tent.

He set out into terrain of scattered bush, small timber and muskeg.

Would Appreciate Lift

In his note, he cheerfully said "a lift will be appreciated" from any aircraft which happened to see the smoke fire signals he intended to send up if one came within range.

His note ended, "so sorry this happened."

"I would say he had a very good chance to surviving the 3½-month ordeal in that wilderness," said Mr. Fox. "Johnny has the nose well and how to take care of himself there. Barring ill health he'd make out all right.

"I gave the news of this note to his wife in Peace River last night. She has never given up hope that Johnny would be found safe even-tually. Bourassa also has a 10-year-old daughter and an eight-year-old son.

The R. C. A. F. dispatched a search master to Yellowknife, N. W. T., and ordered four planes, two of them equipped to land on water, into the renewed search which was to get under way today. Ground search parties were to be organized in Yellowknife and flown into the region.

In the previous search for the pilot, twice a R. C. A. F. winner in the Second World War, 13 R. C. A. F. planes covered 180,000 square miles without finding any clues.

3 Red Divisions Killed, Wounded Or Captured

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 5 (AP) — The Allied field commander said today his troops killed, wounded or captured the equivalent of more than three communist divisions in August.

LL-Gen. James A. Van Fleet's estimate of at least 26,000 red casualties covered a period in which action was limited while both sides held truce talks—now broken off.

Van Fleet said that, even after front-line estimates were carefully valuated and cut down, the figures showed 15,000 reds killed, 10,000 wounded.

The pace of red casualties undoubtedly increased during the last few days. Waves of communists went pounding in to repeated counter-attacks aimed at stalling an allied push in mountainous eastern Korea.

The fighting subsided Tuesday but only after a limited offensive by three United States divisions, three South Korean divisions and an Ethiopian brigade had ground out gains up to five miles and seized the important Bunchon road junction, key anchor of the 38th parallel.

The allies dug in Tuesday and consolidated their gains. The drive had pushed the United Nation line within artillery range of Kumsong, a red stronghold 29 miles north of the parallel in east-central Korea.

There was no let-up in sea and air-war.

British Commonwealth warships hammered the eastern end of the communist line Tuesday, while the U.S. cruiser Los Angeles and destroyer Wedderburn sniped at the communists in the east.

Red artillery and troops were shelled by the British light Caribbean Sea, much of the steam gone from its punches, today travelled westward in Caribbean waters after by-passing fearful Jamaica.

It had threatened to smack the hurricane-ravaged British island with 100-mile-an-hour winds, but veered southward just off Kingston, the Jamaican capital, felt only light rain squalls.

As the storm turned, winds dropped to 60 miles an hour. The Royal Navy base, which had placed the centre of the disturbance at 200 miles southwest of Kingston, it continued along a westward course clear of any land area.

Far out in the Atlantic, meanwhile, another tropical storm was reported in the north-east-ern portion of Antigua in the Leeward Islands. Winds of hurricane force whirled around the centre and gales extended 60 miles to the north and 30 miles to the south.

SAILORS BROUGHT ASHORE

Galveston, Tex., Sept. 5 (AP) —Two Portuguese who set out for the United States in a 30-foot boat were brought ashore yesterday after spending 27 days at sea—the last four with no food or water.

The steamship Oscar Chapelle had found them drifting helplessly after a storm had broken their jib and mainmast.

Immigration officials placed the two adventurers—Victor Manuel Castano, 28, and Evaristo Dasilva Gaspar, of Porta Delgado, the Azores in jail pending a hearing.

HANGED HIMSELF

Toronto, Sept. 5—(CP)—A 55-year-old man who had quarrelled with his wife Monday night hanged himself in an east-end hardware store yesterday, purchased a clothesline, asked where the washroom was and was directed to the basement, then hanged himself.

Frank Smith, Kingston, Veteran Speedboat Driver, Killed in Accident at CNE

Toronto, Sept. 5—(CP)—A speedboat race accident at the Canadian National Exhibition Tuesday took the life of Frank Smith, 55, veteran powerboat driver from Kingston.

His outboard motorboat was hit by one driven by George Fulford III of Brockville, son of George P. Fulford, wealthy liberal member of parliament for Leeds.

The accident was declared unavoidable Tuesday night by Commodore Reg Sparkes of the Canadian Boating Federation and race officials, all of whom saw the mishap. Commodore Sparkes announced that the race, cancelled after the accident will be held today.

After the accident, Fulford told friends he would never race again.

The fatality, first of the Canadian powerboat season, occurred in one of the last events of the year. The 135-class race, staged as an exhibition feature under the direction of federation officials, had been delayed briefly by false starts.

The drivers of the 11 boats tried to get away to a flying start in which they would be in a straight line at the crack of the starter's gun.

Race officials could see that Smith, in his home-built Nit-Wit V, was about to get across the starting line ahead of the gun. As they watched in horror they realized he was moving too fast and suddenly cut his throttle. The boat veered after him, way.

Hit Opposite Bucket Seat

Fulford's boat bought earlier this year, was only a few feet behind. The speeding craft plowed into Smith's boat exactly opposite the bucket seat in which Smith was crouched and threw him into the water.

As Smith landed in the water, Fulford's boat apparently struck him again.

He was dead when he reached hospital. Doctors said he had suffered a fractured skull. Both his legs were broken, Fulford's son-in-law, Kingston's Taxi business in Kingston for several years. His hobby for the last 10 years had been building and racing hydroplanes of the type in which he was killed. He built Nit Wit V last winter in a garage at the rear of his home.

Surviving besides his widow, who was visiting at the Oshawa home of her sister, Mrs. Ethel Buttin, at the time of he accident, are two sons, Jack and Stewart.

Mountain Home, Idaho, Sept. 5 (AP) —The seven-man crew of a B-29 was killed early today when the bomber crashed and burned one quarter of a mile from a runway at Mountain Home air force base.

Base public information officer said the craft disintegrated on impact. Wreckage was strewn for several hundred yards.

All bodies were recovered.

Blotter Does Not Show Whether Kelly Made Point

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP)— Luther Kelly's dice followed him into police headquarters three times.

At 9.50 a.m. Monday two detectives spotted Kelly on his knees shooting dice. They hauled him off to the station and he put up $5.

At 11:32 a.m. Kelly was caught, dice in hand, on his knees by the elevator at the same intersection. Again he was taken to the station. Again he posted $5.

At 3.45 p.m., it was the same intersection, same policemen, same Kelly, same dice, same charge, same collateral.

The blotter doesn't show whether Kelly made his point but apparently the police made three—Kelly hasn't been seen on his knees at the intersection since.

U.N. Infantry Smashes Way To Top of Ridge

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 5 (AP) —United Nations infantry men smashed their way to the top of a bloody ridge in east Korea today. They were locked in bitter battles for three other heights.

U.S. 2nd Division troops have through heavy red resistance and captured the hill mass north of Yangpa. Then they pressed forward to assault another height just to the north. Reds, dug securely into crags and ridges, checked the American drive.

In the same sector other 2nd Division soldiers were locked in a heavy day-long fight with communists atop two towering crests. The Americans have been trying to knock the reds off these crests for a week. The communists have withstood daily infantry assaults and continuous artillery bombardment.

The 2nd Division action, in the Yangpa and Inje areas, United Nations offensive, was the only significant engagement on the 155-mile front. Elsewhere, at the eastern end of Hwachon reservoir, is seven miles north of the 38th parallel. Censors would not permit correspondents to say how much farther north the battle line is.

U.N. troops killed, wounded or captured the equivalent of three red divisions last month, the U.N. ground commander reported today, mostly on the eastern front.

Crown Princess Of Jordan Starts Divorce Action

Tel Aviv, Israel, Sept. 5 (AP) —The Jerusalem Post said today the Crown Princess of Jordan has started divorce action against her husband, Prince Talfal, who is scheduled to succeed to the Hashemite throne tomorrow.

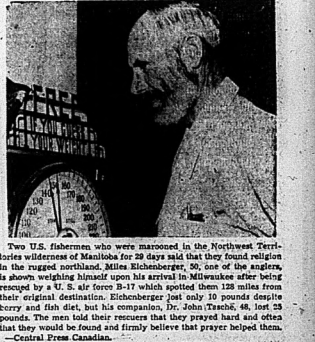
Quoting "reliable diplomatic circles," the newspaper said: "It will be recalled that in May of this year the Emir (Talfal) in the throes of a mental disturbance rushed to the maternity ward of Amman hospital and attempted to stab his wife, who was then expecting a baby."

The Post carried this story last May, claiming that Talfal had shot and wounded Brig. John Bagot Glubb Pasha, British head of Jordan's Arab Legion, the night before he made the alleged attempt on his wife.

Official Jordan and Lebanese reports denied the report of the shootings.

Catholic Priest Has Disappeared In Red China

Hong Kong, Sept. 5—(Reuters) A Roman Catholic priest soon to have become bishop of Hong Kong, Macao, 50 miles north of here, earlier this year.



But sources claim the communists moved him from there Aug. 28. No report has been heard of him since.

The Italian priest was co-adjutor to Bishop R. W. Henry Valtorta, who died last Monday.

"MORE THINGS ARE WROUGHT BY PRAYER"

Two U.S. fishermen who were marooned in the Northwest Territories wilderness of Manitoba for 29 days said that they found religion in the rugged northland. Miles Eichenberger, 50, one of the anglers, is shown weighing himself upon his arrival in Milwaukee after being rescued by a U. S. air force B-17 which spotted them 138 miles from their original destination. Eichenberger lost only 10 pounds despite torry and fish diet, but his companion, Dr. John Tkachè, 48, lost 25 pounds. The men told their rescuers that they prayed hard and often that they would be found and firmly believe that prayer helped them.—Central Press Canadian.

Ex-Polish Diplomat Enjoys His Work in Civil Service

Ottawa. (CP)—Friendly, soft-spoken, 56-year-old Victor Podoski, one of the first diplomats from an iron-curtain country to refuse to serve under a Russian-dominated government in his homeland, works quietly in a small, simply-furnished Canadian government office.

The former Polish Minister to Canada abandoned the plush diplomatic service in 1945 when recognition was withdrawn from the Polish government-in-exile and post-war Poland became a Russian satellite.

He could not, he said recently in an interview, serve any country, totalitarian or democratic, which tried to impose its will on Poland. Now a Canadian citizen, he added, he would similarly oppose any country attempting to dominate his adopted Canada.

Simple honesty and self-respect prompted a spontaneous refusal of an offer in 1945 to represent the Russian-dominated government of Poland somewhere abroad, he said.

His refusal ended 24 years in the diplomatic service, but he has never regretted his decision. However, he does become annoyed when he sees his name linked with some of the other Poles who have left the diplomatic service rather than return to communist-controlled Warsaw.

Sees Big Difference

There is a vast difference, he said, between the men who chose personal freedom and those who could not honestly serve a foreign power dominating their homeland.

Mr. Podoski maintains "friendly relations" with those who "chose decency and self-respect" but he has no relations whatever with those who chose only personal freedom.

He cannot understand, he said, why it took some diplomats three, four or five years to realize that Russia was using oppressive methods to impose a political and social system on Poland in the interest of Moscow. While serving the wrong cause, these men enjoyed the high salaries of the diplomatic or consular corps. In some cases they decided to leave the diplomatic or consular corps and seek refuge in a free country only on the eve of being recalled to Poland.

Mr. Podoski chose Canada as his adopted land because he had developed a "deep affection" for this country while serving as Polish consul general and later minister to Canada from 1939 to 1944. In 1944, he married Murial Crocket of Fredericton, daughter of the late O. S. Crocket, former Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada. They have one daughter—Cecylia-Clarine, born in England in 1945.

The switch from the status of a high-ranking diplomat— he served in Warsaw, London, Moscow, Washington and Ottawa— was not made without cost to Mr. Podoski, who speaks and writes Polish, English, French, Russian, Ukrainian and German.

Financial Sacrifice

While declining to give exact figures, he said that his present income is about one-sixth of what he would be receiving had he remained in the diplomatic corps.

"In the choice between becoming a moral cripple or keeping my head erect, the price was not too high," he said.

After the last war—in December, 1946—he began working in the Canadian Government Annuities branch. He has been there since.

He became a Canadian citizen in December, 1947, but like many another immigrant has retained a "deep affection for my mother country".

"Who would have respect for one who—safe and gainfully employed in his adopted country—turns his back on his native land, ailing and oppressed, at that?" he asked.

He has no immediate relatives in Poland—three sisters have managed to escape to this continent; one brother was killed in the battle of France and another is teaching economics in Los Angeles.

Mr. Podoski receives oPolish papers from Poland and "free countries" and he believes he has a "fair picture of prevailing conditions in Poland". On his own time and without remuneration he helps all Poles who apply to him for information and advice on the possibility of settling in Canada.

One of his ambitions remained to be fulfilled. An ardent believer in health and fitness, he hopes some day to help open a health and rest resort in Canada.

FRANKFORD

Hope to Complete Kitchen

Frankford — The Frankford Branch of the Canadian Legion are planning to complete their kitchen on the Legion Hall this month. Work is to begin immediately. Part of the expense will be carried by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Branch. Since the beginning of the building a year ago, the Ladies' Auxiliary have been hard workers in helping the men financially with the project.

The Frankford Branch is joining with other branches in a request to the government for an increase in basic pension rates. It is felt that in view of the increase in cost of living, pensions must be stepped up accordingly.

Comrade Arthur Southworth was complimented on the fine job he did in the organization of the Frankford and Sidney Memorial Day of August 12th. The Comrades present gave him a hearty handclap.

Details of the Memorial Day in Marmora, on September 2nd were presented, and it was expected that a representation from Frankford would be there, as well as at the church service in Foxboro on that evening.

It was announced that the building is entirely clear of debt at present. Although finances are not too flush with the branch at this time, No. 387 is in good shape. This had come only as a result of a great deal of hard work by the members

Work Resumes At Hollinger

Timmins, Ont., Sept. 4—(CP)—Work resumed at Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines today for the first time since July 9.

An eight-week strike by some 1,600 miners of United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.-C. C. L.), ended with union ratification Friday night of strike settlement terms — a requested 13-cents hourly wage increase but no check-off of union dues.

The 200 to 250 men who returned to work today, however, were maintainance men, said Norm Greene, Hollinger public relations supervisor, their job being to prepare the plant for resumption of operations.

The men were met at the mine gate by 30-odd union officials with a request to show their union cards. Those who had none were asked to join the union.

Many signed, but those who did not were not hindered from entering the mine property.

The action gave credence to rumors that a move is afoot to establish an unofficial closed shop.

Sport in Brief

Glace Bay Miners have been officially admitted to the newly-formed Maritime Major Hockey League, President J. Elliott Hudson announced Tuesday night.

The five other clubs in the league are Sydney Millionaires, Charlottetown Islands, Halifax St. Mary's and Saint John Beavers.

Chuck Volo paced a brilliant race on a rough track Tuesday to win the Commissioner's Cup at the New York State Fair, Syracuse, N.Y.

Prince Adios, driven by Clint Hodgins of Clandeboyne, Ont., was second to Chuck Volo in the opening heat.

Leo Durocher of New York Giants was ordered to bed Tuesday by the club physician, who reported the manager ill with the flu and running a temperature of 101 degrees.

Modere (Mud) Bruneteau, coach of the Omaha Club in the United States Hockey League for the last five years, Tuesday was named coach of St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey League.

Johnny Mitchell, Flyers coach last year, still has a year to run on a two-year contract but under the arrangement he will move to Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League to help with player personnel of the Hawk farm system.

Outfielder Archie Wilson, 26, of Buffalo Bisons, Tuesday was voted the most valuable player in the International League by the circuit's Baseball Writers' Association.

Wilson was hitting at a .315 clip and had driven in 102 runs and socked 26 homers latest official averages show.

Boston Bruins will return to their old stand of Tuesday and Sunday night home games, the National Hockey League club announced Tuesday night.

Tuesday had been traditional hockey night in Boston, save for the last few years when they played Wednesdays.

The home season will open Oct. 14 against Montreal Canadiens after road dates in Detroit, Oct. 3 and Montreal, Oct. 13.

A checkup on the 24-day racing season at this ancient Saratoga Springs spa Tuesday showed that the famous Saratoga track enjoyed its best season since 1946.

A tight lid was clamped on gambling and dire predictions were made for the meet. The regular horse fans and visitors here to enjoy the waters and the historic surroundings, however, made the meeting an outstanding success.

This year the average attendance was 14,164 and the total was 339,936. For 1950 it was 13,470 and 323,292.

WILL RAISE PRICES

Washington, Sept. 5 (AP)—Price director Michael V. DiSalle was reported set Tuesday to issue an order permitting automobile makers to raise factory prices for new cars, it may come today.

The amount was not disclosed. Some manufacturers have asked increases averaging nine to 10 percent.

An office of price stabilization official said DiSalle's new order on auto prices might go into effect before Oct. 1.

Marvin Moon Wins Auto Race Feature

Picton—In the neighborhood of 2,000 persons attended the stock car races at the Fair Grounds on the holiday. The event was sponsored by the Canadian Legion and saw 15 district drivers take part in exciting contests. There were a number of accidents in which drivers escaped injury. One car, driven by Bruce Manlow, Picton, missed a turn and went through a gate in the fence and came to a stop against a pile of gravel. Ron Young of Northport was doubly unlucky with his car Jinx. He missed a turn, went into a field and narrowly missed hitting a tree. Later, he went through a fence, breaking four poles. A car driven by Earl Handley of Cherry Valley took to the ditch to escape a collision. To add to the excitement, the motor of one of the cars caught fire in the pits but was extinguished before much damage was done.

The feature race was won by a local driver, Marvin Moon of the RCSA, with Jack Finkle of Belleville second and Shepard of Belleville third.

The consolation race saw Louis Hollingsworth of Picton finishing just ahead of Jim Turner, Gleason, with Dale Cleave of Wellington third.

In the second race, Jack Finkle, Belleville nosed out Jim Turner of Glenora. The third race was taken by Earbol Wickens of Carrying Place.

Jack Finkle won over H. Wickens in a matched race and a grudge race saw M. L. Foster defeat Don Thomas, Picton.

The consolation race was won by Sherm Kenney, Trenton. The track record of 37 seconds for half mile, held by Jack Finkle, Belleville, was equalled by Marvin Moon, Picton.

College Gridders Start Practice

(By The Canadian Press)

Intercollegiate football teams have started preliminary workouts in preparation for the season soon to open on the gridirons of Canadian Universities.

University of Western Ontario Mustangs, 1950 champions can pick their squad from between 75 and 80 hopefuls, who include nine holdoyers from last year's teams as well as several veterans of the 1950 intermediate squad.

For the last four days, the University of Toronto Blues have been working out at Orillia. They have confined their practices to conditioning and drills, but coach Bob Masterson says he is pleased with what he has seen.

On the other hand, Queen's University faces the prospect of building its team from about five members of last year's squad and about 30 candidates without intercollegiate experience.

First Defeat In Two Years

Toronto, Sept. 5 (CP) —Toronto Fyrene Firefighters Tuesday night handed Norm Bagnell, on the mound for Oshawa Pedlans, his first defeat in two years as they downed last year's champion Pedlars 6-4 in the Canadian National Exhibition Senior B softball championships. In the opener Niagara Falls Murray and Penny beat Brantford Navy Merchants 3-2.

Oshawa held a one run lead over Toronto in the third and fifth innings but the firefighters took command with three runs in the sixth on the strength of a homer by Dick Gibb.

George Black scored Niagara Falls' winning run on a long fly to centre by Pete Senese.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop tried to open the draw of the living room table, but the more he jiggled it the more it stayed closed, and ma said, I knew the day of judgment would come, William, I warned you repeetedly to do something about that draw, but my werds always went in one ear and no further.

But horse blanket, my cigars are in there, pop said, and ma said, That's too bad, but it doesn't alter the natural facts of cause and effect and supply and demand. That draw is probably wedged and jammed and warped beyond all redemption, she said.

It's just plain stuck, and so am I for a cigar, pop said.

And he hit the bottom of the draw underneath the table and then shook it by the handles without anything happening, saying, The man that made the furniture was in the wrong profession, he should of been a pile driver.

It's a pure case of poetic justice, ma said. I spoke about that draw only yesterday, but as usual I was met with a vacant stare and an evasive answer. You just simply refuse to act even if doom stares you in the face. You have to wait till it hits you on the head, she said.

While just then pop gave a exter hard yank and the draw came out with a crash, and ma said, Now I hope that it will be a warning lesson and you'll actually do

And she quick went and got a piece of sandpaper and rubbed it on the top edges, being just what it needed, something about it rite now.

Oh, I dont believe there's anything really the matter with the d aw, pop said. You probably pushed it in crooked the last time you closed it, he said, and ma said, William, dont you dare close it again.

Yankees Turn To Top League As Indians Drop 3-1 Verdict To Chicago

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

STRANGE THINGS HAPPEN!

Someone once wrote, said, or dreamed out loud, "Build a better mouse-trap and the world will beat a path to your door".

But don't tell that to the Brockville Memos baseball team, officials or die-hard fans, or they will smirk right in your face.

As has been mentioned before baseball can be a screwy game, just slightly screwier than some of the people who operate it.

"Give us a winning team, and we'll patronize it" yell the armchair referees, the chesterfield coaches and the parlor - fireside critics.

Which may be true. In the majority of cases it is. But down Brockville way, the fans yawn when they mention the Memos, who have already cinched the Central Ontario Baseball League's mythical pennant. The team is so good, they think, that it is hardly worth the while leaving the little woman at home and jogging down to Telford Park to watch Joe Herschocks' prize buckaroos go through their paces.

In fact one told the estimable Joe that directly to his face. "What's the use", yawned the 'fan', "when the Memos are going to win, anyway".

And it is one of the strange paradoxes in baseball that the league champions are not drawing the proverbial corporal's guard to the park when the Memos tackle any of the opposition.

The Brockville scribe after going into spasms of breath - taking eulogy anent his beloved Memos bemoans the fact that on the majority of occasions there are more people on the playing field than there are in the spectator corrals down thataway.

"Truly, an amazing team" he explodes, referring to the Herschock Hunkies. "An array of talent seldom seen in such minor sector (it's lower than tenth) company as the Belleville-to-Brockville loop. Cajoled, threatened, urged and convinced into first place by their baseball - wise little manager, this club would stand with any that have worn the Island City colors".

Then large copious tears drip unrestrained into friend Swayne's foam-tipped beverage. "But what sort of support is the average fan giving this club which has won so many and lost so few over a lengthy schedule. True there are the faithful 100 or so who turn up regardless, but what of the rest? What of the fans who cried for evening games, who urged the Memos to try afternoon games and who wanted them to play on Saturday evenings. Despite the fact that all have been tried, the turnstiles have beat the same old slow creaky tune."

Well, well, mebbe that's the reason the Redmen have the ole Indian sign on these wonder boys from the riverlown whenever they play here. It could be that the two or three hundred of the faithful from the banks of the Moira give the Herschock Hunkies a touch of stage fright. In any event, whatever it is, let's hope it will be around tonight when the Reds meet the Memos in the last game of the schedule. While the Brockvillians have the flag all tucked away in Bree Joe's warbag, the league "Stanley Cup" is still up for competition with four starters going "to the post, unless the unpredictable COBL brain-trust again changes its mind.

Tonight's decision will make no difference to the Memos but it will be a mighty important one for the Redmen. They are feeling the hot breath of the Batawa Sheemen down their collective backs, and a win tonight is as necessary as the week's pay cheque. The scarlet-shirts came up with a fine performance against the Smith's falls Bayats Monday night behind Johnny Mowat's good hurling, and it is to be hoped they maintain that form come twilight tonight.

Doing a spot of second-guessing Coach Pat Wilson, we opine young Master Billy Strahan will go to the mound this evening against the Brockies. In any event it should be quite a tussle with the Reds out for the all - important win and Brockville trying to show the folks back home that they CAN beat the Belleville crew in their own backyard.

CLEANERS TO KINGSTON!

Cleaner Combines, representing the junior section of the Commercial Softball League face their first OASA playdown test this evening in Kingston where they meet the second edition of the Alcans of that city in the first game of the Intermediate OASA first round playdowns. The Combs hope to win Victoria Park, and any squad that wins on that scrabbly terrain, should win anywhere, starting at 6:15. The second game is scheduled for the Alemite Field on Saturday next, the time of which will be announced later. Cleaners boast a speedy scrappy squad that should give a fine account of itself against the down-east opposition. Beata luck.

IS THE SQUEEZE ON?

Picton defanged its COBL game with Batawa last night, pushing the Shoemen into 4th place by the scant margin of 1 percentage point. The Reds have won 17, lost 18 for .485 and the 'gift' victory gives the Shoemen a 16-17 record for a percentage of .488.

Picton claims it could not field a team yet there was a convenient player in the stands, and he plus a "borrowed" one from the Spenlarks sufficient man-power to stage an exhibition game for the fans. The result doesn't mean a thing.

Defaulted games with a playoff berth at stake, should not be permitted by any executive let alone the COBL. If Picton could not field a team last night it could at a later date. Playoff berths should be won on the field. It seems passing strange that some teams when they could not field a team in earlier season games, asked for a postponement. Why not last night? The COBL executive should order the game played and have the fourth place in the standing settled in a sportsmanlike manner.

WELL, LOOK AT THIS!

Twill be a great night for the Irish bedad, at Memorial Arena come Friday, with a touch of David and Goliath tossed in to make the avenin' intherestin'. First of all Mike Sharp has severed the family ties for the nonce and taken unto himself that mighty atom of Ould Ortreland, none other than that cute little spalpeen Timmy of the Geehagens. Yup, Timmy and Mike will take on the hated duo of Fred Aitkins and the Masked Marvel in a team match while an additional touch of Ould Erin will be seen when Pat Flanagan tangles with Tommy O'Toole and Dan O'Connor mingles with Tom Griffiths in the opener. 'Twill be a great celebration for the Shamrocks.

Rogovin Decisions Lemon In 11-Inning Mound Battle, Rest Idle; Yanks Meet Bosox

By RALPH RODEN

"We're home now and that's where we win."

That's the opinion of Casey Stengel, shrewd manager of the New York Yankees, on the stirring American-League pennant race that finds his team in first place by four percentage points over Cleveland Indians.

The Yanks, who engage the dangerous Boston Red Sox in the opener of a three-game series tonight, backed into the lead yesterday as the Indians dropped a 3-to-1 decision to Chicago while Sox in the only game played in either league.

Here's the picture at a glance:

	W.	L.	Pct.	GB
New York	82	48	.631	—
Cleveland	84	50	.627	—
Boston	81	51	.602	4

Yanks Have Edge

The New Yorkers have a decided advantage. They have a two-game edge over Cleveland in the vital "lost column," and have four games more to play than the tribe. The Yanks are also booked to play 21 of their remaining games at home-the Indians have three of 20 and the Red Sox 12 of 30.

Vic Raschi (17-8) has been named by Stengel to face the Red Sox tonight before an expected 60,000 fans. Leo Kielyn Krsat rookie southpaw, is manager Steve O'Neill's choice.

Eddie Lopat (18-7) and Allie Reynolds (17-7) will go for the Yanks in Thursday's doubleheader against Bill Wight (6-5) and Ray Scarborough (11-7).

Bob Lemon of the Indians and Saul Rogovin of Chicago battled up in a brilliant duel before 20,-621 fans at Cleveland last night. Lemon allowed only three hits until the fatal 11th. One, Ed Robinson's 25th homer of the season, clubbed in by Jim Busby.

Meanwhile in the National League, Brooklyn Dodgers resume their pennant drive by opening a three-game series with the Phils at Ebbets Field. Following the Philadelphia invasion the connessup New York Giants come in for a two-game set. The Giants' six games behind, tune up for their clash with the Dodgers by tackling the Braves in a three-game set at Boston.

Sedgman Takes National Singles Tennis Title

By GAYLE TALBOT

Forest Hills, N.Y., Sept. 5 — (AP)—Frank Sedgman of Australia has the men's cup locked up and Dryster Mrs. Maureen Connolly of San Diego, Calif., is expected to win her first women's title in the national tennis championships go into the final program today.

The 23-year-old Sedgman, first foreigner to lift the trophy since Fred Perry took it back to England in 1936, scored a one-sided victory over Vic Seixas of Philadelphia yesterday's final before 12,000 fans, 6-4, 6-1, 6-1.

The Aussie ace and his Davis Cup teammate, Ken McGregor, won the national doubles in a playoff match on the opening day of the tournament and in the final contest on yesterday's card he teamed with Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., to win the mixed doubles from Mervyn Rose of Australia and Shirley Fry of Akron, O., 6-3, 6-2.

In today's women's final, Miss Connolly meets Miss Fry and she is favored to become the youngest champion in the history of the tournament.

Maureen reached the final yesterday by finishing off Doris Hart, the Wimbledon champion and tourney favorite 6-4, 6-4. She had won the first set the previous evening before rain forced an overnight suspension.

Miss Fry, the No. 2 seeded player, reached the final by defeating Mrs. Jean Walker-Smith of England in three sets Monday.

Sedgman has whipped the daylights out of every American he faced in the championships except Tony Trabert, the Cincinnati youngster who carried him to five sets and made a good match of it.

Leafs Grab 8th In Nine Starts; Wings Win Twins

(By The Associated Press)

Marv Rickart of Baltimore last night just about insured his perch atop the International-League nest of home-run swatters.

He belted a pair of two-run homers, his 32rd and 34th of the season, as the Orioles won a 7-6, 10-inning thriller from Springfield in the second game of a doubleheader.

The feat brought his runs-batted-in total to 101, second in the league. Rickard is also runner-up in the batting average department, with .328.

Home runs by Ray Cash and Lou Munro accounted for all the Cubs' runs as they captured the first game, 2-1, in eight innings.

Rochester Red Wings swept a twin bill from Syracuse Chiefs 2-1 and 4-1. Ed Yuhas and Jack Fazzhoi each went the route for the Wings.

Hal Hudson annexed his 15th victory against five setbacks as Toronto Maple Leafs whipped Ottawa Giants 4-2. The Leafs rallied for three runs in the seventh frame to win their eighth game in nine starts.

Veteran Bill Voiselle hurled the pennant-winning Montreal Royals to a 5-4 success over Buffalo. Jim Gilliam collected four hits to lead the Montreal attack.

Not Much Left Of Swim $5,000

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP) — Jerry Kerschner of Toronto and Columbus, Ohio, who won $5,075 prize money in the Canadian National Exhibition's world championship marathon swim, hasn't much more than newspaper clippings to show for it.

He won $5,000 for first place and $75 in lap money. From this he paid his father $2,500 which he borrowed as expense money. The government took another $500 as income tax and a boat and crew for the race and for pre-race training cost him $900.

He kept a promise to the children in his neighborhood to pay them $10 each if he won the race and the whole account was topped off with room and board and incidental expenses.

Picton Defeats To Batawa

The Picton Athletics defaulted their Central Ontario Baseball League game with the Batawa Shoemen last night, claiming it was impossible to field a complete team.

The "gift" victory to the Shoemen, edges them into fourth place on a percentage basis by the margin of one point over the Belleville Redmen.

Borrowing a player the Picton team engaged in an exhibition match with the Shoemen losing by a 2-1 score.

Bakelite, Jewellers Eliminated; Jack Reid Hurls Perfect Game

In complete control of the situation throughout, Jack Reid, Belleville Motor Car righthander, achieved the pitcher's dream against Bakelite last night as he threw a perfect 14-0 game.

There were no hits, no runs, no errors and no walks with the subsequent result that he hurled to the minimum of 27 opposing batsmen.

This is the first recorded no-hitter in the history of the Belleville Commercial Softball League since its inception five years ago.

Reid threw perfect ball throughout, whiffing no less than fourteen of the opposition himself as well as gaining one assist. Only two ground chances were offered to the Motormen, the remainder being balls hit into the air.

Only Two Bids

Bakelite made only two serious bids at ruin the no-hitter. Lucas, leading off in the fourth, drove a fly ball to right field that was almost by O'Brien when he stuck up his right hand and made a sensational one-handed grab of the ball. The other blow was a long outfield fly from the bat of Gerry Burley after two were out in the ninth that just curved foul by inches. Then he was popped to first for the final out.

The Motormen on the other hand scored practically at will after the first two innings. Held scoreless for two frames, they broke out in a rash for four tallies in the third on two hits, two errors and a fielder's choice. Semark's home run was the big blow.

They added another in the fourth and three each in the fifth and sixth. Two more were added in the seventh and another in the eighth to complete the barrages.

Six runs, scored after two were out, were plated by Stewart Warner by a terrific clout which good to eke out a 17-16 win over Avon Jewellers in the first game of a double-header at Victoria Park the last night.

The win, second in a row for the Alemites, gave them entrance into the semi-finals of the city league playoffs for the Labatt Trophy.

The Avons appeared well on their way to victory as they sent eight men scampering across the plate in the first two innings. Stewart-Warner however, had other ideas as they packed away for single tallies in the first, third and fourth and four others in a big second frame, to keep within one run of the leaders.

The Jewellers added another in the fourth but Stewart-Warner came up with another duo in the bottom of the sixth to even things up again.

Use Three Pitchers

McTaggart's triple after a single by McBride in the seventh was enough to drive Bruce Page, second hurler for Alemite, into the box and he was replaced by J. Harold Deacon. He was greeted by a smash single down the right field line which was followed by a flashy infield double, three next two men were retired before Deacon drove a double to centre to plate the last two of their four runs and put Avons well in the lead again.

Bertrim's home run in the eighth drove in Doyle, who had walked, and once again the Avons were within striking distance.

Denny's triple climaxed another rally for three runs for Avons in their ninth and seemed to put them home free.

Taylor singled to open the homester's ninth but Dnesberry fanned and Dracup popped to short for the second out. Then Day, second chucker for Avon, could not find the plate and passed the next three men up. Jerry Lewis tagged a fast pitch for a basic clearing triple and Day was lifted for Rogers.

With Upper at the plate, Lewis scored on a passed ball. Upper eventually walked. Shaw came in to pinch hit for Barnum and banged a resounding triple down the left field line to score the runner with the tie-breaking counter and the ball game.

Taylor paced the winners attack with three hits, Bertrim and Hammett each connected safely twice including an extra-base blow, Lewis and Upper each banged out triples and Shaw tripled in his only appearance.

Bertrim, McBride, Day and Baldwin each had a pair as Avons outhit the winners, 17 triples by McTaggart and Doran and a double by Hull were other extra-base blows as every member of the team hit safely.

Avon Jewellers: Rogers 2b, p; Donovan lf; Doran, cf; Hull, ss; Bride, 1b; McTaggart, 2b; Massey, rf; Day, cf, p; Baldwin, p, cf.

Avons	440 100 403	16	13.	6
Stew-War	161 102 036	17	11	10

Green started on the mound for Stewart-Warner, but Birch at the start of the fifth after his teammates had let him down badly. Birch finished the game although Green was charged with the loss.

Miller starred at the plate for the victors coming up with a double and three singles in six trips. Semark homered and had two singles, O'Brien had a double and single and Griffith banded out a pair of one-basers. Bone and Reid got the other blows.

The Bakelite nines were very lax afield, committing no less than nine miscues and six of these were charged to one player. At the plate, every man struck out at least once except Cousins and Green.

Belleville Motor Car now meet Stewart-Warner in the semi-finals, the winner to meet Cleaner Combines for the Labatt Trophy. Lineup:

Bakelite: Lucas, 2b; H. Fowers, ss; R. Burley, cf, as; Courins, c; Littlejohn, 3b; Green, p, rf; Peever, lf; Birch, rf, p; G. Burley, as, cf.

Belleville Motor Car: Miller, ss; Haskell, 3b; Walsh, cf; Bone, c; Semark, 2b; O'Brien, rf; Blaind, lf; Callaghan, 1b; Reid, p.

Indians' Infield one of Reasons Tribe Occupies its Lofty Perch

By JOE REICHLER

Cleveland, Sept. 8 — (AP) One day last April Manager Leo Durocher of the New York Giants predicted Cleveland Indians could take the American League pennant "except that I don't know about the shortstop and the second baseman."

Experts agreed with Durocher that shortstop Ray Boone and second baseman Bobby Avila were the biggest question marks. Even Al Lopez, newly - appointed manager, had his doubts.

Boone, 25, played about two-thirds of the games at shortstop last year and left much to be desired but he batted an acceptable .301.

Avila, starting late in 1950, hit .309 in 80 games but was not regarded highly as a batter.

Wouldn't Trade 'Em

That was in April. Today, Lopez says their play has improved to such an extent that they have been responsible for Cleveland's lofty perch. "I wouldn't trade them even up for any keystone pair in the big league," Lopez says.

The double plays they failed so lamentably to make early in the season now are clicking.

Avila has built up a batting average of, around .310. Boone, hitting around .250, has been batting hard luck all season.

"Boonie hits about a dozen line-drive outs a week," is the way teammate Al Rosen put it.

The Tribe has an infield that rates as one of the best in the league. At first there's big Luke Easter, the lefthanded power-house of the team. Luke, who hit 28 homers and drove in 107 runs in 141 games last year, has been out of the lineup a great deal with leg injuries and his home - run production is down.

Rosen, slugging third-baseman, provides most of the righthanded power. Rosen is a bit off from his 1950 league-leading home run pace but he still tops the club with 23 homers and 81 RBI's.

He has developed into the best fielding third sacker in the league.

Harold Waggoner is Tackled by Argos' Ed Hurcka

Curtis is Brought Down by Brown

With the help of a front wall that is probably the best ever assembled in Canadian football's modern history, Hamilton Tiger-Cats walloped the Toronto Argonauts 27-6 to move into first place in the Big Four league with their second straight win. With 15,000 holiday fans looking on at Hamilton, Ont., the Tiger-Cats proved that their brawn and brain was a thing not to be taken too lightly and that they constitute a real threat to Dominion title, which Argos are so desperately trying to retain. Easily the star of the gridiron on that memorable occasion (for winners) was Bernie Curtis, who with all the placid assurance a traffic cop musters in delivering a ticket for speeding, passed, outran and out-manoeuvred Frank Clair's champs for nearly all of 60 painful minutes.—Central Press Canadian.

Majors Beat Sox; Petes, Oshawa Ousted from Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

London Majors stalled Brantford Red Sox hopes for the Senior Intercounty Baseball League title last night when they defeated the Sox 7-3 in the fifth game of their best-of-seven final series at Brantford. With a lead in games the Red Sox were trying for the clincher last night in a game that stretched 10 innings.

The Majors now trail 3-2 in the series. London tonight the two teams will be going all out, Majors for the tying game while the Sox again battle to finish the series.

Bill Slack, London's young righthander, pitched a solid seven-hit game. The three runs scored on him in the sixth inning were unearned.

Luther Clifford homered with two on and two out after Brantford just missed being retired when Bobby Rose dropped a pop fly.

The Majors scored one in the second and didn't score again until the seventh when steady hitting Tim Green put one over the fence with nobody on base. They got the tying run in the eighth and, in the 10th, cleaned up with four runs from four hits and two Brantford errors.

Moore and Gavey shared the pitching chair for the Red Sox.

Petes, Oshawa Out

Peterborough and Oshawa were ousted from the Viaduct Senior Baseball League last night after a meeting of the league representatives in Toronto. They were suspended two days ago for ignoring a ruling in connection with the league playoffs.

The two clubs tied for first place and were ordered to play a best-of-three series for the championship title. Instead they played a best-of-nine series for the right to enter the Ontario Baseball Association playoffs.

League executives decided that Petes and Staffords would meet in a best-of-seven series for the Viaduct title with the winner entering the Toronto Baseball Association finals against the West Toronto winner for the right to enter the O.B.A. playdowns.

Croftons beat Staffords 11-3 last night at Millen Stadium in an upset win which will not affect the Viaduct Major League standings. Kingsway Lumber will meet Staffords Thursday in the first game of the league best-of-seven finals for the right to enter the Toronto Baseball Association as the Viaduct representative.

Jimmie Scott was the big gun in the Staff Crofton attack. Johnny Williams and Jerry O'Donnell each batted out a homer. The fourth inning was the pay-off chapter for the Croftons as they scored seven runs.

Huntley, Lamy and Hortop formed the Crofton battery while Williams, Ford, Barnes and Heyes sent and received for Staffords.

Jack Reid's Perfect Pitching Effort Constitutes All-Ontario Record; Believed Third In Softball History

The sensational mound feat of 25-year-old Jack Reid, Belleville Motor Car hurler, in pitching a perfect game last night constitutes an all-Ontario Intermediate softball record.

Secretary Frank Feaver of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association, Hamilton, said in a telephone conversation today that only once before has the history of Ontario softball has a perfect game been achieved by a pitcher.

That occurred in 1936 when the well-known Russell Johnson threw a no-hit no-run game against St. Catharines in a senior league fixture.

But more credit goes to Reid since the Johnson effort was a seven-innings affair while his was the nine-innings limit.

Backed by flawless fielding, Reid allowed no hits, no runs, nor did he issue a base on balls. Twenty-seven batters came up and 27 batters went down. Motors defeated Bakelite by a 14-0 score.

According to Secretary Feaver, the only other perfect game in softball history was recorded in the world's championship series in Texas, by Percy McConners pitching for Toronto Tip-Tops.

"Reid's feat," he said, "is the second to my knowledge in the history of the OASA."

So Jack Reid enters the softball hall of fame, the only pitcher to toss a nine-innings perfect game.

Lacrosse

Hamilton, Sept. 8 (CP)—Mimico Mountaineers blasted their way into the Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association finals Tuesday night as they defeated Hamilton Tigers 10-3 in the third and deciding game of their best-of-seven semi-final series. The Mountties' win made it four games to one in the playoff contest against the Tigers.

Mimico will meet Peterborough Petes in the opening game of the best-of-seven final series Friday at Peterborough.

Tuesday night the Tigers never threatened the determined Mimico. The Mounties led 2-1 at quarter time, 4-1 by the halfway mark and 7-3 going into the final quarter.

Pop Chard led the winners with four goals while Bill Horwood and Denny Peterson each scored two. Ken Lytle and Chuck Simpson got one apiece. For the Tigers George Masters, Chuck Simpson and Tommy Love each netted one.

GREYHOUND BEST IN SHOW

Toronto, Sept. 5 — (CP)— J. Thorndyke of Oakville, Ont., won the best in show award at the Canadian National Exhibition's dog show Tuesday night.

It was the second straight year Mr. Thorndyke took the honor—last year with an English setter, this year with a greyhound.

Best in the sporting group was a cocker owned by Eileen Ritchie of Saint John, N.B.

Banish Two More Jockeys for Life, 'Lady in Black' Grilled in Probe

Toronto, Sept. 5—(CP)—Two apprentice jockeys have been banished for life from Ontario racetracks by the Ontario Racing Commission, which is continuing its inquiry into race fixing.

Robert Allen of Windsor, Ont., and Howard Hartley of Toronto were given the suspensions for accepting a bribe to pull thoroughbreds during the race meeting in Fort Erie, Ont., in July.

Absent the same time as the racing commission handed down the suspensions, Mrs. Ann Swartz, the mysterious "lady in black" who backed a winner in one of the races the commission says were fixed, was questioned for two hours before the foreign exchange control board. She may face further questioning later.

Asked To Explain

Mrs. Swartz, whose husband is awaiting trial on a charges of conspiring to defraud the public through race-fixing, was asked to explain to the commission why she happened to have $1,500 in United States currency to bet on Fort. If a Canadian has more than $100 in U. S. funds, he must report it to the board.

The woman wagered $1,500 on North Drive, winner of a race on which the racing commission has made rulings against several jockeys and against one trainer, the owner of the beaten favorite Hemjoha. The board is holding $8,000 in U. S. money, winnings from the bet placed by Mrs. Swartz.

Eight Suspended

The latest jockey suspensions were handed down after the racing investigation, in which sessions were held last week in Niagara Falls, swung back to Toronto.

The suspensions brought to eight the number of riders ruled off for life. Three of the eight are apprentices. Other jockeys given life suspensions were Robert Keane, Robert Wankmeiller, George Thompson, Gordon Cox, Phil Marchese and Robert Marchant.

Wankmeiller and Marchese are free on bail on charges of conspiracy and Cox and Thompson are out on bail on perjury charges.

Apprentice John Brumby and jockey Charlie Bright are under indefinite suspension while the commission continues study of their cases.

The racing commission will meet again today.

Yardmen Even Final Series

The Yardmen squared the CNR softball final series by defeating the defending champion Yard Office by a 9-3 score on Monday night.

The winners built up a seven-run lead going into the last inning and withstood a four-run rally by the office team to clinch the verdict.

Junior Day and Bob Hunter handled the pitching for the Yard Office with Gordon Rogers hurling all the way for the Yardmen.

The fifth game of the series will be played tonight (Wed.) at the CNR Sports Field commencing at 6.30 p. m.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Maybe you like conversational bridge. Maybe you prefer strict rules. Maybe you like to use judgment in any of the common sense in Horse Sense must surely appeal to you.

Each rule is covered in one concise sentence, direct, free from diverting exceptions or opinions. Thus, it tells you what is correct. From there let your conscience be your guide.

Knowing what is correct, you know when you are stretching; when you are pulling in your horns. You can loosen up a little against weaker opponents; tighten up a little against superior competition.

This applies to every department of bridge bidding. Not that I recommend any shenanigans. But if you are "built that way," knowing what is correct will tell you better when you are wrong.

A takeout double shows a hand as good as an opening bid of one, five tricks, four high cards, two sure tricks. Suppose your right opponent opens with a heart when you have this west hand:

♦J 8 6 4 3
♣A 7 6 4 3

You are shy a high card for a true takeout double, but let us assume your opponents are not so hot, and your pals knows how to duck in the clinches. You might chance a double with your hand.

Knowing from the Horse Sense rule what is correct, you know you are light. You know exactly how light. You know exactly one high card lighter than your double has promised your partner.

However, you are anxious to learn from partner if you have any of your three suits he has four or more cards. When he tells you, it is not necessary for you to be wild. You know you are light.

Under a cuemovee system, a gob of exceptions tell you when you may bid such a hand. And what bid to use with it. But by the time you recall them all you are not sure whether you are light. Or in the dark.

Farmers' Day At Exhibition

Toronto, Sept. 5— (CP) — The man behind the plow is today's guest at the Canadian National Exhibition.

The program for farmers and their families lined up a busy day with grain, fruit and vegetable judging, the selection of best cattle paraded and the wind-up on most agricultural judging, as well as special judging and marching contests for junior farmers.

International Day guest Tuesday was Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President of the United States. Mrs. Roosevelt urged Canadians to be patient in their quest for a peaceful world.

"Human beings have not yet learned to live in peace," she said. "There are areas of understanding that have to grow."

Mrs. Roosevelt spoke at a luncheon in the womens' building and later at a gathering of some 7,000 persons.

Only 10 women were entered for today's women's professional swim. Favorite to take the first place share of the $3,500 prize money for the three-mile swim was 30-year-old Vivian King of Winnipeg. She won the women's Canadian amateur swimming crown at the C.N.E. last week.

Oldest swimmer scheduled to take part was 60-year-old Mrs. Edna Sheldon of Detroit, Mich.

Finds Sculpture Relaxing Hobby

Montreal, (CP)—Sculpture as a relaxing hobby is recommended by Mrs. Herbert Hahn, recently arrived from Bavaria.

A new Canadian, Mrs. Hahn is convinced a surprising number of people could, with proper training and a little encouragement, enjoy the work and become so fascinated that everyday trials would be forgotten for the moment. She also says this work is good for highly-strung people by providing an outlet for their nervous energy.

No great amount of talent is required, the First World War nurse said. She became an expert by practising the hobby for 30 years. "I originally sculptured portraits for my own enjoyment, but friends and critics convinced me I should make it a career."

From her experience in teaching in Europe Mrs. Hahn says children are the best pupils.

"Sculpturing is just another form of play to them, and they have no fears or inhibitions. I only adults would express themselves with similar freedom, they would find the details of every-day living considerably eased," she said.

Living in Bavaria after the war, Mrs. Hahn sculptured thousands of dolls for American soldiers. She switched to life-size portraits, but expects to go back to miniature work because there are very few apartments in Canada large enough to display life-size models.

RESTORED FERTILITY TO KANSAS FIELDS

In the wake of floods that swept many square miles of fertile farm lands in Kansas, recently, farmers were faced with the problem of restoring their fields to fertility. This huge plow solved the problem for Brune brothers, Lake View, Kan., farmers. Turning up furrows 40 inches deep, it brought to the surface the subsoil that was buried under sand and silt by the floodwaters. — Central Press Canadian.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 5 (AP) — They don't make love today the way we used to.

The man speaking was House Peters, the romantic star who fluttered many a heart in the roaring '20s. He is performing his first screen role in 23 years.

"The screen lovers of today just don't have the finesse with a woman," he sighed. "They look at a woman as though they were going to attack her. They have no consideration for the subtleties of romance.

"In the silent days, we were in no hurry when it came to making love on the screen. It is the preliminaries that count." Peters admitted that the screen lovers of his day had one advantage—the long kiss. Today's film idols are limited to a few seconds.

"Of course, I was never the every-romantic type of lover like Valentino and the other Latins he imitated. "I was too manly-looking."

"Rags" to Riches

Peters appeared in "The Squaw Man," among other plays. He entered films in 1915, starting at the salary of $100 a week.

In later years his salary reached $1,000 a day at Universal. He was earning $2,500 a week at MGM in 1926 when he made his last picture, "Rose Marie."

Why did he quit pictures?

"I was getting tired of it," he recalled. "The talkies were coming in and everything was in a turmoil. The scripts that were offered to me were, to use a Hollywood word, lousy."

HEADACHES FROM HATE

Sydney, Australia. (CP)—Headaches due to hate are described by Dr. J. Bostock in the Medical Journal of Australia. Repressed hate leads to a war in the mind, between the, desirable and the obtainable. There is underlying frustration and an easy way out. Psychotherapy often solves the headache problem.

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

While the initial preparations were being made, Lance Bradley was in Goldie's dressing room. Stub Rose, towering around his neck, was staring at the floor while waiting to hear from the ring officials, an unconcerned Goldie Webster was talking to a few of his old gang members from Lower Town who had come to see him box. Goldie left them as Lance entered.

"Hello, Dad, I knew you'd be here."

"We're all here, Goldie," Lance said, "everyone but Milly."

Goldie Webster stripped well. He was a sturdily-built, thick-chested youngster, well put together from the floor up.

"You know, Goldie," Lance continued, "Milly doesn't go for this sort of thing."

"I know," Goldie said, cheeks reddening.

"Yeah, she doesn't like it. She's afraid you're going to get hurt. I told her there was nothing to fear, that it was a boxing contest, and not a prize fight."

Just then Stub Rose joined them.

"He looks pretty good, eh Chief?" Stub said slapping Goldie on the back. "Take a gander at him, will you? He's in perfect shape. Howya feeling, kid?"

"Okay, Stub, okay," Goldie said.

"Nervous?" Lance asked.

"Some."

"You'll get over that when you get started," Lance said soothingly, "just fight the way Stub tells you. He knows."

At that moment, Stub jerked his head from Goldie's shoulder and strode towards the door. Whitey Michels had just popped in.

"What are you looking for?" Stub glared at him, blocking his path.

"Oh, I just dropped in to have a look around," Michels said.

"Then you came to the wrong place," Stub snapped. "Beat it! Get on your bicycle."

With an unintelligible mutter, Whitey Michels turned, lost himself in the crowd outside. And then the announcer with the program in his hand came to the dressing room to say that all was ready, and elbowed his way back towards the ring again.

"Well, let's go kid!" Stub said, picking up the water pail.

Lance shook Goldie's hand, patted him on the back.

"Good luck, son, and remember the whole town is pulling for you."

"I'll do my very best, Dad," Goldie grinned nervously.

Lance's eyes followed his foster son as he and Stub went up the aisle in a burst of cheers. He watched them climb into the ring, as Goldie sat down on a chair in a corner, as Stub laced on his gloves. And then, he pushed forward to take his seat beside Dad Roberts.

"How does he look?" Dad Roberts asked.

"Oh, he's okay, but he's a bit nervous of course," Lance said.

There followed the announcer's introduction of the officials, each of whom stood up to make his bow. Then he pointed out the fighters, named them, left the ring and the white-clad referee took over. He motioned the two boys and their second to the centre of the ring, explained the rules of the contest to them and then sent them back to their seats to be ready for the bell.

Then the gong sounded, and a red-haired boy and a black-haired boy came with a rush from their respective corners with the some determination to "get this thing over" in the shortest possible time.

But acting under Stub Rose's orders to go after his opponent, Goldie Webster unleashed a two-fisted attack that carried Brown across the ring and into the ropes. The city youngster was game enough but he had no defence against Goldie's vicious whirlwind attack, his series of blows to the head and stomach. For the remainder of the round Brown hung on desperately, reeled to his corner, said something to his second, left the ring.

Lance got up to follow Goldie and Stub back to the dressing room.

"What did I tell you, Chief?" Stub gloated, "that wasn't even a good warm-up, was it Goldie?"

"He never hurt me," Goldie grinned.

"You didn't give him time, son," Lance said proudly. A gong sounded and Stub Rose rushed out to scout the fighters.

"Stub knows his business, son," Lance said after he left.

"Yeah, he knows," Goldie said quietly.

Sandy McLeod, the Ensign's mechanical superintendent, came in to shake Goldie's hand, to wish him success in his future bouts before this tournament was settled. He had just gone when a woman's voice was heard.

"May I come in?" Doris Parker asked as she opened the door. Goldie grabbed a towel to hide his top nakedness, but Doris laughed.

"Don't mind me, Goldie. I've seen boys naked from the waist up before."

She fingered Goldie's arms and shoulders, put an arm around his neck and posed.

"Look, Brad, don't you think that Goldie and I would make a picture for Stub's sports page?"

"I wouldn't be at all surprised, Doris," Lance said, "But would it be good for business?"

"Well, I like that," she pouted. "By the way, Doris, how's the boy friend these days?"

"Which one?"

"Are there two?"

"Haven't you heard, Brad? You're slipping." She took a folded sheet from her purse, handed it to him. "Found this on my desk the other day."

Lance took the paper, read a typed verse centred on a sheet of copy paper:

to mye pal doris doris is sweete on jimmy h shes reely-stuk on brad the day she marrys en leeves us heer ime gonna be offal sad.

—Jimmy the copi boy.

"I think that's real cute, Brad, don't you," Doris said, taking a seat on a nearby bench and returning the sheet to her purse. "Plan to have it framed for my office."

"It's cute enough," Lance said, stepping to the door, looking out and coming back again, "it even rhymes. But, does it make sense?"

"What do you think?" Doris smiled, and Lance shook his head.

Just then Stub Rose rushed in, to talk to Goldie.

"Two bouts over, two to go, Kid," he said, "a tall blonde boy named Burgess won that one. He will be your opponent in the next round but I think you can take him if you go to work on his body—he spotted Doris for the first time. "Why, hello, sunshine," he said "Fancy seeing you in this no-woman's land. Ever hear that a woman's presence in a fighter's dressing room is apt to bring him bad luck?"

"You mean a woman on board ship, Stub," Lance spoke up.

Doris got up quickly.

"I'm sorry, Stub," she apologized, "I'll go, I never knew."

"Nonsense, sunshine," Stub said, leading her by the arm back to the bench again. "You stay here as long as you wish. I'm not at all superstitious." Then turning to Lance—"Have you asked her yet?"

"Doris's black eyes shot to a red-faced Bradley.

"What's he talking about, Brad?" she asked. Lance shook his head.

Special Notice to Employers AND Those Enlisting in Armed Forces

By The Veterans Benefit Act, 1951, passed at the last session of Parliament, the Government of Canada has extended and made applicable the provisions of the Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act, 1946, to all persons enlisting in the Regular Forces of Canada after July 5, 1950, (nineteen fifty) and who serve therein for a term not exceeding three years.

This provision extends also to members of the Special Force who re-engage for service with the Regular Forces, the three-year coverage period beginning with the date of re-engagement.

This provision extends also to members of the Reserve Forces who after July 5, 1950, are called out for service with the Regular Forces and serve with the Regular Forces for a period not exceeding three years.

By an Order in Council passed in 1950 under the Canada Forces Act the provisions of the Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act, 1946, were extended to members of the Special Force and members of the Reserve Forces who serve on the strength of the Special Force. The reinstatement provisions of this Order in Council have now been incorporated in the provisions of the Veterans Benefit Act, 1951.

Under the Reinstatement in Civil Employment Act a discharged person may claim reinstatement either verbally or in writing, usually within three months of discharge in Canada or four months if discharged overseas. There is provision for extension of this time when through a condition of health the employee cannot return to his employment this soon, but the employer must be notified in three or four months, as the case may be, and a Reinstatement Officer should be consulted.

REINSTATEMENT OFFICERS ARE LOCATED IN LOCAL OFFICES OF THE NATIONAL EMPLOYMENT SERVICE

FEDERAL DEPARTMENT OF LABOUR

The most important job in Canada today is defence. And defence is not the responsibility of just a few. It is a duty which every young and able man in Canada must accept — if we want to make sure we stay free.

You as a free Canadian citizen must be prepared to meet any challenge to your freedom. The least you can do in these uncertain days is to serve part time as a Citizen-Soldier in the Canadian Army Reserve Force.

You devote one or two evenings a week to training in the arts and skills of the modern soldier. In addition there are the occasional week-end exercises and two weeks of summer camp.

The Reserve Force soldier receives the same uniforms and equipment as used in the Active Force. He is paid Active Force rates of pay for all training periods.

There are Reserve Force units in towns and cities across Canada. There is one in your district. Visit it right away. Find out how you can serve Canada in the Reserve Force.

Defence is every Canadian's duty. It is your duty, too!

Join the RESERVE FORCE now!

Allied Unit Fights Way Through Encircling Reds

Enemy Increases Battle Activity on Western Front

U.S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 6. (AP)—An allied unit tonight fought its way through encircling Chinese communists and reached safety after an 18-hour battle on the western Korean front.

An estimated 3,000 Chinese, reinforced by tanks and artillery, had attacked the United Nations unit in two spots.

The fight began Wednesday midnight. The U.N. force took out its wounded on tanks and armored vehicles.

The Allies said they killed 300 to 400 Chinese. At least eight reds were taken prisoner.

May Be New Offensive

One Allied officer said the abrupt attack by at least a regiment of reds might be the beginning of a new offensive. An eighth army spokesman said it was too early to tell.

Another officer suggested it was a red attempt to clean U.N. troops out of the "Iron Triangle" area, 30 miles north of Seoul, in preparation for a build-up for an ultimate major communist offensive.

The reds attacked with two tank-supported forces of about 1,000 men each.

The British Northumberland Fusiliers were sent in to try to reach the surrounded Allies. They ran into heavy red fire and were pulled back.

Allied planes pounded one attacking red force fiercely.

British 25-pounder guns took the second group south under fire.

Eye-witnesses said the final escape of the U.N. force was a "mad dash" by armored vehicles and foot troops.

The red attack last midnight highlighted a battle that lasted throughout Thursday in the low hills 25 miles northeast of Kaesong, site of truce talks.

Hundreds of U.N. planes swarmed in to rocket, bomb, strafe and burn the Chinese. At least two Russian-type T-34 tanks were knocked out.

Bring Out Wounded

An allied tank infantry force fought through a hail of red fire trying to relieve the encircled unit.

At least one tank and two armored vehicles got through. They picked up the wounded with the trapped outfit in carrying out the wounded.

The fire slackened at nightfall.

Then the U.N. unit began its fighting pull-back toward its own lines. Allied planes provided air cover.

The outbreak, seven miles west of Yonchon, switched the scene of action to the western front. Previously fighting was in the east-central mountains, where allies cleaned reds off key ridges Wednesday.

The scene of the new fight is seven miles north of the 38th Parallel and 40 miles south of Seoul.

The regiment of 3,000 Chinese had at least eight Russian-type T-34 tanks. It was the first time the Chinese had employed tanks in Korea.

One red plane—a Russian type Yak-9 fighter emblazoned with the red star of north Korean forces—was spotted in the area. The U.S. Fifth Air Force said it "made

Treaty Sidelights

San Francisco, Sept. 6—(AP)—The Russians signed isolated their women out of invitations to entertainment planned for wives and friends of delegates to the Japanese peace conference.

Mme. Pauline Montesqiu, chairman of the clinton's conference women's division, finally caught on with Andrei Gromyko at a reception last night.

She told him she'd been unable to reach the Russian delegation at its rented suburban mansion. She just wondered if he couldn't relay to the Russian women, kids to lunch sessions, tours and other entertainment.

"That would be very nice," Gromyko accepted.

Dispense Hospitality

Hillsborough, Calif.—(AP)—Russia's delegation to the Japanese peace conference has cold shouldered newspapermen but not the curious. But they've fed six Americans, two airmen and four policemen.

Air Force Sgt. Myrton Pitt and Pfc. James Tarpley were invited to breakfast yesterday when they peered into the Russians' rented mansion here to drive the Soviet delegation into San Francisco.

They were given grapefruit, boiled eggs, French bread, cheese and coffee.

The previous night as four policemen were going off duty a Russian staff member invited them to have some ice cream, salad, French bread, watermelon — and vodka.

Union Congress Makes Demand On Labor Govt.

Blackpool, England, Sept. 6 —(CP)—Leaders of the British labor congress today narrowly prevented the giant labor organization from censuring the government for imposing charges on false teeth and spectacles.

A resolution calling upon the labor government to "abolish these charges forthwith" was beaten by a vote of 3,775,000 to 3,272,000.

One union which presumably would have voted against the government, lost its tally card and was not counted in the vote.

If the result had gone the other way it would have been an outstanding victory for Aneurin Bevan and an embarrassment to Prime Minister Attlee.

Bevan resigned from the government earlier this year partly because of the imposition of charges on teeth and spectacles. He also disagreed with the size of the government's rearmament effort.

Resolutions expressing Bevan's dissatisfaction with the British rearmament policies were swamped earlier by the 8,000,000-member T. U. C.

Earlier the congress passed a resolution urging the government to nationalize the buying, marketing and distribution of basic consumer goods—especially food.

It was understood that the resolution included milk, bread, meat, fish, vegetables and fruit in mind. It asked that "unnecessary intermediaries" be cut out.

There was no opposition from the congress leadership, which has already called for state control of meat and milk distribution.

Government spokesmen were working on a scheme to streamline vegetable and fruit marketing by cutting out middlemen and setting up state markets.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) —Synopsis: Scattered showers throughout southern districts this week are pressing eastward into Ontario today in advance of a developing disturbance. This weather system will spread rain across Northern Ontario and scattered showers throughout southern regions today. Although most of the rain should be over by Friday, skies are expected to remain cloudy with somewhat below temperatures.

SALMON FISHING ORDERED CLOSED DUE TO DROUGHT

Fear Spawning Beds Will be Ruined

Vancouver, Sept. 6—(CP)—Thousands of fishermen today joined thousands of loggers in the unemployed ranks—the result of British Columbia's continuing drought. Drought cost has so far been estimated around $3,000,000. Southwestern B.C. has only had one heavy rainfall in the last 14 weeks.

The fisheries department ordered closure of commercial salmon fishing in 12 major areas embracing more than a third of the B.C. coast.

"We had to order the closure because of the many conditions condition of some of the spawning streams," said A. J. Whitmore, federal supervisor of fisheries here.

"The water is so low that in some areas only 10 per cent of the fish will at best be able to get up to the spawning beds and further fishing would be ruinous."

Some of the areas involved have been closed before, even for such a reason in the 90-year history of the B.C. salmon industry.

The last order came just as seiners and gill netters were at the peak of the run of summer salmon, the Fraser River sockeye. Similar action was taken in Washington state.

Logging Industry Closed

At the same time, virtually the entire logging industry along the coast was shut down because of the fire hazard brought on by the lack of rainfall and high temperatures.

More than 130 forest fires, all reported under control, burned throughout B.C. today. But foresters said that if winds were not high it could be a red fire season.

The forest closure has kept some 1,000 loggers idle almost continuously since July 12. In winter, the snow-bound forests are usually closed, which means loggers will probably get only 138 days' work this year.

Many have quit the woods to take lower-paying jobs. Once the drought is over there may be a shortage of woods labor.

In another drought development, B.C. Federation of Labor urged the provincial government to "take steps" to force increased prices for milk. The federation asked for increases at a meeting with the provincial milk board Aug. 13.

Federation secretary Charles Wood said in a letter to Premier Johnson that farmers, faced with lack of feed because of the drought, are selling off their dairy herds. This would aggravate a shortage of milk this winter.

McCallum Thinks Term 'A Bit Strong'

Toronto, Sept. 6.—(CP)—Mayor Hiram McCallum today described as "a bit strong" a statement by Ald. Nathan Phillips was a bit strong, but declared in an interview:

"I had to strike back or council would have walked all over me."

Mayor McCallum used the name Judas at a stormy council meeting Wednesday in a reply to criticism by Ald. Phillips.

Reluctant Groom Leaves Bride At Church for Second Time in Year

Florence, Italy, Sept. 6—(Reuters)—Vittorio Jannitti-Piromallo, the reluctant groom, today left his bride waiting at the church for the second time in a year.

The 34-year-old Rome lawyer refused to leave his prison cell—where he is awaiting trial on theft charges—to marry pretty, blonde Claudia Scalco, 23, in the prison's chapel.

Claudia was also arrested for theft here with him this summer. But she was released pending their joint trial Sept. 19.

"The wedding is off," tersely announced the prison chaplain to reporters.

He would not explain the groom's second last-minute change of mind.

Jannitti-Piromallo jilted Claudia the first time last October. He astounded all Italy when at a swank ceremony in Rome he replied "no" after the priest asked him: "Do you take this woman?" Then he dashed out of the church.

The latter became reconciled with Claudia and they went on a long vacation together, then were arrested here two months ago for theft of a car and three radios.

Yesterday prison officials announced the wedding would go on today with only two witnesses as witnesses and Claudia's mother present.

Britain's Financial Troubles Up for Discussion at Series Of Talks on World's Problems

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP) — Britain's financial troubles came up for top level discussion today at the beginning of a series of international conferences which will cover the whole range of the free world's problems.

Hugh Gaitskell, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, arranged a talk with Treasury Secretary John Snyder (10 a.m. EDT). Britain is having trouble paying mounting prices for goods she must import.

Tomorrow, preliminary United States-British-French talks will get underway, to be followed by a session of the big-three foreign ministers on Monday.

Lower-echelon experts of the three governments are to meet in an effort to agree on the main points of a postwar settlement with the West German Republic.

State Secretary Dean Acheson, Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison of Britain, the French Foreign Minister, Robert Schuman, are to review whatever decisions the experts make as well as other unsettled German issues at their conference here on east-west strategy.

All these conferences will be followed by a meeting of the North Atlantic council at Ottawa Sept. 15. It is designed to thresh out problems of the arms buildup.

Imports Up 40 Percent

Arriving in the U.S. yesterday Gaitskell said prices of Britain's imports have gone up 40 percent since last year. He forecast a 1951 deficit in British balance of payments with the rest of the world.

He left open whether the U.S. will be asked to waive the first $1,750,000,000 of the total $2,000,000,000 due this year on the $3,750,000,000 loan extended in 1945.

Gaitskell, a trouble shooter in the Attlee government, said he will discuss with Snyder the whole range of British economic problems, including Britain's continuing trade with Russia and the Soviet bloc.

As for the big-three talks, informed officials said the State Department has submitted to the British and French governments its views on the form it thinks a political and military settlement with West Germany should take.

Details are secret but these officials said the American suggestions in effect will amount to a peace treaty with the West Germans.

Crisis Caused By Congestion At Terminals

Toronto, Sept. 6.—(CP)—Donald Gordon, chairman and president of the C. N. R., said today the crisis in the movement of the western grain crop has been caused by congestion in the lakehead terminals.

In an address prepared for delivery to the transportation, communications and commercial travel-day luncheon at the Canadian National Exhibition, Mr. Gordon hit back at reports blaming the grain shortage on a shortage of railway box cars.

The difficulty confronting the railways, he said, is not in accepting the grain for shipment, but in getting rid of it when the rail haul is completed.

"Throughout April, May, June and July," he continued, "your C. N. R. moved a daily average of 800 cars from the west with a quantity that surpassed the quota set by the Canadian Wheat Board. The congestion in lakehead terminals developed to the point where we had as many as 4,400 cars in the yards awaiting unloading. The average number detained during August was around 2,000 cars.

Mr. Gordon said it is uneconomical in normal circumstances to use box cars as storage units on wheels when the railways are hard-pressed to meet the requirements for moving wheat and other important commodities. To provide aggravating the congestion it was necessary to make adjustments in the loading of cars at prairie points. The fact remains, the C. N. R. now has in the western region some 16,000 box cars in readiness for the new crop and all other traffic offerings.

"This pool of cars amounts to no less than 37 per cent of our total box car ownership on Canadian lines."

Engineer Noted Bridge Weakness Commission Told

Three Rivers, Que., Sept. 6 — (CP)—The chief engineer of the Dominion Bridge Company said today he had wondered why the Duplessis bridge had not collapsed when fissures first appeared in main girders a year before the structure plunged into the St. Maurice River.

The engineer, Robert Eadie of Montreal, was testifying before a two-man commission inquiring into the bridge collapse last January.

He told the court that his first fears after viewing the fissures in February and March 1950 had been one of wonderment at seeing the structures still erect.

WANTS TO RETIRE

Washington, Sept. 6 — (AP) — President Philip Murray of the C.I.O. wants to retire next year and leaders of the unions have been advised to look for a successor, a C.I.O. official said today.

Flood Threat Diminishes As River Drops

Kansas City, Sept. 6—(AP)—A flood threat to Kansas City's industrial districts eased today as rains diminished and the Kansas River dropped steadily upstream.

The industrial areas remained on the alert, however. They are still recovering from a July flood that caused an estimated $2,500,000 damage in Missouri and Kansas.

President Truman, spending a short time in his home town after opening the Japanese peace-treaty conference in San Francisco, planned to tour the flood-harassed districts late today.

Army engineers expressed "reasonable confidence" no new flooding would occur, but continued to work on the dikes.

The weather bureau lowered its crest prediction from 31 to 29 feet. East of Kansas City, the Kansas River spilled out over some farmlands.

Kind Hearted Sergeant Aids Korea's Poor

Quebec, Sept. 6.—(CP)—Korea's poor and sick have probably never heard of Quebec's Societe St. Vincent de Paul—but a sergeant who looks after the poor—but a French-speaking sergeant organized something like it for them.

Lt. Boss, Canadian Press war correspondent who now is on leave from Korea, told the story at a press conference here today after he arrived to address a luncheon of the Kiwanis Club.

Boss said Sgt.-Maj. Maurice Juteau of the Royal 22nd Regiment recently visited a Korean hospital where some 10,000 patients pass through in a month.

"He was horrified," said the red-bearded writer. "There was a shortage of beds, of blankets, food and medical supplies, and many of the sick were laid out on floor mats awaiting better accommodation."

Kimchi Collections

That gave Juteau the idea for organizing the Khaki Charities. He is the founder of the St. Vincent de Paul Society collects old clothes, food and money gifts, and Juteau got the organization's idea for practice in just the same way.

He asked comrades in the regiment if they couldn't spare some old clothes, some of the food they received from home.

The response was so good that Juteau began collecting part of their rations for the good work. Finally Juteau arranged to pick up donations twice a day.

"A month ago," said Boss, the Khaki Charities had collected enough food to provide 5,000 meals. It takes a good deal of devotion to keep up this work but Juteau and his men are not the kind who will be dismayed by obstacles."

WESTERN POWERS CRUSH RUSSIA'S STALLING TACTICS

Gromyko Denounces Peace Treaty Proposals

San Francisco, Sept. 6 — (AP) — Soviet Russia, crushed yesterday in her big move to stall the Japanese peace conference, angrily denounced the Japanese peace treaty sponsored by the United States and Britain, and indicated she would not sign it.

But the western powers, jubilant over their unexpectedly-swift victory over the Soviet communist bloc, predicted the conference will roll along steadily to the treaty signing Saturday.

Representatives of 10 countries were listed to speak in two worksession today, the second full day of the historic meeting.

Takes Battering

Gromyko took such a battering on every move he made yesterday that most delegates believed he might be seeking new instructions from Moscow.

Anything from a walkout to a new and stronger threats of war in the Far East was considered possible for the Russians and their Polish and Czech satellite delegations.

Gromyko told the conference that what the United States and Britain are sponsoring is not a treaty of peace but a treaty for the perpetuation of war in the Far East."

"The draft treaty," he charged, "creates conditions for the re-establishment of Japanese militarism, creates a danger of a new Japanese aggression."

Instead of providing for withdrawal of foreign (American occupation) troops, he went on, "it leaves them in Japan, forces armed forces on the territory of Japan and the maintenance of foreign military bases in Japan even after the signing of a peace treaty."

Family of Seven Perishes in Fire At Sept Iles, Que.

When Firemen Arrive Tiny Home Engulfed in Flames

Sept Iles, Que., Sept. 6—(CP) —Seven members of a family were burned to death in a fire that roared through their two-storey frame early today.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. Leger Laplerre and five children.

When the fire was first noticed at about 3 a. m. EDT flames were shooting out of the windows of the home, isolated opposite the town's Hotel Sanferre on the outskirts.

Residents of this booming St. Lawrence River north shore town rushed to the fire scene, while the fire brigade poured water on neighboring homes threatened by the leaping flames.

Eye-witnesses said the family had no chance of escape when firemen arrived, the house appeared engulfed in flames.

There was little wind but the night was cool in the town, 250 miles northeast of Quebec City, and it is considered possible the Laplerre's had started a fire in the stove. However, origin of the fire remains a mystery.

The Laplerre home is in a more newly built part of the town, in a small village only a few years ago but now a fast-growing town because it is in between the iron ore fields 300 miles north of the town.

Dr. Beaulieu said another son of the Laplerre family would have died but for his quick action.

The three who escaped from the blazing house told the doctor Mrs. Laplerre died in a vain attempt to save her husband and children.

"She was the first one up and cried out to wake everyone. A boy went downstairs to see where the fire was located. The mother told a daughter and a cousin to leap out of a window and went back into another room. The boy, on her sleeping husband so he could help to bring out the children. She never came back. The boy who had gone downstairs only got out because someone pushed down the front door with axes," Dr. Beaulieu said.

MONEY FOUND INTACT

Toronto, Sept. 6. (CP)—Streetcar motorman Albert Walker found a wallet Wednesday with his cost, containing ticket money, on a longer behind him.

Along came a truck. As it passed the tram the truck's ridge-pole shattered several windows and snagged Walker's cost hanger, money and all. Walker watched the truck driver, a Mr. Walker, coast away.

Later the cost with the money intact was found on a street and turned over to police who returned it to Walker.

Drew Wants Action to Cut Living Costs

Ottawa, Sept. 6.—(CP)—George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said yesterday Canadians should do everything possible to improve the economics of parliament "that the people of Canada want immediate action, and vigorous action, to hold down the cost of living."

In a prepared statement, Mr. Drew said he had hoped Prime Minister St. Laurent would have stated in a nation-wide broadcast Tuesday night that the government had "at last decided to come to grips with the greatest threat to the security of this country short of another world war."

Mr. St. Laurent spoke after the Bureau of Statistics announced that the cost of living had risen another 1.3 points in July to a record-shattering 188.9 points.

Mr. Drew said the prime minister had made it clear the government plans to do nothing more than it already has done.

"He has told us that the government has brought still further pressure on the mounting cycle of inflation, which not only threatens the domestic security of our people, but also threatens just as much our ability to play our part in preventing a third world war," said Mr. Drew.

Mr. Drew said that between now and the time parliament meets Oct. 9 Canadians should realize it is clear that they want immediate action to hold down the cost of living.

Miss Malcolm was presented with two monogramed silver salad forks by the CNE award committee for her flight placing.

Ranger Training For the Season Is Completed

Junior ranger training for the season has been completed by the ranger staff of the Department of Lands and Forests.

Two crews were employed, fifteen youths in all with each group based at Bancroft and the other at Plevna. The boys were trained in underbrushing, woodcutting, improvement work on campsites and fireflighting. They were taught to use firefighting tools safely, and efficiently and later taken on trips to lookout towers, sawmills and fish hatcheries.

"The Bancroft crew was one of the best we've had" was Chief Ranger E. Gordon's comment. Similar reports came from rangers at Plevna and Dacre.

The Royal Train carrying Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip across Ontario will stop at Belleville north station for 15 minutes on October 5th, according to Canadian National Railways officials at Belleville.

It was pointed out, however, there was a possibility of plans being changed before the date on which the Royal Train will pass through.

The stop at Belleville is scheduled as a regular stop for servicing of the train, while it is en route from Kingston to Trenton, where a two-hour stop will be made. Accompanying the Royal Train will be a press train carrying members of the press accompanying the Royal tour.

Bright Weather Needed to Ripen Tomato Crop

At least ten days of bright weather is needed to ripen the tomato crop if anything like a normal pack is to be secured this year according to the weekly crop report published by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Canning factory officials state the crop is ripening very slowly with warm and sunny days needed. One factory operator said that although his plant had been running tomatoes for two weeks they were coming in very slowly and to date all could have been run in one day had they come in at the same time.

Minority Leaders Of Niagara River Want Development

Albany, N.Y., Sept. 6—(AP)—The democratic minority leaders of the state legislature have called upon the U.S. Senate's public works committee to approve a bill that would provide for federal development of Niagara Falls hydro-electric power.

The measure, introduced by Senator Herbert Lehman (Dem.-Lab., N.Y.) calls for construction of a new power project by army engineers.

In a joint statement released here Wednesday, the Democratic legislative leaders, Senator Elmer F. Quinn and assemblyman Irwin Steingut, said they had urged passage of the bill in a request sent to Senator Dennis Chavez (Dem, N.M.), chairman of the public works committee.

They said that "remedial works to restore the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and development of 1,250,000 kilowatts of power would go forward as parts of the same project under the Lehman bill."

Quinn and Steingut claimed the bill carried "safeguards for the development of Niagara Falls which are imperatively needed to protect the interest of the people."

They called upon the public works committee to turn down a counter measure introduced jointly by Senator Irving Ives and representative Sterling Cole, New York Republicans.

The Ives-Cole measure would authorize New York state to proceed at once to develop the Niagara power.

Under terms or the Lehman bill, the Niagara project would be turned over to the state, when completed, if the president agreed.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Sept. 6 — (CP) — Stock market prices climbed rapidly today in early afternoon dealings. Wednesday's strong final hour support continued in open trade and gathered strength as the session progressed.

Western oils turned mixed as support weakened.

Senior golds showed little trend. Junior golds stayed mixed.

TRENTON

Weather Good For Observations From the Air

Trenton. (Special)— The air search for missing hockey great Bill Barilko, of Toronto, and Dr. Henry Hudson, of Timmins, has been intensified according to Air Search Rescue branch of the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, today.

Today, 17 aircraft of all types including Lancasters, Dakotas, a Norseman and a Helicopter, joined in the hunt for the two sportsmen believed lost in the waste counter and muskeg north of Timmins ten days ago.

The Timmins dentist and Toronto Maple Leaf defenceman failed to return from a flying fishing trip in a flight plane into the James Bay area and were last heard from out of Rupert House on August 26th.

The Helicopter, and a Norseman piloted by Squadron Leader Piper, are being employed in an intensively close search of the major suspect areas. To date the R.C.A.F. have flown more than 600 hours looking for the missing pair.

Up until today the weather has been good for making observations from the air.

ineffectual passes" at an unarmed allied spotter plane.

Fifth Air Force flights going to relieve the embattled Allies were so heavy at times that the roar of the engines shook windows in Seoul as the planes passed over the South Korean capital.

The red attack came only a few days after U. N. command headquarters in Tokyo said the communists might launch a new offensive. The command estimated red strength at 40 front - line divisions and 30 in reserve, including "Caucasian Soviet puppet troops." And it said the reds have a "puppet air force" of 1,000 planes in Manchuria.

An Eighth Army spokesman said the Chinese tank attack 'does not necessarily mean' there would be an all out red offensive. He described the action as a "local affair," but highly significant.

The Chinese, who intervened in the war last October, previously had fought without armor.

The North Koreans, organized into a military counterpart to the Russian red army, were well equipped with T-34 tanks when the war started 14 months ago. They lost more than 800.

Wednesday, despite stiff opposition, the U. S. Second Division wound up the first phase of a limited Allied offensive in the east by driving to the top of "Bloody Ridge." The ridge is 16 miles north of the 38th Parallel, due north of Yanggu. The offensive carried the Allied line as much as five miles northward.

Newsman Sure Author L. Adamic Was Murdered

San Francisco, Sept. 6 (AP) — A Yugoslav newspaperman said today he is convinced that Louis Adamic was murdered. The author was found dead from a rifle shot Tuesday, was listed as a suicide pending investigations.

M. Anton Smole, correspondent for the Yugoslav news agency Tulpa, said he had been a close friend of Adamic since 1947.

Smole told The Associated Press:

"Mr. Adamic's life was threatened four times, twice by an American connected with Cominform agents operating in the United States." The Cominform (communist information bureau) is a Russian propaganda agency.

Smole said he last saw the 53-year-old writer in June in New York. He said Adamic told him the threats began in 1949 when he returned from Yugoslavia with material for an anti-Soviet pro-Tito book.

Adamic said he was beaten and kicked unconscious one night last March near Los Angeles. He blamed persons determined to see that the book was not written. (Adamic's secretary said the manuscript for "The Eagle and The Rock" completed but for one chapter, is missing).

The first threat was made in the summer of 1949 when a man went to the Adamics' isolated farmhouse near Milford, N.J., Smole said.

"This man advised Adamic to cease writing favorable articles about Yugoslavia and particularly warned him against publishing the book."

In October, 1949, the man came back and threatened 'stop writing that book. You are a traitor to the working people. You are connected with the fascist clique, the Tito clique, and will be a bad ending for you.'

NO NEGLIGENCE

Vermillion, S. D., Sept. 6 (AP) — A coroner's juhy held yesterday there was no felonious intent or culpable negligence in the "human guinea pig" deaths at the University of South Dakota last Aug. 18. It ruled that two university employees, Jack Clifford and Mrs. Ardys Pearson, died "from an overdose of malhadon administered by Dr. Lorin Mickelsen in an experiment conducted at the university's medical school laboratory."

AGREEMENT SIGNED

Washington, Sept. 5—(AP) — The United States and Portugal today signed a new agreement which is expected to enable Atlantic Alliance Nations to use bases in the Azores "for the purpose of the common defence."

10,000 Postal Workers Affected By Reshuffle

Ottawa, Sept. 6 (CP) — A reshuffle of grades affecting the jobs and salaries of some 10,000 postal workers across Canada is made effective by an order-in-council announced today by the government.

The order, back-dated to July 1, abolishes the position of junior postal clerk and postal clerk and replaces them with the new classifications of postal clerk grade 1 and postal clerk grade 2, respectively.

In addition the order stipulates that letter carriers, mail porters and postal dispatchers in small cities will 'encroforth be on the same standing as men holding similar jobs in larger cities. A differential which existed between postoffices of different sizes is wiped out.

Starting wage for the new position of postal clerk grade 1 is $1,812 annually, rising to a maximum of $2,364 compared with $1,536 rising to $2,232 for junior postal clerks. Postal clerks grade 2 salaries are unchanged at $2,028 to $2,904.

Meanwhile, payments are prevalent in Ottawa that a cost of living bonus will be given to all federal civil servants. The civil service commission is said to be preparing a report on the latest request of the civil service federation for a bonus of $328 a year or $24 a month to all government employees.

Finance Minister Abbott is said to prefer a straight salary increase rather than a cost of living bonus arrangement.

OPTIMISTIC PREDICTION

There was a ray of hope yesterday in Dr. Conant's prediction that there would be no atomic war in this century. This eminent scientist, president of Harvard University, had a big hand in the development of the atomic bomb. His basis for such optimism was the fact that the Democracies started to rearm last year when collective security became a reality.

Dr. Conant believes that when the freedom-loving nations decided to meet each type of military threat with counter-measures to defeat these plans, then the chance of war breaking out became more remote.

"By the middle of the 1950s," he commented, " I see balanced forces against the disposal of the Atlantic Treaty nations. It is then clear that there can be no easy march to the Channel ports." He went on to say that the 1960s will be that time when constructive steps away from war will be taken. "Fifteen or twenty years after the first atomic bomb was fired, a sober appraisal of the debits and credits of the exploitation of atomic fission had led people to decide the game was not worth the candle."

Whether or not we agree with Dr. Conant, it is reassuring to have a man of his knowledge making such predictions. The mind of man is unfathomable particularly those men who guide the destinies of Russia. No one can predict their future actions by any standards of the past. They have made plenty of mistakes during their careers and they will make plenty more. Underestimating the Western Powers could be one of them much the same as Hitler did not believe Britain would live up to her treaty obligations with Poland. His error led to war and his eventual defeat. It is entirely possible the men of the Kremlin could fall into the same kind of trap.

There is one great deterrent against the Russians going to war that is the possibility of destruction of their oil fields by atomic bombs. No nation can conduct war for long without a sure supply of oil. No matter how good their defence might be some planes will get through to accomplish their mission.

Whether or not Dr. Conant had any part of this in mind when he made his prediction he did not say, but we can be sure it is a factor along with other offensive measures that could be taken were war to break out. Nonetheless Dr. Conant's prediction is realistic. Just so long as the Democracies keep themselves prepared against surprise there will be no war. The lessons learned in Korea should never be forgotten, nor are they likely to be. Thus it would seem with these matters in mind that Dr. Conant was not too optimistic in his predictions of peace for many years to come.

STALIN'S CAPITALISTS

(New York Herald Tribune)

Incessantly and in strident tones it has been dinned into our ears that there are communists in our midst. Perhaps it can be whispered that Stalin has some regular, American standard, stock owning capitalists in his own Politburo. No louder than a whisper, of course, for if this should come too plainly to the ears of the Russian overlords these capitalists might be hunted down and liquidated with the same murderous fury that was visited upon millions of kulaks.

One of our great corporations—United States Steel—makes the somewhat surprising disclosure that there are Russians who own almost 500 shares in all of its common and preferred stock. The number is relatively small, to be sure, and it may well be that quite a few of our 500,000 corporations have shareholders domiciled in communist countries.

On second thought it may not be necessary to speak guardedly about these stock-owning heretics. There is, most certainly, no way in which American dividend cheques can be cashed behind the Iron Curtain without official sanction. All governments behind the Iron Curtain are schemers for dollars, and they doubtless look upon dollar dividend cheques with typical disregard of individual rights.

CATCHING BABY FISH

(Brockville Recorder-Times)

On the front page of the Carleton Place Canadian is a picture of a game overseer pointing to 60 speckled trout which he seized from three Carleton Place anglers. The reason for seizure; of the 60 fish, 57 were undersized, some less than three inches long. For this mass fish murder the fishermen were fined $144. And a good thing, too.

The illegal fish had been planted by the Department of Lands and Forests and were intended to grow to legal size before being taken. Now of course the almost countless descendants that would have come from these 60 fish are lost for good.

STRIKES AND BAWLS

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

An Ontario judge ordered two youths to be thrashed by their fathers for beating up a baseball umpire. This was a chance for the umpire to count the strikes and bawls.

JUST FOLKS

(Copyright, 1951, Edgar A. Guest)
By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE WAY

A kiss at the door for the journey away;
A happy "hello" at the close of the day.
And love in the home can be trusted to stay.

Life's small irritations with patience endured;
With courage to suffer what cannot be cured,
In this way both love and the home are insured.

One purpose to serve and just one goal to gain;
That, a home at which hatred can batter in vain;
Faith in God under heartache and love will remain.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE LIVELONG BURDEN

Almost 3000 years ago a little book called the Didache, a manual of church order and the teachings of the apostles, was written by some unknown Christian. It exerted a great influence on the believers of that day.

One important item in this teaching is a slight change in the form of the Lord's Prayer. It reads, "Forgive us our debt," instead of "debts". The substitution of a singular here for a plural is significant. It means, "Forgive our sinful nature, forgive us for being the kind of people we are." To forgive us our "debts" means to forgive this particular sin or that; to forgive our "debt" means to forgive the sinful and perverted nature out of which all these evil acts grow.

There has been a lot of ridicule poked at the doctrine of original sin, especially in recent generations. The doctrine holds that human beings have within them certain evil propensities which influences all their acts and causes them to be chronic sinners. None of us is ever perfect at any period in our lives. We are all continually sinning, with the tendency to do wrong rather than to do right. We limp through life with a congenital deformation of soul.

The ancient Didache may have perceived the actual word and intent of Jesus when it said, "Forgive us our debt" instead of "Forgive us our debts."

Letter to the Editor

Wally Bent Lauded

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer

It is with great pride for the people of Iroville in the year of the great praise for the boys' choir who visited Toronto last week under the guidance of Mr. Wally Bent. Mr. Bent is to be congratulated for the great work and the increase in membership of the YMCA. It is a great interest and love for the boys that has gained for him the respect of all. He has organized baseball and hockey, teaching the boys to be honest and good citizens.

My congratulations to the directors of the YMCA for having Mr. Bent in their employ because he is doing a wonderful job, not only for them, but for the good people of Belleville.

Soviet Press Critical of U.S.

Moscow, Sept. 6 (AP) —The Soviet press reported today that the United States is trying to turn the Japanese peace-treaty conference into "a mere formal ceremony.

Pravda dispatches from San Francisco complained that "large numbers" of delegations at the conference are from countries that "did nothing towards the destruction of Japanese militarism."

Pravda said the treaty prepared by the U.S. and Britain is in flagrant violation of pledges undertaken at Cairo, Yalta and Potsdam.

WILL BE DISTRIBUTED

Hong Kong, Sept. 6 (Reuters) —The Hong Kong government announced today Japanese assets here, estimated at more than $3,500,000, will be available for distribution under the terms of the Japanese peace treaty. The sum of $2,800,000 will be devoted to form the endowment fund for Hong Kong University. The balance would be made available to help the community.

King Talal Takes Throne Of Jordan

Amman, Jordan, Sept. 6 (AP)— King Talal I today took the throne of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan, succeeding his father, the late King Abdullah.

The 40-year-old monarch took the constitutional oath before parliament shortly after his return from Switzerland, where he had undergone a rest cure.

The elevation of King Talal restores the question of Jordan's future relations with Britain. King Abdullah was Britain's staunch friend in the Middle East.

Dispatches from the region have called Talal anti-British, but in an interview in Athens last night he said he will continue "the same cold, friendly relations" with Britain.

THE PACKSACK

By GRÉGORY CLARK

Around England you will notice a greater percentage of people wearing modern hearing aids than you do in Canada or the States. A great many Britons had their hearing damaged by explosions during the bombing and wonderful organization of Britain in the war. But in addition, national health regulations make it possible for people of however restricted means to get these faithful servants of instruments.

For instance, this one morning I counted seven hearing aids in the short journey by tube, with two short walks, between my hotel and Canada House. The first was on the door porter of my hotel; second on a well-dressed businessman walking by; third on a young girl in overalls and the uniform of the transportation company down in the tube; fourth on an elderly woman, fifth, a Keen-eyed boy in the tube train; sixth on the man who took my ticket at the top of the tube escalator, and seventh another passer-by outside Canada House. You never see that many in an ordinary week in a Canadian city.

Like eye-glasses, they are free of charge, part of the national health scheme in semi-socialist Britain. Rich and poor are both entitled to one and almost every other mechanical correction or appliance that the surgeon ordains. It is a fundamental project, not unlike the American Declaration of Independence with its self-evident truths, in that it guarantees the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, except that the British throw in the necessary tools, to wit spectacles and hearing aids to help one do your pursuing with the aid of all your faculties.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON LOOKING BACK

If we must look back to the past at all, I believe that we should look back only for happiness. If we have been brought up in a happy home, we like to tell people about it, and we like to think back upon it. Nothing, however, is gained in any way by looking back upon unhappy happenings.

Through the agency of our memory we can carry with us throughout life the many experiences of happiness that we have known. And these happy experiences continually inspire us toward more of their kind as we think upon them and plan to create more of them.

If we form the habit of looking back upon failure, we will never gain sufficient courage to look well upon success. Success is rarely reconstructed failure. By looking back upon the humble early efforts of all our great men and women, we are inspired to emulate them, and we are reminded that great achievements are born from the smaller ones that few people make note of at the time they are taking root.

From the lessons of the past we can learn much—much on which to improve, and much upon what should be avoided. We ought to learn much from our follies and from our mistakes, and we can learn much from the past.

But we look back upon the little that our forefathers and pioneers had to guide and encourage them, we should take heart and never complain of our lot, no matter how difficult or discouraging. It's the grinding down of the diamond that gives to it its brilliance. So it is with us all who ever amount to anything of great worth, we have to experience hardships — and overcome them! And when we look back upon them, it is not with regret, but pride.

Personal Health Talks

WHO'S STUPID NOW?

Why does an Editor permit a few of your stupe to call readers "stupid", "geek" and "Yankee Wisecrex?" When it comes to downright stupidity the attached exhibit certainly entitles you to the paper cap in that direction! (Anonymous)

It is only because the writer of this letter sent a clipping that I give it any attention. Ordinarily I look at the signature first, and if the signature fails to satisfy I waste no time reading what the nonentity may say.

The clipping is long, one-half of the article I released for my columns, March 16—an article titled Physical Degeneration and Divorce. The clipping shows that the paper omitted the title as well as more than half of the substance of the article.

The omitted portion is the article that seems to have irked the anonymous writer of the letter. The fact that a sociologist who made a study of 100 divorce cases observed that nearly all of the young women who came to divorce court were ill-nourished and seemed poorly nourished. The sociologist noticed that as they left the court the look on most of them did was to light a cigarette. From his observations my sociologist friend inferred that most of these divorces (he mentioned only the women, but probably the same thing applies to divorced men) were apparently what he calls "doughnut-coffee-cigarette neurotics."

In other words the sociologist is under the impression that malnutrition has something to do with the dreadfully high divorce rate. In this I concur.

The sociologist did not say how many of the couples obtaining divorces were children. From the clipping I had that intentional childlessness in the first three years of marriage is one of the chief factors of divorce.

In many instances this intentional childlessness proves to be involuntary if or when the married couple long remain childless the couple to settle down to the business of founding a family.

It at least a very small case of childlessness the husband is the sterile partner. Therefore in every such case it is only reasonable that the question of the husband's potency be established (by microscopic study by physician) before the wife's capacity to become a mother is investigated.

There is a good deal of scientific evidence and practical everyday observation in support of the idea that nutritional condition has a good deal to do with capacity for conceiving. Anyway, it's what I had in mind when I titled the article Physical Degeneration and Divorce. Physical degeneration is the inevitable consequence of nutritional deficiency through the years—for one thing the use of refined white flour, instead of the whole wheat flour with its vitamin E etc., as the staff of life. White flour keeps indefinitely, but real whole wheat flour must be used within a few days after the wheat is ground. Don't let any bunk merchant deceive you about this.

The nonsensity that sent in the clipping, like any real person, may call me stupid, geek, quack or whatever printable name the occasion may suggest. I'll go right on applying such epithets to unidentified persons who seem to fit the description—but mind you, I have never applied any such epithet to an individual—so for goodness sake keep your shirt on.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Dope

I am a man 44, accountant. Many nights I find it hard to get real rest and relaxation. I take one nembutal at bedtime and get good rest for the following day. Will this in any way injure my health? (W. J. F.)

Answer—It is going to impair your health. Send 25c, stamped self-addressed envelope for the green book Nerves and Nutrition which contains a chapter on barbiturates. What you probably need is not relaxation but some pep, pastime or hobby which will give you physical activity or a reasonable amount of general exercise to offset the ill effects of your sedentary occupation. The barbiturate group include, besides membutal, amytal, seconal, nembutal, alurate, dial, noctal, ortal, pentothal, phanodorn, phenobarbital, etc.

The Gray Sickness

Sore and burning tongue and roots of mouth, I am Mrs. Hives tried peroxide and soft water with no results. (Mrs. R. J.)

Answer—Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on the Gray Sickness—Nutritional Deficiency Anemia.

"Under the pretext of self - defence of Japan," he said, "the draft provides for the participation of Japan in an aggressive military alliance with the United States.

"The draft treaty not only fails to provide for obligations that Japan should not join any coalitions directly against any of the States which participated in the war against militarist Japan, but . . . is clearing the path for Japan's participation in aggressive blocs in the Far East created under the aegis of the United States."

Proposes 13 Amendments

Gromyko proposed 13 major amendments to the draft. These included provisions to force American troops out of Japan, bring red China into the peace-making, and give Formosa to red China. Only such changes, he said would make the treaty acceptable to Russia.

Booing spectators were reprimanded by conference vice-president Percy C. Spender of Australia as Gromyko stalked to his seat.

Altogether the day was one of the roughest a Soviet delegation ever experienced in a discussion of a major international meeting. In two hours Gromyko lost the rules fight that had been expected to last all day. A tight set of rules limiting debate and barring observers to the historic church at Hoy Bay. Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Calgary Woman Is Expert Shot

Calgary, (CP) — Alma and William Macnab are one of the shootingest couples in Canada.

Since they met on a rifle range 14 years ago and married, they have won prizes all over the country for ace marksmanship.

Mrs. Macnab says she and her husband have collected eight or nine dozen trophies in all kinds of shooting matches.

This year Mrs. Macnab made a place on Canada's Dewar team—shoot for highest honor any Canadian woman rifle expert can win because Dewar team members are considered to be the 20 best marksmen in the Dominion.

She became the sixth woman in Canada ever to make the team.

And she did it the hard way, by scoring a perfect 400, something no other Canadian woman has done.

Mr. Macnab was also a crack shot, winning four Dominion titles before a shooting accident forced him out of active competition.

The accident didn't stop him from continuing as his wife's coach, a job he took on when the couple met 14 years ago.

Mrs. Macnab, now 30, became interested in shooting after a friend invited her to the Calgary Rifle Club. Soon she was taking time out from high-school homework to pot targets.

Shortly after she joined the club her future husband began to help her. Within a few months she made a junior shooting team which won a Dominion Match Rifle championship.

Since then, Bill Mcnab has been her coach.

The shooting Macnabs haven't any children. Each coaches a junior class at the Calgary Rifle Club.

They teach 50 to 75 youngsters the rudiments of gunmanship—including how to avoid shooting accidents.

"We're happy to see the kids get a lot of enjoyment out of it," says Mrs. Macnab.

45TH CASE OF POLIO

Brockville, Sept. 6—(CP)—An eight-year-old Prescott boy was removed to the isolation ward at the Kingston General Hospital in an iron lung Wednesday as the 45th polio case in this eastern Ontario district.

Fashion Flashes

ELABORATE indeed is the trimming that marks some of the hats now coming into the stores for fall sampling. Deep red velvet makes a peaked Siamese pillbox, rich with embroideries of pearl, gold and red, and seed-bead beading, separated by petal shaped appliques of white satin.

AT HOME clothes, as distinct from lounging or negligee garments, are much to the fore this year. Ready for the televiewers are handsome floor-length robes and trousers with tunic or jacket of blouse costumes. Velvet trousers that taper to a slim ankle are lined, often topped by coats or tunic of richly colored brocade.

FIRST NIGHT audiences favor silk suits done in the dressy side, yet restrained enough for late afternoon wear. A new model uses dull silk satin in a light bamboo beige, the one-button jacket trimmed with an embroidered yoke line in self satin cording studded with pearl and rhinestone beading. Skirt is slim with front slit at hem.

A FAILURE must be chalked up for the forward-posed, level hat, and every fall millinery collection features profile brims that lift away from the hairline at top, then swing to the temple and dip down one side. Slicked-down ostrich in pale-pink is used to make one such hat, with one tip of the brim curved up and away from the edge, pointing up the lifted brim at the opposite side.

Woman Will Be Chief Greeter For Ottawa

Ottawa, Sept. 5—(CP)—A woman will be the chief greeter for the city of Ottawa when Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip visit the capital Oct. 3-5.

City council last night decided to defer action on the appointment of a successor to the late Mayor Grenville Goodwin for "one month or 31 days."

The action means acting mayor Charlotte Whitton will head Ottawa's civic delegations in welcoming the Lord Mayor of London this weekend and for the Royal visit early in October.

Miss Whitton, a member of board of control, from which the mayor will be chosen, has been acting mayor since Mr. Goodwin's death Aug. 25.

Co-eds Choose Togs Practical but Gay

Toronto. (CP)—College girls, traditionally dressy in casual styles, are practical about what they wear. At least, Canadian co-eds are.

Toronto department store buyers have been stocked their college shops with clothes that are gay and pretty, but definitely wearable.

Corduroy is queen of the clothes racks this year, fashion observers said. The fabric is used in suits, skirts, dresses and jackets, and in plain, embroidered and tartan tweed finishes.

Velveteen appears to be running a close second in dresses, skirts and ensembles while classic tartans and grey flannel shared the spotlight on tailored suits.

The vogue for separates has caught on to such an extent with the college crowd that even some dance dresses have interchangeable skirts and tops.

One typical co-ed likes saddle shoes for classes and "roaming around," Cuban heels for dress-up occasions.

Moccasins She said she "wouldn't be caught dead in them".

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

Ice cream was once an event.

There was a time when Sunday's ice cream had to be ordered several days in advance. On Sunday morning the big plugged wooden bucket with ice and, coarse salt would be delivered. It was always a disappointment to find that the big bucket contained so small a can. The opening of the can, licking the paper, scraping the can and dishing out the luscious smooth stuff was an excitement that modern kids miss.

Ice cream was still in the same category as candy—a food that was so good it had to be forbidden. If eaten frequently, it could not possibly be good for you.

Now nutritionists point out that ice cream is one of the best sources of protein and calcium. Dr. A. C. Dahlberg of Cornell University explains that ice cream contains the essential vitamin riboflavin, and that the riboflavin in ice cream is more fully used than the same vitamin in other foods. Ice cream is especially important for people who do not drink adequate quantities of milk.

You can still make an event out of ice cream by serving it with a luscious home made fruit sauce.

Ice Cream with Orange-Pineapple Sauce

1 cup crushed canned pineapple
2 tablespoons corn starch
1-8 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup sugar
1 egg yolk, well beaten
1-3 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice

1 teaspoon grated orange rind
1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 teaspoons butter
Vanilla or peach ice cream

Drain the juice from the 1 cup of crushed pineapple. Add enough water to make three-fourths of a cup of liquid.

Mix together the corn starch, salt and sugar in the top part of a double boiler. Add the liquid, mixing well to dissolve the dry ingredients. Add the egg yolk. Mix well.

Cook over boiling water. Stir the sauce frequently. Cook until the mixture is thick and the starchy flavor has disappeared from the sauce, about 5 minutes.

Remove from the heat. Stir in the orange juice, lemon juice, orange rind, lemon rind, butter, and drained pineapple.

Add more sugar if a sweeter sauce is desired.

Any cooked fruit cut in small pieces may be substituted for the pineapple.

Spoon the sauce, slightly warm, over the ice cream in the serving

Hybrid Car, Trailer Teacher's 'Friends'

Saskatoon—(CP)—Gertrude and Sheila have a trailer.

Sheila built it and Gertrude pulls it—but that isn't really hard on Gertrude because Gertie is a car, a 1930 Chevrolet with a 1929 Essex body and "a bit of Ford here and there."

Gertie and Sheila Purvis are fast friends, for although Gert is getting on in years, she has carried Miss Purvis and pulled the trailer, about 15,000 miles "and never let me down once," says her owner proudly.

Miss Purvis, a school-teacher of Islay, Alta., built the trailer herself. She scorned custom-built parts and ready-made blueprints and designed her own.

On wheels and axle from an old car, she built a six-by-eight foot aluminum-covered cabin furnished with a bed, cupboard, sink, clothes closet and chest of drawers.

This fall Miss Purvis will teach at Grandview school, north of Lloydminster and two miles from the Alberta-Saskatchewan border.

Death of Author Listed as Suicide

Flemington, N.J., Sept. 5—(AP)—Local authorities today listed the death of Louis Adamic, writer and fighter for minority tolerance, as suicide. But they invited the Federal Bureau of Investigation to probe the possibility of left-wing murder.

The 52-year-old Yugoslav-born author, who recently found Marshal Tito more to his liking than Russia's Stalin, was found yesterday in his burning farmhouse with a bullet in his head and a rifle across his knees.

"There appears to be nothing to indicate anything other than suicide," county prosecutor H. T. Heisel said, but he added: "I have personally notified the F.B.I. In case they desire to inspect the premises because of Mr. Adamic's political writings."

After Adamic's secretary revealed that four unidentified persons threatened him about his forthcoming book on Yugoslavia under Tito, F.B.I. headquarters in Newark said a decision would probably be reached later today on whether to enter the case.

Police found kerosene-soaked rags scattered about Adamic's house and his garage and kitchen on fire when they located his body in an upstairs bedroom. They said the fire was apparently deliberately set and the bullet "supposedly self-inflicted."

Trustees Will Not Stagger Classes

Toronto, Sept. 5—(CP)—Classes at crowded Halbert school in suburban Scarboro township will not be staggered to let sturdy children use the school, a delegation of parents learned from school area trustees Tuesday night.

Children in the Halbert school district will have to walk about a mile to another school.

The difficulty began when school area one built its new school within the boundaries of school area two. It was much closer for some area two children than their own school.

Tuesday about 100 children were kept home from school in protest against having to walk a mile instead of one block to school. Tuesday night trustees and parents met to discuss staggered classes for the closer school, but were unable to agree.

Whispering Campaign Against Churchill Enlivens Otherwise Dull Period in British Politics

London, Sept. 5—(CP)—An alleged whispering campaign against conservative leader Winston Churchill now enlivens an otherwise dull period in British politics.

The scope and origins of the campaign, if any, are difficult to judge. There have been wars and rumors of wars within the conservative party since its 1945 defeat, but nothing to justify reports of real dissension.

Now the Daily Express, always pro-Churchill if not always pro-conservative, says that a socialist-inspired "smirch-and-smear" campaign is being directed against the wartime premier. It warns that it is starting "to permeate the ranks" of the tory party too.

A. J. Cummings, political correspondent of the Liberal News Chronicle, embellishes the conversation piece with a report that, indeed, Churchill is the "victim of something akin to a party whispering campaign." Cummings says Churchill has sometimes antagonized tories by frustrating new policy proposals, sometimes by insisting on going his own way.

Other gossip has been that some conservatives would like to see Churchill step down in favor of Anthony Eden, who is thought to be politically "safe." The theory is that Eden, representing a modern-sit-middle-of-the-road approach, might sway more marginal voters than a man who made his reputation largely as a leader in war.

Some Favor Eden

Recent samplings of public opinion are reported to give this idea a measure of support. One survey indicated that those polled would rather have Eden than Churchill at the head of a conservative government. Even among conservatives, the survey indicated, Churchill had only a five-per-cent edge over Eden.

In the past, there have been reports that opposition to Churchill existed among the group of conservative members nominally led by R. A. Butler, the party's chief policy planner. In a conversation with this correspondent, Butler said then there was nothing to his talk. It almost certainly has no substance now. In a speech at Camborne, Cornwall, during the weekend Butler said: "Rents middle-of-the-road, that this great world-respected liberal-minded leader, and we conservatives mean to have him once again."

Another prominent conservative speaker, L. D. Gammans, said during the weekend that "the risks of war would be halved overnight if Churchill were back in Downing Street and Mr. Eden at the Foreign Office."

On balance, it seems probable that some conservatives are restless after five years of playing second fiddle to the ruling labor party, but highly doubtful that any kind of organized whispering campaign exists, inside or outside the party.

Spring Crops Now Harvested

Toronto, Sept. 5. (CP)—Most spring grain crops have been harvested in Ontario, the Department of Agriculture says. A good deal of the threshing has been completed, but recent heavy rains have brought delays, especially in Northern Ontario.

The department said that most farmers are hoping for a few days of clear weather to enable threshing to be completed, then for rain to prepare the ground for winter wheat.

The labor situation is fairly satisfactory in Brant and Norfolk counties where the tobacco crop creates an extremely heavy seasonal demand. The harvest is about half over in Brant county.

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Vancouver, Sept. 5. (CP)— A young man with a suitcase containing $10,000 worth of jewelry was arrested here last night and charged with breaking and entering. Police arrested Louis Philippe Masson, 24, as he left a swank west-end home. They took him to his rooming house where they found the suitcase full of gems. Most of the articles were packed in jewel cases or neatly wrapped in tissue paper.

Three Calgary Men Relate Story of Daring 'Copter Salvage Job in Dead Man's Valley

VETERAN SEAFARER

Capt. R. B. Grant, master of the Empress of Canada, will retire after his ship brings Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada in October. Capt. Grant started his naval career at the age of 18 and saw action with the Royal Navy in two world wars. This is a Canadian Pacific Railway photo (CP Photo).

Boss Suggests Canadians Should Be Instructed

Toronto, Sept. 6—(CP)—Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent in Korea, suggested yesterday that Canadian soldiers proceeding overseas ought to be educated on the geography, culture and customs of countries to which they are posted.

Boss, addressing the Empire Club of Toronto, said the Canadian troops serving in Korea had acquired a "superiority" attitude which was reflected in their dealings with the Koreans.

The pattern had been set by other countries' troops but that apart from two battalions, the Canadians were tending also to conform to it.

The 2nd battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and the Royal 22nd Regiment, he said, were less guilty of the attitude than were others of the Canadian force. But generally, the Canadians were more sympathetic to the Koreans than were others.

Boss, home on leave after nine months in Korea, said it might also be considered that the troops abroad had acquired their attitude because they had not had the chance of the past in which the ideological issues involved in the Korean conflict had personal significance. He said:

"By this I mean that while the army can make good soldiers of them and also could prepare them for service in foreign theatres, it is no part of the army's job to teach them religion or a personal philosophy.

"That is the job of our homes and our schools right at home.

"It might be that as these men are our personal representatives abroad all of us ought to help to define our appreciations of the issues."

Shipping Lanes Menaced By Two Hurricanes

Miami, Sept. 6—(AP)—Shipping lanes were menaced today by two hurricanes whirling westward across the Atlantic, but neither was in a position to arouse any immediate concern to land areas.

The nearest and most dangerous was reported by the Miami Weather Bureau at 5 a. m. EDT about 480 miles east-northeast of San Juan, Puerto Rico, and moving westward at 20 miles an hour.

Winds of 135 miles an hour were reported at the center of the storm. Forecasters expected it to grow more powerful. Warnings went out to ships at sea to afoid it.

The other hurricane was spotted yesterday about 1,700 miles off Antigua in the British West Indies. It was moving west-northwest at 15 miles an hour with winds of hurricane force (75 miles an hour).

No reports were received on this storm during the night.

Lost Plane Headed Along Nottaway R. Say Indians

Calgary, Sept. 6 (CP) — The story of a daring helicopter salvage job in the Nahanni (Dead Man's) Valley of the North West Territories was related yesterday by three Calgary men who took part in the operation late in August.

The craft was brought to a repair depot here Saturday. It had perched atop a 5,900-foot mountain more than 900 miles northwest of Edmonton since early July. It was written off as lost until the three Calgary men, a Montrealer and a prospector tackled the salvage job and brought it off.

It first ran into grief when army officers making a survey of the territory attempted to take off after one of the wheels sank into soft ground. It fell on to its side, smashing the blades and the fuse assembly.

An army pilot, Capt. Percy Miles of Riverdale, Ont., and three other soldiers crawled down the side of the 5,900-foot mountain. After 10 days of walking 50 miles through rough country, battling mosquitoes and black flies, the party met some oil company geophysicists who brought them back to civilization.

Then the RCAF tackled the job of salvaging the badly-damaged craft.

Three Selected

Sgt. G. R. Lawrie of the RCAF, a mechanic, and bush veterans Bill Watt and Henry Hergert of Canadian Pacific Airlines, Calgary, were the men selected for the job. Russell McCormick of Montreal was sent out by the Pratt-Whitney Motor Co., which supplies motors for the Sikorsky helicopter.

They left Calgary Aug. 15, going first to Rivers to pick up parts, then on to Fort Simpson, N.W.T.

The party hired Gus Kraza, an Indian trapper and veteran bush pilot and Henry Herget of Canadian Pacific Airlines, Calgary, were the men selected for the job, Russell McCormick of Montreal was sent out by the Pratt-Whitney Motor Co., which supplies motors for the Sikorsky helicopter.

They left Calgary Aug. 15, going first to Rivers to pick up parts, then on to Fort Simpson, N.W.T.

The party hired Gus Kraza, an Indian trapper and veteran bush pilot as guide and began a dangerous 165-mile boat trip down the Liard River, into the South Nahanni Rivee to the base of Mary Mountain, named after trapper Kraza' wife.

The sheer-sided mountain presented no problem to the salvage helicopter. But black flies plagued the mechanics who worked 12 hours a day repairing the craft.

At the base camp near the foot of the mountain additional parts and supplies were guarded by Indians, who flew back to civilization the same craft that dropped him into the hinterland.

The return trip to Fort Simpson by the other members of the party took only two days as rivers flow north in that area and the party had the advantage of being able to travel downstream.

On Sept. 2—22 days after they left Calgary—the men were back. They had completed a job officials had said could not be done.

Pearson Turns Down Suggestion Of Sen. Watkins

San Francisco, Sept. 6—(CP)—L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, yesterday turned down a suggestion by Senator Arthur Watkins (Rep. Utah) that the senate International security subcommittee should invite Canadian Diplomat Herbert Norman to appear before it.

Norman, here as chief adviser to the Canadian delegation to the Japanese peace treaty conference, declined comment to a reporter. But Pearson, chief of the delegation, said in a brief statement:

"We have received no indication the proper United States' authorities what we think of Dr. Whitfogel's statement and no further action seems to be required," Pearson said.

Dr. Karl August Wittfogel, one-time German communist and now a resident of New York, formerly was a member of the Comintern staff in New York, named Norman recently as a member of a young communist student group in the United States in 1939.

The Canadian government protested the mentioning of Norman's name by the sub-committee.

Norman, 43, is the acting permanent chief of the Canadian delegation to the United Nations.

Ridgway Proposes New Site For Korean Armistice Talks, Blasts Communists for Deceit

Tokyo, Sept. 6 (AP) —Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway told the reds in a stinging note today that they want to end the shooting in Korea they should agree to start truce talks anew somewhere else.

The United Nations' commander also brusquely told the communists to stop their "constant deceit and treachery" in manufacturing incidents for "false and malevolent" charges against the allies.

Almost simultaneously, Chinese communists launched a heavy, tank-supported attack on the western front. A frontline officer said it could be "a prelude to a major offensive".

The red assault on the long inactive front was only 25 miles from Kaesong, site of the disrupted armistice negotiations.

A major red offensive could blast the dimming hope of reviving truce talks.

Ridgway felt it completely up to the communists whether negotiations are to be resumed. But the U.N. commander made it clear the talks won't be at Kaesong. His information office said it is not a suitable site because "it is within communist lines."

A release by the information office said the situation has reached a point "where the question of the resumption of the Kaesong zone has overshadowed the original purpose of the meetings."

Talks Broken Aug. 23

The reds broke off the talks Aug. 23 after charging the U.N. violated the neutrality zone. Ridgway reiterated that that charge, and others that followed were "without the slightest basis in fact."

His proposal to set a new locale for negotiations actually changes the situation of the stalled talks only slightly.

He said that if the reds are ready to start negotiating a cease fire again, their liaison officers could talk about a new site. The communists have said repeatedly they would resume negotiations only if Ridgway admitted responsibility for their charges.

If communist commanders North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Peng Teh-Huai—agreed to go ahead with negotiations now they would in effect be admitting their charges were false.

Ridgway's note indicated he doubted the communists really want peace. It said:

"That you should permit the forces of your side to indulge in their constant deceit and invective is incomprehensible, unless you have the ulterior motive of completely breaking off negotiation with the further scurrilous accusation that the blame therefore rests upon the United Nations' command rather than upon you."

Ridgway's proposal of a new site stirred speculation that if one is chosen it would be somewhere outside of Korea.

Speculation centred on a hospital ship—Ridgway originally proposed the talks be held on the Danish hospital ship Jutlandia—and Hong Kong, Macao, and Seoul.

TRAFFIC HARASSED

Berlin, Sept. 6—(AP)—Russian zone communists turned another screw today in their harassment of Berlin's city railway traffic with the west. They barred mail cars loaded with parcel post for the west German republic.

This newest interference was disclosed while the western allied air commission met here to debate what counter-measures could be taken against the communist road tax which is squeezing highway traffic with the west.

RED MINES

Communist box mines have caused several casualties to the Canadian 25th Brigade in Korea. Instruction in dismantling the mines is given at the Brigade's NCO school. Instructor Sgt. A. Mitges of Hamilton, Ont., left, demonstrates the process to L. Cpl. R. J. McGrath of Belleville, Ont., centre, and Pte. D. B. Harris, Saint John, N. B. — (CP from National Defence).

Low-Altitude Sweeps Made To Contact Flyer

Edmonton, Sept. 6—(CP)—The R. C. A. F. today sent search planes out in low-altitude sweeps over desolate north country in the hunt for bush pilot Johnny Bourassa—if he is still alive. Bourassa started a 200-mile trek to civilization last May 23.

The search, reopened yesterday in the North West Territories after it had been called off more than 2½ month ago for want of clues, produced negative results the first day.

Spurred on by the knowledge of Bourassa's intended route and the optimism of his pilot friends who said he could have survived 3½ months in the wilderness, the R. C. A. F. continued the search with renewed vigor.

Four R. C. A. F. planes and an aircraft from Associated Airways —for whom the bush pilot once worked—are in the search area, flying out of Yellowknife, N. W. T. Ground search parties, to be dropped on lakes in the region are being organized.

A note left by the Peace River, Alta., pilot in his disabled light plane on the rocky shore of Whoadala Lake, more than 200 miles southeast of Yellowknife, was found yesterday.

Bourassa said that he stayed with his plane five days and then headed northwest, hoping to come to the Bush River near Fort Reliance on the southeast tip of Great Slave Lake.

It was a daring gamble. In the 200 miles between Whoadala Lake and Bush River he would be faced rough going through bush, muskeg, deadfall timber and numerous lakes.

In Edmonton, famous bush pilot Matt Berry said that he is attempting to circle the many lakes Bourassa, about 30, might have become hopelessly lost.

In Bourassa's favor was his experience. Mike Ellis, who has had his experience is wonderful. He carried a rifle, fishing tackle, maps, a tent and matches, all from another plane crash in the same general area.

Ellis, Bourassa's boy friends said, would be ill health.

'Vanishing' River Gives Ample Flow

Banff, Alta.—(CP)—This river keeps moving around and then just disappears.

Sometimes it looks as if it has dried up completely. Yet the Calgary Power Company manages to get 9,000,000,000 gallons of water from it every year for its use when its regular source, the Bow River, is low.

The mysterious Ghost River has its headquarters in the—"devil's" country of the Canadian Rockies. The water from the top 30 miles of diverted into the Minnenanka reservoir, replenishing low periods in the Bow.

But it is not the water that makes the division point, the Ghost is running as strongly as ever.

Scientists say the reason the Ghost River keeps appearing and disappearing is the gravel it flows through. At times the water flows underground through the gravel. Then, when the water table rises, the river re-appears.

The gravel bed is about a hundred yards wide, give the river beds of average depth.

For added atmosphere the Ghost does its disappearing act in a district known as Devil's Head Mountain, a 9,174-foot peak. Devils Paw, another 9,000-foot peak, and the Devil's Gap, which leads to the storage lake.

Indian legends relate that a large rock balanced atop Devil's Head Mountain assured Indian supremacy as long as it balanced. But when it crashed to the ground, the white man's supremacy would be gone. And tribal lore has it that the rock fell just before the first white man came to this territory.

COURTS TO DECIDE

Whitby, Sept. 6 (CP)—Whether $113,500 bequeathed to the town of Whitby by the late Arthur Alin has to be used for the construction of a new town hall —as Alin specified in his will—may be decided by a court ruling. Some town councillors say they want to convert the old high school into a town hall and erect a new school with funds from the estate.

Iran's Ultimatum to Britain Strikes Snag When Members Boycott Session

Tehran, Sept. 6 (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's stiff-necked ultimatum to Britain on the stalled oil talks struck a snag today when more than half the members of the Lower House of Parliament boycotted a session called to approve the premier's policy.

The ultimatum would give the British two weeks to reopen talks on the nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's properties. If they refused, Iran would expel 350 British technicians remaining at the company's giant refinery at Abadan.

After vainly trying to round up the missing deputies for two hours Mossadegh postponed the session until Sunday.

The lack of a quorum was in sharp contrast to yesterday's session of the senate which gave the premier a vote of confidence without a dissent.

The boycott was the most serious expression of opposition to Mossadegh since he came to power last May. It was clear the deputies feared to vote openly against the Nationalistic Mossadegh on the eve of his trip here to flog away the avoided committing themselves.

Mossadegh is expected to whip up his supporters to bring pressure on the absent deputies before the Sunday session.

Bazaars, Shops Close

The bazaars and shops of Tehran closed down today at the request of the premier.

Police turned out in front of parliament and trucks filled with armed soldiers stood in the square in anticipation of trouble developing.

Parliament officers reported that a quorum of 67 was needed to conduct business but only 62 of the 136 deputies appeared.

There has been no public criticism of Mossadegh's ultimatum, but privately many Iranians expressed concern at his tough talking.

British negotiators already have said they would not relinquish control of the Abadan installations without a satisfactory agreement with the Iranians, and that they would take "all necessary measures" to protect their personnel.

British government officials said yesterday in London that Britain is ready at any time to resume talks if Iran comes forward with worthwhile proposals.

The talks broke down two weeks ago, after Iran rejected proposals for British management of the oil production and refining.

Travellers Will Have Day at CNE

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) — The travelling salesman is top man today at the Canadian National Exhibition.

In official terms it is transportation, communication and commercial travellers' day.

No special events were scheduled for the visiting "drummers" but a Dorothy Dix question, for the women offered cash prizes for solutions of everyday problems.

The Canadian and international table tennis championships and any interference with the production of copper, lead, zinc, molybdenum, molybdenum and tungsten.

The strike started Aug. 27 and put a halt to virtually all production of the metals needed in defence as well as other productions.

Union leaders predicted that the majority of members would return to work some time today.

At the beginning the strike was made into an estimated 58,000 members of the metal mining union and 42,000 members of other unions who refused to cross picket lines.

An agreement with the Kennecott Copper Corporation Minister of Labor Milton Gregg announced last weekend. It called for a pay increase of 15 cents an hour and pension arrangements worth 4 1-2 cents an hour.

The union had asked an increase of 16 cents an hour. The industry's wage range has been from $1.31 an hour for laborers to $1.52 for miners.

900 HOUSES DESTROYED

Hong Kong, Sept. 6 (Reuters) —About 900 houses were destroyed in Hainan Island by the typhoon which lashed the South China coast last weekend, delayed reports said today. Sixty-three fishing vessels were destroyed and 275 badly damaged. The capital, Holchow, two persons were killed and 15 injured.

New Greek Rally Party May Win Despite King

Athens, Sept. 6—(AP)—Despite the opposition of King Paul, Marshal Alexander Papagos' new Greek rally party is expected to dominate the new Greek parliament.

Even his opponents admit he may have the largest bloc of deputies after the Sept. 9 elections. Some observers predict he will have 90 to 100 deputies in the 250-man house.

Fifteen to 20 per cent of the Greek vote is generally independent. A shift of these floating ballots to the 67-year-old military hero would insure him of a substantial majority.

If Papagos does win, King Paul will be in an embarrassing position. In a recent poll he revoked his dissatisfaction with Papago's candidacy, although the throne is not supposed to express political opinions.

Anti-Papagos newspapers displayed the royal favor as the king's official position. Pro-Papagos papers accused the king of meddling in politics.

Papagos announced his candidacy as a party which would "reinforce" the crown. The palace said the king didn't need help. But Paul has made known his dislike for two of the three major party leaders.

After the March, 1950, elections, he tried to avoid giving the mandate to Sophocles Plastiras, leader of the progressive union of the centre.

He was only through the direct intervention by the United States that the king gave the mandate to Plastiras.

Only the parties led by Papagos, Sophocles Venizelos and Plastiras will be of any significance in the new parliament. That leaves Venizelos, leader of the traditionally-republican party, the palace favorite.

Back-to-Work Order Issued To Metal Union

Denver, Sept. 6 (AP)—A back-to-work order went out today to union members whose strike has virtually shut down domestic production of copper, lead and zinc.

John Clark, president of the Independent International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers, telegraphed all locals to "instruct their members back on the job as soon as possible."

His order followed a district court move to halt the strike.

Judge Alfred P. Murrah of Oklahoma City, granted an order restraining the union and its 84 operators in the non-ferrous metals industry from continuing in any way interference with the production of copper, lead, zinc, molybdenum, molybdenum and tungsten.

The strike started Aug. 27 and put a halt to virtually all production of the metals needed in defence as well as other productions.

Union leaders predicted that the majority of members would return to work some time today.

Surging Rivers Overflow Anew In East Kansas

Kansas City, Kas., Sept. 6 (AP) —Surging rivers overflowed anew in eastern Kansas today and threatened Kansas City industrial districts still recovering from last July's billion-dollar flood disaster.

The rivers, fed by heavy rains, forced evacuation of farm and some town areas.

In Kansas City, Kas., army engineers rushed reinforcements into the Argentine and Armourdale districts—both still digging out of the great flood of midsummer.

Rising waters also were being watched with apprehension in Kansas City, Mo.

Work continued around the clock in an effort to strengthen dikes along the Kansas River, the state's largest.

Federal officials have estimated damage in Missouri and Kansas from the July flood at $2,500,-000,000.

Some dikes, wrecked by the flood, are still out and others are not.

At the state capital of Topeka, Mayor Kenneth Wilke, ordered the evacuation of North Topeka. Approximately 2,500 of the 10,000 residents had returned to their homes.

The weather bureau predicted the Kansas River would crest at 27 feet at Kansas City, but said additional rainfall could push it slightly. Weekend rains made some flooding a possibility at the 27 foot stage.

The crest was not expected until noon EDT.

Apple Crop Higher Than Last Year

Toronto, Sept. 6 (CP) — The Ontario Fruit and Vegetable statistics committee in co-operation with the Dominion Department of Agriculture today released the following information on fruit and vegetable crops in Ontario.

Eastern Ontario

Apples—Ideal weather conditions in the last month have brought the estimated crop to 416,700 barrels, 23 per cent over the 1950 production of 341,800 barrels.

Pears—estimated crop of 2,500 bushels.

Plums—estimated 2,800 bushels.

Cherries, sour—total yield was 12,400 bushels, a 60-per-cent decrease from last year's 19,000.

Grapes—yield expected to be up 50 per cent from last year.

Raspberries—total yield of 1,-379,000 quarts, a 10-per-cent increase over last year's 1,253,000.

Need More Moisture

Most vegetable crops in western Ontario now are in need of additional moisture, although growth and development have not suffered as a result of almost ideal weather conditions early in the season. All crops except onions show good average condition.

Heavy rains with unseasonably low temperatures in July and August damaged vegetable crops in low, poorly drained land in eastern and northern Ontario.

The low temperatures have been detrimental to the best growth of sweet corn and have also retarded ripening of tomatoes, but generally growing conditions have been good for most vegetables.

Canning of vegetables in all parts of Ontario is under way, however, despite some retarded crops.

Ramsay Paints End Their Season, Beat Plumbers 8-7

Ramsay Paints, going nowhere themselves in the Commercial softball league this season, threw rocks in the path of Howe and Hagerman's Plumbers last evening when they trounced the Plumbers 8-7. It took the Painsmen just 57 minutes to do the job as they turned in a very competent performance in their final appearance of the season.

The loss dropped Howe and Hagerman into a first place tie with Glen Roy in the round robin tournament with three wins and two losses each. It also forced a certain tie with Point Anne Cementmen who have a 3-3 record as Glen Roy and the Plumbers will meet in the final game of the season.

Ed Donovan started things fast for Ramsays in the first frame when he led off with a triple to left field, Jack Whiting banged a long fly to centrefield to plate Donovan. Then with two out, Glen Young singled, Bunk Young was aboard on an error at third, Leforte singled through second as Ray Lunberg was safe on an error to second as two runs scored. Scanlan popped out to end the inning.

A single, a double and a fielder's choice netted the Plumbers a single tally in the second inning.

Glen Young Homers

Glen Young restored the Painters' three run lead in the third with a home run to centrefield. Ramsays picked up another run in the fourth on two errors and a fielder's choice and drove starter Lum Carson from the box with three singles and a double for three runs in the fifth.

Al Adams came in with none out and applied the brakes for the rest of the game walking none, striking out none, and giving up two hits.

In the sixth Williams singled and McGregor homered to right field to score two runs for Howe and Hagerman. A double and a single were good for two in the seventh and then they opened up in the ninth with a rally that nearly snatched victory out of the fire.

Jack Wardhaugh singled, Don Adams doubled, and Dick Fitzpatrick singled. That was all for Ramsay starter Connie Harris who went to right field as Bunk Young came in to douse the blaze. He got Tim Williams on a fly to Jo Jo Whitfield with Adams scoring. McGregor singled to score Fitzpatrick before he grounded out to first as McGregor moved to second. Ron Young grounded out short to first to end the game.

Harris Claims Win

Connie Harris toiled eight innings to claim the win walking none, striking out two and giving up 14 hits in the route.

Lum Carson worked four innings for Howe and Hagerman walking none, striking out one, and giving up eight hits for all the runs and the loss.

Glen Young led all batters with three singles and a home run in five appearances. Dick Fitzpatrick, "Mucker" McGregor, and Don Locke each had three hits in five trips for the losers.

Lineup:

Howe and Hagerman: J. Wardhaugh, 2b; D. Adams lf; Fitzpatrick 2b; Williams c; McGregor ss; Locke 1b. Young rf; R. Wardhaugh cf; L. Carson p, replaced by A. Adams in 5th.

Ramsay Paints: K. Donovan lf; J. Whiting, 3b; Woods, 1b; G. Young c; B. Young rf, p; Leforte ss; Lunberg cf; Scanlan 2b; G. Harris p, rf.

Second Test Match Slated for Toronto

At Winnipeg, Britain's Marylebone Cricket Club yesterday trounced Manitoba in an exhibition game by five wickets and 179 runs to score their 15th victory in their current Canadian tour.

The second unofficial test match between Canada and the touring Marylebone Cricket Club team will be played at Toronto this weekend. It will be a three-day contest and for the records will rank as a "first-class" match.

Surging Leafs Sweep Series With Ottawa

(By The Associated Press)

It may be like locking the barn door after the horse is gone, but Toronto's Maple Leafs are making a spirited bid to get in the International League post-season playoffs.

It looks as though the games will run out before they can achieve their purpose.

The Leafs made a clean sweep of their four-game series with Ottawa by shutting out the Giants last night, 6-0. It was their ninth victory in the last 10 games.

That put the Leafs just three games back of fourth-place Buffalo, which bowed to Montreal 2-1, in 11 innings on a home run by George Byam.

Buffalo has five games to play, Toronto seven.

Cliff Fannin pitched the shutout for Toronto, limiting the Little Giants to eight hits. Vince Plumbo, Grover Bowers and Frank Coleman hit home runs for Toronto.

In other games, Baltimore won two from Springfield, 2-1 and 8-3, on some pitching by Steve Ridzik and Jack Britton. Syracuse thumped Rochester, 3-1 in 11 innings in a contest which had been ordered replayed, then won the regularly-scheduled contest, 5-3.

Syracuse had protested an apparent 2-1, 11-inning defeat last night after the umpire had missed a play. The game was ordered replayed from the eighth inning—this time Syracuse won.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOOD STUFF!

Well, there was nothing wrong with that brand of baseball. The Reds came up with a dashing display behind the masterful five-clout chucking of Billy Strahan. They fielded like veterans and their bats came through with some timely clouting, to close the season schedule in a blaze of glory. Their 8-3 win over Brockville gave them a grip on fourth place in the standing, and everything depends on the outcome of the Kingston - Batawa game on Friday night.

Old veteran southpaw "Smokey" Smith, who some time ago was one of the best lefthanders in these yere parts (Remember that famous forkside duel between Smith and Lefty Garlen when Batawa and Thornbury clashed in a playdown game?) started for the Redmen. The wily veteran has lost some of the old zip but that fast ball and sweeping hook was working well last night for a while at least.

The Reds practically bunted "Smokey" out of the ball game for four of the eight hits garnered off him were laid-eggs in the infield. All of which does not detract from the fine hurlegg of Strahan who yielded but five clouts with his mates backing him up in great style.

Tonight's first game of the OBA intermediate "A" playdowns between the Redmen and the Shoemen, originally scheduled for Friday night has been postponed indefinitely. A winner of the best-of-three series, however, must be declared by September 19th.

WOT'S WOT, MATES?

It takes a spot of silliard skullduggery to quicken interest in almost anything — especially sport. The United States went into a newspaper and radio furore when the basketball scandal was exposed. The racing world gasped in horrified amazement, so it seemed, when the new famous "fix" probe disclosed underhum antics on the part of jockeys, trainers, gamblers, etc.

And now comes something closer to home.

The good ship "Central Ontario Baseball League" which has found the sailing anything but smooth since the initial meeting in Kingston early last spring has, it would appear, run into something like hurricane weather, as it heads for the playoff port.

Perhaps the old adage that it's an ill wind that doesn't dry somebody's washing still holds good, for with the first hint of threatened mutiny aboard the baseball lugger, fan interest increases quicker than that of a chorus gal who discovers her blind date owns a dozen oil wells — and a yacht.

Mumblings and rumblings along the COBL rialto the last few days has even the wildest second-guessers scratching their noggins. The closeness of the race for fourth spot between the Belleville Redmen and the Batawa Shoemen, with hints of the aforesaid skullduggery beginning to mushroom, has some of the fans wondering just what is going on.

Picton's default to Batawa on Tuesday night fanned the flames. There are those who openly declare the "squeeze was on" and the Spaniards deliberately defaulted to "give the Shoemen an easy 'in' ", over the Redshirts of this village.

It was strangely coincident and apparently quite convenient for the Picton team to default the game "because of inability to field a complete team". It is a well-known fact that the Picton squad has had trouble in the past trying to secure sufficient players to keep out-of-town dates. And if this corner's memory is correct, it has asked for a postponement on one or two occasions. We might be wrong. In any event Tuesday night's game was the first default on that specific reason by the P. Y. C. triumvirate.

After all you can't blame the boys. It is a bit disappointing that the lads could not or did not show up for the scheduled game with Batawa. They shouldn't take such terrific shellacking as at 19-3 Monday, handed them by the Kingston Disney Leafs the other night so much to heart. Shucks, that's liable to happen to any team.

But it did seem passing strange, and most likely by pure coincidence that the only game defaulted by the Pictonians was that scheduled with Batawa at a time when a Shoemen victory would play a mighty important part in that team reaching the fourth playoff spot in the league standing, and over the Belleville Redmen.

Surely those nice chappies from Picton aren't angry with Belleville — or are they. After all, the fact remains they did not ask the postponement which would have been granted them. Are are informed. Batawa, it appears, did not consider any first commotion over the game being defaulted. After all, kiddies it isn't often you get a mighty important game handed to you on a silver platter, so to speak, and at a time when it is a leg up over the hurdle to the coveted, — or is it — playoff spot.

From down east comes rumblings that the executive of the COBL will look into the matter. It appears that augurst body is not satisfied with the "defaulted" game and if investigation warrants it, there is a strong possibility that a playoff series may be played between the Redmen and Shoemen if the situation at the end of the schedule sees the teams stalemated in fourth slot.

(By The Associated Press)

MEN ARE BANNED

Rosen, Easter Pace Tribe Win; Boston Decisions Yanks 4-2

Brooks Lead Cut to 5½ Games

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Al Rosen and Luke Easter, Cleveland's classy one-two punch, are using their big bats to deflate the theory that the Indians are a "no-hit, good-pitch" club.

Rosen and Easter were the big guns last night as the Indians defeated Detroit Tigers, 5-3, and regained first place in the American League. Each walloped in a home-run with a man on base.

The Indians wrested the lead from New York Yankees, who dropped a, 4-3 decision to the visiting Boston Red Sox. The triumph moved the third place Sox to within three games of the top-fending champions and left them but a half game behind Cleveland. trails the tribe by only one in the important "lost" column.

New York Giants edged the Braves up their fight to overhaul the National League-leading Brooklyn Dodgers. They swept a twin-bill header from Boston, 3-2 and 9-1, to cut Brooklyn's lead to 5½ games. The Dodgers whipped Philadelphia Phils, 5-2.

Philadelphia Athletics took two from Washington, 4-1 and 9-7; Chicago defeated Pittsburgh, 6-3, and St. Louis Cardinals and Chicago Cubs split. The Cubs won, 7-6, in the first of 13 innings, the Cards grabbed the nightcap 6-5.

Rosen, Easter Homer

The homers by Rosen and Easter were all Cleveland's Early Wynn needed to register his 17th triumph against 12 losses. He surrendered only four hits.

Brilliant pitching by Leo Kelly and Mickey Harris, pair of young southpaws, helped Boston to its 10th victory in 15 meetings with the Yankees. Kelly hurled seven hitless innings before weakening. A brilliant rescue job by McDermott helped the 21-year-old to his fifth victory in eight decisions.

Billy Goodman's two-run double in the first inning, Ted Williams' 20th homer in the third, and Bobby Doerr's single in the fifth accounted for Boston's four runs. Vic Raschi lost his ninth decision against 17 victories.

Hodges Hits Grand-Slammer

A grand-slam homer by Gil Hodges, the sixth of his career, gave the Dodgers and Ralph Branca their victory. It was Hodges' 27th circuit clout and Branca's 13th triumph.

Sal Maglie pitched his first victory over the Braves and Sheldon Jones hurled his first complete game of the year as the Giants made it 23 wins in 26 games.

Don Mueller's single in the eighth hung the 12th defeat on Warren Spahn in its opener. Monte Irvin slammed his 18th homer and drove in four runs in the nightcap.

Perfect batting days by Billy Hitchcock, who got four for four in the opener, and Ferris Fain, who hit five for five in the second, featured the double win by the A's.

Smoky Burgess', 11th-inning single scored Hank Sauer to give the Cubs the first-game win. Homers by Stan Musial and Peanuts Lowrey gave the Cards their split.

Herman Wehmeier gained his fourth win for Cincinnati, despite giving up Ralph Kiner's 38th home run of the season.

Boston Bruins Report Sept. 18.

Boston, Sept. 6—(AP)—Coach Lynn Patrick, running a school for Canadian amateurs at Barrie, Ont., today ordered Boston Bruins to report Sept. 18 at Hershey, Pa., for their first hockey drill.

Bruins will have three weeks of practice before opening the National Hockey League season at Detroit Oct. 11.

The club will operate under the same ownership as last year, with president Weston Adams again in control. The Boston garden had an option to purchase the club but couldn't raise enough money.

Winnipeg Girl Takes Top Money In Ladies Swim

Toronto, Sept. 6—(CP)—A 20-year old department-store clerk stepped out of Lake Ontario yesterday and collected $1,650.

Vivian King of Winnipeg took the money as first prize for the women's world professional three-mile championships at the Canadian National Exhibition.

She finished about a quarter of a mile in front of second place Lis Putt, 25, of Montreal after an hour and 23 minutes in the water. It was Vivian's first professional swim, having won the women's Canadian amateur championship at the C.N.E. last week.

Miss Putt took $750 for second place. She picked up a lamprey eel minutes after entering the water and it still clung to her thigh as she crossed the finish line.

Winner of the $500 third prize was Mrs. Irene Barr Van-Fleet, 28, of Toronto and Mrs. Marion Townsend, Ont., fourth won $300.

Two of the "swimming Mercers" of Tiverton, R. I. won the last of the $3,500 prize money. Thirteen-year-old Faith, came in fifth a quarter of a mile ahead of her sister, Althea, 25, who won $100 for sixth. Judge Faith takes home $200.

Standing in the crowd of 6,000 who watched the race was Mrs. Winnie Roach Leuzler, first Canadian to swim the English channel.

Winner, a veteran entrant in the championship swim, said: "I'm here, but I left my bathing suit at home."

Robinson Draws Mixed Reactions From Experts

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Pompton Lakes, N.J., Sept. 6 (AP)—It will be back to the salt mines for Sugar Ray Robinson today as the ex-champion resumes heavy training for his middleweight title bout with Randy Turpin Wednesday night.

A full schedule of sparring, meaning at least five rounds, is on Sugar Ray's schedule for the day following a comparative rest yesterday when he boxed only two rather paltryake rounds with Terry Moore for the benefit of visiting reporters.

His performance was greeted with mixed reactions by the crew of experts assembled in the blockbuster surrounding the outdoor ring.

"He's fast with his hands on attack, but slow with them on defence," one observer noted as Robinson left himself wide open after missing a hook.

Looks the Same

"He looks the same as he always did," said Jake LaMotta, from whom Robinson removed the crown . . . "You can't tell much in two rounds. After four or five rounds, when they throw a fresh man against him, you can tell what shape he's in."

It also will be Turpin, but wouldn't say he'll knockout," said Rocky Graziano, a former middleweight champion himself. "Turpin's tough, what he lacks in experience he makes up in stamina and aggressiveness.

Robinson will knock him stiff" sparring-partner Moore declared emphatically.

Robinson appeared snappy and in high spirits. He was throwing many combinations, and putting some steam in his punches. He was getting set to punch, digging in with his feet instead of flitting around on his toes.

The challenger expects to reach peak condition this weekend, and to hold it with a light workout Monday.

Life Suspension For Jock Bromby, Rode North Drive

Toronto, Sept. 6—(CP)—Apprentice jockey Jock Bromby of Toronto yesterday became the fourth apprentice rider ruled off Ontario tracks so far for life.

The Ontario Racing Commission, investigating allegations of fixed races on provincial tracks, said Bromby accepted bribes from other jockeys and other persons to induce him to interfere with his trip coming down the stretch in racing during the July meeting at Fort Erie, Ont.

All told, nine riders, counting the four apprentices, have been ruled off for life since the race-fixing investigation started early in August. One owner-trainer has been given a lifetime suspension. Four jockeys face criminal charges and a fifth still is sought. Three other men have been arrested on criminal charges.

Brantford Sox Lose to London, Series All Even

(By The Canadian Press)

A brilliant pitching performance by a University of Western Ontario student last night forced the Senior Intercounty Baseball League final series into a seventh game.

Commander Cam Church shut out the mighty Red Sox and gave London Majors a 1-0 victory in the sixth game of the series. Seventh and deciding game will be played in Brantford tonight.

Not satisfied with his pitching triumph, Church batted in the only run of the game. His scratch infield single in the fourth inning sent Russ Evon across the plate.

Wilmer (The Great) Fields gave up only six hits to the Majors, all of them in the first four innings. He fanned nine batters to Church's six. In Field's only other loss of the season, he was beaten 2-1.

In Sudbury, Copper Cliff Redmen gave Frood Tigers a 6-4 trimming which deadlocked their best-of-five semi-final series in the Nickel Belt Senior Baseball League at two games each.

A hard-hitting triple in the seventh inning by playing coach Herb Perigoe which sent Bert Plouffe and George Lamothe across the plate, gave the Redmen a 5-4 lead. Perigoe completed the insurance marker when Joe Mundrick's relay threw from the outfield resulted in the crowd back of third base.

Midget Finally Strikes Out

Sycamore, Ill., Sept. 6 (AP) — Midget Eddie Gaedel was finally struck out.

The three-foot, seven-inch mite, who was used as a pinch hitter by St. Louis Browns and drew a walk and also an ouster from the American League, was humiliated last night.

In a game between two Sycamore amateur teams, Gaedel sauntered to the plate to pinch hit (for a price).

As the third strike whizzed past him, Gaedel yammered: "You're the worst umpire I ever want to see," and he trudged back to the bench.

A youthful Jack Dempsey knocked out Billy Miske in three rounds at Benton Harbor, Mich., 31 years ago today. Dempsey was making his first defence of the heavyweight title he won from Jess Willard at Toledo in 1919. He held the title until 1926 when he lost his first title bout to Gene Tunney.

Strahan Tosses Five-Hitter As Redmen Drub Memos 8-2; Leap Batawa for Fourth Spot

Backing Billy Strahan's five-hit hurling with brilliant fielding the Redmen rang down the curtain on their COBL schedule with a sparkling 8-2 win over the first-place Brockville Memos here last night.

The Reds took over fourth slot from the Batawa Shoemen with 19 wins and 17 losses. A Shoemen defeat at the hands of Kingston Friday night will clinch the last playoff berth for the Belleville team.

It was one of the Redshirts' better efforts, in fact, one of the best games of the season, with Strahan handcuffing the Memos over the nine-inning route with the exception of the seventh when he eased up and the league leaders tossed over their two runs on a hit, two walks and the only Red error of the game. Strahan struck out six and walked two.

The homesters came through with some timely clouting, claiming an even dozen hits off two Brockville hurlers and sending the renowned "Smokey" Smith to the showers in the fifth. They garnered eight hits off the southpaw albeit four of them were bunts. Hayes took over in the sixth and gave up four hits for six runs. Smith whiffed eight and walked none.

Score Five in Sixth

The Reds greeted Hayes with a five-run uprising in the sixth after they had squeezed one home in the third off three bunts and a hit and got another in the fifth when Vern Goyer's second hit of the game scored Fitzpatrick who had singled and stole second.

Hayes walked Gilmour in his mound debut and whiffed Reeves. Buchanan smashed a double down the third base line scoring Gilmour and Red Carson was safe on a fielder's choice. Strahan drew a walk filling the bases and Hayes gifted a run when he walked Fitz. Sammy Mulholland drove a sizzling single to right centre scoring Carson and Strahan and scored himself on Vern Goyer's single.

Hayes handed the Reds their eighth tally in the eighth after Carson had singled to start the innings. Strahan whiffed and Fitz grounded out. Carson reached second on a passed ball and third on Fitz' grounder. Mulholland got on on the shortstop's bobble and Goyer's third clout filled the sacks. Hayes pitch got away from Coleman and Carson walked home.

Memos Get Two in Seventh

The Memos got their two tallies in the seventh when Kasepchuk drove a towering triple to right centre scoring when Coleman's fly was dropped for the only Red error of the game. Galen walked and Skodis popped out to short. Turner, a pinch-hitter, also strolled and Hayes was safe on a fielder's choice loading the sacks. Strahan settled down and forced Weaver to pop out to second and Stelmack to ground out to end the rally.

The Memos threatened again in the 8th when Mulholland raced back to the fence to pull down Kasepchuk's bid for a triple at least after he had hauled in Pierce's high drive. Coleman and Galen then singled in succession but Strahan forced Skodis to pop to short to end it.

Fitzpatrick, Mulholland and Goyer paced the Red offensive with three hits each with Buchanan getting a double. Dean and Carson accounted for the remaining pair.

Kasepchuk had a triple and single for the losers with Pierce, Coleman and Galen getting the other three clouts.

The Reds came up with a neat twin-killing in the second inning.

Lachine Driver Wins Canadian Speedboat Title

The season-long, see-saw battle for the Canadian powerboat championship in the big 225 Class, Division II came to an end at the C.N.E., Toronto, yesterday, when Bernie Daoust, Lachine, Que., 22-year-old member of one of Canada's keenest speedboating families, captured the Canadian Schenley Trophy at the wheel of his "Canada Maid II". Daoust clinched the Trophy with the long lead he had built up during the two-month racing season.

Close on Daoust's "rooster tail" spray came Bill Hodgson of Toronto in "My Ruthie", to cut in half the 400-point lead Daoust brought to Toronto. Hodgson, hero of Tuesday's fatality when Frank Smith, veteran Kingston driver was killed in the 135 Class, saw victory slip from his grasp when he was disqualified in the second of today's heats for crossing the starting line ahead of time.

Daoust, who since his arrival for the Toronto regatta has been beset by misfortunes in the form of broken fuel lines and burned bearings, picked up only 80 points in the two-day regatta, while Hodgson pounded up and down the trickiest speedboat course in Canada to amass nearly 300 points.

Third place in the season's racing went to Art Hatch a Hamilton driver in his "Costa Lotta". Johnny Haineault of Cornwall, last year's winner of the Canadian Schenley, finished well out of the money in "Kingcott III".

Penti Lund Goes To Cleveland Barons

Cleveland, Sept. 6 (AP) — Cleveland Barons have acquired Penti Lund, 25-year-old right wing and the National Hockey League's "outstanding rookie" in the 1945-50 season.

Lund was announced today as the "unnamed player" in an earlier deal which sent Hy Buller and Wally Hergesheimer to the Rangers in exchange for Eddie Reigle, Freddie Shero, Jackie Gordon, Fern Perreault, Dutch Delmont.

Glamorous Gal Wins National Ladies' Singles

Forest Hills, Sept. 6—(AP)—Women's tennis has been on the dreary side since the war, really not worth watching, and followers of the game were beginning to wonder if they ever would see the likes of Helen Wills or Alice Marble again.

They can relax. She's here—an apple-cheeked 16-year-old from San Diego named Maureen Connolly who is destined to be one of the game's most glamorous figures here and at Wimbledon and wherever they can get her to play for a lot of years to come.

In defeating Shirley Fry by scores of 6-3, 1-6, 6-4, in yesterday's women's final to become the youngest winner in the history of the championships. Maureen brought a new and genuine interest to the womens' division. At midweek, with the holidays just ended and no other match on the program; 2,500 fans paid their way in to watch the new phenom perform.

And the wonderful thing was that she didn't disappoint them.

Sport in Brief

Hal Newhouser, once the mainstay of the Detroit Tigers pitching staff, may be offered a provisional $1-a-year contract for the 1952 season. Newhouser, who is receiving $42,000 for the current season, is not making the current road trip to Cleveland and Chicago and the swing through the east. Charley Gehringer, new general manager of the Tigers, said at Detroit "we would like to see him pitch a game or two before the season ends to allow us to make a judgment on him but he may not be able to."

At Trenton, N.J., first-baseman Richard Gledlin yesterday signed with Detroit Tigers for a bonus estimated at $50,000.

Gledlin, 21-year-old Notre Dame star, is scheduled to report next spring to the Florida training camp of the Toledo Mudhens, the Tigers' American Association farm team.

At London, Ont., the western Mustangs held their first full day of football practice yesterday with 93 candidates on hand to greet head coach Johnny Metras and his assistants.

Both morning and afternoon session were held with the large squad participating in calisthenics, signal-calling and light blocking drills.

Two sessions a day will be held until classes begin.

Stan Heath is heading for Calgary to take over for Keith Spaith, Stampeder quarterback who is out with a broken little finger on his pitching hand.

Heath, who played Canadian football with Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Big Four last season, has obtained his release from the Tiger-Cats.

In Hamilton, Carl Voyles, coach of the Hamilton Tiger-Cats, said that Heath has been released "because he wouldn't have made the team."

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Sept. 6 (AP)—Signs of increasing tension and patrol activity on the border between Yugoslavia and Russian - dominated Albania increased last night.

The official Belgrade radio reported that a 2 1-2-hour gun battle between border guards of the two countries occurred Tuesday. It did not mention casualties.

This was followed yesterday by another exchange of fire across the border in which one Yugoslav and one Albanian were killed, it said.

Cleaners Defeat Kingston 18-8 First Game Int. AA Playdowns

Three big innings that enabled Cleaner Combines to score all but one of their runs were more than enough for them to pound out an 18-8 win over Kingston Alcans in the Limestone City on Wednesday night.

The win gave the Cleaners a one game edge in the first round of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association AA playoffs in a two out of three series. The second game is slated to go at 8 o'clock on Saturday night at the Alemite field.

A five run barrage in the second frame by the visiting Cleaners enabled them to take the lead and they never relinquished it. The team batted around on three walks, two errors and only two hits by Mulvihill and Bunton.

Alcans replied with a trio in the third as they got to Tommy Harold for two doubles and a single.

Big Fourth

The big blow of the contest came in the fourth as no less than 13 Cleaner batters marched to the plate. Four singles, a double by Bunton and Pete Jones tremendous home run drive to centre field were mainly responsible although a bit of kicking around in the defenders infield helped.

Harris banged a homer out of the park with two runners on base in the bottom half of the frame to keep the homesters in the game. They got their final pair in the sixth on three infield errors a stolen base and an infield out.

The Cleaners continued to pile up their run total with a single tally in the sixth and four more in the top of the seventh. Tom Harold singled in "Chick" James who had hit safely and advanced on an infield out, for the loner. In the seventh, "Red" Jones walked and advanced on "Porky" York's bunt hit. Bunton also walked and the Alcans, apparently playing for darkness, changed pitcher. The relief hurler passed the first batter but Graham struck out for the second out. Harold singled but made the third out when he was called for leading off the base.

Called at Seven

The game was called at the end of seven complete innings of play because of darkness.

James, Harold, Mulvihill and Bunton each was credited with a pair of safeties, one of the latter's being a two-bagger. Graham and York each banged out a single while Jones' home run was the best hit ball by the visitors on the night's play.

Kingston only reached Harold for five hits but three of these were for extra bases. Harris got a home run and a single while doubles were knocked by Scott and Emmons. Thicke got the other bingle.

Harold chucked all the way for the winners allowing five hits while walking 10 and striking out six. Vallier started for Alcans and threw until the sixth when he was lifted for Anson who finished. Vallier walked five, struck out four and was charged with seventeen of the total runs as well as the loss. Anson struck out and walked one each while giving up one run.

There were no outstanding fielding plays by either team as the rough diamond made good fielding practically impossible.

Belleville Cleaner Combines: De Rushie, 2b; Mulvihill, ss; Young, 3b; Jones, 1b; York, cf; Bunton, lf; James, c; Graham, rf Harold, p.

Kingston Alcans: Thicke, 1b; Salsbury, ss; Scott, 2b; Harris, 3b; Wash, lf; Curran, cf; Emmons, c; Olson, rf; Vallier, p; Anson, p in 7th; Simpson batted for Olson in the 7th.

Ottawa Senators Get 14 Players In Sweeping Move

Ottawa Senators, building for the new Quebec Senior Hockey League season, yesterday announced acquisition of 14 players in the most sweeping reorganization in top-flight Ottawa hockey in 40 years.

Old-time hockey followers said the biggest previous shuffle came in 1908-1909 when the famous Silver Seven was replaced by Ottawa Senators in the National Hockey League. The Senators dropped from the NHL 15 years ago.

Most members of last year's also-ran team will get a chance to try out again. But they will be against a classy array of stars headed by Leo Gravelle, speedy forward purchased outright from the NHL's Detroit Red Wings.

The purchase of Gravelle alone is reported to have cost Senators around $10,000.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Grossinger, N.Y., Sept. 6—(AP)—A perspiring young man pushed his way through the crowded airplane hangar which serves as Randy Turpin's training quarters and told the visiting writers:

"Turpin will be available for an interview right after the workout, if you want to talk to him. After that there will be no interviews."

A few minutes later he brought another announcement: "After today no one will be allowed to talk to Turpin". He flinched in expectation of a blast, then appeared disappointed when a scribe replied: "Swell. I haven't had a chance to play any golf yet." . . . Turpin's silence, self-imposed or imposed by some other of his entourage, didn't last long. . . Within a few minutes someone phoned the International Boxing Club, promoting Randy's midddleweight title bout against Ray Robinson next week, and the ban on interviews was rescinded. . . but it all goes to show what kind of confusion rules in this fight camp.

A Stranger in the Land

The interview that followed hardly was productive. . . . Turpin, sipping tea and speaking with a clipped British accent, had a bit of trouble making himself understood. . . He weighed "eleven-stone-ten" after doing seven miles of roadwork yesterday and expects to go into the ring at about "eleven-four." He had difficulty translating that for the American writers but it came out to 164 and 158 pounds. . . Someone asked why he had switched to a southpaw stance for his 11th round against welterweight Eddie Phillips and Randy explained: "I think Eddie is going to box a southpaw after we get back to England." Turpin went on: "I certainly won't switch against Robinson. 'E knows how to catch a southpaw". . . Asked if he expects to knock Robinson out this time, Randy replied with a faint smile: "I cawn't say. I don't ring, you know. . ."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

If you see tears running down Sally Cheeks, do not be alarmed. It may only be the bonus peeling onions while she is dummy. Or, maybe the players do not know what their doubles mean.

There are two distinct kinds of doubles. A double under one set of circumstances asks partner to bid. A double under a different set of circumstances asks partner to shut up.

When it is used to ask partner to bid, it is known as a takeout double. It is the same kind of a signal they used in the days of auction. Only in those days they called it an informatory double.

When the double asks partner to pass, it is a penalty double. In the days of auction bridge it was known as a business double. It means business. It expects to gain higher penalties.

In either case, just the word double is used. And it must be used in either case without change of facial expression or voice inflection. A loud or weak grimace double is unethical.

How does partner know when it is a takeout and when it is a penalty double? Only from the circumstances under which it is used; the spot in which it is pulled.

If partner of the doubler has already bid something, it is always a penalty double. Also, if the opponent bid is higher than three in a suit, a double by one in po-trump, it is a penalty double.

Also, if the doubler had an earlier chance to double, it is always a "penalty" double. And that goes, no matter how low the bid may be. And other doubles are for takeout.

South starts with an opening bid of one heart. West bids one spade. North doubles with this hand:

♠K J 9 7 4
♥D 5 6
♦8 5 3
♣K J 3

His partner has already bid. So it is a penalty double. What does north mean by this double? He says: "Partner, with what you have told me, we can beat that one spade bid. So, let it lay."

Movie Column

Hollywood, Sept. 6—(AP) — What does it take for a comedian to succeed in television?

Every established comedian and all hopeful ones have wrestled with this problem. Some have conquered the new medium, others have been conquered by it.

I discussed the subject with two young but well-qualified men. One is Roger Price, formerly a gag writer for Bob Hope now a comic in his own right. The other is Leonard Stern, writer for Abbott and Costello and Milton Berle.

What it Takes

These two analysts offered four factors which successful TV comics need:

1. A likeable personality. "You can't cover up in TV. If a guy is a jerk, the TV screen shows him as a jerk."

2. A 39-week try-out. "That's the normal TV season and a comic needs that much time to correct his mistakes and develop his format."

3. Plenty of material. "This new medium swallows material like a whale eating sardines."

4. A fair-sized I.Q. "Television requires not only talent but memory as well. Many a performer who has been tied to a radio script for 20 years can't do an hour TV show by memory."

Price and Stern went on to classify the various types of comedians who have succeeded in TV.

1. Eccentric personalities. These are comics whose very nature make them funny, such as Jimmy Durante and Ed Wynn.

2. Specialty comics. They can assume a variety of characters in different sketches and generally are as good as their material. Examples: Sid Caesar, Imogene Coca.

3. Emcees or entertainers. These are the masters of timing and pacing who can do enough singing, dancing, acting and cutting up to get into every act. Examples: Milton Berle, Eddie Cantor.

4. Talking comics. These fellows, such as Arthur Godfrey and Don McNeill, get laughs through their own easy-going personalities.

5. Acting comics. Such examples as Alan Young and Jack Carson assume characters which are spun from their own personalities.

6. Situation comics. Best examples are Burns and Allen.

7. Martin and Lewis comics. Best examples of this type are Martin and Lewis.

Felt Very Tired, Nervous Until She Used Syntona

Tells How it Built Her Up—Also Relieved Headaches, Indigestion. "Surprised How Much Better I Feel," Says This Woman.

MRS. MARJORIE PERDUE

"After the good results I got by taking a few bottles of Syntona Herbal Compound, I can highly recommend it to other people," said Mrs. Marjorie Perdue, 362 Simcoe Street, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"A short time ago I was rundown, felt very tired, and my nerves were so on edge, I couldn't get to sleep after going to bed at night. I was subject to dizzy feelings and would often get sick headaches. My complexion was very sallow. I had a poor appetite and food I ate gave me gassy pains and indigestion.

"Even from the first bottle of Syntona I noticed that my food did not distress me as it used to and my appetite improved. As I continued using it, my nerves became relaxed allowing me to get more sound, restful sleep. Now I do not feel fatigued as I did before. Headaches and dizziness do not trouble me, my complexion is vastly improved and I am surprised how much better I feel."

Why not give this Pure Herbal Medicine a chance to help you, too? Syntona is used by men and women of all ages with equally good results. It contains no harmful drugs, is pleasant to take and the results are quickly felt.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

"Stub is like that, Doris," he said. "He opens that big trap of his, and he's not responsible for what comes out of it."

"But, Goldie won, like I said he would," Stub said, "and I'm going to see that you pay that bet, if it's the last thing I ever do."

"I always pay my bets," Lance said evenly. "I'll pay this one, too —when the proper time comes."

Goldie Webster made Burgess quit in the second round of the quarter finals; he won on points over the stout, blonde Gunther in the semi-finals.

An arm-weary boy by then, however, he caught a tartar in the red-headed McCaffrey in the finals. It was touch and go with him now. He had McCaffrey down in the first round. McCaffrey dumped him in the second.

At the end of the round, Goldie turned to Stub Rose who was working on him in his corner.

"Gee, Stub, I'm—I'm tired," he sighed.

"I know, I know, kid", Stub said soothingly. "But it's do or die now you're not going to die. This is the final round, kid. "This is the time you must go after him; rush him, keep your left in his face. Remember, kid, you're a better man than he is."

He soaked the towel in the pail, squeezed the water out of it, and soothingly bathed Goldie's face, neck and shoulders and breast. "Now", he said "you'll feel hundred per cent—you're going to win, see." The ten seconds bell told him to get out of the ring with his pail.

The third round was a thriller. There were no knockdowns, Goldie forced the fight, but there were times when McCaffrey seemed to give an inch and they stood toe to toe to slug it out. However, Goldie's aggressiveness, his cleaner punching, paid off in the eyes of the judges and he was given the decision, two rounds to one.

That final round was fought all over again in Goldie's dressing room minutes later. A happy, yet dead-tired Goldie Webster was in the showers before the fight. And there was much talk in his absence. Stub Rose was telling Lance Bradley that after a few bouts to gain experience and confidence, Goldie would be ready to take on Dad Roberts' champion. Dad turned pro, and left for New York and Madison Square Gardens, the ultimate goal for champions and near champions.

Lance Bradley left the dressing room to let Dad Roberts know that he might be late in reaching home, that he had a little matter of business to attend to. Dad said since he was not interested in the other bouts on the card, that he was planning to go home too.

After Lance left Dad Roberts, he went in search of Doris Parker. He caught her as she was leaving the hall, asked if he might see her home. And when she gave a puzzled consent, he asked her if she would go to the movies with him the following night.

"Why, Brad," she questioned, "I didn't know that you cared for motion pictures."

"Oh, they're all right," he said. "What's on at the Regent now?" Had he been interested in the movies he would have known by reading the theatre's advertisement in his own Emerton Daily Ensign.

"Charlie Chaplin in 'The Pilgrim'," she said. "Ever see it?"

"No," he said, "but it should be good. Then you'll go with me?"

"Why, of course, Brad, I'll be delighted. But I don't understand you never showed any interest in the movies before."

The answer he gave her was to keep her puzzling for some time.

"Now you take Stub Rose, for instance," he said. "Of all the lowdown, yet most lovable villains, I've ever seen, he takes the cake!"

CHAPTER XXIV

By the time the busy fall business season arrived, the Emerton Daily Ensign staff, from front office to back, had been welded into a well-systematized organization, and the editors, reporters and advertising manager were already lining up business for the Christmas edition, the first of its kind in Emerton's history, incidentally.

In his own quiet way, Publisher Lance Bradley was playing a promising part in the town's great civic awakening. He recalled that when he had first come to Emerton and was helping Dad Roberts with his weekly paper, there had been much talk, even then, that the town had reached a new low in its choice of civic officials. And since the same gang had been in control down through the years, it necessarily followed that the town's affairs were in even a worse shape now. It struck Lance that it was like the weather where everybody talked about it, but nobody did anything about it.

And so in his own way, he started out to stir these people up. He directed his personal attention to men of known business ability, and most specifically to men who had both business ability and municipal experience. He talked to them in their business places, even in their home. He pleaded with them to put their town first, asked them to permit their names to go before the voters at the end of the year, and just to show them that he was not asking them to do what he would not do himself, he promised that he would stand for nomination for council and would take the same chances at the polls as they took.

Of course in his efforts to round up a number of prospective candidates for municipal office, he met with rebuffs, some plain speaking, particularly by men who had been in council before. And, to hear them tell it, they found that holding office was not good for business, they lost many customers by it. But despite the opposition he met, Lance never lost faith. He never argued with any man, he merely suggested, put it up to them to say either yes or no. However, he didn't lose any friends by it and everywhere he went he was well received. And he was satisfied. He had at least given these careless townspeople something to think about.

And so, as he moved around on his self-chosen mission, he visualized a new set-up at town hall after the January election. It might not be a complete clean-up this time, some of the present members of council might survive the battle of the ballots, but there would come another time, another year when the much-needed house-cleaning would be indeed complete and satisfying. But there was one thing that he was certain about, election or no election, clean-up or no clean-up, one prominent Emerton official must go, if for no other reason than to show that the law was no respecter of persons and that when a man breaks his oath of office he must be publicly condemned and publicly dismissed.

Meanwhile Dad Roberts, not too greatly concerned in the storm that Lance Bradley was stirring up, was attending strictly to business as well as his health would permit. Goldie Webster, Golden Gloves boxing winner, had been promoted from mat roller to make-up, and according to Superintendent Sandy McLeod, he was showing a good natural taste and a keen interest, in his new job. Goldie was in truth learning the business from the ground up, or was it from the pavement down up? Goldie lived and talked boxing, explored his bents life with the Grooms, was training nightly at the 'Y for a bout with an as yet unnamed opponent in Emerton town hall in January.

Now that Radio Station CEDE had installed equipment in the town hall, Manager Ted Wilson came to Lance Bradley one day with a proposition. Why not a Saturday at five program in town hall for the children of the town and district, and why not Doris Parker to handle it, to be the "Aunt Doris" of the party?

"But, would Doris care about that sort of thing?" Lance asked.

"Would she ever," Wilson said, "I had her up to the studio the other day for an audition. She has an excellent voice for radio. The White Bread Co. is ready to sponsor such a program."

"Extra work, should mean extra pay, Ted." Lance laughed. "Doris works hard at her job and she's just as entitled to a raise as the next one. Let me see, I quits at the end of the week as any other member of my staff."

"I'll take care of that Mr. Bradley," Ted Wilson said. "And I'll be asking you to tune in. You may have some suggestions to make."

"I'm always tuned in, Ted," Lance laughed. "It's a matter of fact, you might call me even now a rabid CEDE fan."

The White Bread Company's children's program struck the air three weeks before Christmas and from that day on, it became a regular feature of CEDE. Doris Parker was an ideal mistress of ceremonies, the children were never shy or backward in her presence, and from such a small beginning, quite a number of the youngsters were to get their start, were to make names for themselves in radio in the years to come.

But how were Doris and Jimmy Hastings getting along? Lance was interested to know, and when he was walking down street with Jimmy one morning, he asked him.

"Haven't you heard, old boy?" Jimmy said. "She's—she's turned me down."

"Oh, no, Jimmy," Lance said. "You can't mean that?"

"But I do, old boy," Jimmy explained. "I asked her to marry me, and she said she couldn't—there was somebody else."

"That's too bad, Jimmy," Lance consoled him, "Yet it could be worse. She turned you down, but she didn't blow you out. She left your old lovelight still burning. Just keep up your chin, Jimmy. Doris is just trying to show you that she's hard to get. Don't let her push you around. Don't let her fool you, Jimmy. There's no other man in her life. She's just putting on an act."

Jimmy Hastings pondered over that for a minute.

"By love, old man," he said, "you may have something there. I'll not give her up, I'll never give her up, old boy."

"Now you're talking, Jimmy," Lance chuckled, slapping him on the back, "remember, faint heart never won fair lady."

The first Christmas brought a bulky edition of The Daily Ensign to every home in Emerton and district. It also brought a cash bonus and a turkey to every member of The Ensign staff and the radio station staff. Every child was remembered at the community Christmas tree in the town park, every needy family in town was given a well chosen hamper of food.

And then the citizens prepared for the annual nomination meeting in the town hall on Friday, December 29. Nominations to fill the offices of mayor, councillors and school trustees would be received by the clerk between the hours of ten and twelve o'clock in the morning.

BRITAIN SUGGESTS IRANIAN PREMIER BE THROWN OUT

Oil Talks Between Two Countries Break Down

London, Sept. 7 (AP)—Oil talks between Britain and Iran reached a complete breakdown today following a thinly-veiled British demand that Iran throw out Premier Mohammed Mossadegh.

The Foreign office, stung by Mossadegh's threat to expel 350 British technicians from the shutdown Abadan refinery area unless Britain comes up with new proposals within 15 days, said last night:

"The recent speech by the Persian (Iranian) Prime Minister in the Senate (Iranian parliament) it no further negotiations with the present Persian government can produce any results." The government now considers that the negotiations begun by the Lord Privy Seal, Richard R. Stokes, are no longer in suspense, but broken off.

This was regarded here as putting it squarely up to Iran to produce entirely new proposals as a basis for negotiations or bring in a new government to tackle the difficult problem.

Mossadegh could lose the premiership by parliamentary action. Or he might be decisively voted out of office in the Iranian general election scheduled for next month. It is doubtful, however, that the loss of British oil revenues will be helpful to Mossadegh's opponents, considering the inflamed nationalist feelings in Iran.

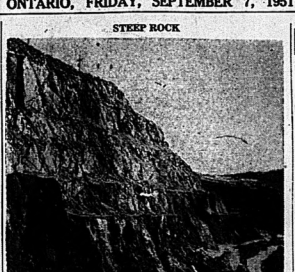
Will Not Sit Idly By

The Foreign-Office statement also indirectly warned that Britain would not sit idly by if Iran carried out her threat to expel British employees of the nationalized Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

"As regards the threat to withdraw the resident permits of British company employees, it is evident that any attempt by the Persian (Iranian) government to evict them would be a further breach of the treaty between the two countries now before the International court."

Top government leaders have previously intimated that Britain would use force if necessary to keep a toe-hold at Abadan.

Her major hope for avoiding trouble, however, is the cabinet's recommendation to keep the industry working until a settlement is reached.



Britain's bare-fisted blow at Iran's premier came after the Iranian Premier had suffered a serious political setback in the Majlis (Lower House of Parliament). He was unable yesterday to round up a majority vote approval of his ultimatum to Britain which had already been approved by the Senate.

PRISONERS INSTALLING ICE

Guelph, Sept. 7.—(CP)—Prisoners from Guelph reformatory are preparing the way for installation of artificial ice in the hockey rink at the Ontario Agricultural College.

Earth in the rink is being levelled off and, if pipes can be obtained, the rink may be ready for hockey, skidoo skating and curling by this autumn.

STEEP ROCK

One of Canada's largest mines is the Steep Rock iron mine at Atikokan, Ont., on the north shore of Lake Superior. A mechanical shovel is shown loading trunnics at the bottom of the 500-foot-deep open-cut mine. Parts of Steep Rock Lake had to be drained before operations could be started. The mine—two miles wide and three miles long—produces about 1,000,000 tons of iron ore a year. — (CP Photo.)

PILOT, NAVIGATOR HURT IN CRASH OF SEARCH PLANE

Craft Plows into Earth Shortly After Take-Off

Kapuskasing, Ont., Sept. 7. — (CP)—The crash of an R.C.A.F. Dakota, injuring the pilot and navigator, marred the take-off this morning of 17 planes continuing the search for missing hockey player Bill Barilko and Timmins-dentist, Dr. Henry Hudson.

The pilot, F.O. Don Lewis, of Trenton, Ont., suffered a broken ankle. The navigator, F.O. Johnny Atkin, also of Trenton, suffered cut face and hands. Spotters aboard the aircraft were shaken up.

The plane, leading search aircraft into the air, was barely six feet off the ground when it plowed into the earth about 100 feet off the end of the concrete runway. The port engine was shattered, the right wing was pierced by a small tree and the nose and landing gear were damaged.

Alex Barilko, brother of the missing hockey player, aiding the search as a spotter, was scheduled to take off another flight this morning but arrived at the airport late. It is thought that by doing so, he missed being aboard the crashed plane.

The planes, still seeking a clue to the disappearance Aug. 26, of the two sportsmen while returning from a fishing trip to Kamaro Bay, were to investigate a mystery teepee near a canoe and a gasoline can on the Winnes Bay Indian reserve, 30 miles northwest of Timmins.

Float-equipped Norseman plane was slated to land on Little Opinnagau Lake, near the Winnes Bay Mission of Rupert House, for a look at the teepee.

5 Persons Killed When Car Crashes Into Freight Train

Accident Occurs at Level Crossing in New Brunswick

McGivney Junction, N.B., Sept. 7.—(CP)—Five persons were killed today when a car crashed into the coal tender of a 41-car Canadian National Railways freight at a level crossing here.

Four were killed in the crash and another, an unidentified woman, died en route to hospital at Fredericton.

The dead: August Lapeigne, St. Simeon, N.B., driver of the car; Antoine Nowlan, Bathurst, N.B.; Odecia Saulnier, 7, St. Simeon, and her mother, Melaine Saulnier.

The five victims were the only occupants of the car and there were no witnesses.

The front of the car was badly smashed but the train was moving slowly and the wreckage was not carried far any distance.

Maj. G. K. Mason, commanding officer of the army's 32nd Ordnance Depot, two miles from the crash, took the depot's ambulance to the scene to render assistance.

Dr. P. G. Horan, of Stanley, the coroner, empanelled a jury immediately.

TWO MEN JUDGES

Ottawa, Sept. 7/(CP) —Two Toronto lawyers have been appointed to the Ontario Supreme Court Bench, Justice Minister Garson announced Thursday. They are Wilfred Judson Wells, L. McLennan, both K.C.'s and both appointed as judges of the Supreme Court of Ontario and members of the High Court of Justice for Ontario.

Liberal Leader Ready to Resign Federal Seat

Orillia, Sept. 7 (CP) —Walter Thomson, Ontario Liberal leader, said Thursday he will resign his federal seat in October or November to contest a provincial general election he thinks will be held at that time. He is the member for Ontario's riding.

"There's an election coming before the end of the year," he told the first summer conference of the Ontario Young Liberal Association. "And I'm going to give up my seat in Ottawa to devote all my attention to winning back Ontario. The Conservatives should have called a vote in June, but they missed the boat."

HOOKED TO BUGGY

Port Bolster, Sept. 7—(CP) — The mechanical age took a temporary set-back recently when a newly-built drive-in theatre on the eastern shore of Lake Simcoe was patronized by a farmer and his wife in a horse and buggy. Unabashed as judges of the drive-in, the farmer and his wife: "It's okay."

Ontario's Harvest Exceeds All Optimistic Estimates Says Kennedy After Trip

Queen's Park, Sept. 7 (CP) — Ontario's Agricultural harvest will exceed all previous optimistic estimates, Agriculture Minister Kennedy said today.

"Barring early frost, I fully expect this province will produce this year an agricultural crop of from $1,250,000,000 to $1,500,000,000 in value. Last year's bumper crop was valued at $1,150,000,000," said Mr. Kennedy.

The minister said the overall picture at present in Canada is for one of the greatest of all crop years. He has just returned from a tour of the Maritime provinces and some of the western portions of the United States.

Unanimous Agreement

Mr. Kennedy said that there had been unanimous agreement at the conference of Dominion and Provincial agricultural ministers in British Columbia that there should not be too much interference from technical experts.

"Nobody but the farmer knows anything about the soil," said the minister.

When the conference reconvenes in Ottawa in November to send their recommendations to the federal government the need for conservation of soil and water will be stressed.

Standardization of grading of all farm products will also be urged Mr. Kennedy said with Ontario taking the lead in bringing its grading processes in line with federal standards now being set.

Ottawa will also be asked to take steps to encourage the building of dairy herds.

Ontario New Importer

Col. Kennedy said that Ontario was now an importer of agricultural products.

"We do not now produce enough food for our own people" he said, "this year 30,000 bags of potatoes are coming in from the Maritime provinces. As for cheese I do not think that we will be able to meet our promise to send 20,000,000 pounds to the British Isles. We have not that much to send."

Refusal of young people to "stay on the farm particularly dairy farms where milking was necessary every day of the year was resulting in shortages the minister said.

"They are leaving and going in to industry at high wages," he said. "As a result cattle are being sold."

Cows Electrocuted Others Paralyzed By Electric Storm

Owen Sound, Sept. 7 (CP) — Two cows were electrocuted and others were paralyzed by electric shock at the height of a rain storm Thursday on the farm of Clifford Weaver, just outside of the city.

The cows received the shock from a heavy hydro transformer line and a brace wire for the Derby township telephone line. The brace wire is located two feet below the transformer line.

No one knows exactly what happened. Said Mr. Weaver: "There was a blinding flash and then there were the cows lying on the ground."

It is not known whether the paralyzed cows will recover. The cattle were pure-bred Guernsey and Holstein milking cows.

Police Told of Fantastic Plot Against Life of Gromyko

San Francisco, Sept. 7—(CP)— Police said today they were told of a fantastic plot against the life of Andrei Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister.

Whether or not the information was true, extraordinary precautions were taken this morning to guard the chief Russian delegate to the Japanese peace treaty conference in session here.

The supposed plot, the information said, hinged around a staged accident in which Gromyko's automobile was to be rammed by a truck.

Sgt. Otto Schramm was quoted as saying he was advised in a telephone call from the San Francisco office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Soviet delegation to the peace conference is lodged in a mansion at Hillsborough, on the San Francisco peninsula. The delegates drive by limousine to and from San Francisco.

The reported plotters planned to ram Gromyko's auto as it moved along Bayshore Highway toward San Francisco, the information said.

The plot was attributed to white Russians—those in opposition to communist rule.

Schramm indicated his information was that the "accident" was to have been staged this morning.

The escort this morning consisted of eight police cars and three motorcycle police.

Two Chinese Air Force Officers Seek Asylum in U.S., Charged With Taking Govt. Funds

Washington, Sept. 7 (AP)—A story of intrigue involving millions of dollars unfolded today around two Chinese Nationalist Air Force officers who may seek asylum in the United States to escape a possible firing squad on Formosa.

The two officers are Lt.-Gen. P. T. Mow, deputy commander of the Chinese Air Force and his executive officer, Col. Hsiang Wei-Hsian. They have been accused by their government of failing to account for $19,440,000 in government funds.

Friends of the two men say the charges are absurd and grew out of Mow's determination to stop grafting in Chinese Air Force purchases made in the U.S.

They say Mow and Hsiang will account for all the money at the proper time.

The Nationalist government headed by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek has ordered Hsiang home but he has refused. The status of Mow is not clear-cut, he, too, is fighting recall.

The story was broken Thursday by the New York Times and was confirmed by friends and associates of the two officers.

Guarded by Gunmen

These friends say Mow and Hsiang were so fearful of an attempt on their lives that they were guarded by hidden gunmen when they attended a dinner Aug. 24 given by the Chinese Ambassador, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, in the fashionable northwest section of the city.

The dinner was held three days after the Chiang government on Formosa had dismissed and denounced the two officers. It was given in honor of Mow's successor, Gen. Tu Tа-Wei.

Mow and Hsiang decided reluctantly to attend the dinner but arranged for bodyguards to be outside the house armed with automatic shotguns and a pistol.

Friends say only two airmen left Pak for political refuge in the U.S. if any move is made to send them back to Formosa.

The U.S. has no extradition treaty with the Chinese Nationalist government. But officials say this government could deport the two.

Before such a move is considered, these officials say privately, the U.S. government will have to satisfy itself there is a sound basis for the charges against the two men and that justice would be served by returning them to Formosa to face possible execution.

The Chinese Nationalist government has not come forward with details of the charges involving the $19,440,000 and the other side of the story is not yet known.

Arthur Deakin, 61, New Chairman Trades Congress

Blackpool, England, Sept. 7 — (Reuters)—Arthur Deakin, 61, today was elected chairman of the powerful trades union congress at the end of its five-day annual meeting here.

He succeeds Alfred Roberts, 53, general-secretary of the amalgamated association of blowing room and ring room operatives.

Deakin is general-secretary of the biggest trade union in the world outside Russia—the 1,200,000-strong transport and general workers union. It was founded by the late Ernest Bevin, who subsequently became foreign secretary.

Deakin led British withdrawal from federation of trade unions and was a British representative at the 1949 London conference which formed the new international confederation of free trade unions.

He is general-secretary of the British Labor party, although some wags call him "the oldest young man in the world."

He studied at the Soviet Institute of economics in Moscow in 1931 after attending a teacher's college in Minsk. Later he was assigned to teach at the academy of sciences and lectured at the institute of economics and at Moscow University.

Diplomatic career began in 1939 when he joined the American section of the Russian Foreign office. He served as second charge d'affaires and in 1943 became ambassador to the U.S.

He was Russia's spokesman at the Dumbarton Oaks conference in 1944 and attended the United Nations founding conference in San Francisco in 1945.

Gromyko's affable, the Russian walk-outs from U.N. sessions in 1946 when Russia's protests against admission of Spain was voted over-ruled. Iran has charged Russian troops violated the Iranian frontier.

Gromyko accounted for 24 of the 25 vetoes cast by the Russians in the early days of the U.N.

In 1946, he returned to Moscow to become No. 2 man in the Russian foreign office—first deputy to Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky.

Gromyko Can Say No in More Ways Than Rich Old Maid With Million

San Francisco, Sept. 7—(AP)—Joker-smiling Andrei Gromyko can say "no" in more ways—and more frequently—than a good looking old maid with a million dollars.

The dark-haired, 42-year-old Russian deputy foreign minister has been practicing nothing except "no" since he arrived here for the Japanese peace conference.

He is adept at saying it, both in his actions and in his firm refusal to comment on anything—including the weather and the scenery.

If it were not for the Russians' cloak - and - dagger behavior, the chances are they would be regarded with no more curiosity than the Canadians or the Van Hanses.

Each day the Russians drive up to the opera house in their sleek limousines and stride inside under the white glare of television lights.

The silently take their places and assume an attitude of bored patience. Gromyko often doesn't even bother to put on the head-set for simultaneous translation of speeches are broadcast to the audience.

After the session, the Russians are whisked to their rented mansion in Hillsborough, 15 miles south of here. That temporary "little Russia" is centred in 12-acre, park-like but unkempt grounds for which the Russians provide their own security.

Evidently Gromyko has nothing to say until he gets inside. Then soldiers speak to the Soviet delegate at his elbow in the conference hall.

Gromyko is reported to find relaxation in chess, Hollywood movies and the novels of Mark Twain. Once in a while he goes fishing.

At some social occasions he'll take a Scotch and soda.

In a sense, at 42, he's Russia's youngest elder statesman who can call him "the oldest young man in the world."

He studied at the Soviet institute of economics in Moscow in 1931 after attending a teacher's college in Minsk. Later he was assigned to teach at the academy of sciences and lectured at the institute of economics and at Moscow University.

Diplomatic career began in 1939 when he joined the American section of the Russian Foreign office. He served as second charge d'affaires and in 1943 became ambassador to the U.S.

Americans Soldiers Relate Grim Story of 18-Hour Chinese Attack

By SAM SUMMERIN

Western Front, Korea, Sept. 7—(AP)—Americans who fought their way through an 18-hour Chinese attack and 15-to-1 odds told about it today.

"It was midnight and everything was quiet," said Pte James Hightower. "Not even the wind was blowing.

Then all of a sudden all hell broke loose. The shells started coming in like rain.

Hightower found himself in the middle of waves of attacking reds.

"I was way out ahead of my company on my listening post," he said. "There was nothing to do but try to crawl back through the Chinese around us."

He wormed his way back on his stomach.

"Bullets were all around me and the shells were dropping and the wounded chinks were moaning, Hightower said.

"I crawled toward one group of wounded chinks—there was about a half-dozen of them. I figured I'd have trouble shooting close to their own men."

Then he heard women crying.

"I thought I was crazy. I saw 2 women with the wounded. They were attacking who give them aid. I could hear them crying as they worked.

Hightower finally edged his way back to his company.

"We counted his men not to shoot until they could see the faces of the attacker.

"Every round they fired," Bedzerski said "was another dead or wounded Chinese."

A jeep-load of extra ammunition saved the situation until tanks crashed through with more supplies and to bring out American dead and wounded.

Attacks on Western Front May be Prelude to Offensive

Tokyo, Sept. 7. (AP)—Allied troops drove Chinese communists off two hills today on the western front where reds earlier encircled two United Nations outposts.

Both surrounded units fought free. One immediately counter-attacked.

A front-line dispatch reported two companies of troops fell from a hill without firing a shot after the Allies' artillery blasted them. Another counter-attack on Hill 467 of Yonchon, which is seven miles north of the 38th parallel.

Further north U.N. infantrymen won a second hill after three hours of close infighting.

Reds fought and attacked all along the western half of the front in actions that had the earmarks of a prelude to a new offensive.

In the mountainous east, stiffening communist resistance checked two attacks by U.S. 2nd Division infantrymen.

In Pitched Battle

Second Division troops were engaged in a pitched battle with reds atop one ridge north of Changgo. And Division assault on another hill was stalled by fiercely resisting reds.

While the air force showing new aggressiveness in the west, several groups of 300 to 400 were spotted moving -away from the battle line. They also moved two groups of the U.N. Air Force had reported knocking out Thursday during a heavy Chinese attack which developed into the week's largest engagements on the western front.

Low-hanging clouds shrouded most of the battle area, hampering Allied warplanes and furnishing cover for red troop movements.

Communist strikes at patrols indicated they wanted to move their main belt of resistance to land which has separated opposing forces in the west for months.

The communist onslaught struck American company Thursday and two other U.N. outposts Friday. Evening fights proved costly to the reds.

An Allied divisional officer estimated the communists suffered 2,000 casualties, including 400 killed.

Nurses apparently accompanied some of the attacking communist troops. Two were killed when crying on the battlefield was reported by one American soldier.

Bert Reppard Retires After 42 Years of Service

A veteran of 42 years as a railroader, Mr. W. Bert Reppard, 370 Bleecker Ave., on September 10th will culminate his career as a locomotive engineer with the Canadian National Railways during the past six years he has been on fault-passenger service operating between this city and Brockville.

A native of the Shasbot Lake district, Mr. Reppard started as a fireman with the old G.T.R. at Bellville back in 1909 and three years later was classed as an engineer.

With the exception of roughly eighteen months when he was running out of Windsor and Toronto, Mr. Reppard has served his entire time as a railroader out of this city. In recent months he has been running passenger trath No. 8, 18, 15, 9 and 19, between Belleville and the eastern end of the division.

Although he has spent most of his career as a freight engineer Mr. Reppard prefers the passenger service. "You have regular hours and know exactly when you will be called," he said.

Take Long Holiday

What to do now his retirement is in the offing? First off he is going to take a long holiday which will possibly take form in a trip. Also he expects he will have more time for fishing, which he had more or less given up during the time as a railroader.

But beyond that he expects to find plenty to do for some time. He is building a new house, on which a large percentage of the work has been done by himself. The house is now closed in "but there is still plenty to do," he says.

Mr. Reppard has two sons, neither of whom has followed their father's career as a railroader. Jack, now married, drives for a local steamer firm, while William is following the same vocation. An only daughter, Fay, is keeping house for Mr. Reppard whose wife died some months ago.

Local Firemen Edge Belleville In Softball, 7-5

Trenton (Special) — A pitcher's duel featured the firemen's softball game at Bayshore Thursday night when Trenton hook and ladder boys defeated the Belleville smoke eaters 7 to 5 in nine innings.

Moundsman Halloran for the visiting brigade looked shaky in the first of the second, yielding 7 hits for five runs when the locals went on a batting spree. Aside from giving up two runs in the first inning however, chucker Halloran blanked the hometowners seven straight innings.

Trenton's Leo Coughlin only faltered twice. His delivery was reached for three runs at: Rump, A. Vance, J. Browning and M. Halloran for Belleville.

By virtue of the win the Trenton firemen are inter-city chamus of the Firemen's League for the 1951 season having suffered Belleville twice in three meetings.

With Mrs. Jess Baker serving the lunch the visitors were entertained at the fire hall by the locals after the game.

The teams—

Belleville: F. Dainard 1b; J. Browning 2b; M. Halloran p; R. Reid 2b; R. Ebenson ss; A. Rump 3; A. Vance lf; J. Yome cf; F. Smith rf.

Trenton: C. Drake cf; G. Coughlin c; C. Ellis 3b; J. Hastings 1b; G. Carley ss; H. Farr 2b; J. Thompson rf; A. Ormshaw lf; L. Coughlin p.

Tall Tale, Revolver Figure in Arrest Of Perth Man

Trenton—(Special) — Don J. Hill, 23-year-old resident of Perth, has been charged with being a public mischief under the Criminal Code.

Trenton police constables D. C. Bradshaw and Gordon Steenburg were tipped off that Hill was in possession of a revolver and in questioning him uncovered a tale of intrigue that was supposed to end with the holdup of a service station west of Trenton.

Hill stated that he had been given a ride to Trenton from Belleville and that the driver of the car had talked him into surrendering his gun. The driver of the car, according to Hill, was going to hold up a service station on Number 2 Highway.

Later provincial police from Brighton, patrolling the highway just west of Trenton, apprehended John Cooper, Frankford. Cooper denied having the gun or ever being given a gun by Hill. Hill later admitted that he was still in possession of the revolver and was forthwith charged as being a public mischief. Cooper is being held for an infraction of the Liquor Control Act.

Suffers Facial Injuries in Crash

Trenton—(Special)—K. C. Belesklde, a member of RCAF Station Trenton, was treated in Trenton Memorial Hospital for slock as a result of the loss of his upper front teeth, a split lip, and bruises on the leg and arm suffered when the car in which he was a passenger struck a highway transport truck.

The car, owned by Belesklde, and driven by Kenneth Palmason, also of the RCAF Station, Trenton, was proceeding south on Murphy St. when it crashed into the right rear dual tires of the truck. The car suffered extensive damage to its grill, hood, and windshield, and traffic along Dundas Street was blocked for several minutes as a result of the crash.

"The truck was jack-knifed but the driver suffered no injuries.

Palmason is being charged with careless driving under the Liquor Control Act.

25-Pound 'Lunge Hooked in Bay Off Point Anne

It was all strictly legal and in accordance with the fishing regulations. It must have been, because the game inspector was right there to assist in the catch!

At any rate Chief Constable Kenneth Williamson, North Front Street, hooked onto a 25-pound 'lunge this morning in the Bay of Quinte off Point Anne and with the game inspector, Game Inspector Fred MacDonald, landed the big muskie after a hectic fishing battle.

The fish was landed safely but it cost the local policeman his fishing rod, reel and line when it charges to get free of the line the big muskie stripped Constable Kandle from the reel. From then on it was a hand over hand battle. Eventually Ken got the muskie alongside and Game Inspector MacDonald brought him into the boat with the net.

Constable Williamson and Mr. MacDonald were trolling some distance off shore when the big muskie grabbed their lure and the battle was on. The muskie was 45 inches in length and had a 19-inch girth.

Two Countries Ready to Discuss Future of Trieste

London, Sept. 7—(Reuters)—A foreign office spokesman said today that the British and Yugoslav governments are ready to discuss the future of Trieste — Adriatic territory disputed by both countries.

The two governments have informed Britain and the United States to that effect, he added.

The U.S. and Britain, as two of three joint administering authorities for the 393-square-mile free territory on the northern tip of the Adriatic, declared in 1948 that Trieste should eventually be handed back to Italy.

Italian Prime Minister Alcide de Gasperi will visit Washington next month. And political observers in Trieste reported today that he will likely urge the U.S. to call for the return to Italy of the whole free territory—including the zone now occupied by Yugoslavia.

U.S. Mediator Feels Dispute Can be Settled

New Delhi, Sept. 7—(AP)—Dr. Frank P. Graham, United Nations mediator in the Kashmir dispute, will leave the Indian sub-continent on Sept. 12 for Geneva where he will write his findings for the security council.

Graham refused to say at a press conference today that his mission was a failure. He still believes the Indian-Pakistan rift over Kashmir can be settled.

The former United States senator presented a formal proposal for settlement to Prime Minister Nehru today, reliable sources said. Up until now all his approaches to both Indian and Pakistan leaders have been on an informal plane. The formal proposal was not accepted by Nehru.

Sources close to the mediator said he was severely shaken by this failure to move Nehru from the position the Indian leader has taken on the Kashmir issue. It is believed Graham will now present the same formal proposal to Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan in Karachi. The mediation team will begin final conferences with Liaquat Ali tommorrow.

A spokesman said Graham himself feels the issue can be resolved if only both factions will "compromise a little bit."

Graham's departure finds tension between India and Pakistan —which was boiling towards war fever a month ago—somewhat eased. Although troops of both nations are ranassed along the frontiers, the fear that open war might erupt is greatly reduced—at least it is in New Delhi.

Pakistan, a Moslem state, claims Kashmir because the northern state's population is mostly Moslem. India's claim is by virtue of the accession to New Delhi by the Hindu Kashmiri Kaharajah just after Britain pulled out of the sub-continent.

Trains Collide, Four Injured, Two Severely

Tillsonburg, Ont., Sept. 7—(CP) —Four persons were injured—two severely—when the locomotive of a train collided yesterday with a combination baggage - passenger car of another.

A locomotive hauling a dozen coal cars up a long, steeply-curved grade splintered the rear car of the train ahead of it on a Canadian Pacific Railway main line.

One of the four injured—Mrs. Julia Thomasomis, 45, of Verdun, Que.—remained on the serious list in hospital here today.

In "satisfactory" condition were George Kesilich, 29, of Port Burwell, fireman of the coal train; Howard P. Creighton, 62, London, in hospital at London; Arthur Scanlan, 36, Port Burwell, of the coal train.

There was no explanation for the crash. Both trains were bound from Port Burwell to Woodstock. The accident occurred on the town outskirts here.

Creighton, a C.P.R. bridge and building master, and Mrs. Thomasomis were passengers on the passenger train. Both had to be dug out of the wreckage of their telescoped-coach.

OPERATIONS RESUME

HE SOUGHT ETERNAL YOUTH

The dream of eternal youth lost one of its most ardent wooers this week with the death of Dr. Serge Voronov, at Lausanne, Switzerland.

Dr. Voronov, who sprang to prominence in the mid-twenties by announcing that he had "rejuvenated" animals by transplanting sex glands, and then carefully avoided denying reports that similar transplantations might put the sap of youth back into the sagging limbs of age, died of a heart attack after suffering a fall at his apartment.

The medical world recognized Dr. Voronov as a skilful surgeon who also had great gifts as a talker and writer. No one doubted his sincerity, but few took his claims seriously, because surgeons had not yet learned the secret of transplanting whole glands from one human being to another without deterioration, and because it is even less possible to transplant glands from one species to another. Although subsequent experiment has proved that glands can be transplanted there is no record of "rejuvenation." Dr. Voronov, who amassed a large fortune and lived in luxury on the French Riviera, is the author of several serious surgical works but it is for his startling claims of "rejuvenation" that he became an international celebrity in the mid-twenties.

Unlike the medieval alchemists who tried to "get something for nothing" by transmuting lead into gold, or like those folk who died in the Florida Everglades in quest of the "Fountain of Youth," Voronov applied scientific training, medical knowledge, energy in the research laboratory, and the techniques of modern surgery to accomplish his desire. His idea was to transplant the glands of monkeys to human beings, "rejuvenating" them, and then using the apes as a source of supply, replace the worn parts as age again assaulted the new man. However, physiology and time conspired to defeat him, and death, which he tried so hard to conquer, has claimed him at last.

His death, while it may give pause to his disciples, will never end man's quest for perpetual youth. New savants are already extolling the virtues of this, that, and the other "discovery," and daily health "rays" are everything — will, no doubt, be used in this never-ending quest. Even now blackstrap molasses and yogurt are supposed to contain the magic ingredients for a longer life. While transplanted surgical glands would hardly appeal to the esthete, the nectar of nonsense may prove more palatable although it is difficult to imagine anyone wanting to live for one hundred years on a diet of blackstrap molasses, yogurt, and wheat-germ bread.

WHEN CHILDREN DIE

(Sudbury Star)

The correspondent who wrote a letter to the editor of the Dryden Observer, speaking on behalf of a small child who was riding a tricycle and almost struck by a passing motorist, has summed up the child's case very neatly.

"Children, my hasty friend, were here long before you or your automobile were thought of. All the automobiles in the world are not worth the life of a little boy. We don't know what that little boy may some day be, but we know what you are, and it's unimportant. We can get along without you, we can't without a single little boy on our streets," said the correspondent.

The little boy whose life is crushed out beneath the wheels of a motor vehicle might have been a Churchill or an Einstein, Tennyson or Mozart, a world-famous genius. Or, if the victim is a little girl, who is to say that she might not have been a Madame Curie, George Elliot or Joan of Arc?

Motor vehicle drivers who slay small children are, as the Dryden correspondent observes, "unimportant." But the potential loss to the world when a child is killed is beyond comprehension.

MONTREAL'S HEFTY MAYOR

(Napier Moore in Financial Post)

Camillien Houde, mayor of Montreal, is not only philosophical about his tutumultuous re-elections; he is gay, flamboyant joviality. Currently he delights in telling this one on himself.

Recently, feeling rather short of breath after hurrying upstairs to keep an appointment, he decided it would be wise to have a medical check-up. So he went to his doctor. The doctor give him a most thorough examination. "Your Worship," he said, "you have an extremely good heart for a man of 200 pounds."

The man departed in high spirits. As he tells it. "I got halfway round the block feeling pretty satisfied with myself. Then suddenly I stop. A thought had hit me. I said to myself, 'Camilien, what are you so happy about? You weigh 300 pounds'."

JUST FOLKS

COURAGE

Were courage something men could buy, The rich would force the price too high, They'd bid for it, from day to day, Much more than poorer men could pay. They'd hoard it, and the day they died Leave it for children to divide.	When man invests his heart in it, Who has it faces unafraid Whatever challenge may be made.
It is a simple truth to state That courage is an asset great. A priceless treasure all admit	'Tis well that courage can't be sold Or stolen as can coins of gold. The poor boy may possess a share, Greater than may some rich man's heir, But since it's on no market shelf He must provide it for himself.

The Rev. Harold Reid of Foxboro will preach next Sunday in Hilton and on Sunday preached in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in that city.

30 YEARS AGO

Sept. 7th., 1921

A correspondent suggests that a shopping zone on Front Street be arranged for Saturday nights and other correspondents think that the idea is worthy of being given a trial. The suggestion is to close the roadway on Front Street from Bridge Street to Victoria Avenue every Saturday evening from seven to ten o'clock and make the street safe for pedestrians. Now the street is used for parking and joy riding to such an extent that it is a dangerous stunt to try and cross the road and many persons who wish to visit shops on both sides of the street are afraid to make the passage. Let the market square be used for parking with a man in charge of the cars. Mayor Ellis and the council should give the idea consideration.

40 YEARS AGO

Sept. 7th., 1911

The Rev. W. G. Clarke, pastor of the Tabernacle, has returned from his vacation.

Strength for the Day

IMAGE AND LIKENESS

We read in the sixth chapter of 1st Corinthians "Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have of God? and ye are not your own? for ye are bought with a price: glorify God therefore in your body."

There is also another passage which speaks of the whole of a believer's life being a temple of the Holy Spirit, and another which says that his body is a member, or a part of Christ. This all indicates the very sacred character of human. It needs to be considered always when we are thinking of the evil that is within us.

Yesterday mention was made of that twist of soul which we all have—that inborn disposition to do evil rather than to do good. This is true, but is also true that the insignificant and gathers to it a noble vitality. In understanding, judgment, and spiritual ripeness, it climbs and develops. The mind need never to drop its desires. The Alps of the mind can always be climbed to their summit—and even beyond!

The fact is that the less it is concerned with the trivial and unimportant, the more has broadened, its horizons have widened. You can see the body grow for but a few months, but you can note the growth of the mind year by year. But for its grand growth this time has not must be given wise intellectual nourishment.

To the very end the mind of the late George Bernard Shaw continued keen and alert as a part of eternity to it. His was one of the most remarkable minds in literary history. And how marked in dignity and humor was the mind of the late Premier Oliver Wendell Holmes, still young at ninety.

God's greatest creation was in the mind of man, and He meant it to be about never become old, but should develop, grow, and form its own boundaries. And no limits to those boundaries. There is always inspiration to be gained from contact with a healthy, open-one in which nothing mean or base exists one that is forever kept clean and whole-some.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Great Battles Shaped History of The World

(From The New York Times)

Just a century ago an English author began what was to become a very famous book — the words that evoke a sigh today. "It is an honorable characteristic of the spirit of this age," he wrote, "that projects of violence and war are regarded among civilized states with gradually increasing aversion."

Where Sir Edward Creasy's book "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World," by Edward Shepherd Creasy, that stirring panorama of the great moments in history from Marathon to Waterloo when the fate of an Oriental empire day hung on the issue of one battle.

"Had Persia beaten Athens at Marathon (BC 490) she could have found no obstacle to prevent Darius, the chosen servant of Ormuzd, from advancing his sway over all the known races of mankind...Alexander's victory at Arbela (BC 331) not only overturned an Oriental empire, but established European rulers in its stead. The victorious battles of King Theodoric fought and triumphed at Chalons (AD 451) also left their mark with the legions of Aetius.

"Their joint victory over the Hannibal did not only rescued for a time from destruction the old race in Italy, but preserved for centuries of power and glory the Germanic element of this civilization of modern Europe."

And so it went—Tours in 732, where Charles Martel broke the Saracens and "gave a decisive check to the career of Arab conquest which had already spread its waves so sad and thrilling to read about; Joan of Arc's victory, the defeat of the Spanish Armada, Marlborough, Peter the Great and 1917 was his monument, for Napoleon. Our own victory over Creasy's countrymen at Saratoga it tot was the turning point for it turned the tide of war, and brought France and Spain on our side.

And what shall we think today of Pulitzer Prize Peter the Great defeated Charles XII of Sweden in 1709, and started the slave on the road to conquest whose end we do not yet see?

Even in this book Creasy could write: "It may be doubted whether a Cabinet council often sits down with a purer Foreign Office without Russia being uppermost in every English statesman's thoughts." Creasy a century ago gave us the terrible warning that unless we thought all minds today, "that the narrative of the past is preparatory to the remaining page that will conclude the history of the World."

To be sure, he also believed that Christianity would spread to Japan by the fleets and armies of the United States are events have to the fifteen that Creasy chose.' Some have said Gettysburg in our Civil War, for it saved the Union. Then there were the Marne and Verdun in the First World War. Tomorrow we could add El Alamein and Stalingrad from the late war. Certainly, the naval Battle of the Midway Islands would earn its place.

The glory and the thrill of all these great battles can never be dimmed by the knowledge of the horrors and cruelty of war.

A century from now our descendents will read as emotionally as we do how the Athenian Miltiades died of his fatal wound at Marathon, how that Norman arrow shot high in the air came down and pierced Earl Harold's eye, how the thin red lines of the British squares withstood the shock of the Old Guard at Waterloo.

Those readers in 2051 will not look back on our days and sigh in envy, as we do today, to read about the 36 years of peace that preceded 1851. Peace, it would seem, is the mere truce between wars, and it may be that one of the "decisive battles" yet to be added to the list is some cataclysmic atomic struggle in which the world will be saved for democracy.

Letter to the Editor

Says Hospitalization In England Not Free

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I have just read with great interest the recent report of Mr. Fred Hart's talk, but I must disagree with him that the Labor government in England gives anyone something for nothing. Why does Mr. Hart tell his Canadian audience that hospitalization in England is free, when he must know that at every man has 4/10d stopped from his pay each week? That amounts to $1.40 per week, and the deficit, which is heavy, has to be made up by taxpayers. Would a Canadian tradesman, if he had $3 a week stopped from his pay, agree that he was getting something for nothing?

Not only thing the Labor government has not charged for, is taking away all incentive to work and make headway.

Mr. Hart evidently swallowed the Labor party's bait, as so many in Britain did to their sorrow, not stopping to consider for a moment that nothing comes from nothing. Heaven knows were coming from; they promised Utopia, but what is Utopia when they have made of everything. As Sir Stafford Cripps stated, they were out to create a state that could not be unscrambled.

THE NUTRITIONAL ALLOWANCES IN PREGNANCY

After studying yesterday's column, it should be very apparent to everyone that the character of the diet during pregnancy has much to do with the health of the mother as well as the health of the baby. The Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council has helped to no end in educating the public, especially young mothers-to-be. The Council has established a daily recommended intake of the nutrients including calories, protein, vitamins and minerals. It has been pointed out by the Council, however, that even though these daily requirements should be remembered, they are meant only to serve as guides. In advising women in regard to their diets during pregnancy, their aim is to assure that enough of each nutrient is included to insure the best possible health during pregnancy and preparation for labor, delivery and the post-partum period.

These allowances assume that the woman entering pregnancy is in good health, a condition which is often times far from true. Of course, the Council is unable to instruct each prospective mother.

This minimum may reach a few thousand more who might gain a little from the advice a one-horse-and-buggy doctor can offer. It is my hope that eventually every woman in the civilized country of ours can be taught that it is important to enter pregnancy in excellent nutritional state.

The vitamins and minerals which have been recommended by the Council as the minimum daily intake are as follows: Calcium A 5,000 USP units to be increased to 6,000 during the 7th to 9th months, Itamin D, anywhere from 400 to 800 USP units depending upon the amount of sunshine absorbed during the day, Vitamin B-1, 1.5 milligrams which is increased to 2 milligrams by the fifth month, and Vitamin B-2, 2 milligrams to be increased to 3 milligrams at the same time. One of the most important nutrients is iron, of course, is Calcium which should be increased from the minimum of 0.8 gram to 2.0 grame during the last half of pregnancy. A gram is equivalent to nearly 15½ grains (one-fourth teaspoonful) and a milligram is a thousandth of a gram.

If the menu provides these vitamins and minerals mentioned it will come close to being a protective diet keeping the protective mother in the best of health, to say nothing of keeping the little stranger who will soon be banging the table with her new spoon. However, few diets maintain the requirements in the quantities listed. To be certain that the quantities recommended by the Council are followed daily, it is almost always necessary that some type of dietary supplement should accompany the balanced diet. Such a supplement is described in a free pamphlet entitled Young Folks and Old Folks which can be had for the asking. Just send self-addressed stamped envelope with your request. For those of you who are really sincere about learning more about the dietary requirements of being a mother, you might also like a copy of the booklet entitled Preparing for Maternity which can be had by enclosing 25 cents when you write for the free pamphlet.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Meaningless Words

I say gout and arthritis are one and the same, but my friend says gout is one disease joints arthritis is another. (Mrs. L. F.)

Arthritis means joint inflammation if you find out what either word means. Arthritis is Greek for joint inflammation. What "gout" may be I have never been able to learn. The medical terms are often still in practice) imagined accumulation or deposit of uric acid in the joints and tissues which caused pain, redness and swelling which they called "gout" but the fact remains that tebts of blood fail to support the notion. When we learn what they find out what in Sam Hill ails a patient, calling it "gout" makes a fine stlid.

Contact Lenses

Your opinion of the safety and reliability of contact lenses. (Mrs. E. W. E.)

Answer—They are safe and reliable enough. Some persons can wear them for several hours at a time without too much discomfort.

Mother Knows Best

My mother says she just stopped menstruating suddenly when she was 48 and has never had any of the discomforts or troubles that are associated with the "change of life." To me and my friends the menopause looms like a huge, dark cloud. (T. F.)

Answer—It shouldn't be. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet The Menopause.

THE PACKSAK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you see anyone physically hurt, such as in a street accident, it is almost instinctive to come to their help. Nobody has to encourage you. If a motor car is a stranger. Instantly they become fellow-beings, as close as friend or brother.

But when strangers reveal themselves to be hurt only in feelings, we are apt to be helpless to aid them. In fact very often when we see a stranger emotionally upset, we turn away and hurry off. We don't want to become involved in other people's troubles that are not physical.

But there are exceptions. The other evening in a restaurant, a young couple at a table near-by had obviously had some sort of a falling out. They had half finished their meal, and sat, facing slightly away from each other. The girl was flushed and struggling fiercely to hold back the tears. The young fellow was white and angry, his face working. Whenever they did steal a glance at each other, it was one of terribly hurt surprise, a sort of complete misery, as though they had just this minute discovered something about each other that they had never known before. There were, two youngsters worse hurt than if they had been in a motor car accident. I'm sure you could you make to help them.

What moved me to write this was that there was a few minutes ago, on the crowded street corner as I came to my office, I caught a glimpse of a face among the passers-by that was in itself so pleading and so full of misery. It would be a wild guess to try and tell what that filled him with such fright. Was he feeling the first stabs of a heart attack? Had he got some money troubles in a few minutes? Had he just got bad news of a child? In the crowd of faces I could only see the rules, there was nothing I or anyone around could do, though he was terribly hurt.

American Information Program Shifts Tactics for Bare-Knuckle Scrap With Red Propagandists

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

Saigon, Indo - China, Sept. 7 — (AP) — After a losing start in Asia's war of words, the American information program has shifted tactics for a bare-knuckle scrap with communist propagandists.

Tons of printed paper, radio programs and special movies carry the American message. A recent personal survey of Indo - China, Thailand, Burma and Malaya shows it has been registering.

Two international developments have made Asians more receptive to American ideas. One is the successful U. N. action in Korea, which has restored confidence in American strength and collective security. The other is the disgrace in Asia for the red repression and mass executions in China.

American information officers are exploiting both to repair U. S. prestige in Asia which tumbled after Chiang Kai-Shek's government retreated to Formosa.

Nationalism Key Issue

Nationalism is the key issue in Indo - China, and in that jealously - guarded French preserve American information officers must tread cautiously.

In British Malaya, the American Information program carries the ball in the word war on communist China. British propaganda in Malaya is excellent but because of closer British ties to Peking, it must soft pedal blasts at the Chinese communists.

Sometimes, American propaganda is clumsy and does more injury than good. Errors of this kind usually are due to inexperience.

The American reputation has sagged perceptibly in Asia because of U. S. support of French rule in Indo-China over the three semi-independent native governments. In India, Burma and Indonesia — countries which have recognized the Peking government— continued American backing of Chiang Kai-Shek is unpopular.

Rain Dims Hopes CNE Attendance Will be Record

Toronto, Sept. 7—(CP)—Rain has dimmed official hopes that attendance at this year's Canadian National Exhibition would top 3,000,000.

The showers yesterday and last night held attendance to 135,000, compared to 149,000 on the same day last year.

Total turnout to date stands at 2,291,000, some 3,000 down from the figure reached on the corresponding day in 1950. Until rain hit the big fair, the year-all attendance since the opening Aug. 24 had been leading 1950 by 12,-300.

However, with the weather man's assurance that the rain has probably moved on officials hoped for a steady clicking of the turnstiles today and on the closing day tomorrow.

This is interprovincial and service clubs' day.

The National Horse Show holds its second doubles session with judging of classes in the afternoon and evening. Sixteen-year-old Shirley Thomas, Ottawa, won her fourth first last night in the ladies' jumpers class.

A male visitor stole a little of the ladies' glories yesterday. E. J. Taylor of Toronto took second prize in a contest in which competitors were asked to give solutions for everyday problems. Asked how to impress one's wife with the correct manner of squeezing a tube of toothpaste, he suggested a switch to tooth powder.

Music activities wind up today with a concert by first prize winners in all classes.

The Canadian and International Table Tennis tournament which opened yesterday continues with more than 100 entries from Canada and the United States.

Aerial Search For Bush Pilot To be Extended

Edmonton, Sept. 7—(CP)—An aerial search in the North West Territories for Wilfrid Johnny Bourassa, resumed Wednesday after a lapse of 2½ months, is to be extended.

The R. C. A. F. said here yesterday that two more aircraft will join five already engaged in the hunt, east of Yellowknife.

An R. C. A. F. plane from Winnipeg yesterday was sent to the search area. It was to be joined today by another from Rivers, Man. Already in the search are four R. C. A. F. planes and one aircraft from Associated Airways.

A maximum of 13 planes covering about 160,000 square miles in the first phase of the search after the Peace River, Alta., pilot, about 30, disappeared May 18 on a 200-mile northern flight.

No trace of the plane was found until last Friday when a U. S. A. F. aircraft sighted it on the rocky shore of Wholdaia Lake, N. W. T. Bourassa apparently was unhurt in a skilful landing after his plane ran out of gas.

A search of the plane Tuesday, resulted in discovery of a note left by Bourassa. He said he stayed with his plane five days and then, May 23, started a trek which he hoped would end at a settlement on the south shore of Great Bear Lake.

Mrs. F. W. K. Harris Gives Address On 'World Conditions'

Madoc—An interesting and inspiring session of Madoc WMS was held in Trinity United Church on Wednesday afternoon when members of neighboring WMS and W.A. groups were guests.

The devotional service, conducted by Mrs. M. Burnside and Mrs. R. N. Broad of Hazzard's followed the theme for the winter study course "Canada Moves W. Rollins of Cooper sang.

The guest speaker, introduced by Mrs. Lane, was Mrs. F. W. K. Harris, of Peterborough, immediate past president of Bay of Quinte Conference branch and Dean of School for leaders at Whitby.

In a brief survey of world conditions, Mrs. Harris pointed out the pressing need for Christian workers in the eastern and middle eastern countries if the insidious growth of communism is to be halted. It is only by living and teaching the Christian way that wars can be averted and a true democracy can be born.

Turning to Canada, Mrs. Harris reminded her audience of the wide scope of work being done by the United Church and urged all to better acquaint themselves with their own church, its opportunities and its great need for more workers.

At the close of her address, Mrs. Harris spoke for a few minutes on the School for Leaders which is held at the Ladies College, Whitby, the last week of each August. This school is a refresher course for all workers or would be workers in the church and is well worth attending.

Mrs. Young, of Marmora, thanked Mrs. Harris and all who had taken a part in the service and then the acting president, Mrs. A. Empey, after a brief message, invited theladies to meet in the Sunday School room at the close of the meeting.

While tea was served the ladies enjoyed Mrs. Harris informally and a really happy social hour was held.

NO DAMAGE RESULTED

Oshawa, Sept. 7—(CP)—A short circuit in a dumb-waiter elevator brought reels racing from both city fire halls yesterday to the general hospital. Smoke pouring up the elevator shaft caused many to believe the hospital was on fire and the patients in danger. However, no patients were affected and no damage resulted.

Mayor of West Berlin Borough Takes Reprisals

Berlin, Sept. 7 — (AP) — The mayor of West Berlin Borough today began a reprisal against the communist road tax by seizing vehicles coming from Soviet east Berlin. He had them searched and slapped a toll on them.

Within two hours, 200 east Berlin vehicles had been stopped and impounded by Willi Kressman, Borough of Kreuzberg.

mayor of the American-sector Kressman said he assessed eastern drivers the same tax the communists are exacting from west Berlin and west German drivers on Russian-zone roads.

He said he was also conducting a campaign against illegal east-west trade. All cars and trucks impounded were to be searched and their drivers questioned to determine if they are engaged in unauthorized commerce.

Kressman undertook his reprisal campaign as the allied high commission met for the second day to decide on counter-measures against the communist levy which has curtailed Berlin's highway traffic with the west.

Some Different Fillings For Box Sandwiches

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lunch-box time again. As soon as the school-bell rings in the fall term, thousands of mothers across Canada are back at the daily chore of packing junior's school lunch.

The big problem is how to vary this daily chore sufficiently to provide five days a week, a variety of nourishing and appetizing lunches.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, say that sandwiches can be made well ahead of time. The sandwiches should be wrapped in wax-paper and stored in a cool place.

Or they be placed unwrapped in a pan, then completely covered with wax-paper and a damp cloth. Be sure that the damp cloth does not touch the sandwiches.

Fillings: Baked beans, mashed with chili sauce and chopped, crisp bacon; chopped green or ripe olives and nuts with mayonnaise; cucumber, cream cheese and salad cress; dates, peanut butter and orange juice; marmalade and chopped nuts; ground raisins and ground pork; mashed cooked prunes, orange juice and chopped nuts.

Hot-Cold Dessert

Ever eat baked Alaska? It's the kind of dish mother brings on when there's special company for dinner. It looks difficult to all-but-not be made. Actually the making is as easy as falling off a log.

All you need is a flat layer of sponge cake, about an inch square and an inch longer than the pint brick of ice cream you are going to use.

Prepare a meringue by beating four egg whites and adding gradually one half cup fruit sugar.

Put the ice-cream on the cake, then quickly—but carefully—cover both ice cream and cake with the meringue so not a bit of ice cream shows through.

Set Alaska into a very hot oven (450 degrees fahrenheit) and leave just long enough for the meringue to brown slightly—two to three minutes.

Slide on to serving plate and serve immediately.

Greens for Salads

Cabbage and lettuce aren't the only greens giving salads that crisp fresh look. Did you ever try shredded spinach? It gives a dark green color and texture which no other vegetable can surpass.

Salad suggestion: Shredded spinach, sliced radishes and sliced green onions. Serve this with French dressing plus a little Roquefort-type cheese sprinkled on it.

NO DAMAGE REPORTED

Manila, Friday, Sept. 7 (AP)—A light earthquake rattled dishes and caused mirrors and pictures to sway in Manila today. No serious damage was reported.

Club Activities

SHANNONVILLE BABY BAND

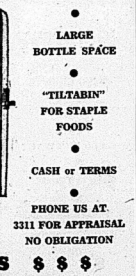
A pleasant gathering was held at the United Church hall, Shannonville, on Thursday afternoon when, at the invitation of Mrs. Claude Clarke, the Baby Band leaders, mothers, babies and little tots met for their annual Baby Band party. There were 34 children and 24 adults present.

Following the singing of Mrs. Clarke, suitable children's hymns were sung accompanied at the piano by Mrs. L. W. Scott. Mrs. W. D. Robertson read the Scripture lesson from Matthew 2.

Mrs. Clarke gave a reading "Why We Have Baby Bands", in which an appeal was made to the mother to help the little ones grow up with an interest in those of other lands, who are less fortunate than themselves.

The Rev. I. Scott told a nice story showing how talents differ and that one should always be willing to do what he or she can do well.

Three of the members, who are soon starting to school, graduated from the Baby Band to the Mission Band i.e., Gladys Irene and Mary Jane McFarlane and Master Williams. Two Mission Band members, Gayle Juby and Beverley Kilpatrick clasped hands and held them up so that the three graduates could pass under and be welcomed by Mrs. Stanley MacDonald, leader of the Shannonville Mission Band. Mrs. Scott played soft piano music during this interesting little ceremony.



After the singing was dismissed races and games were enjoyed by the little ones on the church lawn, while Mrs. Clarke and her assistants prepared refreshments that were later enjoyed by all. Mrs. Clarke is doing a splendid work with the Baby Band that is growing larger all the time, upholding the words of the Good Shepherd, "Suffer little children to come unto Me and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

Boscobel Wood, England, Sept. 7 (Reuters)—The oak tree in which King Charles II hid from Cromwell's Roundheads in 1651 had a birthday yesterday. More than 1,200 people celebrated the 300th anniversary of the King's escape.

EXCELLENT DRIVER

Oakes, N.D., Sept. 7 (AP) — North Dakota's drivers' licence test proved no trouble for K. F. Stevens. He passed it with flying colors, and the written part came back marked "excellent." To celebrate, Stevens plans to take a drive tomorrow— his 93rd birthday.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

Shortening — a product that causes pastry to have "shortness" or the characteristic of easy crumbling into small tender pieces.

The most popular shortening is vegetable fat because it can be worked smooth with little effort. There are many recipes, however, that call for melted shortening. Vegetable fat is easily melted, but when you add melted vegetable fat to a cold liquid, the fat returns to its solid state. If you pour melted shortening into very cold milk, for instance, you can often watch it turning solid into small hard pieces.

In recipes that call for melted shortening, the best fat is salad oil which is the least wasteful, easiest to use and remains liquid when mixed with cold milk.

A waffle batter is similar to a pancake batter except that it is considerably richer. The increased fat not only gives the waffles additional crispness but makes it necessary to grease the waffle iron. In today's recipe for bran waffles, we use the all-bran flakes in the milk five minutes so that the hard pieces of bran become tender.

Bran Waffles, Honey Batter.
Serves 4.

1 cup bran
2 cups milk
2 cups sifted all purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup sugar
2 eggs separated
1-2 cup salad oil
Finely grated orange rind
1-2 cup corn syrup
1-2 cup honey
1-2 cup butter

Soak the bran in the milk 5 minutes. Sift together the flour, baking powder salt and sugar.

Mix together the bran-milk mixture, the 2 egg yolks, salad oil and orange rind.

Combine the dry ingredients and the bran mixture. Stir only until ingredients are blended.

Beat the egg whites until stiff and fold into the batter.

Preheat the waffle iron 5 to 10 minutes. Bake the waffles.

While waffles are baking, heat together the corn syrup, honey and butter. Serve the hot syrup separately at the table.

Whitehall Notebook:

Conservative Party has Tough Time Persuading People It Believes in Welfare Capitalism

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 6 — (CP) — In this century of the common man, Britain's Conservative party has a tough time trying to persuade people that it really believes in welfare capitalism.

Highly or wrongly, Conservatives are prisoners of their past. In the minds of many moderate voters, the word "Tory" still suggests a wicked capitalist, a privileged property owner or at best a defender of the status quo.

It seems fair to say that if Winston Churchill and his colleagues win the next general election, as majority opinion now takes pretty well for granted, they will do so not because of their own irresistible appeal than because of the ejections of the electorate have largely lost faith in labor.

Party of Privilege

The Conservative effort to slough off the wraith clothing of privilege and reaction is difficult. The Tories go back a long way to the days when all politics were dominated by the wealthy landed classes. Now, in a political climate where security and humanitarianism are perhaps more potent influences than in the flourishing free-enterprise economies of North America, every move the Tories make is suspect.

Since 1945, they have tried to broaden their base. Every annual conference has at least one speaker who boasts he is a son of toil from the Old Kent Road. There is an "industrial college" in the north of England and the party says it approves in principle of the welfare state, including the National Health Service.

All the way, it is an uphill fight.

Tories Defensive

In this curiously defensive mood, Conservatives face a difficult choice. Most feel that the political pendulum has swung too far to the left. The country is in real difficulties, they say, and if seeking those problems happens to include trimming social expenditure, well, that's the way it has to be. At the same time, they know that such policies are unpopular among sections of the population which remember the period between the wars as the "bad old days" of Tory rule.

Something of this spirit was hinted at in a recent speech by David Eccles, an influential Conservative back - bencher. The party, he said, must try to get rid of its reputation as the party of privilege.

The speech rang freshly in an atmosphere weighed down by stalemate politics. Many British newspapers commented favorably, and some predicted it would form one of the chief planks in the Conservative platform at the next election. But there were some skeptical reactions.

The Manchester Guardian, Liberal, called the policy "perilously vague" and asked whether the Conservatives have really moved away from the restrictionist ideas of the 1930s.

The Weekly Economist, an independent publication, said there were two tests. One was whether a Conservative government would reduce surtax on large earned incomes, while raising the import on large inheritances. The other was whether it would really try to break up monopolies and price-fixing associations.

"That is the necessary policy for a capitalism of opportunity," the economist said, "but . . . it is the leaders of the price rings who are among the party's most active supporters."

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking and thinking and ma said, " lilliam, when do you believe are the most susceptible to flattery, men or women?

Women, naturally, pop said and ma said, Then you're wrong because I just read an article on the subject by Dr. Sinbad Jones the famous sycologist, and he claims that men are far more susceptible to flattery than women.

He's talking through his sycology, pop said. If you tell a man something nice about himself that he knows is true, naturally he's pleased at being appriciated but you can give a woman a postiverise line of taffy that she knows darn well is pure baloney, and she'll lap it up just the same and come back for more, he said, and though it may also be true such nonsense as that, just give me a line of taffy, as you call it, and you'll see how promptly I laff it off.

All rite, my dear, pop said. I hope you wont object if I tell you that you look younger today than you did the first day I met you, because it's true, my dear, and though it may also be true that you've put on a few pounds, here and there, they really serve to accentuate your youthful lines he said, and ma said, Why William, tell me more. I actually enjoyed that little speech, even though I realize it was exaggerated William, you're a great sycologist than Sinbad Jones. If you only sat down to it, you could write a book that would take the whole scientific world by storm, she said.

Oh, cone, I may have a little insight into human nature, but I'm not sutch a marvel as all that, pop said, and ma said, Of course you're not, but you sctually thought I thought so. So that just proves Sinbad Jones is rite, and men are just big babies when it come to flattery, she said.

You win, pop said.

Being the happy end of the subject for ma.

BIG CATCH

NEED MORE PROPAGANDISTS

Oxford, England, Sept. 6 (AP)

A British Methodist minister told the World Conference of Methodists today that the denomination needs "more Christian propagandists."

Rev. H. Cecil Pawson of Newcastle, said:

"We live in an age when millions never open the Bible and have little if any personal knowledge of the Gospel. We need more Christian propagandists. Happily the press is, more than at any other time in my life, giving space to religious news."

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

Lance Bradley, who went to the hall to do some nominating on his own, was highly pleased to see so many of the townsfolk present, it was quite evident that his paper, his radio station and himself had been working in vain, that a civic consciousness had been aroused at last.

As the clock struck twelve, Town Clerk Jenners handed a list of the nominees, with their proposers and seconders, to Reporter Bill Artist for his paper, and reminded him that all nominees had up to nine o'clock the following night to qualify if they wished to contest an election.

That late afternoon's Ensign carried the list of nominations on its front page, and Reporter Bill Artist in a well-written story pointed out that according to the opinions of men who should know, this had been the most fruitful two hours that the ratepayers had spent at town hall in many years. That the names of seven prominent citizens had been placed in nomination for the mayoralty, that twenty-six possible candidates were named for council. He forecast an unusually large turnout for the public meeting that would be held in town hall that night. And it was highly possible now that for the first time in at least several years, the voters of Emerton would be asked to choose next year's mayor and council by ballot, instead of letting the matter slip, and permitting a mayor and council to elect itself by the simple expedient of the show of hands. Electing council by acclamation was not in the best interest of the town, and should never be allowed to happen again.

A copy of The Ensign before him, a pleased Lance Bradley sat at his desk reading for the first time the lengthy list of nominees for the various offices. Here indeed was an inspiring array of citizens from many walks of life, of business, and the professions. But all to what purpose? In this list were names of men who had told him that they would not stand for public office, or having stood before, had found it did not pay and wanted no more of it. Yet it was possible that these men had been talking to him with tongue in cheek, fearful perhaps that they would be overlooked when the nominations were being made, or having no desire to sit in council with men they had reason to dislike.

As he had anticipated, his name appeared in this list of nominees. Johnston Parker and Dr. Brown had nominated him for the mayoralty. Further down his name appeared among those nominated for a seat in council, but his sponsors were the names of men with whom he was not too well acquainted.

Now Lance Bradley was well aware that he lacked the municipal experience to satisfactorily preside over council. If the town's affairs were in such a fine condition as they were believed to be at this time, the job of clearing this was for an experienced man, and from what he knew, there were several experienced men in this list, several men who had been mayors of the town some years previously.

But he would run for council, and if elected he would play his part to the best of his ability. He was quite aware that he would never qualify as a good public speaker, but then he could stand up, and he could talk. And that night when every last one had said his piece, he would talk, he would accuse a public official of committing a breach of trust, and he would produce the proof of his guilt, and he would demand that this man be dismissed from office at once.

With this in mind, Lance Bradley spent the short hours between quitting time at the office and his appearance at the town hall in eating his supper and preparing his case. From his safe he secured the damning evidence of a man's wrong-doing, sat down and made a few notes. Then he placed the evidence in an inside pocket of his coat.

Shortly before eight o'clock he left the Roberts' home with Dad Roberts. A few minutes later they were sitting in a crowded town hall, and failing to find a seat at the back, they were compelled to go up front.

Pretty soon the speech-making started with Mayor Crookes and his councillors leading off. The mayor and council were given a quiet hearing. Then the names of the other nominees were called and each man came to his feet to have his say and sit down again. After a while Lance's turn would come too, but what he had to say at this time would be nothing compared to what he would have to say later, when the last of the nominees had spoken. For what he was going to tell the people of Emerton that night was to be in the nature of a bombshell explosion, something that would make the headline for tomorrow's Daily Ensign. With Lance Bradley closely guarding his secret, there was no sign that his Emerton nomination meeting would be any different to the nomination meetings of the past.

Prior to the opening speech of Mayor Crookes Lance had gone to Clerk Jenners, who was chairman, with the request that he ask the audience to remain in their seats after the speech making was done. He said he had something to tell them. A surprised and puzzled Jenners wondered what Bradley was up to.

Meanwhile out of that welter of words of mayor and council and those who had been nominated to oppose them, it was becoming evident that Mayor Crookes was to be opposed by two former mayors, Dr. Pennock, a dentist, and William Sarsfield, hotelkeeper; that in every ward the four councillors of the past year would have to fight to retain their seats. Lance Bradley would run for council in Ward No. 2, his running mate being John Stringbag, photographer.

But while it was definite that there would be a fight for the mayoralty and council seats, the first in many years, there was still some uncertainty about it. All candidates had until the following night at nine o'clock to qualify, and much could happen before then.

The last speech having been made, Lance Bradley left Dad Roberts in the front seat to mount the platform. The audience settled back expectantly, for there was no telling what this redheaded, stout man with the blue eyes was going to say or what he was going to do.

The Ensign publisher, speaking in a clear voice, made it known from the beginning that what he had to say, what he was about to demand, was not being done in any spirit of vindictiveness, to get back at anyone. As far as he was personally concerned, he had no axe to grind with any man. And yet there must come a time in a man's life when he must place public duty above self. And this was one such time, as he saw it. To condone a criminal act, to permit the guilty to escape just punishment was not in the public interests, no matter how dangerous it was or looked.

"Early last year," he began, "a young girl in this neighborhood claimed that she had been attacked at night on the road near her home by a young man of good standing in the community. And as proof that she had been attacked, she showed her torn clothing to her parents, a doctor and most respectable couple. A police officer was called in, the name of the suspected attacker was given to him and he went to the young man, accused him of assaulting the girl, and by threats and coercion, forced this protesting and quite innocent young man to pay him $200 to keep the matter out of the papers, and out of court. Now this officer had at first demanded $500, but when his victim showed fight, he settled for $200."

"But this young man was very wise for his years. To prevent this police officer from demanding more hush money from him from time to time, he demanded a receipt for the money paid, and a written assurance that the matter was now settled for all time to come. And he was given it by the officer. A few days later, the girl in question confessed to her parents that the story that she had told them had been a fabrication, that she had torn her own clothes, to give credence to her story. I may add, ladies and gentlemen, that that poor unfortunate girl has since been placed in an institution for the mentally ill.

"Now, then, ladies and gentlemen, I have given you this story without mentioning any names. You may have heard rumors about it at this time, you possibly heard nothing about it until now. But these are the facts that have come into my possession and without solicitation. These are the facts that I am prepared to prove. I feel that unless we deal with this matter as it should be dealt with in public meeting that we will be shielding the guilty and most assuredly we will not be doing right by the innocent victim. And so with this in mind, I publicly charge that Police Chief William Slender of Emerton is the officer who demanded and collected $200 hush money from Henry Weber, son of John Weber, and I further demand that the town council which is present will hold a special meeting here and now and dismiss William Slender as one police officer that this town can very well do without."

Lance Bradley's disclosure of Police Chief Slender's wrongdoing came with such startling suddenness, with such unexpectedness, that the crowd in the hall was struck dumb for the moment. Only reporter Bill Artist was not to be affected, for he turned to Terry Holland. "This is dynamite, Terry!" he exclaimed.

Now where in hell did he dig that up?"

Meanwhile there was a craning of necks as all eyes turned in the direction of Chief Slender, who stood in the crowd at the back of the hall. Those who were closest to him saw his face flush suddenly, saw his grim, the dangerous grin of a man who found that he had been caught with the goods on him, but who had decided to try to bluff it out to the bitter end.

"You're a liar, Bradley!" he roared, barging into the aisle, "You can't prove it!"

By now the men in the audience had found their tongues.

"Fire him! Fire him!" they shouted, and Black Webster, who had occasion to dislike Slender, was on his feet to yell, "Let me at him!"

"I can prove it," Lance said calmly, extracting a paper from an inside pocket, unfolding it, and holding it up. "This is your receipt on Town of Emerton stationery that you gave Henry Weber for the money he paid you, your assurance that you would never ask him for more—" He stopped. Then, "Want me to read it?"

"You do, Bradley," Slender warned, "and I'll —I'll tear you apart!" He sought to push forward, but he didn't get very far, for angry citizens left their seats to bar his way and pushed him back.

"Go ahead and read it, Brad!" some one shouted, and others took up the cry. "Yes, read it, Brad!"

So Lance read the paper, called John Weber and his son, Henry Weber, from their seats to say that it was the document that Chief Slender had drawn up, had signed and had handed them.

"It's a lie, a dirty lie, a frame-up!" Slender protested, as he made another rush forward only to be pushed back again.

"As one who has a heavy interest in this town and its citizens' welfare, I demand that council meet here at once and dismiss this man," Lance said. Mayor Crookes and Councillor Craik nodded in agreement, mounted the platform, soon to be followed by other members of council.

"I demand a fair hearing," Chief Slender said resignedly, as council settled around the table.

"You've had it, you rat!" someone shouted, and everybody laughed. Sergeant Broadfoot and Constable Ryan came down the aisle to protect their chief from a some one shouted, and others took crowd that would have manhandled him on the slightest pretext.

Council met then and there. Slender was discharged as police chief, in a matter of minutes and left the hall. Sergeant Broadfoot was appointed chief constable pro-tem, It was then that Reporter Bill Artist, a broad smile on his face, went to Lance Bradley to tell him that if he ever wanted a job on a newspaper to drop into the newsroom of The Ensign and ask for Managing Editor Gordon."

While Dad Roberts said "You did a very brave thing, son, but from now on, you better be on your guard. Even the devil has friends, y'know."

(To Be Continued.)

Our people at the Kingston plant enjoyed watching a couple of robins build a nest with shreds of aluminum foil. The robins seemed delighted to find their new building material so easy on the wings, so soft, so cozy. But . . . A wind arose. The nest was so light that it blew away. The robins rebuilt with the same material, but more firmly anchored.

While we have no ambition to supply the world's robins with nesting material, we are eager to provide aluminum for home-building humans — and for the thousand uses of the modern metal. Therefore, our huge expansion programme in Quebec and British Columbia. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).

Yank-Canuck Amateur Golfers Meet 'For Fun'

Bethlehem, Pa., Sept. 7 (AP)—The top amateur golfers from the United and Canada meet today in an informal team match styled after the U.S.-British Walker Cup competition.

It's strictly for fun—with no international trophy involved. But the Walker Cup system of scoring will be used. And the Canadians hope this informal match will be the start of real competition, annually, between the best golfers of the two countries.

The match today will serve as a preliminary to the 51st amateur championship of the United Golf Association which opens a week of play next Monday on the 1,200-yard Saucon Valley Country Club course here.

Each side will be represented by nine players. The schedule provides for four foursome matches in the morning and eight singles in the afternoon—all at 18 holes.

Sport in Brief

Jack (Zip) West, 40, accused as a "fixer" in college basketball scandal, gave himself up Thursday because "I'm tired of living like a hunted animal." He was held in $50,000 bail, charged with bribery and conspiracy. West pleaded innocent.

Television broadcasts of the World Series were assigned to NBC for the next four years.

NBC president Joseph H. McConnell said this year's telecasts of the baseball classic—first to go coast-to-coast—would be over a network covering areas with 85,000,000 of the country's population.

George Fulford of Brockville, has joined three other Canadian motorboat-racing drivers challenging for the Harwood Trophy race around Manhattan Island Sept. 9. Lou Kopel, president of the American Inboard Association, announced Thursday.

Fulford will race his 135-cubic inch hydroplane Simba. He will replace Jack Langmuir, also of Brockville, who is unable to make the trip to New York.

Fulford will travel to New York under the banner of the Canadian Boating Federation with Art Hatch of Hamilton, George Reynolds, of Brockville, and Bernard Daost of Lachine, Que.

Hockey players from all parts of Canada began to arrive at Guelph Thursday as preparations went ahead to open the New York Rangers' eastern training camp at Guelph Memorial Gardens.

Neil Colville, coach of the Rangers, said 65 players would attend the camp, scheduled to open in a week.

Detroit Red Wings, champions of the National Hockey League, opened their fall training camp at Pullar Stadium, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Thursday and manager Jack Adams said a "lot of spots" on the team were wide wide open.

Seventy-five hockey hopefuls took to the ice seeking berths with the Red Wings, with Indianapolis Capitols of the American Hockey League, with Edmonton Flyers of the Pacific Coast Hockey League and with Windsor Spitfires of the Ontario Hockey League Junior A circuit.

The possibility that major league club owners will select a man from baseball's ranks as commissioner was indicated Thursday by owner P. K. Wrigley of Chicago Cubs.

The successor to A.B. (Happy) Chandler, ousted as commissioner by club owners earlier this year, will be named at a meeting here Sept. 20.

Wrigley said in an interview he would back a baseball man as candidate for commissioner and that he believed other owners' sentiment generally was the same. A 12 to 4 majority is necessary to elect a commissioner.

Famous All-American athlete Jim Thorpe, whose gridiron and Olympic feats astounded the athletic world years ago, has been brought to the motion picture screen in a vivid presentation of the Indian star's athletic exploits and life at college. Thorpe is played by Burt Lancaster in the film "Jim Thorpe, All-American" which opens at the Capitol Theatre Monday for a three-day run.

Yardmen Bow To Yard Office

The Yard Office defeated the Yardmen in the fifth game of the CNR softball finals by a score of 6 to 4. The win gave the Yard Office a 3 to 2 edge in games in the best-of-seven series.

The winners led 4 to 0 at the top of the fifth inning only to have the Yardmen rally for 4 runs in their half of the fifth to tie the score. However, the office managed to pick up single runs in the 6th and 7th to take the game.

Graydon Rogers again handled the pitching assignment for the losing team with Junior Day pitching 6 innings for the winners and "Doll" Pointer hurling the last stanza.

The sixth game of this series is scheduled for tonight at the CNR sports field at 6:30 p.m.

Black Hawks Sign Jack Stewart

Jack Stewart, star defence player whose hockey career was believed ended last December when a disc was removed from his spine, Thursday signed a 1951 contract with Chicago Black Hawks.

Stewart, 34, a 12-year veteran of the National Hockey League, was reported in top shape by a Black Hawks' physician who termed his recovery "most remarkable."

Charlie Bright Tenth Jockey Off for Life

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) —Jockey Charlie Bright of Muncie, Ind., Thursday was ruled off Ontario racetracks for life for allegedly accepting bribes in connection with the fixing of races at Fort Erie, in July.

The Ontario Racing Commission, which issued the suspension, notified Bright that his case would be considered Thursday. However, Bright did not appear at the hearing.

Bright drew suspension last year for unsatisfactory riding during the Thorncliffe meet here. The suspension brought to 10 the number of riders ruled off for life since Ontario's race-fixing investigation started early last month.

The commission Thursday also revoked the licence of owner-trainer Murray Welseman, who has been active in claiming thoroughbreds during the season. It said Welseman was unable to satisfy the commission that thoroughbreds claimed by him and his stable were already owned by him.

Hockey Assoc. Re-elects Executive, Discusses Plans for Coming Season

The Belleville Hockey Association at its annual organization meeting last night re-elected the 1950-51 executive to another term of office.

Prexy Ken McNaught is back in the presidential chair with Fred Reid, vice-president and the perennial Dick Beare looking after the secretary-treasurer's job.

Also back in office are the board of directors which include, Pat president Jack Yanover, Bill Bell, Charles Cawker, Bill Cook, Murray Davis, Fred Elgie, Dr. George Faulkner, Don Hill, Albert Holway, Bob Latham, Tom Lewis, Orliff Lloyd, Jack McNab, Chief of Police Walter Probert, Fred Lawson, Al Reynolds, Malcolm Robb, Don Stanton, "Red" Townsend, Dr. Austin Walters, and John Fisher.

Additions to the board will be made in the near future it was decided.

Expand Minor Activities

What may seem like a "top-heavy" directorate is deemed necessary since the association intends expanding its minor hockey activities. This season it will administrate six midget, six bantam and four juvenile squads, and this necessitates at least three directors being assigned to each classification.

It was announced at the meeting that tickets for the Chicago Black Hawks inter-club game scheduled for Memorial Arena on October 4th will go on sale at Cook's Tobacco Shop on Monday, Sept. 17th. It was also pointed out that subscriber tickets and those arranged for by telephone will be held for a limited time only.

Hawks Here Oct. 5

The Hawks will arrive in the city from Galt on Wednesday preceding the game and remain in the city until Saturday morning. Hockey enthusiasts will get a first-hand view of the Hawks' 1951-52 roster with its added strength recently obtained from the Detroit Red Wings. Jack Stewart, well-known defenceman who was severely injured last year, has signed with the team and will be with them when they arrive here.

Ted DeGray, sterling Oshawa junior "B" player has been released by that team to the Belleville Hockey and will play here this season.

Ottawa Waives On Stan Heath

Calgary, Sept. 7 (CP)— President Tom Brook of the Calgary Stampeders announced Thursday night that Ottawa Rough Riders have waived all claims to Stan Heath, former Hamilton Tiger-Cat quarterback who will replace injured Keith Spaith of the Calgary Western Football Union club.

Brook said he talked by long-distance telephone Thursday night with Jim McCaffery of the Rough Riders and said McCaffery had "very graciously waived all claims Ottawa had on Heath."

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

IMPORTANT GAME!

Mucha, mucha depends on the outcome of the Kingston Disney Leafs-Batawa Shoemen Central Ontario Baseball League tilt being played in Kingston tonight. Not only does it affect the Redmen's chances of grabbing off fourth place and a playoff berth but also the second - spot perch in the loop.

A Kingston victory would not only give the Redmen the open sesame to the playoffs but vitally affect the second slot position. In other words a Kingston win would throw a second-shot at-once the Smiths Falls Royals defeated the Leafs 5-4 on Wednesday night to tighten the clinch around the place position.

If such is the case, and the Leafs and Royals are tied, the teams will replay a tied game at Smiths Falls on Saturday afternoon.

If Batawa defeats the Kingston team and draws on even terms with the Redmen for fourth position, the playoff berth will be decided by a playoff game between the two teams. That information comes from COBL officials.

Should Kingston finish in second place and the Royals wind up in the show-spot, the semi-finals series will be four-of-seven affair since it was decided that in the event Brockville meets Smiths Falls in the semis, and Kingston battle with either Belleville or Batawa, the series would be seven-game affairs.

Ie Kingston draws third place the initial playoffs series will be three-of-five affairs.

TO UNVEIL THE MASK!

The Masked Marvel and Fred Atkins, that rough and ready wrestling twosome which has caused so much disturbance here in the past, will be up against a pair of outstanding opponents in the ring at the Memorial Arena this evening, when the Masked Atkins team will meet the newly-formed team of Mike Sharpe and Timothy Geohagen, in the feature event. Another interesting aspect of the bout is that the Masked Marvel must un-mask in the ring after the bout, win, lose or draw.

When his brother, Ben Sharpe, was injured in last week's clash, Mike Sharpe looked about for a new team partner and found a willing and able member in Timothy Geohagen, the Irish Sleeper expert and Irish member of the mat. This looks like the most hazardous spot the Mask and Atkins due have stepped into to date.

In the semi-final, Pat Flanagan will tackle Tommy O'Toole. Lou Sjoberg, instead of Tom Collins, will oppose Dangerous Dan O'Connor in the first event.

A JOB WELL DONE!

While we were speaking with Ontario Amateur Softball Association secretary Frank Feaver, Hamilton, via long-distance telephone the other day, with regard to Jack Reid's perfect game, he digressed for a moment to pay tribute to softball in general in Belleville and to the Commercial League in particular and their sponsors in particular.

"The Commercial League is to be congratulated" he said, "on the fine job it has done in bringing softball back to the states it enjoyed in the past. Belleville league won intermediate championships and was a well-known name in softball circles over the province."

He paid particular tribute to Fire Chief Gerald Vance and his merry men for the outstanding job they have done this season in the promotion of minor softball. In fact Feaver was so impressed with it, that he has written a letter to President Don Lee expressing the association's appreciation of the fire laddies efforts.

The Booth Teevees, Eastern Ontario Pee Wee champions also came in for special mention by Feaver. He said that crests, some twenty all told would be forthcoming for presentation to the young champions. The honor is a double one inasmuch as the youngsters won the title in their first venture into organized softball, and playdowns under the aegis of the OASA. It is understood the crests will be presented to the champs in the near future at some special function.

JIM THORPE FILMED

Big Jim Thorpe, famous American all-round athlete who thrilled the world away back when, with his sensational exploits in football, and other sports not to mention the Olympics, has been filmed in a life story. The famous Indian, played by Burt Lancaster will be seen in all his athletic glory in the motion-picture "Jim Thorpe, All-American" opening at the Capitol Theatre on Monday for three days. It is a thrilling pictorial yarn of the college and athletic life of the dusky star, with sufficient romance injected to make it a must for film lovers. Football enthusiasts should not miss the spine-tingling sequences that show the star at the height of his gridiron glory.

Cricket Captain Goes on Air

Toronto, Sept. 7—M. W. V. Robbins, captain of the touring Marylebone Cricket Club will be interviewed on Sports College, Saturday, Sept. 8, (CBL, 12.15 EDT).

Robbins, an all-round athlete who has captained England at times will discuss the fundamentals of athletic success in any sport. A first class soccer player as well as one of the world's greatest cricketers (he has played against Australia 18 times), Robbins has had ample opportunity to analyze the make-up of great athletes.

The Marylebone Cricket Club, which includes some of the finest county cricketers in England, is playing three "test" matches in Canada. They have been defeated twice in exhibition games.

Robbins will be heard coast-to-coast via the CBC Trans-Canada network, which carries the weekly radio session of the nationwide sports research and instruction service. Sports College also distributes training literature and operates clinics through the mail.

Weatherman Favors Indians, Rain Halts Pennant Battles, Tightens Yank-Sox Schedule

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The weatherman seems to have ranged himself alongside the front-running Cleveland Indians in their three-team fight for the American League pennant.

Rain, washing out yesterday's doubleheader between New York and Boston, forcing re-scheduling of the Yankee-Red Sox games for the final vital days of the flag race and placed a heavy burden on New York and Boston.

Scheduled games between the Dodgers and Phillies, Giants and Braves, and Senators and Athletics also were rained out. The Indians and St. Louis Browns had an off day.

The Yankee-Red Sox games had to be jitter into the schedule as parts of doubleheaders Sept. 28 and Sept. 29. The season ends with a single game Sept. 30. No other dates were available.

This means the Yankees and Red Sox will play five times in the last three days. Meantime, the tribe figures to have a busy time.

Whereas Boston must cram 11 games into the final 10 days, and New York nine, Cleveland plays only six.

May Force Playoff

The scheduling of those doubleheaders so late in the season may force an unprecedented playoff of rained-out games. Under a new rule governing the majors last winter, two days are set aside after the regular season to play games that have a direct bearing on the pennant race.

Should rain prevent any of the games over the final-weekend, they will be played Oct. 1 or Oct. 2.

The washout left the teams as they were. Cleveland has a one-game advantage over the Yankees and lead Boston by four lengths.

Brooklyn still leads the Giants by 5½ games.

In the only games played yesterday St. Louis Cardinals trounced Chicago Cubs 10-2, Pittsburgh Pirates defeated Cincinnati 7-4 and Chicago White Sox humbled St. Louis Browns 9-4.

Home runs by Stan Musial, his 32nd, Billy Cox, Ralph Kiner and Red Schoendienst paced the Cards to victory over Chicago.

The White Sox batted out 17 hits with pitcher Randy Gumpert leading the way with four singles.

World Series Opening Date Hinges on Tribe

New York, Sept. 7 (AP) — Starting dates for the World Series will open on Wednesday, Oct. 3, unless Cleveland wins the American League pennant, in which case it will start Thursday, Oct. 4, in Cleveland.

Representatives of the pennant contenders decided Thursday in a three-hour meeting to keep the same ticket scale as last year and eliminated any open days for travel.

Attending the meeting were Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants of the National League, and Cleveland Indians, New York Yankees and St. Louis Red Sox of the American League.

Tickets will cost $8 for box seats, $6 for reserved seats, $4 for standing room and $1 for bleacher seats.

The series opens this year in the American League park where the first two games will be played, followed by three games in the National League park, and then two in the American—assuming, of course, more than four games are needed to the best four-of-seven competition.

The baseball owners requested that fans do not send in money for tickets until the clubs announce themselves as ready to take applications.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON

Grossinger, N.Y., Sept. 7—(AP) —If there's any truth in the popular rumor that Randy Turpin has been sneaking in secret workouts on his "off" days, he should be the best-prepared boxer who ever fought for the middleweight title.

Randy denies the yarn but some folks who have found it hard to penetrate the protective barrier Turpin's manager has set up on his rest days figure he must be getting in a few licks. Maybe that's because some of his public workouts for his Sept. 19 title fight with Sugar Ray Robinson have looked more like playful sparring sessions.

At least it isn't like the "secret" drills that Tex Rickard once ordered for Georges Carpentier—of the fans would know that the Frenchman would be an easy victim of Jack Dempsey. So far Turpin has boxed 42 rounds in public in the two weeks he has been here. He had an 11-round session Wednesday and promises to make it 15 either today or Sunday.

After that, he says, "I'll just spar around a little with the boys to stay loosened up."

No Fight Plans

Turpin and his board of strategy also insist they haven't a plan for fighting Robinson. He's just training for another fight, in spite of the awesome reputation Sugar Ray carried before Randy jarred it loose in July in London.

Turpin does things that look as if they'd get him into trouble. Such as backing into the ropes and then shaking out with a right-hand lead when a cautious boxer would be covering up.

But Jackie Keough, who fought Turpin in England and who is sparring with him here, exclaims: "He didn't seem to do too well when I had him backing up—but he just hit me once and he didn't move my legs, Randy really can punch."

Bisons Bow 4-3, Chiefs Nip Wings, Leafs are Idle

(By The Associated Press)

Tom Simpson, young right-hander of Buffalo Bisons, hasn't enjoyed much success since he pitched a no-hit no-run game against Toronto Maple Leafs in July.

Since his no-hitter Simpson has won only two games while dropping five. The former relief specialist suffered his fifth setback in his last six decisions last night as the Bisons bowed 4-3 to Springfield-Cubs.

Jack Wallaesa was the chief thorn in Simpson's side. Wallaesa drove in three runs on three hits including a double and home run. Wallaesa cracked his homer in the sixth inning to break a 2-2 tie. Bill Padgett scattered nine hits to post his 16th victory.

Syracuse Chiefs turned back Baltimore Orioles 5-2, behind the five-hit pitching of Art Hartley in the only other game.

The Chiefs pounced on lefty Jack Schmidt for three runs in the first inning and coasted to victory. Bill Baker homered for the Chiefs in the third inning and Mike Collat banged one for Baltimore in the fourth.

Rochester washed out games between Montreal and Ottawa and Rochester and Toronto.

London Majors Oust Brantford In Intercounty

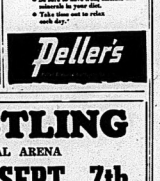
(By The Canadian Press)

London Majors won the senior playoffs in the Intercounty Baseball League last night as they defeated Brantford Red Sox twice in the seventh and final game of their series.

The Majors had to swamp a dramatic last-minute Brantford rally to do it. With the score standing 6-4, the Majors' Bill Slack, pitching his second game of the night, walked off the mound in the last half of the ninth inning with two men on the bases.

His brother Stan took up the pitching chore and Alf Gavey singled to send home Tom McGrattan for a Brantford marker. The score was 7-6 as the man was out and the bases were loaded.

Then Stan Slack fanned Brantford's Johnny Lockington. Johnny Richardson popped out and the Majors were winners of the intercounty baseball championship.



Kirkland Lake Greyhounds and Porcupine Combines battled to a 3-3 draw in the second game of the Timiskaming Senior Baseball League final last night. Greyhounds won the opener and thus hold a one-game lead in the best-of-seven set.

Indians Big-Four Pitching Staff Carried Load When Batting Bogged

By JOE REICHLER

Cleveland, Sept. 7 — (AP) — General manager Hank Greenberg becomes oddly annoyed when anyone says sensational pitching is the main reason for the success of his Cleveland Indians in the American League race.

"Our present pitching staff doesn't compare with the one we had in 1948," he says. "That staff had an unearned-run percentage of 3.23 . . . We're not anywhere near that figure this year."

Perhaps the '48 was better, but we'll stick with the 1951 quartet of Bob Feller, Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Mike Garcia. Then there is relief-artist Lou Brissie and fifth-starter Steve Gromek.

There's no doubt that the-big four have been carrying the load, especially with the offence bogged down in the past couple of weeks. In one week, the Indians were held to eight runs in seven games but won three of them, by scores of 2-0, 2-0, and 1-0. "Carried Us All Year"

"The pitching has carried us all year," said manager Al Lopez. "I know we were going to get good pitching when I took over, but I never expected it to be so good. If we had been getting the hitting I figured we would, we'd be six of seven games in front by now."

Feller already has notched 21 games to become the biggest winner in the major. Garcia has 18, and Lemon and Wynn 16. To date, they have hurled 61 complete games, toppling by far any staff in the majors.

Feller, 32, has been consistently good all season. Veteran observers agree he has made the complete transition from a thrower to a pitcher—from "Rapid Robert" to "Brainy Bob."

It would appear that such a staff would need a relief pitcher like a one-legged man needs two shoes. But they do falter at times. That's where Brissie has proven his worth.

"Said Lopez: "Lou has saved at least a dozen games for us. He's already appeared in more than 40 games and has never given a poor performance."

Softball League Playoff Dates Are Announced

Fity the statisticians who have been trying to produce order from the chaos of the Commercial softball League playoffs.

Ramsey Paints' 8-7 victory over Howe and Hagerman Wednesday evening left the Plumbers and Glen Roy tied for first place in the round-robin semi-final series for the city league title with identical 3-2 records. They will play off Friday evening in the final game of the round-robin and no matter who wins, the loser is bound to end up in the four second place with the Point Anne Cementmen who have a 3-3 record.

To break the deadlock the Commercial League executive has ordered the loser of Friday's game to play a sudden death contest with the Ramsey Paints Monday evening at the Alemite Field with the team captains tossing a coin to choose the home side.

Kingston Here Tomorrow

Meanwhile Saturday evening at 8.00 p.m. under the lights at the Cleaner Combines will meet Kingston Alcans in the second game of their best-of-three OASA intermediate AA playoffs.

Then on Tuesday evening September 11, Stewart Warner and Belleville Motor Car will clash in the first game of their best-in-three series for the right to meet Cleaners for the city league AA crown.

Wednesday evening the two top teams in the A branch will meet in the first game of their best-in-three series for the Bill Orr trophy. Thursday evening Alemite are at home to Belleville Motor Car and Friday the teams meet in their second game.

If a third game is needed to decide the Motor Car-Alemite series it will be played Saturday night.

All games next week will be played at 7.00 p.m.

Wings Get Sixth Hawk Player

Detroit, Sept. 7.—(CP)—Detroit Red Wings have obtained Blackhawks' defenceman Hugh Coffin of Blaine Lake, Sask., as final payment of the largest player and cash transaction in National Hockey League history.

The deal, in which Blackhawks bought six Red Wingers for $75,000 and one player was announced Aug. 20.

Coffin was named today as the Hawk player in the deal.

Red Wings' officials termed him a "good N. L. prospect" and said he would be farmed out this year to their Indianapolis team to get more experience.

Coffin spent some time with the Blackhawks in the N.H.L. last season and also with Chicago's Milwaukee Sea Gul.. farm club.

Other players named earlier in the deal were forwards Jim Peters of Verdun, Que., Jim McFadden; George Gee of Stratford, Ont., Max McNab of Waldeck, Sask.; and defencemen Clare Martin of Waterloo, Ont., and Clarence Raglan of Pembroke, Ont.

The transaction was suggested by manager Ebbie Goodfellow of the Hawks to Red Wing president William J. Tobin in order to remedy defects in defence. Last season the Blackhawks had one of the weakest defences in the league.

Mystery Teepee Near Canoe Will be Checked

Kapuskasing, Ont., Sept. 7 — (CP) — A mystery teepee near a canoe and a gasoline cache on a lonely northern lake is to be checked by the R.C.A.F. in the hunt for hockey players Bill Barilko and Timmins, Ont., dentist, Dr. Henry Hudson, missing on an aerial fishing trip to James Bay since Aug. 26.

With skies due to clear — foul weather yesterday grounded searchers based at this outpost 80 miles northwest of Timmins — plans called today for landing a float-equipped Norseman plane on Little Opinaka Lake, near the James Bay mission of Ruperts House, to enable men to go ashore to study the gas cache, the teepee and the canoe.

The crew of a searching Lancaster spotted the gas cache, encased on a stand and covered with canvas, several days ago. The canoe and teepee were 15 miles along the lake. Another plane flew over them since then, but search officials said they would not be satisfied until they could investigate on the ground.

A camera-equipped plane is continuing great sweeps over the area in which the Toronto Maple Leafs' defence man and his companion vanished with their yellow seaplane on a 240-mile flight from Rupert's House. A helicopter due to join the hunt yesterday, was held up by the bad weather.

Meanwhile in Toronto, Leaf goalie Turk Broda announced that his offer to pit his National Hockey League All-Star softball team against any other team for cash money to help the search had brought results. He said at least two games will be played in Toronto next week. Such former hockey figures as Charlie Conacher and Busher Jackson will see diamond action.

Powerful Ti-Cats Guests of Argos, Ottawa, Alouettes Clash in Pair

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Rough Riders, who made a thin showing last weekend against Toronto Argos, will have a chance to add feathers to their caps this weekend.

They are set for two contests with powerful Montreal Alouettes, in Ottawa Saturday and in Montreal Sunday. The "genuit Alouettes" are considered a slick lot this year—even if they did take a 37-6 clawing from Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the opening game of the Big Four football contests.

Wes Brown, secretary-treasurer of the Ottawa club, said last night that his club had picked up waivers on the Tiger-Cats' Stan Welkowski, released this week by Hamilton.

For a few hours, the Riders also had another quarterback.

They picked up Stan Heath from the Tiger-Cats, also on waivers, but renounced their claim when they discovered Hamilton coach Carl Voyles had inadvertently promised him to Calgary Stampeders first.

Replaces Spaith

Heath, recovering from a preseason injury, will fill in for injured Keith Spaith with the Stamps. The bullet-passing youngster from Toledo, O., pitched Hamilton into first place in the Big Four last season.

In Wolkowski, the Riders got Heath's understudy last season and a handyman who can fill in at other backfield posts and in an end spot.

In the other eastern game, Toronto Argonauts will have another go at the Cats—this time on the Argos' home field, last weekend in Hamilton they took a 27-6 beating from the felines, now in first place in the Big Four standing.

All three major western teams are set to play two games from Saturday to Monday. Saskatchewan Roughriders will play—the Stampeders at Calgary Saturday and Winnipeg Blue Bombers will play Edmonton Eskimos at Edmonton.

On Monday night the Blue Bombers will play the Stampeders at Calgary and the Roughriders face the Eskimos at Edmonton. The Eskimos and the Blue Bombers showed up well last weekend. The Edmonton squad knocked down the Stampeders in two games and the Bombers edged the Roughriders.

In the Ontario Rugby Football Union, the highly-rated Sarnia Imperials will take on Windsor Royals Saturday at Windsor. The Royals lost last Saturday to Toronto Balmy Beaches and the Beaches lost Monday to the Imperials.

Cleaners-Alcans Series Winner Meets Toronto

If the Cleaners Combines dispose of the Kingston Alcans in the second game of their Intermediate AA OASA playdowns tomorrow night, they will enter the quarter-finals series against Toronto with the first game slated at Toronto, Sept. 19th and the second here Sept. 21st.

If Cleaners get by Toronto they will meet either Brantford, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Stratford or Windsor in the semi-finals.

Winners of this series will meet the Northern Ontario finalists for the provincial championship.

In any event if Cleaners get by Kingston they will be the Eastern Ontario AA Champions.

Tom Gard's Note Book

It is good to see how our recreational facilities are being steadily improved, and how so many recreational directors are being trained to take their places in our communities.
I have made it a practice to dabble in several hobbies, and one of which can be carried over to my retirement years. You will see illustrated one of my articles that can be easily made. The chief reason I like this particular pastime is the number of excursions that must be planned to the country and to the woods in search of native material to decorate the plaques. Wood and flowers such as moss, cone scales, lilac husks and nut burs are only a few of the items collected.
Interesting and decorative arrangements can be mounted on driftwood, wood-wood, sand blasted or etched plywood, similar to the one shown.
Gift Boxes
Have you ever wished for suitable gift boxes that are solid enough to withstand the onslaught of express carriers? Try using the versatile butter box. By cutting a section out of the middle, the box can be made any depth. By adding a plywood top and bottom, even the centre part can be used in a similar fashion.
Open Shelves and Tables
Always salvage waste plywood or packing box lumber for use in making shelves and tables. Knick-knack shelves can be easily made from the thin pieces in which prefabricated windows and doors are shipped. Book shelves will require heavier boards. Attractive tables can often be built from scrap plywood that might otherwise be thrown out. It will take some scurrying around to find the right source for material of this nature, but odds located and safely stored in your basement, it will be worth the effort.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 7 (AP) — King Vidor, one of Hollywood's most-noted directors, climbed out on a limb today to pick the 10 best love scenes in the movies.

Vidor could see no reason to remain modest and he picked two of the his own scenes as the first examples. Here is his list:

1. The farewell between John Gilbert and Renee Adoree in "The Big Parade" (1925). Gilbert leaving for the front in an endless parade of trucks, tossed his shoe to the adoring Adoree, who clutched it lovingly.

2. A boat scene between John Gilbert and Eleanor Boardman in "Bardeley's the Magnificent" (1926). The lovers kissed as willow branches swept over their faces.

3. The love scene in a garret between Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell in "Seventh Heaven" (1927).

4. The couch match of Greta Garbo and John Gilbert in "Flesh and Devil" (1927).

5. The motel sequence with Claudette Colbert and Clark Gable in "It Happened One Night" (1934). They were separated by a hanging blanket ("The Walls of Jericho").

6. The tender Vienna dancing scene between Robert Donat and Greer Garson in "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" (1939).

7. The sidewalk love scene between Jean Arthur and Joel McCrea in "More the Merrier" (1943).

8. The railroad station conversations of Celia Johnson and Trevor Howard in "Brief Encounter" (1946). Vidor: "It was so intimate I found myself wondering how a camera and microphone happened to be there."

9. Frederic March's return from the war to his wife, Myrna Loy, in "Best Years of Our Lives" (1946).

10. The "To Have and Have Not" (1946) scene in which Lauren Bacall said to Humphrey Bogart, "If you want anything, just whistle."

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, September 8

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Favorable aspects for worthwhile endeavors; disappointment for trouble-makers. Can be really getting day if you are alert to opportunities. Keep your disposition a welcome one.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Mildly agreeable influences. Make good openings count, have willingness to do a little extra work for gains you anticipate. Feel confident, act like you'll achieve and you will.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Morning hours may be more generous than those later in day; push right activities, get early start, but don't force unreasonably. Heart interests should culminate happily.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Bordering on the unusual in places. Sane expectations can be realized by devoting yourself intelligently to every hour. Healthy possibilities in most worthy tries. Romance favored.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Hardly the time to take foolish chances in business, finances, anything worth doing. Seek to know facts around you, especially all aspects of your work, personal investments.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)— Day may tax patience, irritate, but don't be drawn into unpleasant conditions. This letdown could be beneficial if you take it in stride, philosophically. September 24 to October 23—(Libra)— By affiliating yourself with sound well-thought-out ideas you can, despite dull outlook, come through with gains. Plan strategy with intelligence, never haphazardly. Be wide awake.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—May need some assistance, don't fail to ask for it, but in right places, it is easier than you think to be on your way to success. Anything worthwhile is hard to get without work.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Irritating vibrations may try to throw you off stride. Though some unsuspicious conditions prevail you could bridge these by smart thinking and decisions. Don't ever quit.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Use your initiative well directed from early hours. Fairly attractive possibilities. Much to achieve if you go after matters promptly. Watch competitors, don't relax.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Not particularly propitious for financial undertakings; could be good period for revamping old ideas, increasing present holdings, business. Don't expect miracles today; be patient.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Full and plenty credits by nightfall if you but keep your head and be your natural industrious self. Protect private affairs, have tact, patience. Don't have anxiety either.

YOU BORN TODAY are characterized by steadfastness of purpose, tenacity, will power. Your mind usually rules your heart. Excellent reasoning faculties. Can withstand outside prodding without giving in, as you keen-minded folks are seldom fooled by false forces, propaganda. Likely, however, to be too critical, and worry over things that have not materialized. Modify these traits early in life and you can attain great heights, have fine friends and a happy life.

Hurricane 'Easy' Now Aiming At Coast of Florida

Miami, Fla., Sept. 7—(AP) — Hurricane "Easy" continued today to churn ominously in the west northwest course aimed at the coast of Florida.

The next 24 hours, the Miami weather bureau said, may determine whether the dangerous tropical storm, eventually will strike the mainland or run a harmless course over open waters.

At 6 a.m., EDT, the centre of the hurricane was estimated to be 350 miles north northwest of San Juan, Puerto Rico, roughly 1,000 miles east-northeast of Miami. Winds in excess of 140 miles an hour whirled around the centre. Its forward speed had slowed from 20 to 12 miles an hour.

As "Easy"—fifth hurricane of the season—continued its menacing approach, tropical storm tallied it 1,000 miles to the east.

The weather bureau at San Juan, Puerto Rico, reported at midnight that hurricane "Fox" was centred about 875 miles east-northeast of Antigua in the British West Indies and 1,200 miles from Florida. It was travelling west-northwest at 18 to 20 miles an hour.

Labor Congresses To Debate Wages And Living Costs

Toronto, Sept. 7 — (CP) The Canadian Congress of Labor Thursday night launched an Ontario - wide campaign to win support for the C. C. F. in the next provincial general election.

Officials of unions affiliated with the C. C. L. in the Toronto area met to hear Pat Conroy, C. L. C. secretary - treasurer, discuss the drive's objectives. Similar meetings are planned for other principal Ontario centres.

In addition, a four-page tabloid dealing with election issues is to be distributed to union members at plants. Every worker will be asked to contribute $1 to the campaign fund.

Mr. Conroy said labor faces a crisis war forged upon the workers by the employing classes.

"Those who make class war reward their friends," he said. "It's time we paid attention to ourselves."

Essex Farmers Suffer Crop Damage by Hail

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 7 (CP)—Thousands of dollars crop damage was caused last night as a fierce hail storm lashed central and eastern Essex County.

Essex farmers said tobacco crops were hardest hit as heavy hail storms pummelled the ripening leaves to the ground.

Tomato crops also sustained heavy damage.

Growers said, however, that corn stalks were sufficiently matured to withstand the hail storm.

The area apparently receiving the heaviest damage lies between the Maidstone town line and Highways No. 2 and 3. Farmers said the storm lasted only three minutes but took a terrific toll.

Farmers along R.R. 3, Maidstone, reported some $1,000 each.

DEER STALKERS

An average of 30,000 deer are killed by hunters in Nova Scotia each year.

Speaker Explains Why so Many Girls Unhappy

Detroit, Sept. 7—(AP)— Many marriages are unhappy today, says a psychiatrist, because young people have never been told what they're getting into.

Dr. Aloysius S. Church explained it this way before the annual convention of Catholic charities last night:

"Women have been taught all their lives to think they'll marry a handsome man who will have a steady job and will be able to purchase a home for cash and buy a beautiful car and take an annual vacation with three healthy children.

"Actually, the men that many of them marry will be unable to hold a steady job. He'll be bald, have false teeth and maybe be an alcoholic. Their children may well be unattractive and have all sorts of illnesses.

"On the other hand, men anticipate a passionate woman and a meek wife. Actually, half the women who marry are frigid and most of them certainly are not meek.

"A husband learns to expect a good housekeeper, a woman who will attend to his every need and have his pipe and slippers in place each evening. But his wife—nine times out of 10—just won't be that."

Dr. Church blamed parents and educators, as well as movies and popular novels and magazines, for what he called the "false patterns of thinking."

East German Police Shoot U.S. Soldier

Berlin, Sept. 7—(Reuters)—East German police last night shot a United States soldier in the hip and carried him off into the Soviet zone, an American official said today.

U.S. authorities asked Soviet officials for details of the incident, which occurred on the boundary between west Berlin and the Soviet zone.

Eye-witnesses said east German police fired into a car and wounded the driver, an American enlisted man.

U.S. officials believe the missing soldier lost his way in the dark while travelling from Tempelhof airport, in the American sector, to barracks at Lichterfelde South.

Hatches Battened Down on Man Who Took Ferry

New York, Sept. 7—(AP)—The hatches were battened down today on 36-year-old Woodrow Facchinetti, who soloed around New York harbor in the 40-foot ferry, The Sea Eagle.

But, as he put it, "it was such a nice day for a ride."

Facchinetti boarded the ferry yesterday at Carteret, N.J., from where the craft makes its regular runs to Staten Island, his home.

The crew was out for lunch, and Facchinetti was out of patience. So off he went, alone. An alarm soon was sounded.

Helicopters and police launches raced to the scene.

Smoke was pouring from the craft's cabin — no fire from an overheated exhaust.

A police boarding party put out the flames and demanded an explanation from Facchinetti.

"Now let's not lose our tempers," he said, "I am a tax-payer and I want no trouble. I am just anxious to get home but it seems this tub ain't functional."

Facchinetti was booked on charges of grand larceny and transporting a stolen ship.

YOUNG GIRL JUMPS IN FRONT OF TRUCK TO RESCUE CHILD

Pauline Bourdeau, 12, of Ville St. Pierre, Que., risks her life to save cousin from path of truck

1. Pauline Bourdeau was walking towards First Avenue in her home town of Ville St. Pierre, a few miles from Montreal, totally unaware that she was about to star in a real-life drama. For suddenly a terrifying sight met her eyes. Out in the middle of the street she saw her 3-year-old cousin Ghislaine Bourdeau . . . and behind her, only a few feet away, was a truck! Apparently neither the child nor the truck driver noticed the danger.

2. Many a burly adult would have been rooted to the spot in horror. But not Pauline Bourdeau. The 12-year-old girl acted with amazing presence of mind. In what several witnesses described as practically split second she had dashed out in the street . . . and, throwing herself in front of the truck, grabbed her little cousin Ghislaine and pulled her safely to the sidewalk.

3. Although she had acted with almost unbelievable coolness and speed, the young Academie Marie schoolgirl was so shaken by the incident that it took her several days to recover from the shock. But instead of great courage was proved to add the name of Pauline Bourdeau, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Bourdeau, 102 - 1st Ave., to the list of those who have won The Dow Award.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

God Goes to Church Also

By ROY L. SMITH

There is nothing, perhaps as disgraceful as a church quarrel. It is something like disloyalty between husband and wife, treason inside a government, or cowardice on the part of a soldier in the uniform of his country.

The fundamental objective of every church that is really Christian is the establishment on earth of a fellowship among believers which will assist in the production of godly character. To become involved in a quarrel with a comrade in the cause is to destroy that fellowship.

Trouble in Philippi

They were having trouble in the little Christian church in Philippi, one of the small cells of converts which had sprung up as a result of the preaching of Paul, the Apostle. Two women, both of them quite evidently influential leaders, had quarreled and the tiny congregation was lining up in two parties behind them.

Without a doubt each of them declared that she was "only fighting for a principle," but the fight was splitting the church and Paul —awaiting his own execution in Rome—was desperately concerned.

Another Crucifixion

To the aged Apostle the Philippian quarrel was like another crucifixion of Christ. It was destroying the work which had been accomplished at the cost of a cross. It was wrecking the hope of redeeming the world. The Son of God might die for men, but they could waste that divine sacrifice by the simple act of contending selfishly and blindly for their personal rights. It was all so tragic and unnecessary.

Behind His Back

While Paul was in Philippi all went well. The contenders were on their good behaviour. But let him get ten miles out of town on an evangelistic tour and they were at one another's throats again, as if God Himself had gone on with Paul and left them to their wicked tempers.

It is a lesson which all church men might well ponder with conscientious care. God goes to church too. He attends the board meetings and hears the discussions of the business affairs of the church. He probably has His own opinion about the committee that recommends a raise for the preacher and a cut for the janitor. He must surely know how easily the people could meet their obligations if they were really in earnest. And in the morning worship service God must surely know just how much it is sincere, and how much of it is repeated smugly because it is a part of the form.

He Must Wonder

If anyone has any imagination at all, it is easy to speculate on the wondering that goes on in God's mind on Sunday morning, when He sees empty pews.

Some of them must make Him very sad, for they belong to those who are so badly in need of the inspiration and guidance which the service is providing.

In other cases they are empty because no one invited the needy to come to the house of God for help.

He must wonder about some of those who made such glib promises only a few days ago when they were in trouble and needed the help of God.

And no doubt He wonders just a little when He sees a hard pressed widow putting a dollar in the collection, and a prosperous business man dropping in a fifty cent piece. God does see the collection, you know.

And perhaps He wonders just a little why more children are not seated with their parents, and more husbands seated with their wives. Surely there isn't any more important business for a big man than spending an hour meeting the Creator of the universe.

Russians Rig Vacations For Nagging Wives

Moscow, Sept. 7—(AP)— Two Russian husbands rigged vacations for their nagging wives by dipping into state funds, the newspaper Trud reported today.

Ivan Jurovich Terpilista, deputy chief of the construction committee of a factory in Mariupol, Ukraine, forged a document so that his wife, Tatyana, got a free vacation in the south.

The second culprit, comrade Kropinov, a chief of construction in the same organization, went one better. He classified his spouse—who is actually a housewife—as a stakhanovite for vacation purposes. Stakhanovites are pace-setting workers who get outstanding recognition upon they speed up production.

Trud said the two erring husbands "in reality their girl friends." The newspaper made this laconic comment: "It is well known that this leads to nothing good."

Hong Kong Wants No Part of Any War Truce Talks

Hong Kong, Sept. 7—(AP) — British Hong Kong wants no part of any Korean war truce talks—for fear of being turned into an international shooting gallery.

Hong Kong was mentioned after Gen. Matthew B. Ridway proposed to the reds that the disrupted talks be resumed at a new location.

No one here takes seriously the speculation as to Hong Kong. But colony officials blanched at mere mention of such a possibility.

Hong Kong doesn't want anything to happen that might aggravate its already-touchy relations with the Chinese communists.

"If General Ridgway thinks there have been too many 'violations' in Kaesong," a high police official asked, "what in blazes does he expect to find in Hong Kong?

"Bring the communists here and Hong Kong will become a wide-open shooting gallery."

Choice Blooms From England Flown to Canada

London, Sept. 7—(CP)—Choice blooms from English nurseries will be flown to London, Ont., tonight to bring a touch of home-away-from-home to Sir Denys Lowson and Lady Lowson.

The Lord Mayor of London, England, and his wife, now on a visit to Canada, will see the flowers when they open the western fair in the Ontario city on Monday.

The 150 freshly-cut blooms — roses, carnations, dahlias, chrysanthemums and gladioli — were contributed by amateur growers in the London area as a token of friendship from one London to another. Last July the Canadian city sent flowers to a show sponsored by a British newspaper (Evening News).

Supervisor Says Reports Untrue

Toronto, Sept. 7 (CP) —Charles Jennings, general supervisor of programs for the CBC, Thursday termed "completely untrue" reports that a "first-class row" had broken out between his organization and the British Broadcasting Corporation over radio coverage of the Royal tour in October.

Earlier Thursday, reports published in Toronto said two radio systems were at loggerheads because of the BBC's decision to send Godfrey Talbot, its court reporter, to cover the Royal tour for British listeners. The CBC was said to have taken offence at the decision.

Mr. Jennings said the BBC had planned to send observers to Canada since the first announcement of the Royal visit— "just as it did for the Royal tour of 1939." They would look after the special requirements of BBC home and overseas programs.

Higher Price Tags for Cars Being Figured

Detroit, Sept. 8—(AP)—Higher price tags for most lines of new passenger cars in the United States were being figured out today.

Some boosts, expected to run from about $85 on the lowest-priced cars to much as $200 on higher-priced models, probably will be effective by the end of next week.

Authorization to make the increase under a complicated formula that would raise prices an estimated five to six per cent was given the industry yesterday by the office of price stabilization.

By the time retail dealers are allowed to apply their profit margins, ranging from 15 to 30 per cent, it is estimated that the total boost could go as high as eight per cent over current list prices.

Further price increases also are possible, the OPS director indicated.

The announcement brought immediate indication that the "Big Three" of General Motors, Ford and Chrysler would take the increase effective as quickly as possible.

President C. E. Wilson of General Motors said the full amount of the increase would be passed on to retail buyers. Chrysler said the order "does not give the relief that is needed." Ford withheld immediate comment.

In an earlier statement, however, Ford vice-president Ernest R. Breech implied that a price increase would be made effective as soon as possible.

So far, only Packard has said definitely that it will not increase prices. Some other automakers, the independents, or smaller companies, also are expected to withhold immediate price advances.

The increase was the second granted the industry since the Korean War began. Car prices were frozen last Dec. 1, but on March 1, OPS allowed a 3½ per cent increase over the freeze prices.

Father Kills Baby Daughter With Hatchet

Yakima, Wash., Sept. 8 (CP) —A jobless 39-year-old father killed his baby daughter with a hatchet yesterday because, he told police "I suddenly got the notion. God was telling me to bump her off."

Nick Zenner, being held without charge, told prosecutor Ronald Hull he was alone in the flood Beach, who was caring for the baby, 10-month-old Carol Lee, and her sister, Linda, 2, said took Carol Lee back to his home.

Later Mrs. Ibach found the child dead of hatchet blows on the head.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 8—(CP)—Clear skies with light winds combined to drop minimum temperatures to to low 40's over the Ontario and Quebec regions Friday night. In some areas along the eastern shores of Lake Erie and in the Niagara Peninsula temperatures at ground level hovered around the freezing point or slightly below. At Delhi, in the centre of the tobacco belt, a ground temperature of 28 was reported.

This morning's weather map indicates gradual warming throughout most of Ontario, as warmer air begins moving in over the province from the west. This warmer air, moving over northern Ontario last night, kept overnight minimum temperatures above freezing.

With mainly sunny skies predicted for the weekend temperatures will rise to near the 80's here mark today and range between 70 and 75 Sunday.

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

San Francisco, Sept. 8 (AP) — Every nation at the San Francisco conference—except the three communist-bitter-enders — lined up early today to sign the Japanese peace treaty.

Not one was held back from the signing ceremony—scheduled to start at 10 a.m. (1 p.m. EDT) —by Soviet delegate Andrei Gromyko's thunderings that it is a pact for a rebirth of Japanese militarism and a "new war" in the Orient.

Gromyko himself went down to defeat in a free-for-all conference debate last night, shouting the diplomatic version of "we refuse to play" as the Soviet converses here on American "pressure" on other delegations.

Then later he knew he rose from his seat and with his communist colleagues walked out of the hall. But it was a false walkout in the sense of a Russian withdrawal from the conference.

Three minutes later the usually grim-faced Russian, grinning broadly, came back, and what he had caused, walked back in again.

The Russian, Polish and Czech delegates generally were expected to boycott the signing ceremony today. Gromyko, however, had called a 9 a.m. (noon EDT) meeting of delegates to discuss plais his position and take a few last cracks at the United States and Britain and the treaty they so successfully sponsored here.

Morrison Is Absent

British officials said that Foreign Minister Herbert Morrison, who arrived last night, might speak briefly when he signs the treaty. No other talks were due, however.

It was believed that the day would also bring the signing of a security treaty between the United States and Japan under which American troops will remain in Japan after peace becomes effective.

Forty-nine nations, including Japan, gave notice by last night that they would sign the peace pact. Of the 52 here, that left out only Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Canada endorsed the treaty yesterday through Secretary of State affairs minister, L. B. Pearson. He said that the treaty is both "generous" and "realistic."

In a five-minute speech Pearson dismissed Gromyko's criticism as propaganda "which convinces no one except those whose convictions are predisfigured."

Hectic Night Session

Gromyko's final reversal in debate came during a hectic night session in which he was hopelessly kicked off military discussions by delegations and the rulings of State Secretary Dean Acheson as presiding officer.

U.S. Has 'No Choice But to Maintain Superiority in Air' Committee Told

Washington, Sept. 8 (AP) — America has "no choice but to maintain superiority in the air" if it is to guard against "the inevitable" kind of military disaster, Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, air force chief of staff, has told members of the Senate Appropriations committee.

Vandenberg hammered hard at the threat of Russia's expanding air force. His testimony, given behind closed doors May 15, was made public by the committee today. It was released as $61,863,865,030 military defence bill yesterday. More than $20,000,000,000 is earmarked for the air force.

"The first battles of an air war may well be the decisive battles," Vandenberg declared. "Years are required to replace air losses, and during those years a superior air force could operate against us with increasing destructiveness".

He continued:

"The Soviet's ample evidence that they have built a strategic air force so terribly effective, both in numbers and proven weapons that makes a strategic air force so terribly effective, that they are creating a powerful jet fighter and bomber force designed to give them air supremacy over those areas where surface battles might be fought. They would be able to prevent them from gaining this air supremacy, we could scarcely hope to win the battle on the ground. Any plan for winning them must depend upon our ability to gain and maintain superiority in the air.

"It is also true that the nation's hope of ultimate victory through superior production of weapons depends upon our saving most of our productive capacity while we destroy most of theirs. To do that we must have a wide margin of strategic air superiority from the outset."

EDMONTON BISHOP ELECTED PRIMATE OF ALL CANADA

Archbishop Believes In Prayer, Hard Work

Victoria, B.C. Sept 8—(CP)— Archbishop Walter Foster Barfoot, who believes in both prayer and hard work, last night was installed as primate of the Church of England in Canada.

"I would not be human if I were not somewhat anxious, even fearful, of the high office for which I have been called," he told a congregation of 1,000 in Christ Church Cathedral following the solemn ceremony of installation.

The 58-year-old archbishop of Edmonton, elected to the church's highest office late yesterday by the Anglican archbishops and bishops of the Anglican faith for "support to unify further the church from coast to coast."

He succeeds Rt. Rev. Clarence Seaborn who died after his election a fellow bishop, an old friend and counsellor, had calmed his anxieties over the weight of office by whispering, "you are not alone."

"Those words go very deep in Christian hearts," the new primate said.

Succeeds Kingston

He succeeds the late Most Rev. George Frederick Kingston, Archbishop of Ontario, who died last November.

He automatically was raised from bishop to archbishop with his installation as primate.

Friends say that behind Archbishop Barfoot's robust and jovial appearance, which make him look younger than his years, lie an iron will and determination.

In 1948, he made a 9,550-mile plane trip to see for himself the work of the church on the shores of the Arctic Ocean and on the Mackenzie River.

In the First World War, he saw nearly four years of front-line action with the 7th Canadian Infantry Regiment. He won France's Croix de Guerre.

Native of Collingwood

The new prime, consecrated child bishop in Edmonton in 1941, is a native of Collingwood, Ont., and entered church service when he was 19.

He was educated at the University of Toronto and Wycliffe College, and was ordained at Toronto in 1922, he served there and in Manitoba, Singapore and Saskatoon.

While professor of church history at Saskatoon's Emmanuel College in Winnipeg in 1935, he was offered the position of assistant secretary of the Manitoba public schools but declined.

Keenly interested in amateur athletics, he was a former champion for curling and golf—he was also offered the post of cheer leader at the Varsity football games.

The primate was married in 1942 to the former Lorena Richardson of Edmonton.

He says he likes detective stories, reads widely and delights in Scandinavian literature.

He will remain as head of the Edmonton diocese.

First Fall of Snow Stops Searchers for Missing Men Scanning 10 P.C. of Area

By ELMER BONTER
(Staff Reporter)

Kapuskasing—(Special) — Tonight the majority of the 8,000 people in this northern pulp and paper town are asking two questions.

1. Are Bill Bariiko and Dr. Henry Hudson alive?

2. Will they be found before the heavy snow and winter weather sets in?

The waste country north of here that has swallowed up one of Canada's prominent hockey players and his dentist friend has started to change color as autumn holds forth. Today first falling snow stopped searchers from scanning at least 10 per cent of the northern suspect area.

Among R.C.A.F. crews searching for the missing M.D. are the two Timmins aircraft optimism runs high tonight and the general feeling is that the long pair will be found sometime within the next week.

Idol of Million Fans

The idol of a million hockey fans across Canada and his dentist friend were last reported over Rupert House on James Bay two weeks ago this Sunday in the lead of a fishing trip which took them into virgin lakes around the vast bay area.

Last seen the Toronto Maple Leafs' defenceman and Dr. Hudson took off in a battered Fairchild float plane headed toward South Porcupine about 350 miles southwest of Rupert House. Take off time was around 5:00 p.m. about two and a half hours from dusk.

Shatter Stillness

From 4:00 p.m. until nightfall tonight the familiar drone of four-engined Lancaster and Expert Dakotas returning from the suspect areas shattered the stillness of this quaint northern paper town. Members of Bariiko's family waiting on the tarmac for the searchers to return walked away sad-faced when the last crews reported back without results. Bill's mother with her sister Mrs. Alex visited Searchmaster Rushton at his room in the Kapuskasing Inn tonight expecting to hear some words of encouragement about her son's plight.

Today the 17 aircraft in the tonight's hunt completed a thorough survey of the area directly north of here and tomorrow all efforts will be pointed at an area 400 miles north of Ottawa on the Quebec side.

Carry Equipment

The Norseman on floats from Trenton arrived here this afternoon and tomorrow carrying portable radio equipment will fly to Rupert House where a headquarters will be established to give the searchers more range. Lac. J. Berner from algonquin Park will operate the beacon station.

Today visibility was good but an expectant change tomorrow has weather officials figuring searchers will have only a 50-50 chance.

The helicopter with F/O R. M. of Ottawa at the controls came in from Toronto tonight and tomorrow along with the Norseman will be employed in close co-operation in the search of highly probable places where the couple might have force landed or crashed.

All But Two Injured

All but two of the eleven passengers aboard the Trans Canada that crashed at the west end of the airstrip this morning will resume their trip on Sunday tomorrow. Pilot F/O Don Lewis and Radio Officer F/L Johnny Aitken are still in hospital with injuries. F/O. Lewis fractured an ankle while F/L Aitken received facial lacerations and suffered facial cuts. An RCAF Dakota ambulance is standing by to return them to hospital and their homes in Trenton.

Finance Minister Abbott Will Have World Money Troubles Thrown in Lap Next Week

Ottawa, Sept. 8—(CP)—The jigsaw puzzle of world money troubles falls into the hands of Finance Minister Abbott next week.

For a few days at least, he will be at the helm as world financial wizards grapple with the involved problems of trade restrictions and exchange rates and loans to get countries back on their feet.

The current issue and outlook to be discussed in hush-hush tones is the world price and movement of gold as the representatives of 40 countries meet in Washington for the annual session of the world bank and international monetary fund.

The chairmanship of the meeting falls for the first time to Canada and to Mr. Abbott as chief delegate. His advisers include Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada and James Battersby, the bank's specialist in exchange rates and gold.

Uppermost in their minds is the question of gold.

For months the Canadian gold-mining industry has besieged the government to seek a higher price for the metal or at least to let the fund allow Canada to sell a portion of its production on the free market at higher prices.

The "free" market price usually ranges slightly higher than the $35 (U. S.) per ounce fixed by the fund: South Africa, a fund member and the world's largest gold producer, sells about 40 per cent of her production on the free market.

Left in Abeyance

Canadian officials have long contended that Canada should have the same privilege as South Africa. They brought the question before the fund last year but the question was left in abeyance pending study.

Yesterday, John Synder, U.S. Treasury Secretary, hinted broadly to a Washington Press conference that the U.S. will take a firm stand on gold.

The U.S. he said, sees no reason why the price should be raised. He observed that the fund's staff has not yet completed its study of the free-market question. Its report won't be ready until the end of the year.

KIDNAP GANGS SNATCH CHILDREN, WOMEN FOR SALE

38 Recovered So Far By Indian Police

New Delhi, Sept. 8 (Reuters) —Indian police have smashed two kidnapping gangs which have been snatching young women and children and selling them in Delhi for prices ranging from $45 to $450, police officials said today.

Thirty-eight women and children have so far been recovered.

Ten persons have been arrested.

The police got on the track of the kidnappers when a man was caught trying unsuccessfully to sell a 15-year-old kidnapped girl from Ahmedabad for $200 in Delhi.

Police said there were three main markets for kidnapped women and children in India — brothels in cities such as Bihi and Bombay, wealthy families in the State of Rajasthan, and wandering tribes of snake-charmers.

Rakhan Chandra said daughter children to be brought up as servants and to be given later as part of a daughter's dowry on marriage.

Plane Pictures Raise Dispute

Washington, Sept. 8 (AP)—A woman photographer's pictures of an Air Force plane have raised a dispute between Senator Willis Jenner (Rep. Ind.) and Life Magazine.

Jenner said yesterday he has written defence Secretary George Marshall requesting permission for Bourke-White to photograph a "top secret" plane apparently designed to "blow them to smithereens" in event of hostilities.

His letter added that Miss Bourke-White, a member of Life's staff, photographed the plane during a visit to Indianapolis.

Jenner said he would keep Black Champagne — and the $492.45 too.

And — if Sherpy Ann can get another insurance policy her steer won't be led to the auction ring again, she'd like to show him at the International Livestock Show in Chicago next month.

MOTHER OF ACTRESS

Laguna Beach, Calif., Sept. 8—(AP)—The mother of screen star Bette Davis, Ruth Favor Davis Budd, 66, announced her separation yesterday from Arthur Budd, 65, retired army officer. The actress' mother was divorced in 1947 from Robert W. Favor, retired Boston business man.

Girl's Tears Saves Steer From Slaughter

Dayton, O., Sept. 8 — (AP)— For more than eight months, 15-year-old Sherry Ann Eby babied her Angus steer, Black Champagne.

This week she took him to the county fair and Black Champagne was named the 4-H grand champion 4-H Club steer.

But then the animal had to go the route of all grand champion steers — straight to the auction block. A Dayton food chain bought the beef for $492.45.

As the money was placed in Sherry Ann's hand Thursday night, she burst into tears. She knew Black Champagne was near the end of the line at the slaughterhouse.

Last night, there were tears in Sherry Ann's eyes again when the food - chain official told her he would keep Black Champagne — and the $492.45 too.

Spotlight at Resort Swings to Beauty Glamor for Miss America Crown

Atlantic City, N.J., Sept. 8 — (AP) — The spotlight in this thronged seaside resort swings to beauty and glamor tonight for the crowning of the new Miss America.

It is the final curtain in the pageant which started with 21 aspiring prettie. By nightfall only 10 will remain and one girl will wear the coveted crown.

The 1951 Miss America will be selected from 44 states, Puerto Rico, Hawaii, Canada and four U.S. cities, Chicago, Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

Canada's entry is Marjory Anna Kelly, 23, from Courtland, Ont., chosen Miss Canada of 1951. The blue-eyed redhead from Ontario's tobacco country is a lyric soprano.

Tokyo, Sept. 8—(AP)—Communist propaganda broadcasts tonight hinted that the communists may be willing to change the site of cease-fire talks from Kaesong as proposed by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

The remarks were unofficial, and did not say the reds accepted the supreme allied commander's proposal. The talks have been suspended since Aug. 23.

The first hint came from the north Korean red radio at Pyongyang. It urged the Korean people to "cautious" about charging the site.

Later Peiping radio quoted a communist correspondent as saying "wherever the talks are held, nothing will come of them unless the Americans are willing to agree to the armistice on the basis proposed by Jacob Malik . . ." Presumably he was referring to the 38th parallel, where the reds want the buffer line drawn. The U. N. wants the battle line to generally represent battle lines.

A high-ranking officer in allied headquarters said a major communist offensive in Korea would not endanger the talks.

American Soldier Shot by Police Dies in Hospital

Berlin, Sept. 8 — (AP) — U.S. authorities announced today that an American soldier, shot by German communist police Thursday, died in a Soviet military hospital.

It is expected that the U. S. Army will send a sharp protest to the Russians over the shooting because eyewitness reports indicated no provocation to justify the shooting by the Soviet-controlled "people's police."

American authorities reported the eyewitness said the soldier apparently lost his way and h's car collided with a post supporting the barrier the Russians have erected at the Russian zone border.

The communist policeman shot the soldier when he failed to get out of the damaged car when ordered to do so.

Twenty Wounded Canadians Arrive In Vancouver

Vancouver, Sept. (CP)— Twenty wounded Canadians, veterans of the Korean war, arrived in Vancouver Thursday night aboard a Canadian Pacific airliner. One of the 20, Pte. C. Tuerlinckx of Quebec, lost his left eye when shrapnel from a grenade struck him during a frontline battle, was taken to Shaughnessy Military Hospital immediately.

Two Vancouver men, Sgt. G. E. Lee and Staff Sgt. Alfred Chignault, would give others no comment than: "We saw plenty of action. There were lots of bullets and miles and miles of mud."

The names of the other 17 were not released.

TRUE BILL RETURNED

Chicago, Sept. 8—(AP)— The grand jury was reported to have returned a true bill yesterday charging George Fabian, 16, with manslaughter in the airplane-taxi fatality of six-year-old Yvonne Georgiana Blitz. Fabian has admitted swinging the girl to the helm when her head crashed into rocks.

That may lead to a shelving of Canada's plans to ask many to spend on manoeuvring at the conference table.

On other questions, Canada may:

Suggest, along with the United States, that the time has come for Britain to reduce her restrictions against dollar-area trade. Britain has already indicated she will counter by declaring that new restrictions are not needed but to increase them.

Decide, at this time, to return to a fixed exchange rate for her dollar, cast free from government control a year ago.

Load of Peaches Overturns In Deep Ditch

Peaches went for a tumble early this morning when a truck load of the Niagara table delicacy overturned in the ditch near Marysville scattering baskets of the fruit over a wide area.

Driver of the truck, Gerald Huffman of Moscow, Ont., suffered a shaking up and was taken to Belleville General Hospital for a check-up.

The front end of the stake body truck was badly damaged but the driver escaped serious injury. He was given medical attention by Dr. McVicker, Deseronto, and later taken to hospital.

More People Canada's Greatest Need Radio Broadcaster Tells Members City Service Clubs

It was "Canada Night" for members of Belleville's six service clubs Friday night.

And many of the 225 persons who attended the annual Inter-Service Club Council banquet held at the Masonic Temple possibly learned more in one hour about the country in which they live and its people than they had in the years since they left school.

To tell them about Canada and Canadians, the nation's shortcomings and its possibilities was the Dominion's foremost story teller and booster of Canada—John Fisher, well-known Canadian writer and radio broadcaster.

"Canada's greatest need," Mr. Fisher said, "was more people; more people to develop its natural resources, to consume its industrial products and to build a great new Canadian democracy. But Canadians were too selfish, too cautious and too unwilling to recognize the success of a fellow Canadian."

Nation of Snipers

"But success is a word which Canadians do not seem to understand," he said. "It is a nation of snipers, too ready to pull down and never ready to recognize the success of a fellow countryman until that success has been recognized by another country.

To illustrate he referred to Stephen Leacock and other now famous Canadian writers who had to win fame in other countries before they were recognized at home.

Lack of Canadian initiative was resulting in its vast natural resources and industries being owned and operated by foreign capital. It was American money that was opening up Canada's vast hinterland. The result was that Canada was becoming a nation of owers, not owners—70 percent of industrial dividends were going out of the country.

Willing to Copy

Canadians were also a nation of copyists. They were willing to accept American and other designs for almost everything. They were too willing to act in the role of a spectator instead of that of a participant.

Against the claim of lack of initiative by its people, however, Mr. Fisher said that Canada was possibly the best governed country in the world today—there was still room for improvement. Politically Canada was 50 years ahead of the United States, economically she was 50 years behind her American cousins.

In the economic field Americans had learned that which we had not yet discovered. They have learned how to bring down the cost of production, also Americans had learned about decentralization of industry, something which Canada must adopt if equal development of her many provinces was to succeed.

Must Have More People

Comparing Canada's 14 millions with the 151 millions in the United States, Mr. Fisher emphasized that Canada must have more people. We could never build a bigger Canada unless we are willing to let in more people. More people would result in closer relations between the provinces and would bring down costs.

The happy faculty of being able to compromise lent itself admirably to Canadians building a great Canadian democracy. This faculty of compromise had stood out notably in negotiations bringing Newfoundland into the fold as Canada's tenth province.

The speaker told of Newfoundland's great potential forest and mineral wealth; of the Maritimes big fishing industry and of the industrial development in Quebec and in Ontario.

Richest Real Estate

Ontario he described as "the richest piece of real estate on the North American continent." It had the industry, the water power, the timber, the farm lands, in fact everything necessary to make it a vast empire in itself.

But he also saw a great future for the Canadian West. Newly discovered oil fields and mineral deposits would hasten that development.

Likening Canada's vast expanse to the different storeys of a house, Mr. Fisher said that Canada had two neighbors—the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R.—with "US" in between. The sooner Canadians begin to think about "US" the better.

Dr. Bert Howard as the first Inter-Service Club Council president, acted as chairman for the evening, calling on the Council secetary Mr. Newton Thompson to introduce guests. The head table guests included the presidents of the six local service clubs. Representing the Optimist was Mac Smith; Rotary, Court Miller; Soroptimists, Miss Gladyse MacDonald; Kinsmen, Ben Yanover; Y's Men, Bryson Leslie and Kiwanis, Everett Fairman.

Introduces Guest Speaker

Rev. F. R. Harback, Tabernacle United Church, very capably introduced the guest speaker with appreciation being expressed by Gerald Hyde. Newton Thompson thanked all taking part in the evening's program.

Guest vocalist for the evening was Belleville's popular soprano Ethel Smith with Dean Whalen acting as accompanist on the Hammond organ. Mr. Whalen also favored with a duo of organ solos. Harry Gourley acted as piano accompanist for a period of community singing with Gardiner Duff, Vic White and Scott Denton in the role of song leaders.

Exhibition Ends In Oratory Burst And Fireworks

Toronto, Sept. 8—(CP)— The Canadian National Exhibition ends tonight in a burst of oratory and fireworks after one of the best runs in its history.

Officials were hopeful that sunny weather will bring crowds to boost the over-all attendance total close to the 3,000,000 mark. Attendance dropped to 143,000 yesterday, down 11,500 from the corresponding day last year. However with today's crowds still to be counted, the over-all attendance to date stands at 2,436,500.

Scheduled for the final day were a speech by sir Denys Lowson, Lord Mayor of London; a special match race between Jerry Kerschner of Toronto, who won the men's professional swimming championships of the world at the Exhibition last week, and George Bevan of Winnipeg, Canadian Men's Amateur Swimming Champion; completion of the national horse show; and the deciding game of the Canadian women's softball championship finals.

A visit by Hollywood producer Walter Wanger to Elwood Hughes, C.N.E. general manager, raised the possibility that next year's edition of the world's biggest annual fair might be used as the background for a motion picture. Wanger thought a story could easily be set against the Exhibition's crowds and color, its grandstand show and its many buildings scattered over 350 acres on the Lake Ontario shore.

Officials announced that next year increased space will be given to small lot agricultural exhibitors, that dairy and beef cattle will be shown at the same time in the same buildings and that extra signs will be put up in the livestock sections to educate city-dwellers in the names and features of the show-ring stock.

CAPITOL · THEATRE

Dear Patron:

Every so often there comes along another of those motion pictures so great that a theatre manager will want to tell his customers about it. Such a picture is "Jim Thorpe—All American."

It is the story of the man who was recently voted by the sportswriters of America "the greatest athlete of the first half of the twentieth century." But it is not just the story of a great athlete. Rather it is the heartwarming though exciting story of an American boy who had to fight overwhelming odds to achieve his goal of happiness.

In the picture, Jim Thorpe is a young and shy Indian lad from Oklahoma when he enters Carlisle Indian School. How he rises, under the guidance of famous coach "Pop" Warner and love of his sweetheart, Margaret, to a position, via unparalleled football feats and two prodigious Olympic Games championships where the King of Sweden addresses him as "the greatest athlete in the world" is but part of the story. Victories were not always Thorpe's, however, and it was only after this acclaim that he encounters his greatest tests—emerging victorious, the American way.

"Jim Thorpe—All American," a Warner Bros. picture with Burt Lancaster in the title role, and Charles Bickford, Steve Cochran, Phyllis Thaxter, supporting, comes to the Capitol Theatre on Monday, Sept. 10th. I urge you strongly to see it, for I know you will be rewarded with a wonderful evening's entertainment.

Sincerely yours,
T. A. MASCARO, Manager.

Young Man Fires Bullet Into Head Outside Police Station, Dies Later in Hospital

Parking his car in a no-parking zone outside the Belleville police station, 21-year-old Francis R. Lord, 1st concession of Ameliasburg township, last night ended his life with a .22 rifle bullet in the brain.

Found slumped unconscious in the front seat of the car, the young man was taken to Belleville General Hospital, where he died early this morning.

Police Sgt. Douglas Ellis was on duty at the police station when he saw the car parked outside in the parking zone ordinarily reserved for police cars. He stepped outside to ask the driver to move the car and on opening the door found the man slumped in the seat, the .22 rifle beside him.

Police were unable to offer an explanation of the young man's act. Maurice Lord, father of the boy, said his son had been despondent during the past two days. The boy had been employed at the Corbin Lock factory but had quit his job yesterday intending to go to work on the railroad.

Police stated there would be no inquest.

Born in Cornwall, England, Francis Lord, had lived in the Ameliasburg district for three years. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Lord, R.R. 7, Belleville, and one sister Mrs. G. R. (Mavis) Alyea, of Ameliasburg

Engineer Says He Did Not Receive Order

Fort William, Sept. 8—(CP)—Canadian National Railways engineer testified at a manslaughter trial yesterday that he did not receive a train order May 17 when two C. N. R. freight trains collided near Postans, 80 miles west of here.

Two train crewmen—fireman George Miller, 35, and brakeman Morris, 25, both of Fort William—died in the twisted debris of piled up boxcars.

On trial for manslaughter is Trevor G. Lyons, 28, a C. N. R. dispatcher.

Engineer Charles Seal, 55, of Port Arthur, testified he received a train order to run five hours late when he left Atikokan, Ont. He received a second order at Kashabowie on his way eastbound to Fort William to make up as much time as possible.

Albert Crawford, engineer of the west-bound freight which collided with Seal's, said he did not get the second order and proceeded to Postans under the first. The telegraph operator at nearby Mabella Station said he did not receive a second order to pass on to Crawford.

The two engines met head-on in a cut through rocks on a curve. One engine was buried under box cars.

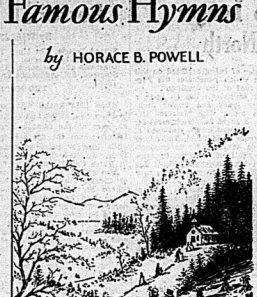
Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

The Land of Pure Delight



There is a land of pure delight,
Where saints immortal reign;
Infinite day excludes the night,
And pleasures banish pain.

There everlasting spring abides,
And never-withering flowers;
Death, like a narrow sea, divides
This heavenly land from ours.

Sweet fields beyond the swelling flood
Stand dressed in living green;
So to the Jews old Canaan stood,
While Jordan rolled between.

But timorous mortals start and shrink
To cross the narrow sea,
And linger, shivering on the brink,
And fear to launch away.

Oh, could we make our doubts remove,
Those gloomy doubts that rise,
And see the Canaan that we love
With unbeclouded eyes;
Could we but climb where Moses stood,
And view the landscape o'er,
Not Jordan's stream, nor death's cold flood,
Should fright us from that shore.

Even for Christians, who believe in immortality, death is hard to part and to bear.

Dr. Isaac Watts, the popular English pastor-poet, realized this as he wrote the beautiful hymn about heaven to give comfort and hope not only to those about to slip away to the heavenly country but also to those saddened by parting with their loved ones. It appeared in 1707 in his "Hymns and Spiritual Songs" under the unusual title, "A Prospect of Heaven Makes Death Easy."

It was written one bright afternoon in Southampton, while Dr. Watts, sitting in the window of his home looking out over the river and the Isle of Wight, thought the exquisite view before him suggested something of the beauty of the heavenly home. Through more than two centuries now it has been a precious hymn for Christians everywhere, many of whom have had its stanzas upon their lips as they went out calmly and serenely to their eternal rest.

Radio Announcer Born in Germany Regains own Name

(By The Canadian Press)

Radio announcers have many a story, but the story of Bob Kinder is one of the most unusual. When 19-year-old Bob, staff announcer at CKFH in Cornwall, Ont., found his birth certificate, he also found his parents and a new name.

He was born in Munich, Germany, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Powell, according to the new birth certificate. Bob remembers only that his parents took him London to Paris when he was three. Later he was left with an aunt in Paris by his mother, who went to join her husband stationed in Germany before the Second World War started.

Soon after France was invaded, Bob's aunt died and he was placed in a Paris foundling home. He was taken from there by an American couple, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Kinder, who took the boy to Washington, D.C. Bob at the time believed his parents were dead.

When Bob's foster father died in 1942 Mrs. Kinder brought him to live in Ottawa. Last year Bob did a broadcast series from Ottawa which attracted the attention of a member of parliament who began tracing Bob's background. That year Mrs. Kinder died, leaving him alone again.

Bob's M.P. friend found the youngster's parents were still living in New York City and he arranged for Bob to visit them. The Ontario government provided the cherished birth certificate, and he became Bob Powell again.

Royal Tour Broadcasts

The coming Canadian tour of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will get extensive radio coverage. The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, planning a series of broadcasts over the whole route, will make its facilities and programs available to many countries.

The broadcast will extend over a period of five weeks, from the landing at Quebec City to the departure from St. John's, Nfld. About 35 on-the-spot actuality broadcasts from 3 Canadian cities will be supplemented by news broadcasts. Besides the two National English networks, there will be coverage of all major events on the French network, while the CBC International service will short-wave broadcasts to all parts of the world.

The detailed planning and direction of the Royal tour broadcasts is under supervision of A. E. Powley, head of the CBC overseas unit during the Second World War, and now in charge of the special events department. The CBC has assigned two travelling teams, of eight to 10 persons each to full-time coverage of the Royal visit.

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

DATING CUSTOMS

(Article 36)

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — During my past year in Switzerland I have been subjected to a bombardment of questions from Canada or the States. These have covered almost every imaginable topic, and at times I have been hard put to find a suitable answer.

Many of the questions have been about the relationship between girls and boys, how early they start to go together? when they get married? is the divorce rate high? Well just about every thing along this line. We then try to compare the two countries in this respect and I find that some very interesting facts have come to light. Perhaps it would be best to tell you a bit of what the situation is like in Switzerland and then you can draw your own conclusions.

First, speaking about dating. The main thing is that it is not practised with the same degree of intensity as it is in Canada. It is only toward the end of their high school days that boys and girls start to go together with any degree of regularity. Once they do start they seem to go about it in a more leisurely way and the boy waits longer before he gets his first good-night kiss. In the larger cities such as Zurich or Geneva, the whole process is speeded up, but not to any great extent.

Late Marriages

For the majority of Swiss marriage also comes later in life. The average age for bridegrooms is 30 and for brides about 27. The Swiss have a rule of thumb for calculating the age of the girl that a man should marry. It looks like a mathematical formula and goes something like this: M (age of the man) divided by 2, plus 7 is the equal to age of the woman.

For instance, a man of 28 according to this rule would probably marry a girl whose age is between 21 and 21. It is a fact here that the wife is often considerably younger than the husband.

You will probably ask why they wait so long. There are several reasons but the main one is this. Most men here like to have a fair amount of money saved up and a secure position before they marry. Most of them find this impossible before they are in their late twenties.

Many of the girls also desire to travel for a time before marrying. At present many go to England just for the chance to learn English. Also the girls here probably fall in love at as early an age as in North America, but they seem to be willing to wait the years necessary for the man of their affection to find security.

Mail Order Romance

A perfectly respectable thing here is to advertise for a wife or husband. The reason is that so many of the people spend a great deal of time working and do not find the opportunities to further their relationships with the opposite sex. Girls resort to this as often as men, perhaps even more. Here is an example of such an ad.

"A 29-year-old bookkeeper, blond, 5' 10" tall, in good financial condition wishes the friendship of a girl between 22-25 with an interest in music, happy disposition, good housekeeper. All serious answers please send along with photo to Box 253."

I would say that in Switzerland a girl still does not have the opportunities that she would in Canada. For instance in a bank the percentage of female to male employees is much higher in Canada than in Switzerland.

Few Career Women

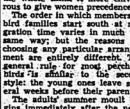
After marriage the wife usually has only one interest and that is the home. She still has not received the right to vote, and the Lady Lions or the Women's Associations, etc., are almost unknown here. It is very rare that a woman will carry on with a career after she is married.

Unfortunately the divorce rate in Switzerland is one of the highest in Europe. For every 100,000 inhabitants there are about 70 divorces.

In comparison the number in Germany is 70, France 52, Italy 44, Austria 42, Scotland 14, and England 11.

There are several reasons for this. First, couples, because of premarital conception have to get married. Later they find that they were not actually meant for each other and a divorce ensues. In England it is much harder to obtain a divorce and the above figures show the difference.

There are six different ways to obtain separation or divorce which are, desertion, mental sickness, and adultry. However the most common way is called "Ehezerrutung" and this law is about as elastic as can be made.



Elastic Laws

A man and wife can obtain a separation through this law by saying that the marriage just does not work out. Out of 4,300 divorces per year in Switzerland, which is about 10 per cent of the total marriages, over 2,000 are through "Ehezerrutung." It is also an important fact that over 50 per cent of marriages which end in separation are childless.

It is quite evident that, in spite of the more rational approach to marriage than in North America, there are still powerful forces which offset this, and make the situation here rather serious. More stringent divorce laws would probably be a help, since too many couples fail to make a serious attempt at settling their differences before taking the matter to court. Certainly the whole situation is worthy of a thorough investigation for if statistics are any indication there is no tendency towards an improvement.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

by
WINIFRED E. WILSON

PRECEDENCE

Have you ever watched whole families boarding trains, streetcars, or buses? One father will consider himself the all-important member, and get on first, as is natural, of course. The rest follow as best they can. Sometimes the children are encouraged to go ahead, and they rush in, claiming the seats though both their parents must stand. Canadians on the whole think it more chivalrous to give women precedence.

The order in which members of bird families start south at migration time varies in much the same way; but the reasons for choosing any particular arrangement are entirely different. The general rule for most perching birds is affinity to the second style: the young ones leave several weeks before their parents.

The adults' summer moult begins immediately after the nesting period, and renders them incapable of getting around very much. Therefore, as soon as the juveniles can look after themselves, they are driven away from home. Their feathers have grown sufficiently for a long flight, but their parents, not having completed their moult, are not ready for the difficult journey.

Busy Mothers

The mother birds of some species, notably a number of ducks, are only beginning to incubate the eggs when the fathers desert, go off together with nothing to do but enjoy themselves, and soon fly south. Once the children are grown, they travel with their mothers. But phalaropes and many shore birds that nest within the Arctic circle exactly reverse this. The fathers are left, busy with home duties, when their wives begin migrating.

Migrating as a family group is the exception, never the rule. In Canada geese, whooping cranes, and a few other species do this. The moult of these adults begins when the children are infants instead of at the usual period, so that all are prepared for travel at the same time. Warblers migrate in large flocks, composed of the entire membership of many families belonging to several kinds of warblers. Perhaps they are particularly sociable birds.

In nearly all instances, each species has its definite winter playground, where young and old alike gather. Herring gulls are among a few exceptions. Those seen around Boston harbor through the winter are mostly adults, recognized by their very light plumage, while the dark, first-year birds compose almost the entire population of the gull colony on the coast of Texas.

THE FARMER FACES MANY HAZARDS

Reports of blight hitting tomatoes this season is just another phase of the many troubles rural residents have to contend with in their efforts to wrest a living from the soil. Earlier, a blight hit raspberry crops in some parts of the district and we know of one grower who lost thousands of dollars in that one crop alone. Rains, too, added their share to losses suffered during the hay-curing season.

The farmer has to wage constant battle against insects and various types of plant disease if he is to come out ahead when he counts his profits or losses at the end of the year. Then there are other matters beyond his control such as market prices. If there is over production of certain crops, such as apples last year, prices drop and he is fortunate if he breaks even. Some try to overcome this difficulty by storing fruit and vegetable crops, but this only solves the problem for a few and even then does not always result in advantages. It happens occasionally that thousands of bushels of vegetables and fruit are dumped as garbage during the late winter because of no market. Importation of fresh produce from the United States is a big cause of this, but not all of it goes.

It will be pointed out by meat purchasers that farmers must be rolling in money. Those who are fortunate in raising livestock probably are doing all right, but it is not easy money they get in return. It takes two years or more to raise an animal suitable for prime beef trade and that means a lot of care. This care includes storing of feed, daily feeding and watering during the cold weather plus stable cleaning. When there are cows there is the twice-daily chore of milking which must be done regardless of what else is placed for the day. Sundays and holidays — there is no escaping this task, it just has to be done. There are few eight-hour days on the farm.

With all these things in mind we sometimes wonder that farmers are not higher than they are. There are complaints about the price of milk, but is it any higher in proportion than the increases in farm machinery, motor cars, clothing, shoes and dozens of other items? Perhaps if more of us had a better knowledge of life on the farm with the headaches that go with this industry there would be more consideration given to our friends in the country. What they earn they work for and unless the are prosperous then we all suffer. The fewer losses they have from natural hazards such as blight and too low prices the better off this country will be.

A ROPE TO SAFETY

What struck us as a very simple yet most effective life-saving device appeared in an item we saw in the Rockcliffe-by-the-Seaway section of the Toronto Star recently. Although we had never heard of it put to use in local waters, it is a simple piece of equipment which might understandably save many lives, quotes the Brockville Recorder.

A man by the name of George A. McArthur, of Blind River, Ont., was writing to say that about 25 years ago he had been visiting in Detroit and went over to Belle Isle where he saw hundreds of young people in canoes in the canals on that island. He observed that the canoes all had a rope, something like a clothes-line, running from bow to stern and just underneath the top side of the canoe with loops about every 18 inches. If the canoe upset, the occupant could grab one of these loops and hang on until rescued. It would be much easier to hang on to a loop than to cling to the slippery wet side of the canoe, he reasoned. He remarked that he considered this a splendid life-saving device, but he had not seen canoes in this country similarly equipped.

Having had considerable experience with canoes ourselves and quite realising how tired one can become from clutching the wet hulk of a floating craft, we were most impressed with the simplicity of this safety contrivance. It seems to us that in the interests of safe keeping on the water, many canoe owners, as well as owners of other small river craft, might consider this a most appropriate means of precaution. The price of a clothes-line, plus the added few moments required in stringing it safely, should be well worth the effort, especially when it could easily mean the difference between possible drowning or holding on until rescue arrives.

We would recommend that all canoes be equipped with this safety means and that river craft be open for inspection with owners libel to fine if their boats are not properly furnished with such necessary devices.

HELPFUL BUGS

(Guelph Mercury)

Here is some information that should prove of value to the citizen who has planted a garden.

Through years of investigation, scientists have found that insects, although harmful in some respects, generally protect the garden plants from some of its worst enemies.

Following are some of the beneficial qualities of bugs and insects:

Lady bug beetles feed on plant lice and scale insects in all stages.

Hornets feed entirely on insects.

Frogs and toads feed largely on insects and slugs.

Lizards feed on small insects and beetles.

Garden spiders feed on large flies, grasshoppers, moths, etc.

Wasps are generally beneficial because predatory on other insects, which they use as food for their larvae.

Alaska Road No Longer Lonely Trail in North

(By Richard L. Neuberger, in the Reader's Digest)

Past the doorway of the old trading post stretches a road. A construction engineer would compass it with one of the better secondary roads in "the states". Gravel covers its 24 foot surface. But this is no ordinary road and the U.S.A. is far away. This is the Great North Road, the first land route in history to Alaska.

Until a corridor was hacked through the mountains, railroads during World War II, Alaska to all intent and purposes was an island. It could be reached only by air or ocean. Now a motorist from Los Angeles or Kankakee can follow his traitor cap to Fairbanks.

Who does it? Who attempts this epic trek on rubber tires?

Milepost 973 is as good a place as any to review the travellers on the road that pioneering American army regiments called the "Alcan", but which since has been changed in name to the more sedate "Alaska Highway".

It is an easy 55 miles southeastward to Whitehorse on the banks of the Yukon, the one town along the route. Two miles to the Alaska-Canada international boundary and another 303 miles to Fairbanks. Milepost 973 is niched into the foothills of the impressive St. Elias Range. The tourist who gets this far is adventurous. He has driven through the Rockies and spruce, where the distance to the nearest gas pump is measured by horizons rather than miles.

The first customer for the day is symbolic of a numerous breed. Dave Crenshaw, 30, from Pittsburgh, buys cigarettes and cookies and asks for five 1m-pound gallons. His bride waits and three-year-old son shares the dusty front seat. Dave is a bachelor. He has left his job in Alaska's biggest city, Anchorage, where he worked as a fry cook. "It's a wonderful country", says Dave. "A fellow surely ought to see it before he gets too old to enjoy it." The twisting road has numbered many Dave Crenshaws since travel restrictions were lifted by the Mounties three years ago. In 1950 a total of 22,507 people entered Alaska by car, truck, bus and trailer behind the same steering wheels.

This resulted in a net gain to Alaska of 5,584 souls. It also made 1950 the first year that more persons journeyed to Alaska by land than over the traditional steamship routes.

In fact, Governor Ernest Gruening has announced that "the substantial number of newcomers arriving in the territory over the Alaska Highway greatly reinforces our quest of full membership in the union as the 49th state."

During the bright hours of Summer daylight there is no danger of being deserted on this road which penetrates the rugged roof of the continent.

At 45 miles an hour, a reefer truck and trailer highballs along with massive furniture, oranges and fresh meat for the air corps troops stationed at strategic Ladd Field, the glacier waves casually. He is comfortably full of chicken dinner from Ma Homer's Chilkoot Inn at tidewater on the Haines spur road.

Three young women bounce out of a sedan. Hot coffee and pound cake make them loquacious. One is a ballet dancer another a teacher, the third a stenographer. — They've heard Alaska has two or three white men for every woman. A pretty girl may get a couple of proposals every week.

The girls drive off blithely. A lean man from the Canadian Government's Pine Creek air-ecological farm watches them go. He sucks at a pipe, deep in his teeth. "They're good lookers", the man ventures. "They'll be back." He does not know them here on the way back.

The sun rises higher in the sky. Wild drone in carpets of wildflowers. A creek murmurs persistently. Then it widens into ripples. A streamlined bus of the British Yukon Navigation Company noses in at the sign-boards from Whitehorse. They joyously greet Historic Skagway on the steamer Prince George and then entered the fastness of the interior. Ahead lies Miles Canyon, Whitehorse Rapids and Yukon Railway.

The bus is followed by a Ford. Constable Brown, RCMP, alights in the dust. He arrived, not in movies he'd be wearing a red tunic and be astride a roan stallion.

The next arrival is straight from Hollywood. Believe it or not, category — taxi! The driver is a svelte college girl with a master's degree in Slavonic studies, who became a cab service in the hamlet of Haines, 160 miles away on the Inside Passage.

All sorts of "firsts" arrive at Milepost 972. It is the great American urge. When the highway originally was opened to unlimited traffic, 1,642 automobiles cycles whizzed past in a literal scrambled. Dozens seemed to want to be the first into Fairbanks. The mania continues. A Mr. Hoffman is the first year the brawny man gets out. He plans to negotiate the trek by dog sled, come winter. Right now he's assaying the scene of his feat from behind a Polaroid.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE ESSENTIAL TRUTHS

The contemporaries of Jesus were at first very much impressed with His teachings and His power to perform miracles, but as time went on they lost interest in Him. They expected Him to be a political ruler; when he became a spiritual leader, a ruler of love, they concluded that He was a visionary and wrote Him off as a total loss. Rankling disappointment probably had something to do with the decision of Judas Iscariot to betray Jesus to His enemies.

But as they men continues to admire certain things about Jesus but to discard other things as non essential. They admit that He was a great man; the calendar tells us that, for time has been dated from His birth. Surely He was a great teacher, and many of His sayings are worthy guides to keep society stable and wholesome. All this is universally admitted.

Yet the New Testament teaches that Jesus is more than all of us, It teaches the astounding doctrine that Jesus Christ was God in the human flesh and that divine doctrine among men. The New Testament further teaches that by the death of Jesus Christ on the cross, the forgiveness of man's sin is achieved.

On these truths every branch of the Christian Church is founded, but as far as the world in general is concerned, it is willing to admit almost any truth about Jesus save these basic truths. Yet these alone are essential.

Given Nine Months For Stabbing Woman in Leg

Rouyn, Que., Sept. 8 (CP) — Marie Bernard, 22-year-old mother, who stabbed her landlady last Sunday during an argument, was sentenced Friday to nine months in jail.

Miss Bernard was convicted of assault causing bodily harm to Mrs. Roland Beauchamp, 44.

Evidence was that Miss Boucher, after drinking in a Rouyn hotel, went to Mrs. Beauchamp's apartment and demanded to see her 45-day-old child.

When Mrs. Beauchamp refused, declaring Miss Boucher wasn't in fit condition to see her child, there was stabbing of the woman and leg. Mrs. Beauchamp is reported in fair condition today.

Toronto, Sept. 8 — (CP) — Doctors administered helium injections to a diver Thursday night to relieve the crippling effects of the "bends." They said Charles Thoms, diver for a Toronto construction firm who suffered the ailment Thursday when he surfaced from a job 90 feet below the surface of Lake Ontario, showed "general improvement" under the treatment.

Carnival Worker Gets Split Head From Nasty Crank

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 8 (CP)—A cranky merry-go-round and a merry-go-round crank combined to give a carnival worker a splitting headache and a split head.

It happened at a southside park when Roy Hamlin, 21, refused to start a merry-go-round that broke down.

Harris took the crank and began turning the carousel mechanism. He was arrested on one direction when the motor kicked and spun the crank in the reverse direction, landing a hefty wallop on the Harris head.

Harris was removed to Hotel Dieu Hospital where three stitches were required to close the head wound.

TOO MUCH INTERFERENCE

When Lala Rookh was born, in Penn Yan, at the foot of Keuka, the famous Finger Lakes, where the great Birkett Mills produce prize buckwheat flour, we had the best doctor in Yates County, naturally.

Also naturally, for at any rate of course, the baby was born where her mother, a graduate nurse, and her father, a one-horse-and-buggy doctor, felt it would be safer for the baby's first home. But, even though we didn't know where next month's rent or the grocery bill for my beautiful correct were coming from, we splurged to the extent of having a graduate nurse—a trained nurse, as they were called then, long before registered nurses appeared in that neck of the woods—a doodad which, to the best of my recollection, no patient of mine engaged for maternity ever had.

Well, we got along just fine, although I must have been in a state after delivery, for the nurse later declared, I had instructed her to give the baby a generous dose of paregoric if she cried too much. If I really gave such instructions, the nurse must have carried out the order ...oh, well, the baby survived.

But then at the time there was a doctor by the name of Donald around, and he was a good too, I thought. (Just between ourselves he was practically a medical doctor in the county).

When the baby was about six weeks old the grandmother-to-be, Lactation set in. At this juncture the patient's sister — another graduate nurse — arrived, and oops! Sister disregarded professional ethics and started to meddle and take charge. The nurse in charge objected. The nurse trying to meddle left. Result: Violent altercation of temperature. Her sister packed her bags and departed for home. Buffalo be summoned. Her husband said uh-uh. For a while there was a difficult situation, but presently I had a happy thought. I called Dr. Doubleday. He stood by me in the crisis splendidly enough. Then we retired to consult a bit. Really, the good man said, as he patted me on the back to reassure me, "don't worry."

In a few hours all was well. I've since wondered if all this is this query from a young woman:

"I am 31 years old and plan to get married, but something is worrying me. Would I have the trouble if I have children?"

Two women have told me that after you pass thirty it is very hard to go through childbirth. One of which I make the following observation:

"If a woman around forty can and did roll somersaults and all that sort of foolishness she can bear her first or last childbirth with cheerful assurance."

Men that as seriously as anything or any other who is cursed with flabella flatulata.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Treatment Was Painless

Upon your recommendation I sought medical treatment for piles, with which I had suffered for several years. The treatment was painless. While I thought the doctor was making an examination, he was using the first treatment. Only four more were required—and I'm as good as new. Thanks to your hospital, no discomfort to speak of. (A. A. J.)

Answer—On written request accompanied with stamped, self-addressed envelope I'll send the pamphlet It Is Stupid to Suffer From Piles.

Potato Chips

What is the nutritional value of potato chips? (C. M. D.)

Answer—2,675 calories per pound, (of course, most of the calories are in the fat in which the potatoes are cooked. Boiled potatoes have only about 440 calories per pound.

Born With a Cauf

Grand-daughter born with a caul. Is there any truth in the old belief that she will be lucky and will have the power of foretelling? (C. N. D.)

Answer—No evidence. It is just delay in the natural rupture of bag of waters at end of first stage of labor.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Whenever Washington or Windsor or any other city in North America sneezes, Canada catches cold over the sterling nuisance these days, we are a little inclined to cross Britain as the traditional pigsticker of birds. But we all are in the same boat. London is taking as big a pasting from the starlings as any place in the world.

In Trafalgar Square last evening I witnessed further signs of the ravages of starlings. The famous square was crowded with the usual early supper mobs coming and going, with most of them standing in the square itself feeding the pigeons, while the great fountains waved and glittered in the golden evening sunlight, but all eyes were up. Even the pigeon-feeders took their eyes off their grain.

Across the sky, at perhaps only of two thousand feet, a smoky cloud was moving. It moved as if blown on a gale, and swerved and shifted into fantastic shapes. It was a flock of thousands of starlings, coming in from the St. Martins in the Fields, the National Gallery and the roofs of Charing Cross. After three or four minutes of fantastic gyrations, the flock suddenly dropped lower and lower on set wings, and then seemed literally to explode, the starlings shot out of the sky like black confetti, spinning every direction, and then chattering swarm, on every spire and dome, and every tree. But already fresh flocks were in the sky, the same smokey clouds and wisps of thousands more, all weaving patterns and circles, but never any direction, but all finally centring, dropping and exploding over the square. To the noise of the busiest intersections was added a new sound, the sharp chattering vibration of the grating music of the tens and tens of thousands of starlings. And London doesn't know what to do about them any more than we do.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

NATURE'S FREE GIFTS

The poorest human being in earthly goods can feel rich in nature. I have just been walking through a wood and I find that is one mass of ripe huckleberries. I thought of Thoreau as I picked and then—delicious gift for man, and the birds of the forest as well. I cut a whole branch that is so heavy with ripe berries that I put it on my writing desk that I may enjoy the beautiful a sight as these shiny black crystals shining in the softened sunlight before my eyes.

Then along the shore I picked a dozen varieties of wild flowers—white, lavender, yellow, blue and crimson. Some tiny little flowers no larger than a small thumb nail are they were created—but if for no other purpose than to call our attention to the small things of life, their little life becomes important to any one. Everything in nature is significant.

I note many great New York stores decorating their windows with quaint and unique pieces of driftwood. Some are gorgeous in design and color. Especially upon the past life of these branches that have lost their day, branches and sent adrift in the lake, stream or ocean, to be polished and seasoned and then to be picked up as ornaments in stores and homes. That famous phrase comes to me, "What God has wrought."

Intriguing to think also that I walked over this summer, with great groups of winter green leaves and their late berries. Shining in the sunlight, these berries will in the early frosts, with dew upon them, look as though an artist had just given the finishing touch of beautiful varnish!

As a boy, I used to gather asters and slippery elm. Also spongelike mushrooms that my mother would parboil and broil for me. What a field a fragrance and beauty all nature is! Every plant a different design and most intricate and beautiful. It fills my mind with wonder as I look about me, no matter where I go in nature.

And just to think—everything in nature is free to anyone who will but appreciate and love. And in the end it is the appreciation of the lover of nature before my summer home that will invite most invalids are smiling in the sunlight. Purity nourished by the most perfect of all—"What God has wrought."

PICTON

Display Space At Premium For Local Fair

Picton—Prince Edward Agricultural Society will endeavor to have Prince Edward County Council turn the present grounds back to the Society, it was decided at a meeting of Picton Fair directors, Thursday. The county took the grounds over in 1937 but is finding it a difficult task to administer them. The Society named President E. W. Henderson, Secretary Phil Dodds, Mayor H. J. McFarland, H. E. Spon ser and Agricultural Representative Donald Taylor as a committee to meet with council at its September session to discuss the proposal.

With thirty directors present, plans for the Fair on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 13-14-15 were discussed. The secretary reported that entries were being received in record numbers and that display space is at a premium. The midway has asked for greater ground space this year. He estimated that exhibits of all kinds on the grounds would exceed the million dollar mark.

Erect More Pens

Reporting for the horse race committee, C. R. Widdifield, chairman, stated that there were entries already in for each of the four races on the last two days. It was decided to erect more sheep and swine pens as the entry, along with swine club members is so great, the present 30 pens are not sufficient.

Special attractions were reported by President Henderson as including a beautiful child contest, an openinz parade, a pet show, a Junior Farmers' calf clubs competition and tractor rodeo on the first afternoon, horse races, a horse show, a cowboy and cowgirl stage show, highland dancing and Havelock band on the second day, and further horse races, horse show, program by Barbershop quartets of Belleville and Napanee, a livestock parade and other features on the final day. The evening shows are being produced by Phil Dodds and take the form of a Shantytown's concert with 40 men in the cast and providing a variety of entertainment including a liars' contest and a buck-sawing contest. Special entertainers have been secured, along with Trenton Boys' Band and Havelock Band, and in order to accommodate these entertainers, a special stand is being erected on the grounds for use as well as the usual bandstand.

Guernseys Sales

Agricultural Representative Donald Taylor reported that Guernseys will be the head of cattle present. Guernseys will be shown for the first time. The Junior Farmers, under his direction will have a special display of tomatoes and fruit, and they will have their own fair as well as a safety exhibit.

Public School Inspector A. F. Brown stated that the County Schools' Fair would include a wide variety of exhibits, and Gregory Gallagher reported new display stands built for the cheese show. Ed. Bateson reported on plans for the model plane show; A. A. Benvie for the opening parade; Elmer Gerow for the horse show; William Willis for the poultry show; Alfred Keep for the flower show.

A new feature was announced as a cooking school which is to be operated daily, with many prizes awarded.

Reeve H. MacDonald stated that the grounds are being further improved and that a new caretaker had been engaged. Directors were, enthusiastic over plans for the County Fair and are planning to celebrate the centennial of the Society next year

BANCROFT

Enrolment Less In Public Schools Than Last Year

Bancroft — Six hundred and twelve children enrolled in the public and high schools in Bancroft at the opening of the fall term. Bancroft Public School had an enrolment of 325, with 41 new pupils in the kindergarten. This number was slightly lower than the opening figure for 1950-51 as a number of pupils were transferred to the new school at Paudash. North Hastings high school had 288 students. Officials at that institution said that the number was a record to date and that they expected a gross of approximately 295 by the middle of the month.

Pole Knocked Down

Few people in Bancroft realized that the lighting system of the municipality was stopped at approximately 2 a.m. on Tuesday night when a key pole by the bridge over the York River on Bridge Street was knocked down.

Provincial Constable John Hawkins was roused from his slumber to pursue a transport laden with heavy construction equipment, the vehicle that already had caused the damage. With the co-operation of the Madoc police Constable Hawkins apprehended the driver in that village 46 miles south of here. The case will be on the docket in Bancroft's court session on September 19th.

By morning the local repair crew had made temporary repairs so that for practically everybody the service was uninterrupted.

Used First Time

Section 285, sub-section 4 (a) of The Highway Traffic Act, the added teeth that were placed in the provincial statutes at the latest session of the legislature, providing a penalty for driving while ability to do so was impaired by alcohol, was used for the first time in Bancroft on Wednesday afternoon, in the court of Magistrate J. L. Lloyd.

Charles Baker and William Williamson of Steenburg each paid $50 and costs for separate infringements of this regulation.

Soviet Delegation Shows no Alarm Over Coincidence

San Francisco, Sept. 8 (AP) — "Welfare Gromyko" remained a mystery today.

Officials who might know refused to say whether they thought it was a fantastic plot to kill the Russian diplomat or an equally fantastic coincidence.

Police were tipped Thursday night that White Russians were going to kill Andrei Gromyko Friday morning as the Soviet delegation to the Japanese peace conference sped along busy Bayshore Boulevard.

The novel and unromantic weapon: a beer truck, to be rammed into Gromyko's automobile.

The Russian delegation was informed. Members showed no alarm, only curiosity.

The group left suburban Hillsborough 25 minutes with a state highway patrol.

Sure enough, just outside city line was an overturned truck. It carried bacon instead of beer. And right behind it were two beer trucks married up in the traffic jam.

State highway patrolmen waved the delagtion and its entourage on to the conference. Gromyko was at his seat in the San Francisco Memorial Opera House on schedule.

From there it's anybody's guess. Accidents are common on Bayshore Boulevard, and trucks—beer, bacon and other types—are frequently involved.

Tips to the police are common, too.

Gromyko said only, "I have nothing to say."

$2,100,000 Blaze Under Control

Avonmouth, England, Sept. 8 — (AP) — Some 500 firefighters finally beat out a $2,100,000 dockside oil blaze today after a 36-hour battle.

Twenty tanks holding 14,000,000 gallons of fuel oil turned this port into a flaming cauldron following an explosion Thursday.

Troops, sailors and airmen joined regular firemen armed with chemical foam in fighting the blaze. More than 35 fire fighters were treated for injuries. Two employees of the Regent Oil Company, which owned the petroleum tanks, were killed.

Cause of the explosion still is undetermined.

AMBASSADOR DIES

Southampton, N. Y., Sept. 7 (AP) — James W. Gerard, 84, United States Ambassador to Germany prior to the First World War, died Thursday after an illness of several weeks.

49 NATIONS

Premier Shigeru Yoshida of Japan, in his only speech to the conference, had expressed his government's assent to the treaty, yet declared its "pain and anxiety" over the loss of territory which the pact will confirm.

He assailed Soviet communism saying the threat of aggression would make it necessary for American troops to remain in Japan as "temporarily" after the occupation.

When he finished Acheson announced that all scheduled speeches had been concluded and the conference had to decide what next to do.

Gromyko wanted to know what had happened to Russia's amendments which he had circulated Wednesday. Among other changes they would not allow American troops in Japan after the occupation and would have drastically limited Japanese forces.

Acheson said that when Gromyko spoke Wednesday he had not introduced the amendments but merely made a statement about them. The Russian said the amendments were before the conference.

Ruled Out of Order

Acheson ruled Gromyko out of order and then called for a vote on whether he was right. The conference sustained Acheson 46 to 3. In a few minutes Gromyko was back at the speaker's stand.

He began with the accusation of American "pressure," then launched into his familiar recital: Red China had no voice in the treaty; the United States "wishes to create a war bloc based on Japan." Russia's treaty proposals though ruled "illegal" here, will find an "echo among the nations particularly interested in the defence of the far east."

American delegate John Foster Dulles, winding up the debate, declared the United States had made "earnest efforts" to come to agreement with the Soviet Union but had found it impossible to do so.

Excitement over Gromyko's walkout was little lessened in conference corridors because it proved to be a dud. Dulles had predicted the previous night that Gromyko would take a walk at some point.

People all over the auditorium were keyed up for just such a move. Gromyko unquestionably was aware of this.

WEDDINGS

LUMLEY—ABBOTT

Beneath an evergreen arch decked with gladioli and hung with wedding bells, the marriage of Margaret Shirley Abbott, took place in Odessa, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Abbott, on Saturday, September 1st, at 2.30 p.m. to Robert Lawrence Lumley, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lumley. The Rev. Canon G. Rockey Carey, pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle, Belleville, officiated.

Mrs. John White rendered the traditional wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a lovely bridal gown of white nylon net over satin featuring a draped collar and bouffant skirt of ballerina length. Her veil of silk tulle illusion was of shoulder length, and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Lela Abbott, sister of the bride, was maid of honor wearing lilac taffeta and carrying a hand bouquet of gladioli flowers. Miss Doris Lumley, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, being gowned in pink taffeta and carrying a hand bouquet of deep violet gladioli.

The church was decorated with pink and white gladioli and asters. Mrs. Walter Smith played the wedding music and Mrs. C. E. Schram, mother of the bride, sang "The Bridal Love" and "I Will Walk Beside You", during signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white satin trimmed with pearls and insets of lace at the bemline which was caught up with bows. CAMPBELLFORD

Talks on 'Four Altars' Rev. Joseph Muchan

Campbellford—The service of dedication planned as an outdoor event at the Bible Christian grounds for last Sunday evening was held instead in St. John's United Church, because of inclement weather.

Upon the platform were the following ministers of the town and surrounding country: H. S. Hagles, Baptist; W. T. Hicks, Free Methodist; A. E. Toombs, Presbyterian; J. McAvoy, Burnbrae; J. McBride, Church of England; G. Leno, Pentecostal; Capt. V. Clarke, Salvation Army; D. M. Smith, United, and the guest speaker, Rev. Joseph Muchan, a missionary recently returned from India on leave from British Guiana.

The service was largely attended. The speaker spoke on "The Four Altars." His message was a challenge to service, sacrifice and witness for the Lord. With flashes of humor, yet even with arresting seriousness, he held before his rapt congregation the high calling of the Christian life, exemplary life and a new dedication.

Music for the occasion was provided by the Campbellford Citizens' Band, under the leadership of bandmaster Donald Bennett. The worshippers joined heartily in the singing of the many old familiar hymns.

Many of the congregation expressed their appreciation of the service. It is hoped that the inspiration and impetus of this meeting will result in blessings in each co-operating church.

There was no mistaking the fact that it is school time again. A stroll down the business section of the town on Tuesday about noon, revealed that fact. Hundreds of school children, some with their parents, crowded into local stores to buy or purchase their supplies for school. At one particular store there was a line two blocks long trying to get in.

Many of the summer cottages in the district are forlorn looking structures today, with windows boarded up, water shut away and gates locked.

Cottage owners from out-of-town points spent the Labor day weekend closing up their cottages for the season, and getting in one last bit of fishing before heading back to their homes in Toronto, other parts of Ontario and the U.S. The streets of the town, which are usually crowded with vacationists, are the largest portion of whom are American visitors, will not see much of, or the usual flow of local traffic.

The display windows of the local stores reveals the end of one season and the start of another. Clothing stores have put away their displays of bathing suits, suntan lotion and other summer items in favor of "back to school togs." Stationery and gift stores are removing their souvenir post cards and picture books to make room for school supplies.

Also, the garages and service stations will warn motorists that the time for winter changeover is at hand. And if Christmas shopping is to be done early this year it had better be started. There are only 90 more shopping days left.

Quintena Rebekahs Entertain Brother Lodge Members

On Tuesday evening the Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133, entertained the brother members of Bellecroft Lodge No. 91 after their regular business meeting.

Before proceeding with the actual mystic rites of changing the brothers' manly virtues into the gentler arts of becoming sisters and learning the general duties of the weaker sex, an impromptu drill was exemplified by the officers and staff who looked business-like in long white evening dresses and wearing pill box royal blue caps decorated with skulls and cross bones.

The lectures and difficult instructions pertaining to the betterment of parenthood and home making were delivered by Mrs. Marjory Large and Dorothy Harwood and Miss Helen Miller, while the willing and ever-ambitious candidates, Sisters Ernie Summers, Cecil (Cliff) and Bill Pinell, were finally exhausted but exuberant with the difficult lessons mastered during the initiation.

During the evening, telegrams were received and read to two of the brothers, Mrs. Bateman, who received the help and benefit all good Rebekahs tender to their brother members.

After the impromptu degree, small gifts were tendered the four brothers as a most sportsmanship helped carry on a program providing many hearty laughs to the spectators.

Going from the ridiculous to the sublime, were the beautiful solos rendered. Here is an industry that wouldn't take much stimulation if sales volume is still the basis of profits.

Our politicians tell us we must stimulate trade. If we can't get anybody to manufacture the one cent diaper in Canada, let's start importing them. Let's remove the duty on one cent diapers from the U.S., Mr. Minister of Trade and Commerce.

We have a Cabinet in Ottawa.

SISTERS ALL

By JEAN LOVE GALLOWAY

DISPOSABLES

No mother should have to wash diapers. Mothers have put up with this slow form of torture for long, long enough. Baby diapers should be disposable, and they should be cheap. If men were saddled with all this diaper washing, cheap, disposable diapers would have been here with the coal oil lamp. Paper serviettes and paper handkerchiefs are everywhere. Where are baby's paper pants?

In the U.S., baby's disposable diapers are sold in the stores for 1c each, a price which every mother can afford. In Canada, this particular line is not sold. But there is another brand in a few of the departmental stores and infants' wear shops which cost 5c a-piece. Now 5c is too much for most mothers to pay every time they change an infant.

A Change Is Needed

Our leaders tell us what Canada needs is the seaway, oil pipe lines, national television, immigration. What we need most in Canada today is the one cent diaper. They talk a lot about freedom. But you never hear any politician mention "freedom from toil."

Men aren't handicapped with tedious daily jobs like washing diapers. They have absolutely no conception of how this kind of thing eats into the very brain and soul of a woman. All kidding or soap advertising are geared to the type of subject which soothes merely the skin. Nobody is championing the product which will save the mother's spirit.

Factories have sprung up all over the country since the last war. But there are not diaper factories among them. Our politicians tell us we must stimulate industry. Here is an industry that wouldn't take much stimulation if sales volume is still the basis of profits.

Our politicians tell us we must stimulate trade. If we can't get anybody to manufacture the one cent diaper in Canada, let's start importing them. Let's remove the duty on one cent diapers from the U.S., Mr. Minister of Trade and Commerce.

We have a Cabinet in Ottawa.

We have a House full of M.P.'s. Let's come right out and ask them to lift the bars and allow the one cent diaper to come into Canada duty free. But, wait a minute, would this get votes? Sister, would it ever!

Pigeon Talk

A neighbor was telling us one good way to get rid of pestering pigeons. He says to make a bran mash and add whiskey to it. Then sow the mash out for the pigeons. They will go for the mash, become intoxicated and when you catch them and wring their necks.

Etiquette

This little poem fell onto our desk this morning:

I met a lady in the hall,
And she had nothing on at all.
I gave no greeting, nor did she,
We had not yet met formally.

Uncle Frontenac says he's sure that if the people who sell prepared foods would cut out all the fancy packaging, they could give us customers much more food for less money.

Fashion Flashes

LIFT OUT the white ottomen dickie of a new brown velveteen dress and there you have a good after-dark dress. Note the low squared neckline and short sleeves that are heavily ruched.

LOOKING FRESH after quite some summer wear are the beige dresses and suits. Light navy blue more for a pretty date dress, slim and handsome suit with high collar that go around the hips and fasten away down. Pockets, pointed collar and cuffs are banded with a matching velvet. Jewsled button trims collar to below the waist, and dolman sleeves with seamed back.

OTTER dyed a rich misty blue gives a charming contrast to a full length coat of grey Persian lamb. High neckline with the deep rounded otter collar backed by Persian. Big otter cuffs have notched, pointed flares.

HARD TO RESIST are the new suits, some full of skirt, some slim, but all rich with new detail and figure-flattering lines. A woolen for a young suit, the jacket closing high below a shallow rounded collar. Double-breasted button fastening narrows to the waist and continues down the skirt almost to the hem. Hips are arched, skirt is moderately slim.

DOESN'T SEEM POSSIBLE to achieve a well-rounded, up-to-date wardrobe without one or more silk suits. Black silk faille for a handsome suit with high collar and impressive pockets trimmed with black passementerie braid and tiny tassels. Slim waistline and belling hips contrast with slim skirt.

FEATHERS ARE FLYING in new millinery modelons. A Victorian bonnet of charcoal velour has a sweep of shaded beige ostrich at one side, while ostrich puffs trim either side of a sidetilted turban of lipstick red felt.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

BACK-DOOR BASEBALL!

The Batawa Shoemen, despite their defeat at the hands of the Kingston Disney Leafs last night, which saw them finish a full game behind the Belleville Redmen, still have a chance to make fourth place and a playoff berth.

At a heated meeting that lasted until three o'clock this morning the Central Ontario Baseball League executive awarded the Batawa Shoemen two tied games at home with Napanee and one with Picton, which brings them on even terms with the Redmen in the final won-and-lost columns.

The master-minds followed this decision with an order to the Redmen and Shoemen to play a best-of-three series to decide the berth, the first game to be played here tonight at 8.30 and the second in Batawa tomorrow Sunday afternoon. The third game if necessary will be played here Monday night.

President Jack Carson strongly criticized the executive's move in awarding the lost games to Batawa. He charged that at a COBL meeting held in Kingston a short time ago, the league decided to "wash out" all tied games. "Yet" he said, "it made an about-face with its decision last night."

Kingston Leafs play Smiths Falls Koyals in the Falls this afternoon in a replayed tie to decide second slot in the standing.

"Why was this tied game not washed out?" heatedly asked the Red prexy. "One tied game is the same as another."

Napanee dropped out of the league after running a short time ago and Picton conveniently "defaulted" a game with the Shoemen. Perhaps it would be a waste of time ordering a replay of the tied game with Picton, since it is understood the "Spanlards" would have further difficulty in fielding a team.

FUN FOR FLINGERS!!

Throwing aside the "rubber ball, rabbit ball" and other nom-de-alibis that have been thrust upon the pellets, the pitching in the major leagues this year has been of the better variety. As this week's competition got under way no less than nine National and eight American hurlers had 15 victories or more with the chance to top 20. Bob Feller already had 21.

Reaching for twenty in the American League are Vic Raschi, Bob Lemon, Mike Garcia, Ed. Lopat, Early Wynn, Mel Parnell and Ned Garver.

The National's top winners at 15 or better were Robin Roberts, Warren Spahn, Preacher Roe, Sal Maglie, Murry Dickson, Larry Jansen, Don Newcombe, Curt Simmons and Gerry Staley. Roberts and Spahn were in the 20 ranks a year ago. Johnny Sain, the third member of the elite group of 1950 in the National, now belongs to the Yankees.

If Feller, Wynn and Lemon all should hit the 20 mark, Cleveland would be the first club since the 1928 White Sox to have a quartet over that coveted wall.

But, delving in the records it would appear that modern moundsmen will have to travel to equal what American Leaguers of 1930 accomplished on the rubber. Bob Shawkey, Urban Shocker and Ray Caldwell each won 20 games; Eddie Cicotte and Dick Kerr took 21 each; Claude Williams got 22; Red Faber won 23; Stanley Coveleskie helped himself to 26; Carl Mays picked up 26 and — count 'em — Jim Bagby won 31.

Coveleskie, Bagby, (whose son later pitched in the American League), and Caldwell all wore Cleveland uniforms against the Dodgers in the 1920 world series. In those days five victories were needed to win the classic, and the Indians got them in seven games. It looks now as though history might repeat itself.

Going deeper into the records, the National League it is revealed had nine pitchers reaching for or achieving 30 victories in the 1916 campaign. Pete Alexander was 33; Ed Pfeffer had 32; Jim Vaughn, 31, Dick Rudolph, 27; Grover Alexander, 27; Jeff Tesreau, 26; L. Cheney, 25; J. Mayer, 21 and Christy Mathewson 24.

Outscoring the National League hurlers this year has been Ned Garver of the St. Louis Browns and Murry Dickson of the Pirates. Laboring with the questionable support of the 8th-place Pirates, Dickson has 188 victories, up there with Roberts, Roe and Maglie. Garver has 13 with the bottom - place Browns less.

MINORS THIS AFTERNOON!

This afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds the Canadian Tire Juvenile baseballers, with their backs to the wall, face the Oshawa Juves in the second game of their two-of-three OBA playdown first round series. The Tire yunnkers went seven to defeat in Oshawa earlier in the week, but feel they have a good chance to even the series. Game starts at three o'clock.

Meanwhile up at the Canadian National Railway Athletic Field, Walkers Hardware meets the Peterborough Athenys in the second tilt of their peewee playdowns. Walkers defeated the Petes by an 8-3 count and hope to sweep the series with another win this afternoon. Game starts at two o'clock.

Phils Buy Drews

Philadelphia, Sept. 8 (AP) — Philadelphia hillies today announced they had purchased the contract of pitcher Karl Drews from Baltimore.

Drews, who won 16 and lost 12 for the International League affiliate of the Phils, will report to the National League club in Pittsburgh Monday.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting: Johnny Mize and Joe DiMaggio, Yankees — Mize doubled in the tying run with two out in the ninth inning and DiMaggio doubled in the winning runs as the Yankees came from behind to defeat Washington, 4-3.

Pitching: Bobby Feller, Indians — Registered his 22nd victory with a seven-hit shutout over Athletics as Cleveland defeated St. Louis 7-0, after the Browns had won the opener 4-3.

DiMag., Mize Beat Senators; Tribe Splits With Browns; Roe Defeats Phillies for 19th

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Baseball may be a young man's game but the "old men" are shaping the destiny of the pennant races in the American and National Leagues.

New York Yankees are back in first place in the American League thanks to Joe DiMaggio, 36; Johnny Mize 38; and Allie Reynolds 32, who led the club to a 4-3 triumph over Washington yesterday. Doubles by Mize and DiMaggio drove in three ninth-inning runs and gave Reynolds his 14th win.

Cleveland's Indians are only one percentage point behind the Yanks because of the brilliant pitching of 32-year-old Bob Feller, the fire - ball righthander gave the Tribe a split in their twi-night doubleheader at St. Louis. Feller shut out the Browns 7-0, after Ned Garver had pitched St. Louis to a 4-2 opening victory.

Five innings of shutout relief pitching by 37-year-old Ellis Kinder helped Boston Red Sox gain a split in their twin bill at Philadelphia. Kinder came to the relief of Boston's 8-5 opening win. Athletics, however, won the nightcap 11-4 as Eddie Joost batted in five runs with two home runs and a triple and 35-year-old Eddie Joost cracked a three-run homer.

Brooklyn retained its 5 1-2 game bulge over New York. Giants in the National League race as Carl Erskine registered his pitched an 11-6 win over Philadelphia. Third baseman Billy Cox 32, with two doubles and a triple drove in four Dodger runs. It was Roe's 19th victory against two losses.

Monte Irvin, 32, hammered his 19th homer and drove in three tallies to lead Giants to a 7-3 win over Boston Braves. Thirty-year-old Larry Jansen went the route for his 18th victory.

Elsewhere yesterday, Virgil Trucks pitched and batted Detroit to a 5-2 nightcap victory over Chicago White Sox in 10 innings. Tigers, behind the five hit pitching of Vedie Gray, also won the opener 4-1.

Billy Johnson, 33, hammered in four runs to lead St. Louis Cardinals to 11-4 victory over Pittsburgh. Cincinnati won an 18 inning 7-6 decision over Chicago's Cubs when Dixie Howell, 31, hit a long fly to score Hank Edwards, 33. The blow came off 41-year-old Dutch Leonard.

Sandy Consuegra pitched to whip Washington and Sid Hudson in a bizarre finish. They opened their half of the ninth trailing Athletics 2-1. Joe Collins singled and went to second on a sacrifice.

Hudson fanned Mickey Mantle for the second out but Mize pinch hit a double to score Collins with the tying run. Gene Woodling singled to pinch runner Billy Martin to third and Martin followed when Hudson took a full windup pitching to DiMaggio.

Joe then sent a drive that bounced into the right field stands. The official scorer ruled both runs counted and credited DiMag with a ground-rule double even though the rule book states that only one run should count. Later president Will Harridge upheld the scorer's decision.

Royal Couple To See Hockey

Charlottetown, Sept. 8 (CP) — Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh will see one period of hockey and possibly get a brief glimpse of heroes racing during their visit here Nov. 2.

Those were the sports events detailed in an announcement by the committee arranging for the visit to this provincial capital.

Montreal, Sept. 8 (CP) — Attendance at National Hockey League game is included in plans for the visit here Oct. 22-26 of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

The Royal couple will take the time out from duties in the city and surrounding districts to watch Montreal Canadiens and Detroit Red Wings tangle in regular league game Oct. 23.

Leafs Take Two, Still Contenders For Playoffs

(By The Associated Press)

The International League season ends Sunday, but positions for the 10th Shaughnessy Governors' Cup playoffs still are in doubt.

The playoffs, scheduled to start Tuesday, Sept. 11, bring together the league champions and the fourth-place club, while the second-place team meets the third-place finishers.

Montreal already has clinched the flag and is awaiting the results of the final two days of play. Rochester currently is in second place, three games ahead of Syracuse. The Chiefs lead fourth-place Buffalo Bisons by 3½ games. Toronto Maple Leafs, in fifth, still are in contention for a playoff berth, as they trail Buffalo by two games.

Two-night doubleheaders were on the agenda all around the circuit last night, but in Toronto three games were played. A suspended game that started May 2 was completed with Leafs shading Rochester 4-3.

Wings captured the opener of the twin bill as Jackie Collum bested Johnny Hetki 4-2. Russ Kemp blanked Rochester 5-0 in the afterpiece to give Toronto a split.

Buffalo and Springfield divided a doubleheader. Red Barrett's marvelling relief pitching helped Bisons to win the opener 8-7 but Cubs rallied to take the nightcap 4-3.

Syracuse and Baltimore also broke even. Orioles nipped the Chiefs 3-2 in the first game, but dropped the second 4-2 as Letty Bill Miller posted his fifth victory.

Dick Libby and George Hamberger went the route as Ottawa Giants swept a pair of games from Montreal 3-1 and 5-1.

Mimico Bows To Petes 15-3

Peterborough, Sept. 8 (CP) — Peterborough Petes Friday night slipped down Mimico Mountaineers 15-3 in the opener of the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Senior Lacrosse finals. The second game will be played in Mimico today.

Russ Slater paced the Petes with four goals, Arnold Dugan, Gerry Hartnett, Joe Hildebrand and Dootch Vitarelli each tallied twice, Ivan Wipper, Bob Thorpe and Nit-Ohern got the other Peterborough goals.

The Mimico goals went to Denny. Peterson, Ken Dixon and Stuke Hayes.

Skullduggery Rides Rampant, Mask, Atkins Defeat Suni, Tim, Unmask 'Hood'-But who Cares?

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Skullduggery was rampant at Memorial Arena last night in double doses and as a result those "arch-villains" of wrestledom, Fred Atkins and the Masked Marvel were awarded the main bout over Timmy Geohagen and Chief Suni War Cloud.

Chief War Cloud substituted for Mike Sharp who injured a leg and was unable to appear.

The largest crowd of the season, some 1650 of the faithful, howled its disapproval after Bunny Dunlop raised the arm of the Mask in victory after ten minutes of the third fall.

It surged around the ringside tossing paper cups and yelling for the unveiling of the Mask. Bunny Dunlop attempted to rip the veil off the physog of the Hooded Horror but Atkins strenuously objected, claiming they had won the bout. The appearance of Chief War Cloud and Timmy in the ring gave Dunlop the opportunity and he ripped off the facial underwear.

Twas Lou Newman

Lou Newman, of some place or other, who showed his wares here three years ago, covered his face with his hands after it had been exposed and the crowd apparently satisfied with one glimpse turned away.

But it almost screamed its disgust after Dunlop awarded the decision to the Hood, Chief Suni, who delighted the crowd with his war-dances and whoops at times, had been subjected to severe punishment at the hands of both Atkins and the Mask. Helpless to aid, Timmy frothed in his corner as Atkins and the Hood flung the Chief around and finally out of the ring.

Atkins assisted the Horror back into the ring and booted the Chief out as he attempted to return with the result he was counted out and the fall and match awarded the wily ones.

The "villains" pursued their same old tactics of enticing the foemen into the "spider's corner" where one by apparent "honest" methods belabored him while the "outside" partner by surreptitious devices managed to get in several punches, kicks and whatnot.

That's the way it was in the first fall with the Chief being on the receiving end of some touch punishment at the hands of the enemy. They barged him into their corner where Atkins used his "rope" to tickle the Indian jugular while the Hood sank a hamlike fist inches deep into the swarthy midriff.

Enter Timothy

Then enter Timmy Geohagen. His Irish was up and tossed first the Mask over his head for a terrific slam, then the charging Atkins. He "claned house, bejapers" in less time than it took Flin McCool to heave the 1800-pound ox over the thatch of his grandad's cabin back in County Coork. But his effort was short-lived and after fifteen minutes the Mask had pinned the Chief for the fall.

In the second matters started off badly for the Irish-Indian duo but they soon took matters in their own hands. In a dilly-dally game of tag they stiff-legged first Atkins then the Hood into near submission, on one occasion using their heads as battering rams while the crowd roared and the rink shuddered. Then Timmy, bedad, put the "Sleeper" on Atkins and he went near bye-bye but the Chief applied the famous "death-lock" to the Australian and it was over.

Bunny was forced to use his elbow smashes as the Hood and Atkins went all out to win the third fall. But Timmy and Suni ripped back until the wily Mask worked the Chief into the spider-web corner and both Atkins and he pummelled the Chief until he was almost out. Came the out-of-the-ring episode and the show was over.

Tommy O'Toole got himself disliked even more when he gave Pat Flanagan a bit of a goin' over in the semi-final and got himself disqualified. Lou Sjoberg and Dan O'Connor, who apparently due to the meat shortage favored biting chunks of Swedish meat, wrestled to a time-limit draw in the opener.

Canadians Bow To American Walker Team

Bethlehem, Pa, Sept. 8 — (CP) — International golf competition, which has been largely a family affair between the United States and Britain, probably will be enlarged next year to include Canada and perhaps Mexico and Argentina.

That, at least, is the hope of Canadian golf officials, who watched a picked Dominion team bow to the United States Walker Cup forces yesterday at the Saucon Valley Country Club, 10-2.

"We hope to make this a biennial affair, playing again next year at Vancouver," said Gordon Bowers of Vancouver, president of the Royal Canadian Golf Association. "The United States Golf Association is considering it."

Bowers said he hopes Canada can play the United States on odd years — that is, on the years the Americans are not battling Britain for the Walker Cup.

There is no immediate likelihood that Canada or any other country will be brought into the Walker Cup orbit — as in the case of the Davis Cup in tennis. But hemispheric competition is almost a cinch.

"On the years we aren't playing the United States," Bowers added, "we'd like to meet Mexico or Argentina, or perhaps both. For the development of the game in our country we need the incentive of international competition."

The Canadians acquitted themselves well yesterday although they were able to win only two of 12 matches. England won only three in the Walker Cup matches at Birkdale last spring.

The Canadians gave America's best a good go of it, carrying every joust as far as the 15th hole and taking two of the U.S. brightest stars, Dick Chapman and Frank Stranahan, all the way to the 18th.

Robinson Thinks He'll Take Back 'People's Title'

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Pompton Lakes, N. J., Sept. 8— (AP) — Ray Robinson lolled in the shade, flipping the pages of a magazine as he listened to a baseball broadcast.

With his middleweight title fight against champion Randy Turpin only five days away he was the picture of a relaxed, well-conditioned athlete.

"I could fight tonight," he said.

Yesterday was a day off for him from his training chores and the ex-champ was in an affable mood.

"I think I'll win," was as far as he would go in a prediction.

"We live and learn, they say," he continued. "I learned a lot in the first Turpin fight. I learned I'll have to fight his type of fight this time. I've had to change my tactics.

"Turpin does everything they teach fighters no to do, but he does it well. He's a good hitter with both hands. He hit me up here," he pointed to a spot high on his cheekbone, "and it hurt."

Someone mentioned the cut he suffered in the fight, a wound requiring 10 stitches, and suggested that it had bothered him.

"Naw", he said. "I just didn't have it that night."

"You know," he added thoughtfully, "that defeat made me a bigger man. The reception I got when I got home, and in France, after I lost, showed the people were back of me. I even got a telegram from the president.

"Of course I felt bad about losing. Losing the people's championship. It wasn't my championship, and it isn't Turpin's. It belongs to the people."

Take a Boy Fishing

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

Not long ago I happened to see a man walk out of his house carrying his fishing gear. Waiting for him at the curb was a car in which were three other fishermen. On the sidewalk gazing longingly at the car, stood a small boy of, perhaps, nine or ten years.

The youngster didn't say anything about going along. No doubt he knew from past experience that such a request would be useless. So he simply stood there and watched these four fellows drive away, keeping his eyes on the car until it disappeared.

Of course I have no way of knowing whether or not his father takes him fishing now and then. That is a matter which concerns only the boy and his father, not to be inquired into by casual passers-by.

But I do know this, if that fellow confines his fishing to the company of four grown-ups, neglecting the chance to watch boyish enthusiasms at work, he is missing one of the most pleasant experiences a man can have.

My son, Dick, has gone fishing with me ever since he was a baby. When he was two and a half he caught his first brook trout. Even at that age he knew how to cast. I made a tiny fly rod for him from the tip joint of a bass-bug rod and he learned in our living room.

Clever Cuss

At the age of four he raised, hooked, played and landed a fourteen-inch brown trout, all by himself and with no aid from his proud parent.

By the time he was 14 he made a better boat companion than most of the fellows I know. He could handle the boat to perfection along a tricky shore line and he could hold his own with the best of them when it came to taking bass with a bass bug.

Dick learned his fishing the hard way. He was granted no favors and given no odds. In other words, he competed on even terms with his elders. If I, or we, caught fish and he did not, he understood that he was at fault.

Always I saw to it that his tackle was as good as ours. I gave him instruction when he asked for it. Otherwise he was on his own. It is a mistake to make things too easy for a boy.

One day a friend of mine stopped me on the street in downtown New York. He wanted to know where he and his son could find some top-notch bass fishing. I asked him why.

"I want him to become interested in fishing," he said. "He's growing up and we could have a lot of fun, going fishing together."

Make Him Work

"You are making a mistake," I told him, "to take him, first off, to the best bass fishing you can find. That makes it too easy. Make him learn it the hard way. Then he will appreciate it."

My friend refused to believe me. The following week he and his son journeyed to the best bass fishing I could find for him. I met him again shortly after his return and asked him about the fishing.

"Best I ever saw," he said. "No trouble to fill a boat with fish if you wanted to."

"How about the boy? Did he like it?"

"Oh, he had fun for the first day or so. After that he grew tired of catching fish. Spent the rest of the week going to the ball games."

This, I think, bears out my contention that it does not pay to make fishing too easy for a youngster. Good fishing, as you very well know, is not easy to find and, when found, should be appreciated. A boy who has not experienced bad fishing cannot appreciate the good. He has no yardstick with which to measure it.

Don't Spoil Them

Moreover, I think that it is wrong for a youngster to be taken along on every trip. That, too, will spoil him. He comes to regard going along as his right rather than a highly delightful privilege. Keep his enthusiasm sharp by leaving him home now and then.

A great many seasoned anglers are apt to forget how much fun it is to learn how to fish. After a certain number of years the sport lacks novelty. Believe me, a sure cure for angling boredom is to teach a boy what you have learned.

Show him, for example, how to gather bait. You will have as much fun as he does catching "nightwalkers" or "dew worms" with the aid of a flashlight. Seining hegramites from a riffle in a bass stream is hard work; netting minnows, catching grasshoppers, seining stone catfish in the dark, and so on — all these are tiring but with a boy along, learning the game, you will enjoy them as much as he does.

The simple beginnings are fun, too. Catching sunfish off a dock; fishing for panfish from an anchored boat; bait fishing a small trout stream, where caution and stealth are the keys to success; bait fishing for bass; these and many other things, done with a boy for company, are amusing and relaxing pastimes.

Turn Him Loose

For learning the fundamentals of angling, there is no better way than to give a boy an ample supply of bait, adequate tackle, a little instruction, and then turn him loose on a good trout stream or bass river or lake.

He will make mistakes, plenty of them. All right, let him make them rather than risk dampening his ardor with too much instruction. If you catch fish and he doesn't, you can depend upon it that sooner or later you are going to have to explain why this should be.

Of course, not all anglers are blessed with a son or sons. If you happen not to have a boy of your own, that doesn't make any difference borrow one. There are plenty of boys whose fathers are not fishermen, but it is a rare youngster indeed who doesn't want to learn how to fish.

At first glance you may feel that taking a boy fishing is simply a job of work. It is a responsibility, admittedly, but it is a pleasant one.

Believe it or not, the forgotten pleasures of early youth, can be relived through the eyes and enthusiasms of a boy. It is an experience not to be neglected. Try it and see for yourself. We're betting you are in for a big surprise and a pleasant one.

Adjourn Injunction On Rams Player

Winnipeg, Sept. 8 — (CP) — A hearing of a permanent injunction to bar tackle Dick Huffman of Winnipeg Blue Bombers from playing for any club other than Los Angeles Rams Friday was adjourned "tentatively" until Monday.

Chief Justice E. K. Williams of Court of King's Bench said he would try to reach a decision before that time, and advise counsels.

Only witness called before the luncheon recess was Joe Stydahar, head coach of the Rams, who were granted a temporery injunction here Aug. 23 by Mr. Justice J. J. Kelly.

CHURCH TOO BROAD

Atikokan, Ont. — (CP) — Because a local by-law states that a church must have 25 feet of space on either side, construction has been halted on a new Baptist church. The 24-foot church was to have been built on a 35-foot lot.

Senior Hockey Meeting Monday

A meeting of the district Senior "B" hockey group has been called for Monday evening at eight o'clock in the Belleville city hall by Lorne Cook, Kingston, OHA executive member.

Team representatives are expected from Kingston, Gananoque, Brockville, Belleville and two teams from Peterborough.

Frank Buckland, OHA executive member from Peterborough will also be in attendance.

Commercial Loop Opens Bowling

The Men's Commercial Bowling Loop got underway at the Bowl-O-Drome on Friday night and although most of the scores were below par there were a few good individual efforts with competition being very keen.

Moose Lodge and Alemite were the only seven point winners, over Welding Gases and Rockets. Moose won the first game by 3 pins and the second by seven.

Gourley Motors, Boziaks, Stephens-Adamson and Legionnaires were five point winners over Star Welding, Balyx, Mead Johnson and O'Neils.

Notable scores were bowled by Gar Anderson, 869; Carl Boziak, 778; Jack Young, 771; F. McLellan, 752; V. Sagriff, 712; George Bell, 696; J. Graham, 676; J. Fitzgerald, 676; and J. Barriage 671.

Tennis Notes

The Corby Cup playoffs have been held up due to bad weather but the Bay of Quinte Tennis League executive have set today as the deadline for terminating the semi-finals. The first leg of the final round will be played tomorrow on the courts of the club that finishes highest in the league standing. The other two matches will be played on the two following Sundays.

In the event of inclement weather matches will be played on the succeeding day.

By their defeat of Point Anne last Tuesday evening Quinte now tie for first place with Holloway Street in the intermediate loop. The church club however, have a chance to pull ahead as they have a game to play. Quinte have completed their schedule.

Standing in the intermediate league has Holloway and Quinte tied at 14 points each. Trenton is third with 10 points, followed by Point Anne with eight, St. Andrew's six, and Batawa two.

Tomorrow, Point Anne visit Batawa and on Wednesday Holloway and St. Andrews are due to play off the final scheduled game for these two clubs.

The Batawa dance committee are busy making arrangements for the end of the season dance at which the league trophies will be presented and details of this are hoped to be available next week.

Corner Shots

This afternoon Batawa will be in Peterborough to take on O'Halloran's of that city in their final scheduled Eastern Ontario League game of the season. The Shoetowners appear to be in fine form these days having just defeated Belleville twice by a score of 9-0.

Trenton and Belleville finish out their Bay of Quinte League schedule this afternoon at Bain Memorial Park in Trenton. This game will have little bearing on the standing as Belleville's defeat last Thursday knocked them out of the running for second place.

Tomorrow afternoon 6 RD and Batawa tie up in the Shoe town to decide which club shall represent the Bay of Quinte district in the provincial playoffs for the Ontario Intermediate Cup.

The winner of this game will play the winner of the Kingston district playoffs. In the other leg the Peterborough and Simcoe County winner play off.

It is hoped that play will get under way next week in the Belleville Charity Cup series and the Trenton Challenge Cup playdowns, but it all depends on the availability of the clubs playing in other competitions.

Now that school has started again the Bay of Quinte Football Association executive hopes to be able to start a schedule for junior competition.

'Arry Wants 'Ome Brews not Himports For 'Is 'Ockey, or Blimey, 'E'll Curl

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Sept. 7 (CP) —Another wishful effort to develop an English hockey nursery is about to be abandoned. It seems the spectators prefer curling.

For the last three years, under the direction of Canadian coach Gregory Ward, more than 100 lively English youngsters aged from 12 to 18 have practised Tuesday nights at a rink in Richmond, Surrey. Now the rink management, announcing that it sees no future for amateur hockey in Britain, has decided to stage curling matches instead.

The result is that the homebred hockey hopes won't be able to use the ice unless they can afford to pay to play. Up to now, they've just been charged two shillings each admission. Few can afford more than that, so the nursery will probably fold.

The Richmond rink did its best to attract a following for the puck sport. It even had an announcer explain the rules of the game over a loudspeaker. But the public presumably preferred Riverside pubs outside the rink, near a famous stretch of the Thames River which Turner used to like to paint.

"I'm sorry to say hockey hasn't caught on at all," an arena spokesman said. "We never had more than 100 or so spectators."

Blow to Home-Breds

Curling, on the other hand, drew large crowds. Starting this month, league matches will be played every Tuesday.

Collapse of the Richmond experiment will be hard on British hockey. For years, those interested in the ice sport have been trying to ensure its future by building up native English talent, instead of having the big leagues staffed almost exclusively with Canadians.

Last year all but two players on national teams were recruited in Canada.

Efforts to make hockey as popular as it is in Canada have not been notably successful, although the small percentage of British people who do not like the game are tremendously loyal. What an uphill battle hockey has to wage is shown by the fact that when an Englishman says hockey he means "field hockey." If he has the Canadian game in mind, he says "ice hockey."

One British book reviewer recently went to great pains to say that a Canadian-published manual on hockey should have been designated "ice hockey" so British readers wouldn't be confused.

Meanwhile, some observers feel that puck-chasing faces a difficult future here.

"Ice hockey is losing its grip on the public," says an anonymous article, in the Evening News. "The reason is that imported players, good though they are, do not provide the same attraction as home players."

Tie Horse's Tail To Start Gate

Cincinnati, Sept. 8 (AP)—A Hamilton, O., horse owner says he's got a "knotty" problem for the Ohio State Racing Commission to consider.

Someone, he claims, tied his horse's tail to the starting gate at Hamilton's racing park.

G. T. Becknell said in a letter to a Cincinnati columnist that the horse, Detroit Tiger, lost the race although it was a four-to-five favorite. The incident happened Aug. 22, Becknell told Ollie James of the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Becknell said he wrote a complaint to the racing commission, "but for this I was suspended and could not run my horses." He said the commission will hold a hearing on his charges at Columbus next Monday.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood Sept. 8—(AP)—Despite the beginning of coast-to-coast television this week, Hollywood is wallowing in a sea of optimism.

This is partially due to an all-industry drive to draw attention to the movies, to kick off Oct. 6 with film stars appearing in each state capital.

But the optimism is based on something sounder—a general upswing in Metropolitan movie attendance.

"Todotch—attractions have brought a considerable increase in film receipts, and there is hopeful talk that the 1951 business will top that of 1950.

Only one thing dampens the industry's spirits—the report that President Truman's address to the Japanese peace conference—televised across the country—got a record audience in many movie box-offices.

"But," shrugged one man, "how often do we have to compete with a peace conference?"

Ace in the Hole

The film studios have an ace in the hole in case television overwhelms them. They still have a vast libraries of film classics worth many millions of dollars if released to TV.

Insiders report that was behind the offer of San Francisco financier Louis Lurie to buy Warner Brothers. He was reported to have had his eye on the great backlog of pictures, which would bring a fortune in TV. When Warner Brothers found this out, the deal cooled in a hurry.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, September 9

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Especially friendly now for religious interests, family prayer, correspondence, artistic interests. Don't neglect essential work but do observe day as Sunday should be.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Very favorable rays in your sector, sponsoring in particular private and family interests, pleasant pastimes and, of course, spiritual devotions. Necessary work can be done cheerfully.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Should be stimulating, helpful day for authors, scientists, students, teachers, mental gymnastics. Don't offend God by lack of devotion to Him who gives us so much. Pray for peace.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—All selfishness, indulging "moods" taboo. Keep mind and heart high in spirit; prayer, restful relaxation, wholesome deeds are firsts. Consider children, old folks—aid them.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Pleasant indications, especially for you who are charitable, considerate of others, devoted to family and spiritual duties. Urgent work can move swiftly under sufficient help.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo)—Excellent day for study, reading, spiritual devotions, correspondence, improving a talent, hobby, getting needed rest. Attend your church.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Venus and other planets very friendly now, especially for personal interests, family and worthy socials. If mindful of obligations to God, country. Have faith, pray.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio) — Your aims artistic and religious nature should be to the fore. Venus, Mercury strengthen these; Put your best foot forward: Good day for good deeds, friendliness, prayer.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—About same indications for you as for Scorpio now. Start day right attending your church; pray earnestly for peace. Enjoy free time in wholesome pleasure, activities.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Saturn warns against needless changes in matters now running smoothly. Not the time to seek praise, but to put forth better effort. Don't neglect necessary work but do rest, recreate, too.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius)—Remember, it is Sunday; attend things indicidentally and do go to church for peace in the world; for that inner contentment that only comes from good living, love for God.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Mild influences, but girl, religion, home and social affairs are highly sponsored. Necessary tasks can be done without much fuss. Enjoy a hobby, some recreation.

YOU BORN TODAY: Fine reasoning facilities, innately honorable; Virgoans are meticulous about their habits; discriminating intuitive, critical but just. If true to your real self, and developing God's gifts to you, will also try to correct your faults and help others with theirs. Usually diplomatic, always resourceful. Faithful to a friend. Never stop educating yourself for often greatest achievement comes after middle life. Be careful not to carry criticism to an extreme.

Birth date: Count Leo Tolstoy, writer, philosopher; Luigi Galvani, noted Italian physiologists; physicist.

THIS MR. ICARUS

By Harry Meldrum Moore

But to Lance Bradley the most interesting incident of the whole thing was Constable Ryan's smile. With a flourish of the pen he put it on the way out of the hall a few minutes before.

On into the night, all through the next day, "the Slender scandal", as it was called, was the main topic of conversation in Emerton. And then there were those who had any sympathy for the ex-chief. It was felt he'd received his just deserts. That afternoon's Ensign carried the most startling headline in its short existence as a daily newspaper.

On Saturday night, a few minutes after nine o'clock, Radio Station CKDE broadcast the news that there would be a municipal election on Monday, January 8, and gave the names of the three candidates for the mayoralty, the nine aldermen who had qualified on council. Manager Ted Wilson informed all candidates that during the week fifteen minutes free time each on the radio was theirs for the asking. He told them to drop in and complete the necessary arrangements.

There was no issue of The Ensign on New Year's Day, but early Tuesday, Friday to the following Saturday inclusive, carried the election advertisements with the names of the candidates. Also there was no such sketch for Lance Bradley. His ad, in the paper was among the most conspicuous, a two column, two-inch space in which were the simple words: "Your vote and influence respectfully solicited for Lance Bradley — Councillor for 1952."

Only that and nothing more.

That municipal election campaign went down in the books as the most bitterly contested election in the history of the Town of Emerton. But the bitterness was not laid at the door of The Ensign or the radio station. Publisher Bradley's orders to his newsroom staff was to treat it as straight news, that the paper's policy of strict neutrality must be strictly adhered to. In addition they urged that every voter in the town turn out on election day. Even Doris Parker, in her daily column to her women readers, told them the importance of casting a ballot in the election, to vote as they liked but to be sure to vote. It was only by secret ballot and without pressure that a democracy could be maintained.

I lashed into a keen sense of public duty by radio and newspaper, the total vote that election day was the highest ever recorded in a municipal election in the history of the town of Emerton. It was a sign that civic conscientiousness that had been permitted to lapse by a "don't care, not-interested", attitude had been fully aroused. That from then on, more care would be taken in the choice of men to fill the various municipal offices, that business and professional men who had no thought of serving their town would be encouraged to do so, knowing that sitting behind them to see that they received fairplay was an exceptionally good daily newspaper, a fine radio station.

CKDE was on the air with the first election returns shortly after the polls closed at seven o'clock that night. Two hours later Manager Ted Wilson gave the names of the victorious candidates, and the vote they had received. Mayor Joe Crookes had defeated his two opponents by a small majority, but every member of his council had gone down to defeat. Among the new councillors was Lance Bradley, who not only headed the poll in Ward No. 3 but received more votes than any candidate in the contest.

Lance's supporters opined that he would have been just as successful if he had opposed Crookes for the mayoralty, when they gathered around him at the town hall following that election night. But, of that, he was not so sure. The re-election of Crookes was attributed, not so much to his popularity for he didn't appear to be popular, but the fact that his opponents had split the vote. But, then, Crookes was known to be an excellent organizer, a man who worked quietly in a door-to-door canvass. Still, in a straight fight, it was believed that either Penrock or Sarsfield would have beaten him.

Lance Bradley was completely satisfied then with the results of the 'post free' week's work — the council's prompt action in dismissing Chief Slender, the people's decision to change the personnel of town council. It was most unfortunate that Crookes had managed to slip in as mayor again, but the mayor's bed would not be one of roses. He could visualize even then Mayor Crookes in the unenviable position of having to preside over a group of men who would be digging into his past dealings with the municipality, seeking the necessary information that would lead to his impeachment. For among the men in council now were men of municipal experience, shrewd business men who played their lives straight and would not condone crookedness in those they must associate with.

But Lance Bradley was soon to learn that while the road ahead for Mayor Crookes would be one of pitfalls and obstructions, it would be no easy road for him either. Having raised his head above the crowd he was offering himself as a target. And it was no time until he was ready to admit that Dad Roberts had been right when he had warned him to be on his guard.

In his mail that morning after election, and before he was to take his oath of office, Lance received a neatly typed letter in a neatly addressed envelope. The letter read:

"Bradley, you're an upstart — a no-good bum. In fact, Bradley may not be going to office at all. Why the people of this town should pay any attention to you is a mystery. Get wise to yourself and pull out before it is too late. FAIR WARNING".

The name at the bottom of the letter was "John Palms", and as far as Lance knew there was no such person in Emerton, but he could be wrong. Smarting under the attack of this person, Lance rushed with the letter to the newspaper, passed it around. And despite the protestations of Managing Editor Gordon who advised that such letters were received in the best newspaper offices and that he should pay no attention to it, Lance offered $50 to the man who would find John Palms and bring him to his office.

CHAPTER XXV

At the inaugural meeting of the new town council that January forenoon, Lance Bradley was named chairman of the Fire and Police Committee. He was also appointed to the Industries Committee.

His first act after appointment was to call his committee together to advertise for a successor to the dismissed Chief Slender, and for two additional constables for a force that was inadequate to police properly, a town the size of Emerton. In selection of these men, preference would be given to war veterans with previous police experience. The advertisement stated that applications for the positions must be in the hands of Town Clerk Jenners by the evening of Thursday, January 26, which, by the way, was the night before Goldie Webster was invited to meet one Jacky Peever in a five round bout at town hall.

By that date, too, Nelson Sperling would close the books on the first year's business of The Daily Ensign and Radio Station CEDE, and prepare his financial statement. Lance's treasurer warned him not to expect too much, that while paper and radio station had enjoyed a good year's business, it might not prove sufficient to show a balance on the right side of the ledger.

Although days passed without a second letter from the mysterious John Palms, Lance did not dismiss him from his mind. He was only too well aware that other Palms' letters would be reaching his desk, and possibly at times when he would least expect them.

Talking to Reporter Bill Artist about this matter one day, he was informed that a search of telephone and town directories and the voters' lists did not reveal such a name as John Palms.

"The name is assumed—it's an alias," Artist pointed out. "It is the assumed name of some person who is gunning for you, trying to frighten you. Now, if I were you, I wouldn't let it worry me a particle. The man who writes a letter like that is a dirty coward, and if you give him time, and you can take it, he'll give himself away."

"There's fifty bucks in it if you round him up," Lance said. "And, I'm not kidding. You and Terry did such a fine job in getting me the low-down on the town councillors, I'm expecting you to make a good job on the man Palms. And by the way, have you anything on Brown Paving yet?"

"We're still working on it, Chief," Artist said. "We should have all the facts for you shortly."

As chairman of the Fire and Police Committee, it was Lance's duty to go to the dismissed chief constable and tell him to turn in his equipment to the police station. Since Slender's whap had been clipped, since he had been dismissed in disgrace, from the force, people felt free to talk about him, and tell tales. Some of these true stories—in Lance's estimation was the one about the night the Emerton chief, apparently under the influence of drink, had wandered into a game rock main in the Gilroy barn north of the town. The boys had taken up a collection for him, given him plenty to drink and sent him on his way talking to himself. Slender never had prosecuted those law-breakers.

Lance drove to the Slender residence, found the ex-chief in overalls working in the yard behind the house. Slender received him coldly, but when Lance explained the object of his mission, he said that it had all been an oversight on his part, that he had never intended to keep town equipment and he would turn it in that day. While there, Lance reminded the former police chief that the case would not be entirely settled until he returned Henry Weber's money to him. Slender said he would—when he had it.

It was only too obvious to the townspeople now that Slender and Bill Craik had been in collusion all the years they had been together as police chief and police committee chairman, respectively. Unquestionably Bill Craik had been carrying on his business as bootlegger and gambler under police protection, for at no time in those years had he appeared in court to answer to any charges preferred against him for law-breaking. That Bill Craik was running a gambling dive within corporation limits even yet, was indeed possible, if the people who knew could be found and if they could be made to talk.

Lance decided that one of the duties of the new chief constable would be to keep Bill Craik under surveillance at all times in the best interests of the town. Meanwhile Craik was much in evidence on the streets of Emerton. Lance had met and spoken to him on several occasions. Craik was still well-dressed, and well-groomed. But of Ed. Maker, the other member of that triumvirate of town hall up to election time, he was seldom seen outside his south end grocery store any more.

While Lance Bradley and his committee were advertising for police officers, Finance Chairman Dr. Johnson was trying to ascertain the actual state of the town's finances.

Lance didn't know about that survey until he went to the finance chairman with the suggestion that fire chief and at least three members of the fire brigade be put on duty at the fire hall on a salary basis. Dr. Johnson said that was something that just couldn't possibly be done at the present time. The town had more money on its books than it had in the bank. The taxes were in a deplorable state. The arrears ran into thousands of dollars, and the apparently little or no effort had been made to collect them. He said he had told the tax collector to get busy at once, that he must see that all current taxes were paid without further delay, that he must notify tax-payers who were in arrears that the council meant to collect every last cent they owed without further notice and without further leniency. And so Lance Bradley's plan to have paid firemen at the hall to meet any emergency, was shelved for the time being, any way.

About this time Lance Bradley began to think of Goldie Webster's future in matters of dollars and cents. Goldie would be eighteen that coming October 21. The will Lance had made which bequeathed his entire estate to a boy who was so young and so inexperienced, would never do. It was unfair to him, particularly if Lance were to be called away suddenly. In that case a guardian would have to be appointed to look after Goldie Webster until he was of age, and what then?

Ex-Army Captain is Named Primate of Church of England in Canada

Most Rev. Walter Foster Barfoot, who won the Croix de Guerre as an infantry captain in the First World War, has been installed as primate of the Church of England in Canada. The 58-year-old Bishop of Edmonton, who essentially became an archbishop after his installation, was elected to the church's highest office by the Electoral College of the Anglican General Synod, now in session at Victoria, B.C. In succeeding the late Most Rev. George Frederick Kingston, Archbishop of Nova Scotia, who died last November, Archbishop Barfoot became the eighth church dignitary to head such important position in 58-year-history of the general synod. Above, congratulations are offered by archbishop John Lyons of Kingston, left, and Bishop G. W. Gibson of Caledonia, Ont., right. — Central Press Canadian.

Missing Hockey Star, Dentist If Still Alive Have Chance Of Being Rescued from Bush

By ELMER BONTER
(Staff Reporter)

Kapuskasing (Special)—If hockey star Bill Barilko and Dr. Henry Hudson, the Timmins sportsman dentist are still alive their chances of surviving the ordeals of the James Bay wasteland increased with a rise in the temperature last night. And as the all-out RCAF search for the missing fishing enthusiasts went into the 12th day slight overcast with a summer-hot sun beaming through gave tired eyed observers another ray of encouragement. Flying operations started off enthusiastically again at 7.00 a.m. this morning.

The great amount of flying activity attracted scores of curious local residents, who milled around the airport entrance watching the big search planes head out on various missions. A rescue helicopter drew particular attention as it soared away to investigate gas caches and strange ground markings in the Rupert House vicinity.

1,200 Hours of Flying

By nightfall the RCAF had spent 1,200 flying hours on the hunt. Bethboond World War II veterans had added what they term a fantastic number of flying hours to their already large total. More than 80,000 gallons of gasoline have been consumed by the far-ranging search planes. In terms of money this operation has been costly but air crews have acquired valuable knowledge of flying over the rugged country with only visible navigational aids most of the time to set course on. Most of the pilots are finding this type of flying entirely different, and adapting themselves ably to "seat of the pants" procedure.

Always Danger Element

There is always the danger element in every search made in the late tracts. But the old sweats (former bomber pilots) treat each search as a wartime operation. Caution is a golden rule strictly observed by all commanders and air crews at all times. The Lancasters as an example must be in the right place for 24 hours unrefield, covering distances of 2,000 miles and upwards.

Trenton flyer F/O. Alan Vandenwater has been in on the search ever since the first day it started. He has flown a four-engined plane for many hours and scores thousands of miles of bush and muskeg. Like the rest he has seen nothing exciting. Indications along the rivers or giant muskeg in natural surroundings splashed the shores and streams of the many lakes and rivers in the James Bay wasteland.

Searching Big Area

Searchers are scanning a 500-mile long by 400-mile wide area for a yellow Fairchild float plane that carried the Bill Barilko party out of Rupert House at 5 p.m. on August 26. Indians reported that this three-passenger machine was apparently heavily loaded and started up and down the water for a half hour before finally lumbering into the air. Indians have also reported Hudson's plane was bucking a 60-mile an hour head wind. Cruising speed of the plane was 100 miles an hour, indicating that forward travel would be about 40 miles an hour.

Last observers to see Barilko and Hudson alive are sure they headed in the direction of South Porcupine. However the strong head wind could have blown their plane off course and had their compass been affected by northern magnetic disturbances it would be hard to say where they finally came down. With the estimated amount of gas supply aboard, a circle in the opposite direction would fly them out into the centre of James Bay. A variation to the west would let them down in the Ungava wilderness and so on. Any theory as to their disappearance has been wholly based on supposition, although Searchmaster F/L. Huston gives top priority to any hot tip or unusual observation. An oil slick on a 30 miles east of this base yesterday for example was traced in a helicopter to its source where a tractor had been filling up with gas on the shore some distance upstream.

Ceiling 500 Feet at Takeoff

Men who know this country and the ability of Dr. Hudson as a pilot contend something would have to be radically wrong with the plane to lose his way. Ceiling was down to 500 feet at take-off and the flyer-dentist is a highly trained in navigation he would have followed a pinpointed course. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pilliard, 25 and 23 respectively, all of St. Camille, Wolfe county; Mr. and Mrs. Jules Poliquin, 29 and 21, Wotto, Wolfe county.

Crashes Into Wreckage

A second truck, driven by Emile Girard of St. Felix de Kingsey, crashed into the wreckage. Girard is in hospital in Sorel suffering the loss of an eye and severe head injuries. His condition is described as "very critical."

Before lapsing into consciousness, Girard told hospital attendants he saw the approaching vehicles on the highway but could not stop in time. He remembered nothing after the crash.

Another pilot into Girard's truck but the occupants were only shaken up and were allowed to proceed on their way.

Removal of the debris to underwater establishments here and clearing of the highway was not officially reported to have started today.

Detective Sergeant C. Farah-Lajoie in charge of the provincial police detachment for Drummond-Athabaska counties, said he was sickened at the sight when he arrived at the scene. He said the worst Quebec traffic mishap he could recall.

He said occupants of the truck were thrown out or their vehicle by the force of the impact.

"The highway around here is straight and our investigation go to show that the drivers had taken the car and that both men in the truck had been drinking."

Identity of nine bodies had been identified by relatives, district coroner Dr. Rene Millet postponed the inquest indefinitely pending completion of police investigation.

Canada Protests Red China's Policy Toward Canadians

Harsh Treatment Inflicted On Seven Missionaries

Ottawa, Sept. 10 — (CP) — The External Affairs Department announced today that Canada has expressed "grave concern" to Peking "at (communist) China's policy toward Canadians and request that measures be taken in the near future to bring about an improvement in the situation."

Noting that seven Canadians are known to be under arrest in China, the department said that Canada made representations Sept. 1 through the United Kingdom charge d'affaires in Peking to the foreign minister of the central people's government of China.

This action marked the first time that the Canadian government has publicly assailed China for conduct which has caused considerable concern here.

Worked Quietly Earlier

The policy in the past has been to work quietly and without publicity in an effort to help those imprisoned.

Today's statement, said "representations have been made in April about the arrest of United Kingdom, Australian, Canadian and United States nationals and their detention incommunicado, often without any explanation of the reason for their arrest."

"However, the position has in fact deteriorated since that time with arbitrary arrests and detention for indefinite periods without access to families, friends or nations representatives have continued.

"Harsh treatment has been inflicted on missionaries of all denominations and on other people who for many years have been engaged in humanitarian work in China. In addition continual difficulties and delays are placed in the way of all classes of foreign nationals wishing to obtain entry and exit permits.

Seven Under Arrest

"The treatment inflicted on Canadians in China is a matter of continuing concern to the Canadian government which welcomed the opportunity of being associated with the approach of the United Kingdom charge d'affaires in the Peking government, who spoke on behalf of the governments of the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia and the United States.

"It will be recalled that seven Canadians are known to be under arrest in China. Five Sisters of the Canadian Congregation are being detained in Canton; Dr. Stewart Allen, a United Church missionary, is under arrest in Szechwan; Bishop C. M. Ly-Fan of the Order of the Immaculate Fathers was arrested at Yuanling and is now reported to be in hospital but there is no indication that he has been released from detention."

BRITAIN'S DOLLAR EARNINGS FALLING, CRISIS THREATENS

World-Wide Weakening Of Confidence in Pound

London, Sept. 10—(AP)—Britain seems headed for financial difficulties again.

The gap between the price she pays for her imports and what she can get for her exports has widened drastically in the last few months. Her dollar earnings are falling.

There are signs of a progressive world-wide weakening of confidence in the pound sterling. The New York price for free sterling, widely used to finance international trade, at the week-end stood at $2.51 to the pound, a discount of more than 10 per cent on the official rate of $2.80. Just before the start of the Korean war in June, 1950, the free pound was up to $2.70 in New York.

The free market price of pounds also has slumped in Switzerland—another "hard currency" country.

Another tip-off on the situation is the rising demand for Canadian and American securities on the London Stock Exchange. Money-wise British investors are switching to dollar shares both with an eye to escaping the government's tax control over dividends and as a hedge against possible further devaluation of the pound.

All these symptoms are evident in the months preceding Britain's September, 1949, devaluation of the pound from $4.03 to $2.80 U. S.

May Devalue Further

Unofficial reports say that treasury experts have the question of a further devaluation of sterling under almost continuous study. Others say there is no immediate fear of this since any solid indication that devaluation is imminent immediately would cause traders to hold off orders from Britain until the new rate was set—as was done in making inevitable such a step.

This was one fear Chancellor Gaitskell put a 1949 devaluation.

Devaluation eased the drain on Britain's gold and dollar reserves and enabled her to improve her trading position.

At the first of the year Britain pridefully announced she was doing so well she could get along without any more Marshall aid.

NINE ARE KILLED WHEN CAR, TRUCK COLLIDE HEAD-ON

Seven of Victims On Way to Pilgrimage

Drummondville, Que., Sept. 10—(CP)—Nine persons were killed late Saturday night in the largest single highway accident in the year in Quebec province as an automobile and a light delivery truck collided head-on near this eastern townships centre.

There were no survivors and on eyewitnesses to the crash which developed into a four-way collision before Quebec provincial police could clear the highway of charred and twisted bodies and wreckage.

Seven of the victims—on a pilgrimage to St. Joseph's Oratory in Montreal—during death on the east in which they were riding became their funeral pyre, catching fire after the force of the impact turned it over.

Police said all were knocked unconscious and were unable to get out of the overturned car.

The other two victims were occupants of the truck, and were identified as Lionel Messier, 23, and Benoit Caudreault, 30, both of St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Car victims were identified as: Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pelletier, 45 and 47 respectively, and their four-year-old daughter, Noella; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Pilliard, 25 and 23 respectively, all of St. Camille, Wolfe county; Mr. and Mrs. Jules Poliquin, 29 and 21, Wotto, Wolfe county.

Worst Post-War Diplomatic Defeat Given Russians

New Treaty-Wrecking Campaign is Predicted

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

San Francisco, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Andrei Gromyko is going home from the San Francisco conference with Russia's worst postwar diplomatic defeat on his record—and with ammunition for a new wrecking campaign against the Japanese peace treaty.

American diplomats predicted Russia will do its utmost to undermine popular support for the treaty with a massive propaganda attack throughout Asia and the far east.

Gromyko, who left by train for New York yesterday, prepared the ammunition for that assault in his speeches and action at the peace conference — assisted by his charges of American "dictation" and his repeated forecasts of a "new war" in the Orient. He also made much of communist China's exclusion.

At some point, furthermore, it is considered probable that Russia will put forth, in collaboration with communist China, plans for a west-communist-bloc peace treaty with Japan.

Forty-eight countries signed the peace treaty with Japan Saturday. For three days Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko had cried his warnings of war and had tried to get acceptance of amendments which would have rendered Japan defenceless.

Not One Held Back

But at the signing the United States scored a sweep. Not one country was held back by Gromyko's arguments.

State department officials were especially pleased that Pakistan and Indonesia accepted the treaty; they had been uncertain and their influence in Asia is of great importance. Only setting this again is the fact that India with great Asian prestige did not attend.

However, the Indian mission in Tokyo announced yesterday India is ready to end its state of war with Japan when the treaty becomes effective.

Quickly following up the peace pact, which will enable Japan to rearm and take collective-security measures, State Secretary Dean Acheson and Japanese Premier Shigeru Yoshida concluded a defense treaty late Saturday.

Continue Armed Forces

The U.S. will gain under this the right to continue keeping armed forces in Japan and using Japanese bases when the peace treaty ends the occupation.

Both pacts have to be ratified before they can become effective.

Premier Yoshida will leave for Tokyo Tuesday. He will find a country divided, as the world is divided, about the treaty. Its ratification clearly will be a major political issue in Japan.

Conservative party members generally endorsed the peace Yoshida had made but socialist complained against the reparations provisions and Japan's loss of various islands, and denied it was a treaty of "reconciliation."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Sept. 10—(CP)— An extensive area of cloudiness and rain is edging into western Ontario this morning. This storm area will move eastward through Ont. prevents and bright some rain in most regions by midnight. Cloud will remain over the eastern area operating with the rain ending in the afternoon.

Afternoon temperatures Tuesday will average about five degrees lower, with minimum temperatures tonight holding between 55 and 60.

Three Injured In Car Crashes Over Weekend

Bancroft. (Special.)— Three persons were injured, one seriously, in a two-car collision near here over the weekend.

Neville Douglas, Greenview, near here is in Trenton Memorial suffering with severe facial and chest injuries following a car-truck collision seven miles south of this village.

Rene Sebern, 19, Coe Hill, was taken to Bancroft Hospital, following a two-car sideswipe collision while Sherre Fleming, Lochaber suffered slight injuries when his car turned over near L'Amable.

All three accidents took place within twelve hours on Saturday.

Douglas was riding in his own car driven by George Childerhose, Maple Leaf, when it crashed head-on into a panel truck, driven by Albert W. Horlock, R. R. Belleville, Saturday evening. Taken to Toronto.

Douglas, badly injured was rushed to Bancroft hospital and was ordered to a Toronto hospital by attending physicians Drs. Anderson and Lamb. Childerhose escaped under arrest by investigating provincial police officers. Corporal Gosling and Constable Lloyd and Hawkins. Charges are pending.

Sebern's car turned turtle in a ditch near Spring Lake, 12 miles south of here when it was in a sideswipe collision with that driven by Lewis R. Cline, R.R. 8, Belleville. Sebern was taken to Bancroft hospital suffering with severe facial lacerations. Damage to both cars was estimated at $1,000.

Congress of Labor President Renews Labor's Demand for Price Controls

Halifax, Sept. 10 — (CP) — President Percy Bengough of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, addressing the opening session of the T. L. C.'s annual convention, today renewed labor's demand for price controls.

He said the skyrocketing cost of food and household commodities is the 'immediate worst' of the unwanted babies on our doorstep."

Mr. Bengough in his address to nearly 600 delegates, representing 000-member congress, declared:

"It is true that the government has sought to restrict credit by taxing but this is comparable to mopping up the floor without stopping the leak and at best is class legislation, restricting only the buying of the poor unless they, as many have been forced to do, borrow the required down payment from a shark loan company.

"The veteran president delivered a blow at the federal government for its recent statements—through Prime Minister St. Laurent and Labor Minister Gregg—that more unemployment and unemployment would be one of the key ways to overcome inflation.

"We have heard so much from half-baked economists on need for more procedure and long hours in order to cure inflation," he said "yet sickness and poor housing still remain a greater cause of lost time than all other causes put together."

The T. L. C. chief was calling for a national scheme of health insurance, and declared what he called the "parrot replies" of government that the time was not yet opportune for it.

Turning to foreign affairs, he said that, while the congress statement of principles has a disarmament plank in it, the T. L. C. should support the government's defence program and the Atlantic Pact.

"We believe in disarmament and are opposed to war," he said, "but a gigantic war machine has been built and is still being built in the land of Stalin.

Australian Wilderness To Become Britain's Testing Range for New Atomic Bomb

Adelaide, Australia, Sept. 10—(Reuters)—Woomera, the $60,000,000 rocket-testing base in the heart of Australia's vast wildlands, is the spot where the first British atomic bomb is expected to be set off shortly, despite official protestations that no such plan is afoot.

Five years ago, Woomera was a spot in the wilderness.

Today, it is a town with a population, of about 4,000—scientists, technicians, builders, laborers and tradesmen. Of the $60,000,000 equipment which lies out on the range and which will be the main stake for an atom-bomb test, few know anything.

Within the town itself, air-conditioned homes have replaced the canvas camps of the early days. There are civic and shopping centres, paved streets, open-air cafes, schools and a theatre.

Woomera is well-adapted for the dispersion of the after-effects of an atomic explosion. For hundreds of miles in all directions there is nothing to hinder the radiation of radio-active dusts.

Winds cannot take them to harm. Rainfall is low and the surrounding water or natural foods to be contaminated.

The few people who should know in detail what has been achieved and what is planned at Woomera do not talk about it.

Outside observers attach significance to the visit to Australia of Dr. J. B. Conant, president of Harvard University and chairman of the scientific of the joint allied committee during the Second World War.

He was at Los Alamos in Mexico when the first atom bomb was exploded July 16, 1945. He was a member of the panel of investigating scientists.

Dr. Conant, a commonwealth jubilee visitor, spent more than a week here—more than the state visit as such, would seem to warrant.

Russian-Type Rockets Used in Last War Land Behind Allied Lines

U.S.-Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Sept. 10 (AP) — Remnants of the MIGs brought the Russians in the Second World War have landed behind Allied lines on the east central front, it was officially reported today.

There was speculation they might be Russian-flown MIGs in Korea by communist Caucasian troops recently reported near the battle front.

No Allied installations were hit. Official sources refused to disclose the number of rockets that landed.

Since last war, 30 American F-86 Sabre jets tangled with 80 Russian type MIG 15s over North west Korea in one of history's biggest jet battles. Two communist planes were damaged.

Today, 18 more jet battle in two days. Sunday the Allies shot down five sheiks there in another. There were no Allied losses in either scrap.

Pilots were told unofficially tonight they have reliable but not conclusive evidence that Russian pilots have been flying some of the MIGs in battle against United Nations.

In Pusan, Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, said the reds paid dearly for the short but savage attacks they started last week in western Korea.

"In all their attacks we have beaten them, inflicting great losses," he said. "And the United Nations' army pays no attention to territory than it did a week ago."

Earlier he said reds suffered more than 25,000 casualties in the recent "battle of the hills" in central Korea.

"It was butchery," he said.

The general said his troops had inflicted more than 40,000 casualties—equal to five communist divisions—on the Chinese and North Koreans since Aug. 1.

Asked about the suspended Panmunjom negotiations, Van Fleet said:

"The only medicine for the enemy at this time is a victory for the U.N. Army."

Allied warships Sunday pounded the communists from both the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan. British shells from the frigate Cardigan Bay lit the scene for the U.S. destroyer Ahnkil and the Australian frigate H.M.S. Murchison. A naval communique said the ships blasted troop position, gun positions and traffic facilities around the Han River estuary on the west coast.

On the east coast, allied vessels hit Songjin, Wonsan and the Kojo area. Three barges were sunk. A communist shore battery opened fire, but scored no hits.

Driver-Training Classes at BCI Are Resumed

Driver-training classes at the Belleville Collegiate were resumed this afternoon, it was stated today by motor mechanics instructor Ardell Wilson, who is in charge of the driving courses.

It is expected that approximately 40 students will be enrolled in the course in senior and junior classes. The senior students will resume driving lessons from where they left off at the end of the school term in June, while the juniors will take driving theory until they are advanced sufficient to go out behind the wheel.

Driver-training classes were instituted at the collegiate last spring principally through the efforts of Mr. Wilson who volunteered to act as instructor. The driver training car was provided the school through Bateman Motors.

POLICE BLOTTER

A chain re-action rear end collision on the four corners occurred Saturday afternoon when a transport driver, Raymond Marsicic of Shannonville rammed into a line of cars stopped for the red light at the West and Bridge Street intersection.

The transport was damaged to the extent of about $200 when the radiator and grill, while minor damages resulted to three other vehicles which were forced ahead by the impact.

A complaint that boys were shooting rifles in the St. Paul Street area was received by police over the weekend. Fearing that a stray pellet or bullet might injure someone, police checked in the area, but found no one using rifles.

On complaint of a woman residing in an apartment on Upper Front Street, that a man was trying to get into her apartment, police checked and arrested a man on a drunk charge.

'World's Fair' at Shannonville Favored With Fine Weather, Large Crowd, Excellent Exhibits

Increased exhibits in field and garden products and in household science, closely contested horse and beef cattle classes between two contestants vieing for the honor of catching the greasy pig, and fine weather at Shannonville "World's Fair" Saturday afternoon.

After a week of rainy weather and cloudy skies, fair directors at Shannonville drew the jackpot and bright sunny skies welcomed fair-goers as they streamed through fair ground gates on the banks of the Shannon River. It was a typical fair day and in the words of a long time fair-goer, the crowd was "interested."

"What I mean is that everyone seemed to be interested in some feature of the air program and they were all watching something," he said. And that is just what fair directors aim for. President Fred Ketcheson, Herbert McFarlane, vice president Ed Lasier and Percy Moore, with Kenneth Vivian, as secretary-treasurer.

Children Parade

Starting off the afternoon's program was the parade of school children headed by the Kinsmen Boys' Band in their attractive bright orange and blue uniforms. Each of the children in the parade received five dollars cash from the fair board, while the first three received handsome prizes of $3, $3, and $2 donated by Dr. Bateman of Belleville, Shannonville Public and Continuation School; S.S. 4 Shelter's School, and S.S. No. 5, Millhows.

As is customary at Shannonville the baby show was well contested and the Ladies' auxiliary contest judge, compliments of the mothers on the healthy condition of their babies.

Winners in the 6-12 month class for girls were Valerie Verwey, Lorna Mae Ketcheson and Lou Hamilton; for boys the same age class were Ronald Mellon, Terry Stratton and Lloyd Clancy. In the 1-6 month class, winners were James Carl Wood, Larry Rupert and Douglas Fox.

Some of the best horse and cattle seen in the district this year was in evidence with each heat of the harness classes, and also the running race which ended the day down the finish wire. There were six classes of horses entered and classified and free-for-all —and also two classes of running races, one being a single green class. There was also a pony race and a bicycle race.

The top feature events of the afternoon was a tractor safety driving competition sponsored by the Department of Agriculture with members of the county tractor clubs taking part.

Emphasis was distinctly on safe driving with the boys having to keep right on the ball to put tractors with various hitches through the paces. Tractors were loaned for the competition by dealers showing equipment at the fair.

Wins Driving Competition

Winner of the driving competition was Bob Mallory of Trenton with second and third place winners being Bob Harris and Ross Moorcroft, both of Madoc. Included as part of the competition was a tractor defects test. Tractors were deliberately given minor defects and the drivers were required to find the defects and get the tractors operating. Glen Wilson, Stirling, found all defects in the shortest time. Eleven boys entered the competition.

Fair directors were particularly pleased over the increase in the number of exhibits in the agricultural building. There was a good showing of fruits and vegetables; the school exhibit was especially attractive, while the flower show was possibly the best in the history of the fair.

Small Cheese Exhibit

There was a small cheese exhibit with Clarence Mastin, R. R. 3, Belleville; Alva McAllister, Marysville, having entries.

Exhibitors in the fowl classes included Ernest Sheppard, Centreton; Mrs. Roy Clasie, Belleville, R. R. 4; Percy McGuire, Crookston and Arthur Chambers, Napanee. Showing hogs were Arthur Chambers with Yorks and Don Heath of Stirling with Tamworths. A few sheep were also shown.

Good Midway

A fair would not be a fair without a midway and there was a good midway at Shannonville, including various rides and the inevitable concessions for the boys and girls to try their skill or luck. Melrose United Church supplied meals on the grounds.

Besides the Kinsmen Boys' Band musical entertainment included the Campbellford Hill Billies orchestra, which played old time selections on the midway stand. The Hill Billies also played for the evening dance held at the agricultural hall.

Short Crop Late Potatoes Is Predicted

A short crop of late potatoes in the Bay of Quinte district was predicted here Saturday by farmers attending the local produce market.

Farmers stated that extremely wet weather and blight had caused rotting of the tubers with entire hills of spuds of the late varieties in most instances being found rotten on digging. Early potatoes are also touched with blight in some instances, it was said.

An increase in the price of late potatoes this week-end market was predicted and already due to the expected local shortage, prices have firmed slightly.

Trenton Making Efforts to Have Royal Couple Travel in Open Cars

Efforts are being made to have Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip ride from the Trenton CNR station to the RCAF station on October 5th in open automobiles and not in closed cars as called for in present plans, Mayor Kenneth Couch told the Ontario Intelligencer yesterday.

"We believe that a great number of people want to get a glimpse of the Royal couple during their brief stay in this district," the mayor added, "and we have requested that arrangements calling for closed cars be changed to include open automobiles."

While Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip are expected to travel at a speed of six miles per hour along designated routes, the rate of speed from the Trenton station to the RCAF station will be eight miles per hour, due to time limitations.

Time, the mayor said, is an important factor in the Royal itinerary. The Royal couple have been allowed but seventeen minutes for their reception at the Trenton RCAF officers' mess. This will mean that presentations will be pared to the minimum.

Ceremonies at the Trenton railway station will be brief. Presentations will be limited to a few which includes the mayor and town council and representatives of Trenton organizations.

To save time, the mayor of Belleville, Trenton, Picton and Cobourg will meet Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip at the RCAF officers' mess located at the Trenton railway station.

Over 100 police officers including members of the Ontario Provincial Police and district officers will be on duty to handle what is expected to be the largest traffic problem in the history of Trenton.

Special arrangements for local and visiting press are being completed.

Meanwhile down in Kingston, changes in plans will permit the school children of that city to see the Royal couple.

Word received from Ottawa states that arrangements for the visit have been modified to permit the Royal couple to arrive at the Canadian Pacific Railway station directly in front of the city hall. This will eliminate the long journey down Montreal Street to the Royal Military College.

School children will congregate at a special vantage point to see the visitors.

The visitors captured the mixed doubles as well with Gwyneth Bennett and Thorold Horwood beating Jo Gist and Dan Cooney 8-7, 6-4, and Hilda Finlan and Perry Everett downing Madge Cowley and Rob Cass 6-4, 6-1.

$61,103,856,030 Spending Bill Before Senate

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—A record $61,103,856,030 military spending bill came up for action in the senate today with opposition was in sight, and leaders hoped for final passage by nightfall.

The giant sum—which figures out to about $400 for each man, woman and child in the United States is designed to provide more of the guns, tanks and aircraft which administration leaders say is the best guarantee of world peace.

Especially the bill carries more money for planes, and includes a directive to build up the air force to a strength of 95 wings.

The senate appropriations committee, which approved the measure Friday added a special fund of $4,000,000,000 for navy and air force aviation.

Also in the measure is an unspecified amount to be spent on new weapons which the president has called "fantastic" and which some senators have termed "stupendous," "startling," "amazing" and "beyond imagination."

Chief Justice Lifts Injunction Against Player

Winnipeg, Sept. 10 — (CP) — A temporary injunction restraining star tackle Doug Huffman from playing for Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Football Union today was lifted by Chief Justice E. K. Williams of Court of King's Bench.

The decision, which disallowed an application by the owners of Los Angeles Rams of the United States National League for a permanent injunction will give Huffman the right to perform for Bombers against the Stampeders at Calgary tonight. The Rams announced they would appeal the decision.

85,000 Parcels For West Germany Being Held Up

Berlin, Sept. 10—(Reuters)—More than 85,000 parcels addressed to west Germany were piled up here today because of a week-old east Berlin restriction on Berlin's traffic to the west.

East German police have refused to allow west-bound mail cars to cross the inter-zonal border at Marienborn. They claim that some of the cars are so overloaded that it is impossible to check them properly.

The restriction is being imposed at the same time as the tax on vehicles using the autobahn between west Germany and the western zone of Berlin.

Allied sources said today the west Berlin authorities have protested to the western powers against the hold-up of 'mail cars.

The three western allies today were still waiting a reply to their protest Friday against "continued interference with normal trade and communication between west Berlin and west Germany."

Pacific Defence Pact Predicted By Pearson

Vancouver, Sept. 10—(CP)—Formation of a Pacific defence pact similar to the Atlantic Pact was forecast last night by External Affairs Minister Pearson.

In his first report to the nation after signing the Japanese peace treaty at San Francisco Saturday, Mr. Pearson ran into a constant stream of interruptions from scattered members of an audience of more than 2,000 in a Vancouver theatre.

As the minister accused Russia of falsity, praised the navy for ushering in a new era, there were cries of "Where was China?" and "What part did Canada have in the treaty?"

The minister ignored some of the questions and retorted sharply to others.

"At San Francisco Mr. Gromyko (Russian delegate Andrei Gromyko) was allowed to speak for an hour and was not interrupted," Mr. Pearson said.

"We are accustomed to these trivial interruptions at our meetings," said Prof. Geoffrey Andrew, president of the Vancouver United Nations Association which sponsored the meeting. "We know their aim is to disrupt and prevent peace."

"They" were not identified.

Mr. Pearson said a Pacific pact will gradually develop out of treaties recently signed by the United States with the Philippines, Australia, New Zealand and Japan.

"When the question of a regular agreement comes up for discussion that will be a different matter. Canada will take as active a part in it as in the Atlantic pact."

Mr. Pearson said he hoped Japan would soon be granted membership in the United Nations and intimated Canada would arrange full diplomatic relations with that country.

He left for Ottawa following the meeting.

In an interview earlier, he said Russian talk of war arising out of the Japanese peace treaty is false.

Wellington Builds Fine New Fire Hall

Wellington (Staff)— Villagers of this lakeside community do not believe in doing things in half measures.

Some time ago, Reeve Jim Clemmson and his council looked over the village fire equipment and decided new fire-fighting equipment was necessary.

The villagers backed them up. They have purchased a modern mechanized vehicle, fully equipped for $17,000.

Then the villagers figured they should have a suitable "stable" for the new "fire horse."

No sooner said, than done.

Work has started on a brand new fire-hall which is located adjacent to the "Town Hall" in the centre of the village. The cost has not been disclosed.

Nears Completion

The new building will house the new engine and all necessary equipment, and is expected to be completed within the next three weeks.

The old fire-hall which contained the hand-drawn chemical pumpers at present in use, also housed meeting rooms for a lodge, and the local hydro furnace equipment.

Under the will of a late resident, the building was converted into village property with the proviso that the lodge retain its meeting rooms. Conversion of these to other uses meant the property reverted to the late owner's estate.

The building however, was deemed unsuitable for the needs of the village fire brigade and its equipment, and thus came into being the new fire hall.

Canadians May Go to Japan For Conference

Vancouver, Sept. 10 (CP) —A Canadian delegation will probably go to Tokyo next month to open negotiations with Japan for a fisheries treaty, Fisheries Minister Mayhew said last night.

In an interview on his return from the Japanese peace treaty conference in San Francisco, he said a three-way fisheries treaty among Canada, the United States and Japan is being prepared. The peace treaty required Japan to enter such an agreement.

Mr. Mayhew said "reasonable agreement" has been reached with Washington and that he had talked with Premier Yoshida of Japan at San Francisco.

Object of Pact

The pact is to protect fish, particularly salmon and halibut, off Canada and the U.S. propagate and conserve.

The Japanese will be asked to agree not to fish in territorial waters of Canada and the U.S.

Mr. Mayhew said many British Columbians had a strong idea about Japanese fishing activities here before the war.

"They never fished in B.C. waters," he said.

MADE SURPRISE VISIT

Chicago, Sept. 10 (AP) —Robert Good, 76, answered a knock at his door yesterday and found his 82-year-old brother Charles, of Cave Junction, Ore., whom he had not seen in 70 years. Robert said they are the last survivors of a family of five children. They up when their parents died 70 years ago. Robert had traced his brother. Plans were made by mail to meet late this fall. But Charles made a surprise visit instead.

Acheson, Morrison Start Discussions For Big-Three

Washington, Sept. 10—(AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson and Britain's Herbert Morrison today discuss their difference over cold-war tactics in the opening meeting of the big-three western foreign ministers' conference.

A proposed new partnership deal for west Germany, the British dispute with Egypt over Suez, and the Iranian and far-east crises were expected by diplomats to figure in the talk.

Acheson, Morrison and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France flew here last night from the Japanese peace conference at San Francisco. For the next four days, in the first full-dress big-three meeting in a year, they are due to talk over a global range of problems.

Today's Acheson-Morrison talks are to be followed tomorrow by a similar session between Acheson and Schuman. Beginning Wednesday it will be a three-way discussion. The three allied high commissioners for Germany were on hand for consultation in the scheduled effort to iron out the wrinkles of the plan to bring the Bonn government into the western line-up.

Acheson said he and the British and French leaders agreed on procedure.

The United States and Britain, diplomats said, now see mostly eye-to-eye on a plan to offer the Bonn government a "contract" giving west Germany almost complete sovereignty, ending the high commission, and transforming the occupation troops to defence forces. Some disagreement remain over details.

Morrison was expected to seek the support of Acheson for the British stand—in the dispute resulting from the demand of Egypt for withdrawal of British troops from the Suez Canal zone. The breakdown of the British-Iranian talks made the Iran oil crisis another certain to be a topic for consideration.

Also on the agenda for the big-three meeting were the Korean crisis and the mounting threat of the Chinese communists in Indochina.

The University College of North Staffordshire, opened in 1951, is housed in a centuries-old mansion.

Speakers at C.W.L. Convention Stress Value of Christian Living

Peterborough, Sept. 10—(CP)—Most Rev. John C. Cody, national director of the Catholic Women's League, was among the chief speakers at the fourth annual convention of the C.W.L. provincial council. Some 600 delegates are attending the sessions scheduled to end today.

Dr. Cody said the Catholic press is performing the greatest service of the century. In a banquet address Sunday he urged the elimination from Catholic homes of all "poisonous" or "rotten" literature — "from the devil's great circulating library at popular prices."

Women's place with the family was the subject of a communion breakfast address by Rev. E. T. McNally, rector of Eganville and director of Pembroke Council.

"The destiny of the Catholic woman of today is to influence her neighbors" said Father McNally. "They must not forget to protect the sanctity of the family for on their activities outside the home may depend the whole future of the world."

Mrs. J. J. McHale of London, Ont., national convener of Girl Guides, urged the forming of Brownie packs and Girl Guide Companies as a training ground for C.W.L. because of the parallel programs.

"The best answer to communism," she said, "is a positive training in democratic living and the only way to stop its (communism's) spread is to show that our way of living is better than theirs.

"The way to do that is through the children."

Most Rev. William Smith, Bishop of Pembroke and provincial director of the league, outlined the duties of democracies.

"We do not appreciate all the Canadian citizenship we possess," he said. "There are many loopholes in our way of living that eastern peoples, escaping from bondage and coming to Canada, are quick to apprehend."

He added that Catholic members of societies should remember the obligations incumbent on those holding positions of power "to base all on the basic principles of Christian democracy."

Of those resolutions passed by the meeting, Bishop Smith commented particularly on one which read, in part:

"... resolved that we, the Catholic Women's League of Canada, view all women good example by refraining from public drinking and by practising moderation in our homes."

Bishop Smith, in commenting on this resolution, said:

"I think the time has come when we must get back to the old temperance sermons—the sort of thing that led men to come up and take the pledge.

"Liquor is being consumed today in phenomenal fashion. The first thing that is suggested in many Catholic homes is a cocktail.

"We are not abstainers, but temperance is a virtue and it is temperance that we preach."

The delegates passed a resolution urging that measures be undertaken to establish complete equality of Canadian Indians with other Canadian citizens, and that League members whenever possible "continue to assist the Indians."

Another resolution, criticizing some CBC programs, read in part: "Whereas some plays and talks are at times vulgar, degrading, irreligious, and highly offensive to a large number of Canadian listeners. . . We urge our members and federated societies to bring this to the through their members of parliament, asking that these offensive programs be eliminated."

RESISTANCE RISING

Taipeh, Formosa, Sept. 10 (AP) —Nationalist sources said yesterday that resistance to communist rule is rising in Kwangtung, that South China province which long has been the birthplace of Chinese revolution. The sources said guerrilla forces are being swelled by civilians, and that anti-communist headquarters had been set up 160 miles east of Canton.

A FABULOUS COLLECTION

For the past few weeks there has been on display in the Toronto Art Gallery the greatest collection of master paintings, armor, art objects, tapestries and antiquities ever to be shown in Canada. This collection is known as the Vienna Art Treasures and the age of the various exhibits of interest ranges over the years from 500 B.C. to the 18th century. The treasures on view in Toronto comprise the outstanding items from the collections made chiefly by the royal houses of Austria and France as early as the 15th century.

There are paintings by such masters as Franz Hals, Vermeer, Rembrandt, Titian, Rubens and Van Dyck, and these are some of the greatest these artists created and are practically priceless. We believe, though, that the average visitor cannot appreciate the reasons why these paintings are considered masterpieces. Their coloring and form, the depth of expression in the features of the characters on the canvas are superbly done, but the layman knows only the paintings are masterpieces from what he is told. Also the business of viewing something over one hundred paintings is rather overwhelming no matter how well done.

The huge tapestries, too, are astonishing works of art. The wealth of detail in the blending of the colors to form scenes and human figures could only be the work of master craftsmen. In a way one can believe that the skill of weavers of several centuries ago excells that of the master painter because he worked with material that was meant for more utilitarian purposes yet the result of his labors is no less beautiful.

However, the objects of art which will be admired most by the laymen are objects fashioned from rock crystal, gold, silver, lapis lazuli, agate, emerald and jade. The delicate fashioning of vases, cups, and ornaments is almost beyond belief. When one considers that in centuries gone by the tools of the artisan could not compare with what we have today then our admiration for the artist of those days cannot be expressed in words. For instance there are several large vases carved from rock crystal. This material is a colorless quartz and is extremely hard. In fact it is harder than ordinary steel and only corundum, topaz and the diamond are harder, yet the craftsman was able to form this mass into a delicate vase, goblet or bowl.

Then there is the best of the works in silver and gold, chief of which is Benvenuto Cellini's famous Saltcellar made from ten pounds of gold. Cellini is termed the greatest master in metal working of all time and that claim can be believed after viewing his masterpiece.

There is such a wealth of beautiful things to see that we have no space nor the skill to adequately describe them. Everyone who can possibly make the journey to Toronto before September the sixteenth should make it a point to visit this fabulous collection. Perhaps never again in Canada will such an opportunity be presented.

APPLES FACE COMPETITION

(Hamilton Spectator)

Delegates to an international convention of apple growers and dealers were discussing their problems — not lightened any in this instance by the buckets of cold orange juice ladled out free by a man just down the hall a piece.

The apple, it appears, is still widely consumed but is taking a beating from its chief competitor, the citrus family. Notwithstanding that circumstance, however, this fruit is just as good as it ever was; men who should know say that it is even better because of the improved strains now available.

The perfect apple should be hard and sound and give off a snapping sound when bitten into. If some of its juice squirts into a customer's eye, then the fruit has reached its proper state of succulence. When its flavor is insipid, its skin slightly shriveled and its flesh is soft then its handlers have somewhere along the line neglected to treat it with respect.

To reach the consumer at its best the apple should be stored on the day it is picked. A temperature of 31 degrees is necessary in storage with humidity of 85 per cent or higher. The retailer falls down if he allows this fruit to be exposed to hot, dry air. The housewife also mistreats the apple if she fails to keep it in a refrigerator until eaten.

The Delicious remains the most popular apple in the U.S. It has a tempting red color, good flavor and stores well right through the season until March. What about such old favorites as the Northern Spy and the Snow? These varieties are not grown as much as they used to be. The Spy is not profitable because the tree takes from fourteen to eighteen years to mature. The Snow suffers from its small size, and the tree gives a good crop only every other year.

The orange juice man was too busy to take part in the discussions.

LITTLE MISS BLUE JEANS

Little Miss Blue Jeans hates ribbons and laces;
Wants to wear trousers with cowboy red braces;
Doesn't like slippers and doesn't like dresses.
A notion that sadly her mother
distresses.
Today she is sure there's no
garment so classy
As blue jeans adorned with bright rivet heads brassy.

Bring out her frock and her nerves start to tremble.
It's cowboy Roy Rogers she wants to resemble.
In vain we may tell her, to parties invited
All little girls to look nice are delighted.
But little Miss Blue Jeans insists to her mother
She'd much rather go in the garb of her brother.

Home from the party, she wastes not a minute,
An outfit's upstairs and she wants to be in it—
The clothes of a sheriff who daily must battle
With robbers of coaches and rustlers of cattle.
Complain? No, not I. In a few years my guess is Little Miss Blue Jean will beg for new dresses.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PLUS

Remember when you were in school and you got an A Plus? What a thrill it gave to you. The extra effort did it. And you were inspired to do that extra again. In the books that stock brokers make up, they grade the value of the different stocks—A, B, C,—and when they merit a little higher rating they put a Plus sign after each letter.

Many years ago my friend Edna Ferber wrote a grand story which she called "Personality Plus". She wanted, to bring out that her character had just a little more personality than the average. The Plus gave distinction, as it always does when added to anything.

You can Plus your entire life by continually adding to your interests, your friends, your good will, and your efficient ways. The winner in any athletic contest is that one who adds the Plus to his strength, or skill, and comes out above all the other contestants. It may be ever so small—perhaps only a nose, as in a horse race, but it's enough!

Anyone can add this Plus to whatever he may be doing. Getting the habit he keeps going forward, and is the inspirer of others. It's the will-to-win that keeps the Plus alive. I like the idea of trying always to surpass oneself. It's that little more than may be required that gives growth to the mind and to the soul, and which lifts a person to high ground and to places of distinction.

I recently read a definition of an expert, in a little book by Dr. William N. Hutchins, called "Discovering Wayside Treasures." It said: "An expert is a man who knows just that much more about his subject than his associates. Most of us are nearer the top than we think. We fail to realize how easy it is, how necessary it is to learn that fraction more."

In my library is a delightful and inspiring little volume called "Life's Little Extras" suggesting how the little things of life, when appreciated, add to the joy and happiness of our everyday lives. It is this little extra that people add to their work and their inexperience that often counts as the most important — the Plus triumph!

EXPERT POISONER

Oshawa, Sept. 8 — (CP) — An expert poisoner has caused the death of 20 pet dogs by strychnine poisoning in the Westmount district during the last three weeks. City police are trying to find the killer — termed "deadly and filthy" by Humane Society officials — while parents worry lest their children pick up some of the poison while playing.

GOES INTO BUSINESS

Oakville, Ont., Sept. 8. (CP)—John Black, 19, son of the town's mayor, partly paralyzed by a high school football game injury last year, has gone into business for himself. Using an automatic telephone recording device he accepts subscriptions for magazines at Oakville-Trafalgar Memorial Hospital. To get around the hospital he uses a battery operated wheel-chair.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE NEW CITY

Some years ago a contest was held to find a slogan for the City of Vancouver. My father was among the contributors. His entry won no prizes, but it seemed to me the best of them all. He'd called it "The Cinderella City."

I found myself recalling the phrase yesterday morning. I looked down on the city from an airliner, coming in from the east, and realized I was seeing it with new eyes.

To people in Montreal who had asked me about Vancouver I had said, "It is growing at a fantastic rate. Within 50 years—and maybe a lot less—it will be the first city in Canada."

Now, seeing our town from the air this bright new morning, such a prophecy seemed downright conservative. The whole character of the city, it seems to me, has changed in these short post-war years. The attractive baby has become a powerful giant.

From the air you realize that this fantastic growth is already making a place of self-reliant communities. Like Toronto and Montreal, we are more and more becoming an interlocked group of towns linked by the hub of the commercial district.

Earlier in the flight a Winnipeg man and I had joked about the relative progress of our home cities. In truth, that traditional and amiable dispute is now a thing of the past. From the air you see it. In comparison with Vancouver, Winnipeg looks like a village.

Foreign Place

To me —and perhaps to other lifelong residents of the Cinderella City—this change is at once thrilling and saddening. It is like watching one of your children grow up.

A friend of mine said to me the other day, "You know, I used to ride home from work on the street car in a sort of half sleep. I could open one eye now and then and know where I was. Never missed my stop. But now—well, I never know where I am. The street seems to change every day. Nothing is familiar any more. Often I feel I'm in a strange city."

One way or another, most of us have had the same feeling.

Our business may take us into a part of the town we haven't seen in months. We find it changed and foreign to us. On a Sunday drive we may come upon a whole new sprawling suburb that seems to have burst raw from the ground, already occupied.

We see the mountains across the harbor from a new angle and notice the outer edge of homes creeping farther and farther up the green slopes and the clearing on ahead of them (was it there yesterday?) where bulldozers are breaking open new ground for new citizens.

We see the old landmarks gone or coming down and the very character of the city changing. The one-time rich man's hill is now becoming shabby as the town expands and shifts and adjusts itself in the ant-hills of society. We see the new smoke-stack on the changing sky-line adding its contribuation of soot to the grey and man-made cloud that hangs across the town.

Everywhere we sense the quickening pulse, the new throb in the city's vibrations and feel the pride and regret of growth.

New Outlook

When we flew in yesterday the mass pilgrimage to the city had begun. The main thoroughfares below were clogged with traffic moving in along the spokes of the wheel.

Then, coming in from the airport, I was a part of this movement, surely an invitation to speculate about how big the town has really become. The roaring traffic boom increases every day. An open parking space becomes something of a modern miracle.

It is one of the curses of growth and there are many. There is, for example, a change in outlook.

It used to be one of the pleasant aspects of the city to feel that it was yours. You felt you knew a lot of people, that the crowds in the street were really just neighbors. A dozen or more acquaintances would nod hello in a stroll. And now you find you can spend a whole afternoon in the business district and never see a familiar face.

Since these changes are observed and absorbed from day to day we lose sight of the real drama in this growth. A visitor from Montreal, returning here for the first time in 10 years, sat beside me as we came in for our landing and put into words what I felt only instinctively.

"I came out remembering Vancouver as it was," he said, "but now I see a strange new city down there."

Guano Sanctuary on Islands

(From "Time" Magazine, New York)

It started even before the Incas. Ever since, Peruvians have cherished the 40 million sea birds whose droppings make high-grade fertilizer (guano) for Peruvian farmers. In Inca days, the penalty for molesting the birds was death. Now the protection of the guano birds (cormorants, boobies and pelicans) is the care of the semi-official Compania Administradora del Guano, set up in 1909 to develop the country's evil-smelling guano deposits.

The Guano Co.'s armed guards patrol the small islands off Peru, where most of the birds live, protecting them against human egg dobbers as well as against their natural enemies; vultures and condors. The islands' cliffs have been topped with walls to make the birds take off at a sharp rate of climb instead of trailing their feet and knocking precious guano into the water. Passing ships are prohibited from blowing their whistles, for even a brief toot will scare the birds into the air where they mill in black clouds wasting their guano on the sea.

Thanks to such tender care, the birds have multiplied mightily. In 1909 the annual guano crop was only 77,000 tons. Last year the protected birds turned out 240,800 tons (worth nearly $14,850,000). But the fight to make Peru secure for guano birds is ceaseless. Off the coast, cold water wells up from the bottom of the sea bringing nutrients that support vast shoals of fish on which the guano birds feed. Sometimes a shift of wind or ocean currents brings warm water to their islands. Then the fish disappear, and the birds starve.

When the warm water came in 1891 and again in 1925, it had disastrous effects on the guano birds. Millions migrated to southern Peru; finding few islands to roost on, they took to the dangerous land, where they fell prey to all sorts of land-based enemies.

This year the cycle of disaster threatened the birds again. The sea grew warm and fish scarce. Streams of hungry birds ribboned down the coast. But this time they found sanctuary: "artificial islands" that the good Guano Co. had made for them by building walls across promontories. The birds can roost on them, safe from land enemies, and the cold sea around them swarms with fish.

At last reports the migration was proceeding with hardly a casualty. Some 20 million guano birds are already established in their new quarters. Peruvians hope they will stay there permanently out of reach of the warm-water cycle, and repay the thoughtful company with guano.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

ONCE MORE, SIMON, VITAMINS ARE NOT MEDICINE

Here are two reports received from readers. Each is typical of a class of readers.

First is the report of Mr. A., who says he has obtained satisfactory results from following my suggestions on several occasions through the five years he has been reading this column, but recently he tried taking calcium and vitamin D as described in my booklet, Ills Called Rheumatism, for three or four weeks but without any effects on his rheumatism. What else do I suggest?

Second is the report of Mrs. B. who says she has been supplementing her diet with Ca and D for eight months now and the benefits she has received are almost incredible. Her finger joints never ache or pain any more and she gets about at work or play as well as she did before her rheumatoid arthritis developed. She asks the good Lord . . . and may I keep on telling people. . .

That's just the trouble. Even if I kept on for another hundred years the chances are I couldn't tell many of them anything. They're so darned deaf and dumb.

Take Mr. A., for example. It is obvious that he assumes the calcium and vitamin D I recommend in the booklet is medicine. He "tried" it as medicine. It failed to relieve or cure his rheumatism and so he quit taking it.

Mrs. B. on the other hand, heeded what I said in the booklet (costs 25c and a self-addressed envelope) and have, said here many, many times, namely that it is hardly worth while to "try" Ca and D for a few weeks. If you take Ca and D at all you must take them the year around to correct your nutritional deficiency and experience any benefit. Calcium and vitamin D in the daily ration I recommend for every one with chronic rheumatiz are essentials of good nutrition and not medicine.

If you are so resigned to the rheumatiz that you hesitate to acquire the "habit" of supplementing your inadequate diet with calcium and D in concentrated form, there is an easy alternative: Expose yourself to sunlight or diffuse daylight and follow a high calcium diet from now on.

You must discard your old fool notions about the "danger" involved in ordinary exposure of the body to daylight. There is little hope for you if you can't free your imagination from quaint obsessions about 'taking cold".

A high calcium diet is one that includes liberal proportions of milk, eggs, cheese, greens, peas, beans, peanuts, nuts, cabbage, cauliflower, turnips, oatmeal, wheat, lettuce, parsnips, brown rice. Not less than 1 1-2 pints of milk a day (three glasses) for each adult or child.

Speaking of "trying" a vitamin or mineral or combination of vitamins or minerals, this same distinction of nutritional elements from medicine must be made in every instance. In order to get any real benefit from vitamins and/or minerals one must form the habit of taking them not for weeks or months but for all one's life, in costly concentrates to supplement a poor diet or in the natural or undenaturized foods which should replace their refined ghosts in the everyday diet of most Americas—but won't because the processors have the dumb Yankee public hypnotized.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

The Red Blood Vitamin

Does the folic acid and vitamin B-12 combination suggested in your pamphlet contain any iron? I can't take iron but I certainly need red blood. (A. M.)

Answer—No. For the pamphlet The Red Blood Vitamin send stamped self-addressed envelope. Folic acid, discovered in liver before vitamin B-12 was discovered, is probably essential to get the full effect of B-12.

Choosing Doctor in Strange City

How can we find a good family doctor? We have just moved here. (I. B.)

Answer—In some cities the county medical association names doctors on request. Look in telephone directory for the county medical society or association and inquire.

Fresh Milk Still Unequalled

Would I deprive my children of any valuable or essential nutrient if I substitute dry milk reliquefied for fresh milk in their diet? (S. M.)

Answer—Yes. Not that powdered milk isn't good food. For one thing it doesn't contain vitamin C, which is present in fresh milk (Certified or Grade A Raw from tuberculin-tested herd), and prevents scurvy. No substitute can take the place of pure fresh milk in the diet of child or adult.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Away up in the Highlands of Scotland, I heard a BBC symphony concert consisting of the Czech composer Smetana's "My Country". This is one of those intensely tuneful compositions which appeal to the kind of people who like whistling tunes as well as winning the respect of the most conservative of musicians. In music, Smetana describes both his country and his love of his country. There is one passage in this symphonic poem in which he tells about the great river, the Moldau, which runs through his native land; and he traces it from its little source as a small brook, to its great stride as a moving river, giving life and livelihood to the millions of his countrymen. I doubt if anybody can hear that movement of My Country without a thrill and a chill of Smetana's love being imparted to the bearer.

Away and lonely in the Highlands of Scotland, a furious jealousy grows in the heart of a Canadian when he hears this imperishable music, to think that in a hundred and more years, no musician has risen in Canada to express a similar passion for our glorious land, and to put it down in music that not only Canadians but people in all parts of the world will instantly identify with Canada, as they now identify Smetana's with Bohemia. How old does Canada have to be before we can utter our love of it? What material we have for the musician, more than for painter or poet: the approach to the Gulf, against the mighty bastions of Labrador; the march up the Gulf, with those vast arms of Labrador and Gaspe slowly taking us into their enfolding: the dark beauty of the first sight of Quebec: the advance across lyric Ontario, the Great Lakes, and then the Western plains, the foothills: the Rockies, and then, down to the Pacific in a sort of majesty. Smetana had nothing like that. Where is our Smetana?

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

SATISFACTION THAT LASTS

Those who heard over the television some weeks ago to the testimony given by youthful drug addicts must have been struck by the halting speech and sluggish mentality of these victims. It took them a half a minute to answer a question which could have been answered in five seconds by a bright, alert youth. There is no doubt that their habits had injured some of their fundamental thought processes. It is to be hoped that treatment will restore them, but this is doubtful. Drug addiction is said to destroy certain cells of the brain, and this permanently handicaps its victims.

But wrong doing of all sorts has a similarly marked tendency. If you have ever come in contact with a person whose whole life has been conspicuously evil, you have no doubt observed that such a person is uninteresting, tiresome in his conversation, and sluggish in his thinking. A life of vice or intemperance, or even a life spent exclusively in the making of money or in the pursuit of superficial pleasures, produces just this type of person.

Lasting satisfactions are not found in trying to attract something to life in order that life may have significance. Such satisfactions are found only when our lives flow from inner springs of wholesomeness, moral purpose, kindliness, and religious faith.

RABBIT HUNTERS

Edmonton. (CP)—"You never know what you will find when you go hunting," says Mrs. W. P. Thompson. Her niece's two children, Wayne Clark, 11 and his brother, Butch, 9, went rabbit hunting recently. They returned with a two-day-old baby deer.

STIRLING

Mr., Mrs. Percy MacMullen Honored on 35th Anniversary

Stirling.—On Thursday evening, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Demorest, Edward Street, Stirling, was tastefully decorated with coral and white crepe streamers, bells and coral ribbons in honor of the 35th wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, of Mount Pleasant.

The rooms were a bower of beauty with baskets of gladioli, vases of dahlias, asters and other autumn blooms.

The dining table, covered with a lace cloth, was centred with the anniversary cake and twin fruit cakes, silver candelabra and identical silver rosebowls of coral button 'mums.

Guests Brave Storm

Despite a downpour of rain and a heavy electric storm guests gathered from Belleville, Foxboro, Smithfield, Frankford, Dundonald, Stockdale and nearby points.

Mrs. MacMullen, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Demorest, received in a gown of navy sheer with a corsage of red roses.

At ten o'clock Mr. George G. Montgomery, of Frankford, was chairman for a short but interesting program.

Mrs. Marguerite McMullen, Mount Pleasant, led in a sing-song of popular 1916 songs and she also rendered a vocal selection, "The Sunshine of Your Smile". Mrs. Ormel MacMullen, Belleville, read two appropriate poems, "One a Commentary on Married Life", by Patience Strong.

An Address Read

Mrs. Percy Hubble sang, "May God Bless and Keep You", and she also prepared and read the address of appreciation on behalf of relatives and friends, stating in part "Tonight our memory takes us back thirty-five years to the Montgomery homestead on Front Street at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, where a boy and a girl pledged to spend their lives together. To look ahead seems a long time, but to look back seems like turning the pages of some great book, filled with pleasures, joys and sorrows and the general trend of daily life."

Miss Doris Sine, Mount Pleasant, gave a humorous reading entitled "In the Usual Way".

Brief remarks were also given by Mr. Edward Montgomery, Foxboro; Mr. John A. Montgomery, Colborne, who was groomsman at the wedding; Mrs. Percy Charlesworth, Smithfield, who played the wedding music in 1916; Mrs. Charlesworth was also in charge of the guest book at the anniversary party; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Sine, Mr. Harvey Pitcher and Mrs. Ernest White, all extended congratulations and best wishes.

The honored couple were given seats of honor and presented with several wrapped packages which they opened in "bride and groom" style. They were the recipients of several pieces of coral glassware, china cake plates, linen, ornaments and folding money.

Presentation

Their immediate family made the presentation of an electric tea kettle on behalf of themselves and the four grandchildren, David, Patsy and Susan MacMullen, Belleville, and Bobbie Demorest, of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. MacMullen also received several anniversary cards from Campbellford, Kingston, Bristol, England, and other points, also a number of telephone congratulations.

Both Mr. and Mrs. MacMullen voiced sincere thanks for such a delightful evening together, to all for their lovely gifts, also the program and gifts of flowers and especially to their daughter and son-in-law for opening their home and to their son and daughter-in-law, of Belleville, who assisted.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Jean MacMullen, Mary Pitcher and Edith Charlesworth.

Woman Rescues 2-Year-Old Child From Well Bottom

Demorestville, Sept. . (CP)—Mrs. W. Latone climbed down the rough-hewn sides of a well here Friday and rescued two-year-old Catherine Keogh, lying unconscious in the water at the bottom.

She pulled the girl from the water and handed her up to her husband, who then pulled his wife from the well. The alarm was given by Mrs. William Keogh, mother of the child, who noticed her daughter missing and a hole in the board top of the well.

Mr. and Mrs. Latone work on the Keogh farm near this Prince Edward County village.

825 VICTIMS OF POLIO

Toronto, Sept. — (CP)— Poliomyelitis has claimed 859 victims in Ontario this year, the Ontario Health Department announced Friday. There were 27 deaths.

In 1949, a record epidemic year, there were 894 cases with 54 deaths. Last year 153 cases and 54 deaths were reported.

CONSTRUCTION BOOM

31 Persons Die in Seven Air Accidents

(By The Canadian Press)

A report of a mid-Atlantic bomber crash Sunday, unverified and believed to be a "false alarm" capped a weekend in which 31 persons died in seven air accidents on two continents.

Then, in a freak mishap at Long Beach, Calif., the .50-calibre machine-gun of an air force fighter on the ground short-circuited, spewing bullets into a terrified exclusive residential community.

Thousands were endangered and about 30 houses were hit, but there were no casualties.

Sixteen persons died in Sao Paulo, Brazil Saturday night when a Brazilian airliner rammed into a home just after takeoff.

In Phillipsburg, N.J., Sunday five persons were killed in the crash of a single-engine plane.

A report that the crew of a big bomber—even its type could not be established — had parachuted into the Atlantic Ocean placed on the alert rescue planes and air installations all along the east coast.

But as the day wore on the suspicion grew that maybe the whole thing was a hoax.

Five airmen died in two plane crashes in Alaska. Three men were killed in the crash of a C-47 transport plane Friday. A helicopter, on its way to remove the bodies of the three men, crashed Saturday killing its crew of two.

Two small-plane accidents in Virginia and Pennsylvania resulted in two deaths.

Three men, lost in a dense fog, burned to death late Sunday when their small plane crashed into a forest ranger tower in the woods 25 miles northwest of Duluth. Their bodies were burned beyond recognition.

Exhibition Falls Short of Breaking Attendance Record

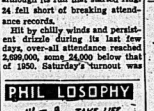
Toronto, Sept. 10—(CP)—The 1951 Canadian National Exhibition which ended Saturday has been termed the greatest ever held here, although its run that started Aug. 24 fell short of breaking attendance records.

Hit by chilly winds and persistent drizzle during its last few days, over-all attendance reached 2,696,000, some 24,000 below that of 1950. Saturday's turnout was 265,000 or 11,00 less than the 1950 closing day.

However, an official said that the London section of Festival of Britain, which started early in May and continues until Sept. 30, took nearly four months to pass the 4,000,000 mark.

Directors had hoped that the C.N.E., largest annual exposition in the world, would have an attendance of more than 3,000,000 this year.

Said Elwood Hughes, general manager: "financially this has been a better year than last."



Sir Denys Lowson, Lord Mayor of London, spoke at the same luncheon. He said that although the Commonwealth may still have to develop newer and closer bounds to define relations, the main lines have been laid to such an extent that its nations not only will be able to save themselves from tyranny but may also save the free world.

Just before a shower of sky rockets and star shells signalled the end of the fair, officials announced the winner of a give-away bungalow. He was W. H. Giles, married 15 months—and a real estate salesman who until now hasn't had a home of his own.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Reply to invitation to wedding reception in church parlor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I moved here several months ago, and are to live here permanently. We have joined the church and denomination, a really wonderful church, very friendly even though very large, and with many social activities. This church has a large and quite handsome church parlor and here, apparently, are held many of the receptions after the marriages in the church itself. My problem, which has just arisen, is whether or not to send regrets to the invitations to the receptions to be held in this church parlor. (Our former church was a small church, and there was no church parlor in which wedding receptions could be held.) If you say I should answer this kind of invitation, please tell me how.

Barbara A.

I judge you mean an invitation to a church wedding and on the same page an added invitation to the reception which reads, "and afterward at the reception at the church parlors", or some similar wording? If so, this reception invitation should be answered just as you would reply to a separate reception-card invitation, or an invitation to be held in some place other than the church parlor. This response is a must-courtesy to the hosts, and also it is practical information to them, because they must know how many guests to provide for, no matter where the reception is to take place.

Here is a simple, correct form of acceptance:

Mr. and Mrs. George Allen accept with pleasure the kind invitation of
Mr. and Mrs. Hall
for Tuesday, the first of October at five o'clock
And for the wedding
Mr. and Mrs. George Allen regret that they are unable to accept the very kind invitation of

Mr. and Mrs. Hall
for Tuesday, the first of October

(Write your reply on the first pages of double-sheet letterpaper in the centre of the page.)

The city and state must always be given in marriage announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it absolutely necessary that in formal announcements of a marriage, the name of the city and state where the marriage took place be given? Or would it make a difference if the announcements were sent out quite a time after the marriage took place?

Walter T. W.

Yes, it is necessary, it is a formal announcement of a marriage, to include the name of the city and state where the marriage took place . . . as well as the date and year. And it makes no difference in this rule that the announcements are not sent out directly after the marriage has taken place. (It is far better not to send out formal announcements than to send them incorrectly worded.)

New Fabric Firm Fashion

By FRUNELLA WOOD

THIS really inexpensive frock for coming fall and winter is typical of what you can find in your budget store departments; both style and fabric would decorate a much greater price range.

The fabric in this case is a burnt faille which is highly crease resistant, and the model is cut in a coat dress which is appropriate to all day wear in social or business careers. Colors are gray, brown, or green; the velvet trim and buttons match the dress color in deeper tone.

To make an attractive food larder for birds, take a coconut and cut it half. The edible then be filled with shelled nuts, peanut butter and nuts or other food mixtures, and the coconut then is suspended by a wire from a tree limb. The coconut meat as well as the stuffing will be eaten by the birds.

How can she cure his romantic hangover?

No variety of hangover is a very pleasant thing with which to be forced to live, either for the direct hangover victim himself, or for the people around him who are indirect and involuntary victims of whatever his indiscretion may have been.

If the hangover is a physical condition, however, there's at least the comfort of knowing that it is self-limited; that is, it will in time cure itself whether anything is done about it or not. You have the assurance that a definite and to a disagreeable situation is just around the corner, makes it easier to bear while it lasts.

A romantic hangover, on the other hand, is "a horse of a different color" entirely. In such a case, the victim can go moodily around indefinitely, hugging his blighted romance to his heart; as long as he likes, and making the lives of everybody who comes in contact with him miserable with his moodiness.

Shadow Boxing

Even more difficult to handle than the gloomy romantic hangover, perhaps, is the one that persists as a rosy glow in which the victim loves to coolly bask, finding keen pleasure in continually recalling his memories. Such a state is an elusive one, almost impossible to combat, since it is composed of thin air instead of solid reality that might be grasped, grappled with and disposed of once and for all. Anyone who tries to cope with it usually finds himself shadow-boxing with a ghost, a most unsatisfactory form of activity.

Such is the frustrating experience of one 19-year-old girl who is engaged and planning to be married soon, but whose feet are beginning to drag as they carry her more and more reluctantly toward the wedding day. Apprehensively, she writes me:

"I love my fiance very much, but I have become afraid to marry him for one reason only.

"Miss Fairfax, is it possible for a man to love two girls? Still tells me he loves me just as much as I love him, but he is also in love, it seems, with his ex-girl friend from whom he has been away three years. He says that I remind him of her in so many ways. Do you think that is why he loves me—because I look so much like her and act so much like her, I often think that may be the case.

"He wants me to meet this girl, but I have told him I don't want to meet her. Then he said that maybe it would be best, after all, if I didn't. Do you think I should let him introduce me to her? She is a married woman now, with one child, but she still loves my fiance. His sister-in-law, who is a friend of this girl, told me that.

"What do you think I should do? I can't bear to have a former love of my fiance's interfere with our life. If I can't have all his love, I don't want any part of it. That's why I'm asking for help, because I think that if somebody could tell me what to do, I could help him.

Mental Picture

"You don't suppose, do you, that it is all in his mind, and that this girl really doesn't mean anything any more to him except as something that happened in the past?"

Now if it were possible for anyone to give this troubled young woman a definite and assured answer to this question, which brings the whole problem right down to its bare bones, her alternatives would be clear and it would, or should, greatly simplify the matter of making a final decision.

If one could say with certainty that the old love doesn't really mean anything to the man any more, his fiancee could put aside her doubts and fears and go happily ahead with her plans, confident that all would be well. If, on the other hand, it could be clearly apparent that the past was not over for him, and his heart and hopes still actually belonged to the girl who seems to have remained its chief figure, then there would be no question but that this engagement were far better broken immediately.

Unfortunately, as is more often than not the case in the problems we have to solve in life, there's no possible way of reading another person's mind and interpreting his emotion with any such certainty. The best we can do is to try and estimate the probabilities, then pick the one that seems most likely to work out, just as any gambler does. Only, in gambling on our happiness, we have one big advantage that the gambler on cards or horses, lacks. This advantage is that where the gambler's fate depends, in the last analysis, almost entirely on factors outside himself over which he has no control—the behavior of the horse, or how the cards fall—the destiny of a human being lies to a very large extent in his own hands. In other words, having carefully studied the probabilities and made our choice among them, we ourselves then have a very great deal to do with shaping the chosen probability toward the desired end.

Sense of Importance

To translate all this into terms of this particular girl's dilemma, it seems to me that the probability I would choose of the two obvious ones—that "the other woman" either does, or does not, still rule this man's heart—is the second. I think it most likely that this clear, through immature romantic ideas, vastly exaggerates to himself and to the second girl the present importance of that "other woman". For strange though it may seem, a great many people, both men and women, thoroughly enjoy thinking of themselves as going through life forever cherishing a broken heart. It gives them a sense of importance, provides them with an emotional satisfaction they haven't yet been able to find elsewhere.

So, having chosen the probability that the young man isn't involved with the first girl as she appears to be, his fiancee then should proceed to develop this probability into a fact by building up in him a different sense of importance until in him his emotional satisfaction out of life as it actually is, instead of as he has been letting his daydreams tell him it is. She can do this by the judicious use of praise, by showing him in all the countless ways a woman's heart knows, that he is the girl of her love, her respect and her admiration. If she does this wisely, and with good judgment, he will doubtless little by little unconsciously transfer to her the emotion he has been wasting on daydreams and she, not the girl of the past, will become the big reality of his life.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

Scientists have recently heard corn growing.

Three members of the University of Wisconsin staff took recorders into the corn field for detecting subtle wind and temperature reactions. That they could hear the corn growing was explained by Professor Robert Beelar, as due to tensions produced by corn leaves crinkling as they grew.

Although it is September, people's lawn are still moving from left to right over the late crop of corn on the cob.

Leftover corn, cut off the cob, may be used for a delightful autumn dinner dish, corn souffle. The base of a souffle is a very thick sauce which is made airy light with egg whites. It is important that the sauce be cooled somewhat before folding in the egg whites, or the heat will cause the beaten whites to collapse. It is also important to have every member of the family at the table when the souffle is removed from the fire, so that it can be served while still at its highest peak. Broiled ham slices may be served as a garnish to make the course more substantial.

Corn Souffle, Broiled Ham
Serves 6.

4 tablespoons butter or vegetable fat
4 tablespoons flour
1 cup hot milk
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon pepper
4 eggs separated
1 pimiento
2 teaspoons grated onion
1 1-2 cups cooked corn cut off cob
6 slices tenderized ham, 1-4 inch thick, about 4 ounces each

Melt the butter in a heavy saucepan. Remove from the flame. Stir in the flour. Gradually stir in the hot milk. Add salt and pepper. Cook over a very slow flame, stirring frequently to avoid scorching, or cook in the top part of a double boiler over simmering water. Cook about 10 minutes. Sauce will be very thick.

Beat 4 egg yolks well and stir into sauce. Cook 2 minutes more, stirring constantly. Remove from flame.

Rub the pimiento through a sieve or chop very fine. Add the pimiento, grated onion and corn to the sauce, mixing well.

Let the mixture cool slightly. Beat the egg whites, and fold into the mixture. Turn the mixture into a 1 1-2 quart greased baking dish or casserole. Place baking dish in a pan of hot water. Bake 50 to 60 minutes or until firm when lightly touched.

Broil ham slices 4 to 5 minutes on each side under a moderate broiler flame. Spoon the souffle over the ham slices at the table.

Today important parts of sterilizers and instruments in hospitals are being made of nickel alloys because these alloys provide strength, corrosion resistance, long wear, and a surface that is bright, non-porous and sanitary. For the same reasons, kitchen working surfaces are made of nickel alloys.

Laundry equipment in hospitals and commercial hotels is made of nickel alloys because these alloys are rust-proof and extremely durable.

Nickel helps save lives too

Hundreds of everyday uses for Nickel have been developed by the Nickel industry through a planned program of research. Today a large share of Canada's Nickel production is being diverted from peacetime uses into channels for preparedness. So the Nickel mine facilities, greatly expanded over the past decade, are again being operated at peak capacity. There is actually more Nickel now being delivered by Canada to the free world than in any peacetime year.

REDMEN ARE "IN"

The Redmen are "in". Exit the Batawa Shoemen, from the Central Ontario Baseball League playoffs at least. The high-flying Reds maintaining the high calibre of baseball that swept them to victories over the powerful Brockville Memos and Smiths Falls Royals in their last two league appearances, did a similar job on the Shoemen over the weekend.

* * *

They proved they were the better squad, in this series, at least, when they blanked the Batawans 1-0 behind young Master Strahan fine flinging on Saturday night and yesterday afternoon on the Batawa field they put the well-known clincher hooks into the fourth spot—by shellacking the Shoetowners by a 9-3 score.

* * *

And if the Reds don't go off the beam and keep up the same brand of baseball, it's going to be mighty interesting scuffle between them and the Kingston Disney Leafs in the semi-final series. The Leafs won the second spot in the league playoff parade on Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Smiths Falls Royals 4-1 in their playoff for the place position. The first heat of what should be a sizzling seven-chukker contest gets under way tomorrow night in Megaffin's Stadium, Kingston with the second game tabbed far the Fair Grounds here come Wednesday kleig-lighting.

In the other half of the bracket the Smiths Falls Royals take on the top-place Brockville Memos in Fulford Park Brockville, this evening in their best-of-seven series. That, too, should be a thrilling series since the vaunted power of the Memos has been slightly off color during the past two weeks. However, we'll soon see which are the money teams. The boys start from scratch again, to to speak, and these playoffs are liable to provide some startling upsets.

* * *

Saturday night customers at the Redmen-Shoemnn game went home with a satisfied taste in their mouths, from a game standpoint that is. Wright and Strahan hooked up in a neat pitching duel as has been seen this season, and with both teams playing top-flight ball afield the pastime was a thriller from start to finish. The crowd keyed up by a scintillating exhibition sat back and waited for the "breaks" that never came.

* * *

Art. Wright, bested by Strahan deserved a better fate. He, like his opposition, pitched masterful ball but Strahan was good in the once or twice he was threatened and backed by airtight defensive work pulled out scathless. It was anybody's ball game to the finish with Vern Goyer's sizzling single in the fourth with Fitz on third, settling the issue.

* * *

Yesterday afternoon, Johnny Mowat came through with a seven-hit mound stunt in another game that was anybody's until the eighth when the Redmen grabbed a a 3-2 lead, then exploded in the ninth to score six and clinch the pastime. Mowat and Bobby Bunton duelled for eight innings and when the Shoemen roof started to cave in Gerd Muffitt went in to stiffle the Red bats. The Reds came up with 10 hits with Fitzpatrick leading the parade for the second night in a row.

The first game is scheduled for Toronto on September 19th., with the second here on Sept. 21st.

MINORS WIN, LOSE

Walker Hardware's peewee baseballers won the first round OBA playdowns Saturday afternoon defeating Peterborough Anthonys 8-6 to sweep the series in two straight. The kids meet Ottawa this week for the Eastern Ontario title, and if successful go into the provincial championship series. The teams displayed good baseball and the game was closer than the first tilt in Peterborough. In the meantime the Canadian Tire juveniles bowed to a superior Oshawa team at the fair grounds dropping the second game of the OBA series by a 20-2 count. The visitors were stronger in every department and experience was a big factor in their win.

Hal Walker of the Toronto Globe and Mail won low net honors with a 69. Tommy Gavriock of CKTB had second low net with 76.

The field of 48 golfers was the largest in the tournament's 14 years.

Bombers Take Senators Twice As Tribe Busts Brownies 4-3; Giants Win; Bosox Drop Two

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

It's lucky for New York and Cleveland they have so few games left to play against Philadelphia Athletics.

Jimmy Dykes animated A's have made the American-League race a two-team battle between the front-running Yankees and the runner-up Indians.

Boston's third-place Red Sox saw their pennant hopes all but shattered yesterday, when the seventh-place Athletics drubbed them in both ends of a doubleheader, 10-4 and 3-2.

The double defeat dropped the Sox 5½ games behind the Yankees and Indians. They have 20 games remaining to 19 for the Yankees and 15 for the Indians. Fortunately Boston has no more games with the Athletics, who are scheduled to face the Indians two more times and the Yankees once.

The Yankees increased their margin to four percentage points over the tribe by sweeping a pair from Washington, 7-5 and 2-0. Cleveland also won, 4-3, from St. Louis Browns.

Giants Have Hopes

New York Giants kept their flickering pennant hopes alive in the National League, defeating Brooklyn Dodgers 2-1 to climb back within 5½ games of the lead. St. Louis Cardinals entrenched their hold on third place with a pair of triumphs over Pittsburgh, 2-1 and 7-4.

Boston Braves trounced Philadelphia Phils twice in their battle for fourth place, 5-4 and 4-1. Chicago Cubs emerged from the cellar, splitting a doubleheader with Cincinnati. The Reds won the second game 7-0, after the Cubs captured the opener 7-3.

Chicago White Sox edged out Detroit 4-3 in a game that had no bearing on the American-League race.

The Athletics beat Boston with their own weapon—a home run. A three-run homer by Eddie Joost snapped a 4-4 tie and sparked the A's to a six-run eighth inning that won the opener. Zernial's 30th circuit clout with a mate aboard, and another homer by Dave Philley, accounted for all Philadelphia's runs in the nightcap. Little Bobby Shantz hurled a three-hitter to win his 15th game.

Five Homers

The home runs also played a major role in the Yankees' double win over the Senators. They unloosed five four-baggers to account for all but one of their runs in the first game. Yogi Berra who hit one of those, also homered in the nightcap to help Vic Raschi register his 18th victory. The game was halted after five and a half innings because of darkness.

Catcher Jim Hegan was the hitting star for the Indians as they overcame an early 3-0 deficit to win in the ninth inning. He opened the ninth with a single, his third hit, moved to third on two bunts, and scored on Bob Avila's long fly.

Eddie Robinson batted in three runs with his 27th homer and a fifth-inning double to help Saul Rogovin, White Sox righthander, rack up his 12th victory.

A fourth-inning home run by Monte Irvin with a man on was all Sal Maglie needed to whip the Dodgers. The New York righthander became the first National Leaguer to record 20 victories.

Sport in Brief

Three of Britain's leading bookmakers agreed Sunday that Sugar Ray Robinson is a 4-to-6 favorite to win back the world middleweight title from Randy Turpin in New York next Wednesday night.

Bill Thompson of the Guelph home club won the Ontario Golf Association tournament Saturday at the Cutten Fields course when he shot a one-under-par 71 to lead the field of 150 golfers.

In the second flight, W. Kartchener, Kitchener Rockway, won first low net with an 84, less 19 handicap. First low net in the third flight went to Frank Neibert, also of Rockway with a 96-26 for 70.

At Sault Ste. Marie, Cobourg Pavillion girls Saturday won the Ontario finals series in the all-American intermediate softball championship matches by walloping Sault Ste. Marie Erzi's girls in two games of a best-of-three series.

Cobourg took the first contest 11-1 and the second 14-2. Eight Sault errors set up the southern Ontario champs for the first tilt and they staged a 17-hit attack to take care of the second.

George Bevan, 18, of Winnipeg won a three-mile match swim at the Canadian National Exhibition Saturday, beating out Gerry Kerschner, 28, of Toronto, by less than an arm's length.

The match was arranged after Bevan, who set a 5-mile course record during the world championship 10-mile swim held earlier at the C.N.E., was beaten out during the last two miles by Kerschner, winner of the swim.

George Park of Hamilton won the Canadian National Exhibition men's amateur one-mile swim championship Saturday.

He covered the mile in 25 minutes and 15 seconds.

An English cocker spaniel owned by Harry Anyon of Coldsorings on the Hudson, N.Y., won the best-in-show award in Saturday's Toronto Kennel Club dog show at the Canadian National Exhibition. The cocker, Ch. Cartres Canyon, placed first in the sporting group.

Petes Nip Mimico For Two Straight

Mimico, Sept. 10 (CP) —Peterborough Petes trimmed Mimico Mountaineers 14-8 in an Ontario Lacrosse Association final Saturday night. Peterborough now leads the best-of-seven final series 2-0.

The series resumes in Peterborough tonight, with the ultimate winners travelling to Vancouver in quest of the Mann Cup, emblematic of Canadian Lacrosse championship.

Ike Hildebrand and Curly Mason each scored the three goals for Peterborough, while singles went to Fitzgerald, Thorpe, Dugan, Vitarelli, Ashbee, Wipper, Crowe and Powless.

Denny Peterson tallied three times for Mimico, Pop Chard and Ken Lytle twice each and Archie Dixon got the other goal.

Sugar Ray Intends Ending Fight Soon as Possible

By MURRAY ROSE

Grossinger, N.Y., Sept. 10—(AP)—If Sugar Ray Robinson intends to come out swinging against middleweight champion Randy Turpin on Wednesday night, there will be plenty of early fireworks at the polo grounds.

"I shall be ready to meet him if he does that," said the cool, superbly-conditioned Briton who rarely takes a backward step. "I feel confident of winning."

Robinson apparently has every intention of ending the 15-rounder as quickly as possible. In most of his training manoeuvres, he has been firing from a flat-footed stance and with plenty of power.

A close friend of Sugar Ray said "he's going to get that guy quick or they're going to have to carry Ray out of there. He wants that title back more than anything else in the world."

Get Him Early

"Robinson had better get him early, if he's going to get him," said Barney Ross, the former welterweight champion who has watched most of Turpin's workouts in this Catskill Mountains resort.

"This kid is in wonderful condition," said Ross, after the sturdy, 23-year-old invader boxed nine rounds yesterday. "He coasted all the way, didn't take a deep breath and sweated freely. He looks good to me. I give Robinson a chance in the first five rounds. If it goes beyond five rounds, this kid will climb all over him. I give him a chance to stop Ray."

It what was announced as his final boxing workout —Randy could change his mind—Turpin sparred three rounds each with Zack Hobbs, Bill Dockery and Eddie Phillips. He kept on top of them all the way in a workout, devoting most of his efforts to blocking and slipping punches. His muscular forearms seemed to be everywhere. Few blows got through his tight guard.

A few left hooks to the head did get through, and that's Sugar Ray's specialty. And the ex-champ will be bombing with six-ounce gloves on Wednesday.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

Bethlehem, Pa., Sept 10 (AP) —If you have any doubt about the younger generation taking over in amateur golf, you should have seen Frankie Stranahan and Sammy Urzetta coming off the Saucon Valley course after a practice round yesterday. The "bobby-sox" gallery, which in the past belonged to Stranahan, converged on Sammy and kept him signing autographs for a half hour . . besides being young reasonably good looking and the champion, Urzetta is a personable lad who almost had the staid golf "fathers" rolling in the aisles at the tee-off dinner Saturday night. . .

Future Masters

It isn't likely that Keith Tommy Jacobs, Jr., who qualified automatically for the tournament as 1951 U.S.G.A. junior champion or blue-eyed Don Bisplinghoff, or Billy Key or Gay (Junior) Brewer, will go very far in this tournament. . .but don't be surprised if one of them comes to the top in a few more years . . . they're all teen-agers who can play really good golf. Just a few years older than this group is another bunch of kids who could really upset the dope. For instance, there's Hobart Manley, Jr., the North and South amateur champion, who had an off day during the qualifying and wound up as third alternate. But a series of withdrawals made a place for him at the last minute.

TiCats Claw Argonauts 21-2 Ottawa, Stamps, Eskies Win

(By The Canadian Press)

Ottawa Rough Riders swept both ends of a Big Four home-and-home series over Montreal Alouettes 13-9 and 33-8 during the weekend to takes second place in the league, while Hamilton Tiger-Cats were swamping Toronto Argonauts 21-2 to stay in first place.

In the west, a brilliant 90-yard run by Calgary's Dave West gave the Stampeders their initial Interprovincial Union victory as they downed Saskatchewan Roughriders 9-7. Edmonton Eskimos took first place in the western league by battering Winnipeg Blue Bombers 35-19.

Saturday's Big Four game in Ottawa was turned into a see-saw contest which saw the Riders pop two touchdown passes to edge the Alouettes.

But Sunday in Montreal the Roughies walked all over the Montrealers. They scored five touchdowns and a field goal.

Custis Stars

Tiger-Cats' Negro quarterback, Bernie Custis, sparked his team's win over Argos in Toronto by tossing three touchdown passes. It was a hard-fought game, and players of both teams suffered injuries that will keep them on the sidelines for two or three weeks.

Ulysses Curtis, Argos speedy half, suffered a torn rib cartilage and outside wing Jack Gray of Argos a shoulder separation. Hamilton's first-string snap, Jake Gaudaur aggravated a back injury and had to be brought back to Hamilton by ambulance.

Eskimos secend-straight victory over Bombers, coupled with the Stampeders' triumph over Regina, ended a first-place deadlock between Edmonton and Regina.

Two more games are scheduled for tonight in the west. The Blue Bombers are set for a tilt with the Eskimos at Edmonton and Roughriders will break lances with the Stampeders at Calgary.

Four touchdowns contributed Saturday to Sarnia Imperials' second successive victory in the Ontario Rugby Football Union as they rolled up an impressive 28-1 victory over Windsor Royals.

The Royals were outgunned and outmanoeuvred as the Imperials made 23 first downs to the Royals' six and completed nine of 17 passes thrown as against one completed and 12 attempted by the Royals.

Imports did see some impressive ball-handling in Saturday's Argo-Hamilton game. Slippery Custis tossed a 45-yard touchdown pass for the Cats to Hal Waggoner, and a 25-yard skimmer that was good for a major to Joe Shinn.

And in the first Rider-Alouette game, Alton Baldwin, a top-rated import from Green Bay Packers, took both Ottawa touchdown passes. Big Bob Gain, all-American tackle last year with Kentucky Uuniversity, kicked the two converts.

The second Rider-Alouette contest turned into a ground battle as Ottawa registered five touchdowns, four converts, a field goal and a rouge and held the Montrealers to a touchdown, a convert and two singles.

Montreal's highly-rated quarterback, George Ratterman, who came from New York Yankees, didn't put on as good a show as did Ottawa's Tom O'Malley. During the weekend, Ratterman completed only 14 of 43 passes thrown while O'Malley registered with 12 in 20 tries.

Reds Take Batawa Shoemen In 2 Straight To Win COBL Playoff Berth

Take First in 1-0 Thriller, Cinch Series in Second, 9-3; Meet Kingston in Semi-Finals

The Belleville Redmen will meet the Kingston Dixney Leafs in the Central Ontario Baseball League semi-finals. They won the fourth playoff spot in no uncertain manner over the weekend by cashing in the series sweep in two straight games in the best-of-three playoff series.

The Reds, behind the fine hurling of Billy Strahan blanked the Shoemen, 1-0 in the Saturday night opener and clinched the berth yesterday afternoon with a 9-3 victory on the Batawa diamond.

They open the four-of-seven series on their own diamond tomorrow night with the Kingston Dixney Leafs at Megaffin Stadium, Kingston, with the second game here Wednesday.

(Redmen 9—Batawa 3)

Redmen L. Bishop 9

Vern Geyer's rifling single "through the middle" scoring Fitzpatrick broke up a brilliant hurling duel between Billy Strahan and Art Wright in Saturday night's thriller.

Fitz had doubled along the first baseline and raced to third on Wright's wild pitch. Manny Schried and Vern Geyer put a scorching single through the box that went to centrefield with Fitz galloping home for the only run of the game.

The game, the best seen here all season, saw the young right-handers turn back opposing batters with a mixture monotonous regularity. Wright struck out ten and walked two with Strahan whiffing nine and walking three.

Both Batawa and the Redmen came up with flawless fielding displays, neither side committing an error. Buck Reeves, Redmen second baseman and Mac Watson's blow to centre field, and tied the game in the sixth when a walk, stolen base, and Semark's single sent Bunton across the plate.

Monroe walked to open the eighth, stole second, went to third on Buchanan's ground out then stole home for the second time in the game to put the Reds in permanent possession of the lead.

Two walks, an error, a single by Stewart with the bases loaded and Fitzpatrick's double to centre Buchanan from the mound in the ninth. Monroe greeted Murtiff, his replacement with a single and scored the sixth run of the frame on Buchanan's smash to the centre before the side was retired.

Fitzpatrick picked up three hits for the winners. He doubled being the only extra-base blow of the fray. Monroe and Watson got a pair each.

Cleaners Oust Kingston 10-3, Win E.O. Title

The Cleaner Combines of Belleville are intermediate AA Eastern Ontario champions by virtue of their 10-3 victory over the Kingston Aicans at the Alemite Field on Saturday night.

The win gave them the best of three series in two straight games as they won the first game, 6-5, by an 15-8 score in Kingston on Wednesday. Cleaners now meet the Toronto district representative on September 19th.

The contest, although seldom in doubt after the middle of the fourth, was a very low hitting affair. Cleaners hit six safeties while the losers produced only four total, five were for extra bases.

Hitless Till Seventh

Tom Harold, although working very slowly, pitched steady ball and did not allow a hit from the first until the seventh when the visitors plated all their runs. He passed five and whiffed nine others. Vallier, on the mound for Kingston through most poor support as his teammates committed seven miscues. He fanned eight and put seven others on with walks.

The Cleaner packed away with single tallies in the first, third and fifth, two each in the fourth and seventh and three in the sixth.

Harris was the best at the plate as he connected for a triple and single for Aicans. Purcell, Vallier and Olson got the others, the former two getting doubles.

Young was the only Combine player to pick up a pair while Cork and Mulvihill each hit once. De Rushie banged out a tremendous home run and Jones connected for a triple for the other blows.

Canada's Nimrods Eagerly Await Season Opening

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada's nimrods, excited by prospects of one of the best seasons in years, eagerly await the opening gun of the 1951 season on game birds.

A Canadian Press survey indicated plenty of game—from ptarmigan in Newfoundland to ducks in British Columbia—all set for impatient hunters. In most sections of the country, the season will be under way in the next two weeks.

Already Manitoba hunters trump their friends to the south equal in marshes. The season opened there Sept. 1.

Ducks and geese became legal game in most sections of Ontario Sept. 17, and the snipe season starts Oct. 1.

Best outlook for hunters in 22 years was indicated for the prairie provinces where shooting, with the exception of Manitoba, opens within the next two weeks.

Guns in the interior of British Columbia start banging away Sept. 15 but coastal hunters must wait until Oct. 20. In Quebec, the season opened Saturday while in other areas, Sept. 20 and Oct. 11 are opening days.

Yankees May do It With Mirrors But Usually When Chips are Down

By JOE FALLS

New York, Sept. 10 (AP)—The guy was sitting there, reading the paper and shaking his head. Every once was a puzzled look on his face.

"Them Yankees," he muttered. "How do they do it."

You looked at him, and there was a puzzled look on your face.

"Do what?" you asked.

And he replied: "Lead the league. How do they lead the league? Just look at these records.

He put the newspaper in front of you and pointed to the baseball statistics.

"Just look at this. There isn't a Yankee among the leading hitters. Or among the home run leaders. Or double leaders. Or triples. Or anything. It's just amazing."

This made you think . . . the guy is right. You suddenly realized that the New York Yankees, once the most awesome batting team in baseball history, were leading the American League without a truly great hitter.

Not a Single Yankee

You took another look at the batting and slugging leaders. Names like Williams and Goodman and Minoso and even Fain and Fox were there, but no Yankees.

No Yogi Berra's, or Joe DiMaggio's, or Johnny Mize's. Not a single Yankee.

Currently, a freckle-faced rookie is the top New York hitter. He is infielder Gil McDougald, a good but hardly spectacular batter. He is hitting .312.

The only other player over the .300 mark—the imaginary dividing line between outstanding and ordinary— is Berra, and Yogi just makes it with .303.

The rest of the team—including the great Joe DiMaggio—is below that magic .300 figure.

It appears as though the Yanks won't have a player who will drive in 100 runs. Berra, with 76 RBI's, is the No. 1 producer.

These statistics would indicate the Yanks are doing it with mirrors, or something. But statistics can be misleading.

Take hitting and wooding. He only has 14 home runs, but three of these were vital games against Cleveland.

Johnny Mize only has 82 hits so far. But eight of these (in 15 at bats) have come in the role as a pinchhitter, also winning several games.

There seems only one answer: When the Yankees do need, it's usually when all the big chips are up for grabs.

Three Picked As Favorites In National Amateur

By WILL GRIMSLEY

Bethlehem, Pa., Sept. 10—(AP) —If you handicapped golfers the way you do other sports, the starting line on the 51st National Amateur Golf Tournament, opening today, would list three short-odds favorites.

They are: Jim McHale, Sem Urzetta and Frank Strazzeri.

This is the consensus of the United States Walker Cup members, polled in their quarters for the final practice whacks over the long, par 71 Saucon Valley Country Club.

The nine internationalists, all of them rated outstanding contenders, also picked Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City, and Dick Chapman of Pasadena, Cal.

"Also don't overlook the darkhorses if they warned. "This is a funny tournament and anybody can take it."

Their dark-horse nominations included Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, runner-up to Chapman at Northfield, N.J., who made a good showing in the last National open at Oakland Hills; Dee Mercer of Martinsville, Ind., Bob Gardner of Los Angeles and Jack Munger of Dallas.

The outstanding favorite is tall, 35-year-old McHale, an amateur professional who on the last two days has whipped around the 6,979-yard course in rounds of 65 and 68. Par is 36-35—71.

Urzetta, from Rochester, N.Y., is seeking to become the first man in 16 years to put two titles in a row. Lawson Little did it in 1934-35. Sem is hitting the ball solidly these days.

Strazzeri is the spark plug heir from Toledo, who has been a postwar giant in amateur golf but failed to win a championship. He shot a sizzling 67 in practice yesterday and indicated the championship he let slip away on the 39th hole of the finals at Minneapolis last year to Urzetta may not escape him this time.

Royals-Bisons Chiefs-Wings Start Playoffs

(By The Associated Press)

The pennant-winning Montreal Royals and the runner-up Rochester Red Wings will be the favorites when the International League's 19th annual Governor's Cup playoffs get underway Tuesday.

Royals, who won their sixth championship as the circuit's 68th season ended yesterday, will be hosts to the fourth-place Buffalo Bisons. The Red Wings will oppose the third-place Syracuse Chiefs at Rochester. All seven games will be best-of-seven series.

In regular-season competition Montreal, winner of four previous playoffs, compiled a 13-to-9 won-lost record against the Bisons. Rochester captured 15 of their 25 meetings with the Chiefs.

Richmond Wins Hit Title

Rochester's Don Richmond won the batting championship for the second successive year with an average of .353 as the 1950 flag-victors bowed to Montreal 3-2. Successive pitching victories by Tony Atwell and winning pitcher Dan Bankhead enabled the Royals to register their fifth playoff and finished 11 games ahead of the Red Wings.

Augie Bergamo's pair of homers paced Syracuse to an 11-4 victory over Toronto in last year's playoff winners. The game was highlighted by a fracas won by the Orioles' Marv Rickert, who slammed his 35th in winning home runs by Toby Atwell.

Lynn Lovenguth scattered 10 hits effectively as Buffalo turned the last place Springfield Cubs 8-1. Archie Wilson of the Bisons knocked in the first two runs to answer the rune-batted-in-title.

Toronto's Johnny Heikki won his 19th game to lead the league in victories as the fifth-place Maple Leafs subdued Ottawa Giants 5-1. The triumph was the Leafs' 13th in their last 16 games.

Young Actresses Win Applause Early in Season

By WILLIAM GLOVER

New York, Sept. 10.—(AP)—A new Broadway season of high dramatic and financial hopes, in which some hundred shows will try for gold and glory, was launched this week with pair of hopeful young actresses winning the early applause.

"Lace on Her Petticoat" by the English playwright Aimee Stuart was the lone opening-week entry at the Booth Theatre. It was a well-meaning effort, with a tendency to get melodramatically out of hand at the finish—concerned with the prejudices of social casts in the Scotland of 1890. But it brought out for a hearty welcome two auld-sean girls, Perilla Nelson and Patsy Bruder, who could teach many elder performers some fine points of acting ability.

For the three-act comedy, the pair of young blondes share scene-stealing honors as Perilla takes the role of the rich tot fpm the castle who finds friendship with Patsy, the daughter of the working classes.

There's also a romantic sidelight involving Myra Peterson, the young widow mother, and Jeff Morrow, the free-speaking son of the master. The third main adult role is taken by Muriel Aked. Miss Aked and the Nelson youngster both performed in the earlier London production of "Lace on Her Petticoat".

A couple of more entries reach Broadway during the coming week. Miss West will be back Sept. 11 at the Broadway with another revival of "Diamond Lil" and the next night "Bagels and Yox" will bow in at the holiday. "Bagels" is billed as a Yiddish vaudeville revue played in English.

Crosby Taught Alexis Smith How to Wrestle

Hollywood, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Alexis Smith, 20-year-old Canadian-born actress, was dignified once but that was before Bing Crosby taught her how to wrestle.

In fact, Alexis, a native of Penticton, B.C., was so dignified that for years she was one of the screen's steadiest working cold, statuesque blondes.

"What a rut," she confided. "It got so bad that I used to feel like grabbing people by the arm and shouting: 'Hey, I'm really not cold and statuesque.'"

Then her agent heard that Frank Capra wanted a sexy blonde for a new Crosby picture "Here Comes the Groom". The agent told her to dress as sexily as possible for a 9 a.m. interview.

"I would have worn a negligee if I had owned one," said Alexis, "but then I decided no one could look sexy at 9 o'clock in the morning and showed up in a sexless suit."

She got the role because Capra was looking for someone to play a stuffy Back Bay Boston heiress. But that's only the beginning. Crosby humanizes her in the picture by teaching her how to wrestle.

From then on, a new Alexis emerges on the screen—a sort of combination Mae West and Betty Hutton.

But Hollywood is a crazy place. A producer for another studio saw the preview of the new Alexis and told her:

"You were a howl. I couldn't believe it was you on the screen. I'm sending you a scrip to read. I want you in my picture."

AT THE BELLE —Cyril Cusak, Stewart Granger and Robert Newton as the three rollicking privates in His Majesty's service in India, in Rudyard Kipling's "Soldiers Three," rough and fun-packed film, also starring Walter Pidgeon and David Niven. A funny M.G.M. "Droopy" Cartoon is on the same bill.

Alexis read the script and turned it down. Why?

"He wanted me to play another cold, statuesque blonde."

AT THE CAPITOL — Tom Neal and Wendy Waldron are starred in Monogram's "Navy Bound," now playing at Capitol Theatre, and on the same program, "Jim Thorpe—All American," starring Burt Lancaster, Steve Cochran, Phyllis Thaxter and Charles Bickford.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Something may be sometimes right and sometimes not. If you know when it is not fowl, you know when it is fish. So it is with a double. When it is not for penalty, it is for penalty.

If a bid of more than three in a suit is doubled, it is for penalty. If a bid of more than one in no-trump is doubled, it is for penalty. Even if the doubler's partner has not yet bid.

If the doubler's partner has already bid, a double is for penalty. In that case, it makes no difference how long or how high the bid may be. It may even be a bid of only one.

Any other double is for takeout. If partner has not yet bid, a double is for a takeout if (1) the bid is not more than three in a suit, or (3) the bid is not more than one in no-trump.

South started with an opening bid of one heart. Your partner in the west passed. North doubled. Now the club you double is for takeout with this east hand:

♥A J 8
♦A Q J 8
♣Q 10 6 4

You see, your partner has not bid. The doubled bid is not more than three in a suit. So, you are asking your partner to take-out. You tell him to bid if he does not intervene with a bid.

Suppose south started with an opening bid of one heart and your partner in the west bid one club and you double with the same hand. It is for penalty.

You see, your partner has already bid. So it makes no difference how low the bid is. You say you can defeat the two club contract. You tell your partner he can leave that double alone.

Suppose south started with an opening bid of one heart and your partner in the west passed. If north then bids four diamonds and you double, with the east hand, it is for penalty.

You see, although your partner has not yet bid, the bid is more than three in a suit. You say you can defeat it. Do not say it unless you mean it.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Sept. 10 (AP) — Hollywood remembers Maria Montez as the girl who swore she would become a movie star—and did.

After recovering from the shock of the exotic star's bathtub death in France, her fellow workers here recall many chapters of her burning ambition. One of them told of her arrival at Universal studio. She announced:

"In two years I am going to be a star."

She made it in less time than that. The prime factor in her success was Maria Montez. She was colorful, she was explosive. But her rages were never pure temperament. They were calculated to enhance her glamor.

"Maria could fight like a tigress," recalled a studio man. "But she never made it tough on the little people. She always fought with the studio higher-ups—the ones who could fight back."

Publicity Knack

Few movie personalities have had such a knack for publicity. She was aware that photographs of her admirable frame were the fastest route to success. Many times the studio photographer would arrive at his gallery to find Maria camped on his doorstep. She might have been wearing a leopard skin or a fancy hat and would say, "wouldn't this make a great picture?"

Grim Incident

One co-worker recalls an incident which draws a grim parallel to the circumstances of Maria's death. It happened while she was doing a bath scene for one of her epics. She was uneasy about it and had the set cleared of unnecessary people. After almost a whole day in the nude, she said, "I am going to faint."

"We just have three still pictures to shoot," the director said. "Wait until then."

Duplessis Says Govt. Should Not Issue Passports

Quebec, Sept. 8 (CP) —Premier Duplessis suggested yesterday that the federal government refuse passports to communists wishing to attend a convention in Moscow Dec. 5.

"This would prevent them from bringing back to Quebec the communist poison they picked up in Moscow," the premier said.

He made the statement after he revealed seizure by Quebec Provincial Police of communist literature at Camp Lafond near L'Assomption, Que., in the Laurentian Mountains north of Montreal.

The documents, published in Russia and Czechoslovakia, were seized in a raid last month.

"They were designed to spread communism and to assist in the establishment of a communist school," the premier told his weekly press conference.

Among the documents seized was a letter from Pierre Gelinas, editor of the weekly newspaper, Combat, banned in Quebec. Premier Duplessis said the letter invited the camp's guests to attend a convention Dec. 5 in Moscow.

Last June, Russian-language communist school books were seized by provincial police at Rouyn, Noranda, Val D'Or and Malartic in northwestern Quebec.

MONEY CLIP

Auckland, N.Z. (CP) — Wool shearers in New Zealand will be able to earn between $130 to $230 for a 44-hour week this year, according to their speed. Shearing pay is fixed to correspond with wool prices and rates this year have been almost doubled.

Little Benny's Note Book

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came over to play Apples last nite, and pop and Harvey started to talk and argue about who was going to win the baseball pennant, and ma said, Gladdis and I are waiting to play bridge, William, if I may intrude my low brow into weighty intellectual discussion.

Being sarcastic, and pop said, We were just coming to the intellectual part, my dear. Speaking of literature, what do you think of the new telefone directory, Harvey? he said.

I found it most intriguing, Harvey said. I had no idea how the story was going to end till I came to the very last name, Dryzer. It was a complete surprise, I must say, though, the chapter on Smiths was a bit repetitious, but by the way, if you like stories of wild animal life, dont fail to read Sears the Roebuck, he said.

I'll try to get hold of it, pop said. And speaking of nature books, that reminds me, you mustn't miss My Life Among the Bugs, by the grate syko analist Dr. Freud, he said, and he said, William, I'm not going to get out that bridge table, or do I have to do it?

No my dear, I have to do it, pop says. But I was just about to ask Harvey if he has read the new book about social unrest. It's called The Hungry Frankfurters, or Dog Eat Dog, he said, and Harvey said, It's a translation from the German, isn't it?

Very much so, pop said, and Harvey said, If I understood German I'd read it in the original. Just at the moment I'm reading a work on practical interior decorating by Lady de Fats the famous three hundred pound artist, It's called How to Make the Most of Dubble Chintz, he said.

William, I've got the table set up, ma said.

Being the beginning of bridge.

23 Fatalities In East Canada During Weekend

(By The Canadian Press)

Nine persons of 23 who died violently in eastern Canada during the weekend perished in one automobile smash near Drummondville in the eastern townships of Quebec.

A Canadian Press compilation early today showed that the worst car and highway death toll during the weekend was 20. One man died when fire destroyed his home, one man succumbed to carbon monoxide poisoning and police and motorists were kept busy by the intense heat. The other two victims who, police said, had been drinking before the accident, were riding in a truck which plunged into the car. They were thrown clear.

Burned in the car were: Mr. and Mrs. Leopold Lemelin, 40 and 47, of St. Camille, Que., and their daughter, Noella, 4; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Filliaut, 25 and 23, of St. Camille; Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Lefebvre, 29 and 28, of Victoriaville, Que. In the truck were Benoit Gaudreau, 30, and Lionel Messier, 23, both of St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Near Maniwaki, Que., Charles Smith, 24, of the nearby Iroquois Indian Reserve, was killed in what police termed a hit-and-run accident. Joseph Simard, 31-year-old taxi driver was killed when his cab | was struck by a train near Carleton, Que. Mrs. Lionel Lawrence,38 year-old farmer from St. Anseline, Que., was killed when the car driven between vehicle was struck by a car.

Investigate Death

Montreal police said early today they are investigating the death by poison of Alexandre Lefebvre, suburban Cartierville. At Baie D'Urfe, 12 miles west of Montreal, David G. Owen, 34, was burned to death when fire destroyed his home.

Near Smiths Falls, Ont., Eleanor Kerr, 19, of Smiths Falls, died when a car missed a curve and overturned in a ditch. Doctors said she was drowned in foot-deep water.

Two Buffalo youths, Carl Hoerner, 16, and William Olsen, 17, died when they were trapped in a car which plunged into the Welland Canal near Port Colborne.

Andrew Bendt, 73, was killed in a truck-car collision near Kitchener, Ont.

Killed when automobiles knocked them from their bicycles were: Ethel Fisher, 47-year-old deaf-mute, near Kinburn, Ont., and Hilda Alderton, 17, of West Lorne, Ont., near Wardsville. Ont. Bobby Lee, 9, of Inglewood, Ont., near Parndale, Ont.

In Woodstock, Ont., Percy L. McMillan, 52, succumbed to carbon monoxide poisoning while tinkering with his car in his garage.

Admits Taking Part in Holdup At St. David's

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 10—(CP)— Minneapolis police said Saturday that a 35-year-old ex-convict captured here Friday has admitted taking part in a bank holdup at St. David's, Ont., Aug. 16.

William Earl Miller and Katheen Mary Jordan, 16, of Toronto, were arrested by the Minneapolis detectives when they went to a post office to pick up a letter.

They were scheduled to leave here Monday in the custody of Toronto Detective Sgt. Edmund Tong, who tracked Miller as estimated 7,000 miles before he caught up to him. Miller has waived extradition.

25 EMPLOYEES OUT

Cobourg, Sept. 10—(CP)—Some 25 employees were laid off at the Canadian General Electric plastics plant here due to what company officials term a temporary wide industrial slump". The plant supplies parts for other company plants producing radios and television sets.

Decrease in demand for these goods has led to the "temporary" lay-off, officials said. The lay-off will be lifted as soon as something to terms of the union contract.

FROST STRIKES BLOW

Delhi, Ont., Sept. 10—(CP) — Frost struck a $3,000,000 blow to tobacco farmers in Delhi area Friday night as temperatures as low as 27 degrees destroyed an estimated five to seven million pounds of tobacco in the fields.

In a strip from Norwich to Lake Erie, from Simcoe to as far west as Aylmer, low-lying areas were completely destroyed. St. Williams, Forestry Farm Station were hit hardest. Damage to the plants did not show up until the sun rose high enough Saturday to cover the fields.

Now Lance Bradley had nothing against his foster son. Goldie had not done anything to disappoint him. He was a steady worker, and unlike most boys of his age, he wasn't running around getting into mischief. But he was only a boy and one who knew nothing about business. Indeed, he had shown that he was not cut out for business. There, four years hence he would be different, of course. By that time he would be a first class printer, and possibly nothing more.

Looking at the matter from all angles, Lance couldn't see Goldie ever, as a successful business man, as one who would have the necessary ability to manage a daily newspaper, a radio station, and keep them going satisfactorily. As one who had risked his money to bring his dual business into being and keep it there, Lance was naturally proud of his achievements and he would not have this thing that he had built up, destroyed by mismanagement, or by the easy-come easy-go attitude of the person to whom it had been willed.

Lawyer Parker agreed with him. Lance's first and 'only' wish up to then had fortunately served its purpose. Lance had not died, so the boy Goldie Webster had not been saddled with something that was beyond him to handle, even under a guardian. Lawyer and publisher put their heads together and they drew up a will that would stand for all time. It was a will that looked after Goldie Webster without saddling him with authority, or tieing him down—a will that would benefit other people as well, to their great surprise and everlasting gratitude.

Shortly after the middle of the month of January, Lance Bradley and Dad Roberts sat down to study the neatly prepared statement of the business of newspaper and radio station for the past years. As Dad had anticipated from the very beginning, that first year's business fell several thousand dollars short of meeting expenses. But as Treasurer Sparling pointed out, the report wasn't as bad as it looked. The vast sums paid to members of electrical and highly paid press erectors and machinists, the expense involved in increasing the power of radio station, buying land, erecting towers and adding new equipment had run into a lot of money, an outlay that would not have to be made another year.

"It's much better than I expected," Lance observed, "and to think that a few dollars this way or that made no difference to him. I suppose I could have been cheap, I could have cut down here or there, but I just didn't. Everything appears to be in fine shape; we don't owe a cent. Next year we may indeed be making some money.

"Once you get over the hump, son," Dad Roberts reminded him, "it will be plain sailing. The business is here to be secured, as you have reasons to know. The volume of business now that you his establishes will grow. All you have to do is to sit tight and keep plugging away. Don't try to make money, and you'll make money. That may seem an odd thing to say, but it is absolutely true insofar as a newspaper business is concerned."

On the last Thursday night in January, Lance Bradley and his committee met at the town hall to deal with the applications received by the town clerk for the positions of chief constable and two assistants for the Emerton police force. After considerable discussion, the committee chose the highly recommended John Shepherd to fill the post made vacant by the dismissed William Glender, while Donald White and George Turner, war veterans all, were selected as members of the force, to report for duty at once.

And that matter fully attended to, Lance Bradley turned his mind to his foster son's fight with Jacky Peever in the main event at Town Hall, the next night, Friday.

According to Stub Ross, Goldie had trained hard for this fight. He was taking his boxing seriously now. Stub reminded him that it wasn't for the Golden Gloves this time and that it was not going to be a case of going in there against a boy who did not know any more about ring warfare than he did. This Jacky Peever was a good boxer, a hard hitter, and he wouldn't be any sitting duck in this gruelling game of ficticuffs.

So knowing how important it was that he should make a good showing at least, Goldie entered the ring that night with a do or die light in his blue eyes.

Jacky Peever was a tall, fair-haired boy of wiry type. He was stream-lined, lean, quick in his actions, and likely to stay fresh, for he wasn't carrying any extra weight. That's how Jacky Peever looked to Goldie Webster as he sat in his corner measuring him with calm, thoughtful eyes. A few minutes later he was seeing Peever again, but it was through clouded eyes as he sat on the seat of his pants in the middle of the ring, waiting for Stub Rose to give him the signal to get up again, while he shook his head to clear a fogged brain. He was up at the count of seven and he hung on to the end of the round.

A surprised crowd watched Stub as he worked on Goldie in his corner. Lance Bradley left his seat to go to the side of the ring to ask if Goldie had been seriously hurt. "He's okay, Chief, he's okay," grinned Stub.

"I told you never to lead with your right," Stub stormed.

"Sorry, Stub," Goldie said, his mind clear by now, "he has a long left hook, hasn't he?"

"You should know," Stub said, "and now that you do, don't let him tag you with it again. Go after him, but watch yourself. Don't let him get set. Never mind his reputation—what has he that you haven't?"

"I really wouldn't know," Goldie grinned. "He's just getting acquainted—and I haven't come round to that yet."

The bell rang. A more determined, yet more careful, Goldie Webster rushed from his corner to get it over with. Peever started in where he'd left off in the first round, only to be swept back by a series of whirlwind rights and lefts that dug into his stomach, spiralled on his jaw and face. He came off the ropes with a bleeding nose, then back-pedalled, stabbing Goldie with lefts. At the end of the round his seconds were starting a repair job on him.

"Now you're getting somewhere, kid!" Stub exulted as Goldie sat down. "You won that round by a mile.

"Just keep after him, crowd him, but remember—he can't hit—he's apt to dump you—"

"As if I didn't know," Goldie grinned sheepishly, "that kid's dangerous, he has everything—"

"And so have you, Goldie," Stub assured him; "now this is it—this is the pay-off, good luck, kid!"

From the moment the bell sounded Goldie Webster was on top of his man. He never let him get away, peppered him with blows. After one minute and forty-five seconds of that, the referee mercifully stopped the fight, and raised Goldie's arm.

In his dressing room later Goldie told Lance Bradley that the mistake he had made in the first round when he'd left himself open for a left hook, was one mistake he would never make again.

"We profit by our mistakes, Goldie," Lance said proudly, "next time you'll know better."

CHAPTER XXVI

If Mayor Joe Crookes had any inkling that the members of his council were delving into his personal dealings with the municipality of Emerton, he didn't show it by either word or action.

That he had had his fingers in the town till was a given, but a poor guess as it proved, so Dr. Johnson, finance committee chairman, admitted after he had made a careful check of the town books.

And yet it was obvious that Mayor Crookes was doing all right by himself. He dressed well and had a new car every year, all of which could not have come alone from the rentals of his houses across the railway tracks. Then, where was the mayor getting the money to put on such a good front? Council checked upon his taxes and found them fully paid up. They checked the assessments on his properties and found them in keeping with those on like properties in the town.

Czech Engineer With Train Makes Dash to Freedom

20 of 107 Passengers Seek Refuge in West Germany

Hof, Germany, Sept. 11 — (AP) — A Czech locomotive engineer made a successful dash today across the border to the freedom of West Germany, bringing with him 107 passengers in three train cars.

The train was en route from Eger in Czechoslovakia to Asch near the West German border.

When the train neared Asch, it detoured on another track so that it could continue to Selb-Ploessberg, West German border station.

The locomotive engineer told surprised West German border police that he wanted to stay in West Germany along with 20 of the 107 passengers.

The engineer said the other passengers except for the 20 wanted to go back to Czechoslovakia.

Get New Engineer

West German and Czech authorities conferred soon afterwards in an effort to arrange for an engineer to come over the frontier and return the "fugitive" train.

It was the most unusual political escape in the iron curtain's history.

Most refugees slip across the frontier clandestinely on foot. A few have dashed over in stolen planes.

Selb-Ploessberg is approximately 25 miles southeast of Hof.

The engineer and his passengers remained in the railroad station while border police held their conference.

The train consisted of a locomotive, three express passenger cars and a baggage car.

AMERICAN GIRL SWIMS CHANNEL WEST TO EAST

Becomes First Woman To Swim it Both Ways

Sangatte, France, Sept. 11—AP—California's Florence Chadwick swam across the English Channel from Britain to France in near-record time today to become the first woman to swim the channel both ways. She climbed ashore here even as police were investigating reports that she had been lost at sea.

Miss Chadwick, 32, reaching France after 16 hours and 14 minutes in the water, had started the swim from St. Margaret's Bay, near Dover, England, last night.

Crowds had been waiting for her at Cap Gris Nez, five miles to the southwest, and when she failed to make an appearance, feared the worst for her safety. She had started out in a dense fog and there had been no sight of her when the fog lifted. She veered somewhat from her planned course.

Confusion attended her arrival at Sangatte, composed of a few ancient huts, when she mistook her for a Danish swimmer, a woman who had yet started the try from England.

The San Diego typist stalked out of the water onto the isolated little Sangatte beach to the cheers of a handful of French children and their parents.

Miss Chadwick was breathing heavily after her long struggle but fully with the grease to protect her from the channel's icy temperature.

She was dispositioned when told she had not broken the record set by Tom Blower of Britain—31 minutes faster than Miss Chadwick.

She boarded a motor yacht then, felt asleep in no time at all, and slept all the way back across the channel to England.

She had been sick six times during the swim.

High Cost of Living to Be Hot Topic for Labor Congress

Halifax, Sept. 11—(CP)—The dominion's high cost of living will be a hot topic again today as the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada swings into the stride of its annual convention.

The congress expressed alarm yesterday at Prime Minister St. Laurent's recent statement that there would be no price control at the present time and rapped the government for its "lack of interest" in the welfare of Canada and in not putting federal price-control into effect.

One of the first things the convention did at the opening session was adopt resolutions calling for improvements in the old-age pensions setup. It asked that provisions be provided for all at 65 years—as federal and provincial governments now are working out—but it said the monthly payment should be a minimum of $65 instead of the $40 in the current plan.

Another congress request was that, until there is a national health insurance plan, all necessary medical care for pensioners should be provided free.

On the dominion-provincial relations front, the congress expressed regret that not enough progress had been made on a number of matters including rent control and expressed "alarm" at legislation adopted at the last session of parliament which would enable the federal government to restrict trade in margarine.

Other resolutions adopted by the congress called for:

1. Wider unemployment insurance coverage and increasing the insurance benefits for unemployed by at least 50 per cent. The top weekly payment for a single man now is $16.20 a week.

2. Relaxation of unemployment insurance restrictions on married women put in by the federal government about a year ago.

In adopting a report from its executive officers' reports, the congress adopted a stand against compulsory arbitration in the weapons used to work out the final settlement in the general rail strike of last year. The report said the congress would oppose any attempt to make industrial disputes subject to compulsory arbitration.

General Manager Of Toronto Maple Leafs Resigns

Toronto, Sept. 11 (CP) — Joe Zeigler resigned as general manager of Toronto Maple Leafs.

He said in a statement that he and Jack Cooke, owner of the International Baseball League Club, had "come to a friendly parting of the ways." His future plans were not announced.

Zeigler came to Toronto on a three-year contract prior to the 1949 season and he and Cooke, who took over the club in mid-season, had "mutually agreed not to renew it."

The Leafs finished the season in fifth place.

In 1948, first year of the Zeigler regime, the team finished fifth—after setting a season's record of 369,000 paid admissions and attracting the largest single gate in the club's history, 14,000.

In 1950, the Leafs slipped to seventh place and for most of 1951, floundered in the second division.

Canning Kettle May be Forced To Sidelines by Atomic Energy

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 11. — (AP)—Atomic energy may force the canning kettle to the sidelines one day soon along with the wheel of fortune and celluloid collar.

Food preservation by atomic irradiation on an experimental basis has been achieved by University of Michigan researchers.

Prof. Lloyd E. Brownell, of the College of Engineering, supervisor of the project, reported on it today.

He said several samples of raw beef have been exposed to the gamma rays without development of spoilage or odor or appreciable change in color.

Also subjected to the rays and each year, are potatoes, onions, apples, peaches, cherries, grapes, red raspberries and blueberries.

Brownell said that normal processing of perishables will tend to modify the flavor, texture and food value.

In irradiation, milk, meat, fruit and vegetables are exposed to energy rays emitted from a cobalt cylinder encased in a lead vault. This has destroyed or inactivated certain bacteria and enzymes which cause spoilage and decay in various perishable products, Brownell said. He believes that if applied on a commercial scale the process could save millions of dollars lost on food spoilage

Mossadegh Defying Opposition At Home and British Financial Threats Presses Ultimatum

Tehran, Sept. 11—(AP)—Iran's ultimatum giving Britain 2 weeks to resume talks about their oil dispute is being regarded by way of Washington today, a government spokesman said.

Premier Mohammed Mossadegh was unable to get parliament approval or his move. But the premier went ahead with his plan in the face of outspoken opposition by 14 deputies who braved assassination threats to defy his policy and despite Britain's moves to cripple Iran's finances.

The plan calls for Britain to resume negotiations on Mossadegh's oil nationalization policies or see the 200 British technicians remaining at the old Anglo-Iranian company's Abadan refinery thrown out of the country.

The ultimatum was routed to Nasrullah Entezam, ran's ambassador in Washington, to turn over to W. Averell Harriman, President Truman's special envoy who tried to mediate the cuarrel.

The government spokesman said Harriman promised when he left Iran that he would do anything further to help settle the dispute. Harriman will be asked to relay the ultimatum to London;

The opposition deputies signed a communique accusing the premiles of making enemies of Britain and the United States.

It charged him with failing to carry out promises of riches he made when he pushed through a law nationalizing the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company installations four months ago.

One deputy said there were 30 in the Majlis (lower house of parliament) who would vote against Mossadegh in a showdown. Opposition deputies have been boycotting the Majlis sessions to keep it from mustering a quorum of 79 on the confidence vote Mossadegh seeks.

Some opponents talked of trying to unseat the premier in the next two weeks.

One of the leading candidates to succeed him is Zai Ed-Din, who claims to be a direct descendant of the prophet Mohammed. Zai Ed-Din, 66, was premier for three months in 1921 after leading a coup which brought Reza Shah to power.

The premier's opponents say they favor oil nationalization, too, but that his policies by making enemies of Britain and the U.S. were endangering Iran which has depended for decades on a balance of power between Russia and Britain.

Britain's move yesterday to cut off Iran's dollar sources was interpreted as a clear bid to force out Mossadegh and get some one more amenable to deal with.

Last night, the cabinet approved terms of Iran's first foreign sale of nationalized oil. It was a deal with Afghanistan for $3,400,000, a price $10 per cent under Mexican Gulf prices.

Six Survive Crash Landing Of U.S. Bomber

Anchorage, Alaska, Sept. 11. — (AP)—Six crew members survived the emergency crash landing of a U.S. Air Force B-29 Bomber 100 miles north of here Monday.

One man was killed when the B-29 crash landed about 2:30 p.m. E.D.T. It was flying at 11,000 feet.

A para-rescue team reached the scene and found it found the survivors. It said they needed medical aid.

The B-17 had struck a hill and was still burning as the rescuers arrived.

Flight Surgeon Maj. Z. W. Baszewski was killed in the crash. He was by helicopter to jump at the site.

The wreckage was spotted by a civilian pilot. The B-17 left Elmendorf base here at 6.31 a.m. and was later reported missing.

The B-17 was the 14th aircraft to vanish or crash in Alaska since the Alaskan Pacific Airlines Korean airlift plane disappeared July 19 with 38 aboard. Ninety-five persons have died or are missing in the seven- week string of air disasters.

King to Undergo Further Treatment For Lung Condition

London, Sept. 11—(Reuters) — The King will cut short his Scottish vacation at Balmoral Castle and come to London at the end of this week for further treatment for his lung condition.

The King has already interrupted his stay once, when, last Saturday, he flew to London to visit a radiologist.

The day or the King's return has not been decided.

It was thought likely the Queen will accompany him on his return to Buckingham Palace.

The journey is being made at the advice of the King's doctors, a Buckingham Palace announcement said.

The lung condition is believed due to the catarrhal inflammation of the lung from which the King suffered in the summer.

The King and Queen are scheduled to embark on an Australian tour next January.

Almonte Youth Pleads Guilty To Cattle Rustling

Ottawa, Sept. 11—(CP)—John Charles Campbell, 18-year-old Almonte, Ont., youth, pleaded guilty in county court Monday to a charge of cattle "rustling." He was remanded for sentence.

Police said Campbell drove an ancient truck up to the corral on the Fitzroy Harbor Ranch of Thomas A. Wilson and Hiram E. Wilson. He loaded seven pedigreed steers worth $1,750 aboard and drove off.

But a bit down the road the truck went into the ditch and Campbell left it there, beef and all. The cattle freed themselves and were found wandering in a nearby field.

Police said they are checking the possibility that Campbell might be part of a cattle rustling ring.

N.Y. DETECTIVE TRAILING ARSON GANG, BURNED

Million Dollar Fire Claims Life of Arsonist

New York, Sept. 11. (AP)—Three men were charged with homicide and conspiracy after a city detective and an alleged "torch" died in a $1,000,000 explosion and fire.

One of those arrested was a clothing manufacturer, allegedly seeking to collect insurance.

The detective died as he pursued the trail of an arson plot that backfired last night into an inferno which wrecked a nine-storey building.

One of the alleged arsonists was taken to a hospital in critical condition with burns.

The explosion on West 18th Street, just off Fifth Avenue—shook a large area. Damage to the building, its contents and the surrounding area may exceed $1,000,000, fire officials said. Thirty-five pieces of fire apparatus responded to five alarms.

Shortly before the explosion at 9:30 p.m. E.D.T., three detectives trailed four men into the loft of the manufacturing building.

A drum containing 55 gallons of gasoline blew up on the fifth floor, which was soon shattered by blocks around and dense smoke covered the area.

The blaze was brought under control at 11:45 p.m.

Fire officials surmised today that the alleged arson plot might have depended on a timing device to ignite the gasoline.

Too Much Gas Used

They said that apparently too much gasoline was used, and fumes might have ignited prematurely by the lighting device. No timing device or fuse was found in the ruins, however.

Police listed the dead as Detective James Daggett, 38, and Moe Shapiro, one of four men arrested who have entered the building to commit arson.

Jack Weiss, 47, was charged with homicide and arson as he lay in hospital in serious condition with burns.

Police said Weiss had been hired by Al Kushner, 43, president of Kushner Incorporated, manufacturers of sports coats, on the fifth floor of the building.

Keshner admitted he was to have paid Weiss $1,350 after the fire was set, police said. They quoted Keshner as saying his concern carried $20,000 fire insurance.

Keshner and another suspect, Fabe Rosenberg, were questioned through the night.

ONE ARMED WITH PISTOL

Hamilton, Sept. 11 — (CP) — Dundas police early today picked up two 15-year-old youths with a pistol and the other with an iron bar.

The youngsters told Constable Bill Duffin, Dundas, and Provincial Constable Cliff Rudd, Hamilton, they lived in New Toronto. They said they were 14 and 11 years of age.

The lads were picked up at 4:30 a.m., and held pending the arrival of their parents and New Toronto police.

World's Food Supply May be Doubled Through Isolation of Amino Acids

Baltimore, Md., Sept. 11—(AP)—Someday the world's food supply may be almost doubled through the chemical isolation of amino acids, the world famous discoverer of vitamins A and D said yesterday.

And because one of the greatest stumbling blocks in the world is a limited food supply in the face of a constantly-rising population, the work of Dr. Elmer V. McCollum is regarded as of outstanding significance.

The Johns Hopkins University professor emeritus of biochemistry is just back from a two-day international symposium on vitamins.

In an interview between sessions of the symposium, Dr. McCollum said he is working on a separation of amino acids in pure form from protein substances.

"When combined properly with protein foods, certain amino acids permit the body to use nearly twice as much of "the proteins we already have—in effect virtually cutting in half the amount of food required.

At present, however, pure amino acids, priced at between $50 and $100 a pound, are only available only in small amounts. And only six of 23 known varieties can be synthesized.

Besides trying to separate these acids, Dr. McCollum's laboratory is aimed at finding ways of providing them at reasonable prices for large scale use.

Dr. McCollum also spoke of the possibilities of increasing the world's supply of fresh meat. He pointed out that only about 25 per cent of the corn fed to a hog becomes meat and bone.

With the addition of small amounts of certain amino acids it might be possible to increase this food utilization to 35 per cent, thus adding 10 per cent to the supply of pork, McCollum said.

No Casualties Inflicted, Slight Damage Caused

Faulty Navigation on Pilot's Part Led to Incident

Tokyo, Sept. 12 — (Wednesday) — (AP) — The United Nations Command acknowledged last night that an Allied plane mistakenly strafed the Kaesong neutral zone Monday.

The communists had not yet replied, but instead early today broadcast an official message rejecting Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's suggestion that Korean truce talks be moved to some other site.

The communist message, broadcast by the Peiping radio in the name of North Korean Gen. Kim Il Sung and Chinese Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, said Ridgway's proposal to move was "completely unsatisfactory and unacceptable."

The message told Ridgway these efforts of any "obstruction" and then repeated all the old red accusations that the Allies were "obstructing" talks now-suspended armistice talks and had repeatedly violated Kaesong's neutrality.

Occurred Before Dawn

The latest red complaint was that an allied plane machine-gunned Kaesong before dawn Monday.

Previous red accusations have been dismissed as falsehoods and trumpups.

The Monday strafing, however, was found to be true.

A message being sent to the reds today through Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief allied truce negotiator, says:

The U.N. command statement said a plane detected by allied radar in the Kaesong area at the time of the red-report strafing turned out to be a U. S. plane.

Strafed Lights

The statement continued:

"Continuing radar plot including a directed identification turn and subsequent transmission indicates plane was one from third bomb group. The pilot reports having strafed lights at 1:36 a.m. in what he believed to be a different area but which in view of the radar plot could have been Kaesong.

"Faulty navigation on pilot's part led to error."

Earlier the communists warned the Allies to accept red terms for resuming stalled Korean truce talks in Kaesong or "bear the full responsibility for all the consequences."

They didn't say what "the consequences" would be. But it could only mean resumption of full fighting in Korea.

The reds want the allies to admit that United Nations planes and pilots have violated Kaesong's neutrality zone. This the U.N. command has refused to do. The allied command repeatedly has denied or simply ignored red charges that its planes bombed and strafed in the Kaesong area and that allied troops invaded the neutral zone.

The red's warning followed negotiations Aug. 23, charging that an allied plane bombed the conference site the night before.

Th reds' warning Tuesday came in a 3,000-word statement by their truce delegation at Kaesong. It was broadcast over red China's Peiping radio.

Report Tanker Afire at Sea Believed Hoax

Key West, Fla., Sept. 11. (AP) — The coast guard said today the report that the 10,000-ton tanker Gulfray was afire off Key West "has been evaluated as a hoax".

Coast Guard air-sea rescue headquarters said the commander of the cutter Androscoggan talked with the tanker during the extensive search by planes and surface craft.

The tanker's master said he had not radioed for assistance and that the distress was not on fire, the Androscoggan reported.

The Coast Guard promptly called off the search.

Two planes, the cutter Androscoggan, and two surface craft had been sent to aid the tanker after interception of an S.O.S. at 4:15 a.m. E.D.T.

There was no immediate indication where the S.O.S. originated.

It dodged answering the latest proposal of the supreme allied commander, Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway that truce talks be resumed in some incident-proof location. But it hinted the suggestion was unacceptable.

The red statement, broadcast for 4½ hours, said Ridgway merely was trying to "play a new trick."

The broadcast said the U.N. "should dwell in a responsible manner with the series of povocative incidents created by them'instead of raising the demand for changing the conference site with the aim of diverting attention from the settlement" of the red neutrality violation charges.

"If they are not sincere in wanting the resumption of the negotiations, then their demand for transferring the conference site only serves to prove that they are creating a pretext for breaking off the negotiations."

Authorities here presumed the reds were trying to goad the U.N. truce delegation into an over step that would explode all hopes of resuming the talks.

The builder of the local city hall was one John Forin and the building stock tower stand as a testimony to his building prowess. A grandson, of Mr. Forin, J. T. McLean, Brockville, has presented the large framed picture of the city hall builder to the city.

Harry C. Brown Named Director Of First Aid

An enthusiastic meeting was held Monday night in the City Hall under the chairmanship of Mayor R. Potter at which was laid the foundation of an organization to train civilians in first aid for use in case of national emergency.

Mayor Potter drew attention to the necessity for the citizens to be trained in first aid so that, if and when he need arose, a large group of men and women would be immediately available.

Commissioner V. A. W. Kemp, of the St. John Ambulance Brigade outlined the part played by the St. John Ambulance Brigade in matters of civil defence. He stated that an organization such as he represented was in an unique position to render practical aid in the forming of these study groups.

Mayor Potter proposed and Mr. Kemp agreed with the appointment of Mr. H. C. Brown as director of first aid in the Civil Defence organization and with him will work Mrs. McCluskey and Mrs. Ashley whose well-established groups will cooperate with the organization in the training of women.

Classes will be held in the various schools at which will be present duly qualified instructors in first aid to supply training to those who desire to be of use to the community in times of need.

Those interested, and it is hoped there will be many, are asked to watch the papers and to listen to the radio broadcasts for further announcements as to time and places of training centres.

A household iron which had been left plugged in tossed a scare into a Bleecker Ave. couple Monday night when they returned home from a movie to find the ironing board burned and the house full of smoke.

The housewife had been ironing and had left the iron plugged in while she and her husband attended an evening show. On their arrival home following the show they found the house full of smoke after the ironing board destroyed. No other damage was caused, it was reported by firemen.

R.C.A.F. Shows no Signs Of Quitting Search for Two Missing Men in North

By ELMER BONTER
(Staff Reporter)

Kapuskasing (Special)—R. C. A. F. officials here this morning reported that there was no signs of quitting the "300,000 square mile search for the missing Toronto Maple Leaf's hockey star and the Timmins sportsman dentist as the ceiling dropped down to 1,000 feet and the visibility was limited to three miles in most of the suspect areas. Rain was falling as the search resumed this morning.

Searchmaster Rushton announced that the helicopter investigation of a burned-out spot 50 miles south of Rupert House failed to give up any clues as to the disappearance of Hudson's yellow Fairchild unheard of since the late afternoon of August 28. It was feared that the light float plane, reported heavily loaded with fish, crashed and caught fire setting off a bush blaze on the regular flying route from Rupert House to South Porcupine and Timmins. Relatives and friends of the missing men's families maintain that the well-known hockey player and flying dentist travelled on returning to Timmins the day they left James Bay.

The helicopter, piloted by F/O Ray Webster of Trenton has turned to look at a number of mysterious gas caches along the missing men's suspected flight range in a hope that information will be forthcoming to throw some light on Bariloo's and Hudson's complete oblivion into various. It is expected to take four days to this mission.

Indians Curious

The first day out the helicopter dropped in at Moose Factory on an island in the middle of the river across from Moosonee. The odd-looking aircraft with the rotor on top attracted the entire Indian population who streamed across from the mainland in canoes in a wild race to see this type of plane for the first time. Churchgoers, too, interrupted worship plans and ran to the open space behind the Red Cross hospital where the helicopter sat down. The crew of the helicopter, tired of answering questions, had trouble keeping the natives from putting their hands on the "strange" machine.

The sudden influx of R. C. A. F. personnel brought a temporary boom to this quiet industrial community. At present there are 130 officers and airmen taking part in the operation.

Accomodations became a problem for both the air force and the brigade of newmen assigned to cover the hunt. Officers who slept on hotel floors considered themselves fortunate compared to helicopter pilot Webster, who chose a spot on the former beneath his machine when he arrived late and found no room.

Eating, needless to say, is the main pleasure. A "T"-bone steak three quarters the length of a man's forearm and easily an inch and a quarter thick top restaurant fare at $1.50. Steak dinners have started to become monotonous.

Fish Fans Heavy

Main feed of the visitors is the new taxi-fare increase. The day the first searchers arrived in town, trips to the airport jumped from 75 cents to $1. Unless you own your own car taxi is the only means of transportation to and from the landing strip five miles out.

Like Belleville and Trenton, Kapuskasing is grooming for the royal couple scheduled to arrive here October 8. Much preparation is underway to receive the Governor-General and Duke.

The R. C. A. F. especially commended the local branch of the Canadian Legion for entertaining them at a party with dancing last Friday night. Officers here are noticeably partial to the boys in blue.

Mayor Potter Honored By Cities Service

Recognition of co-operation given by the local chief magistrate in a recent "Ontario Marches On" radio program featuring Belleville, was made Monday afternoon by G. V. Hosang, local representative of Cities Service Oil Company, sponsors of the radio program.

The afternoon council meeting session was interrupted briefly to allow Mr. Hosang to present Mayor R. T. Potter with a large and handsomely-framed charcoal drawing of himself. The charcoal portrait was drawn by one of Canada's foremost charcoal artists from a photograph of the Mayor.

In presenting the portrait, Mr. Hosang expressed his appreciation for the co-operation given in arranging the program and wished the city and Mayor Potter future success.

Residents Warned To Keep Back From Excavation

Undermining of the sewer excavation on Cathedral Street is creating an extremely dangerous condition for sidewalk superintendents and for interested passersby who stop to view the work, it was stated today by Stan Price, assistant city engineer.

Signs warning the people of the danger and requesting them to keep back have been erected by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company, general contractors for the work, but the curious still persist in crowding to the edge at the excavation. It is feared that portions of the hanging ledge may suddenly break off throwing the spectators to the bottom of the sewer trench.

"There is a very great danger of someone getting seriously injured if the requests for spectators to keep back are not observed," Mr. Price stated.
